FIRST NATIONAL BANK TO MOVE

Leases Bee Hive Store—Has Outgrown Present Home

The First National Bank within three short years has outgrown its present quarters in the Telephone building, quarters considered at the time they were leased as adequate for the accommodation of their business for all time—but the rapid growth of business in this depository has compelled the officers to seek larger space and to that end a lease of the store in the Bee Hive block now occupied by Mr. Harris Rosenbloom has been secured and on April 1, the work of remodelling the store into the most modern banking house in this section of the State will be commenced. It is proposed to expend about $8,000 in the work of remodelling the store and Architect Seeber of Oswego will prepare the plans.

The store room is over 100 feet deep and proportionately wide. As yet nothing definite has been decided upon in regard to the changing over of the store, other than that plate glass will surround the First and Cayuga street sides of the building and that the inside will be as convenient and tasteful as can be planned. One very important detail has also been definitely decided upon and that is two tellers windows, for paying and receiving teller. This arrangements will prove very popular on busy days.

The growth and advancement of the First National bank is a matter of city wide congratulation, as it indicates the commercial prosperity of our city and adjacent territory. Mr. Thomas Hunter is president of the bank and under his wise and liberal directorship, aided and abetted by the public spirited directors and Cashier L. C. Foster's popularity, the corporation has made amazing strides within a brief period of time.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION HELD

Officers Installed by Richard Latham Enjoyable Event in Masonry

Elizabeth Chapter, O. E. S., and Fulton Lodge, R. A. M., held joint public installation of officers in Masonic Hall on Monday evening. There were a number of guests from Phoenix present and the evening proved most enjoyable.

Mr. Richard Latham of Phoenix installed the newly elected officers in Elizabeth Chapter, doing his work in splendid manner. Mrs. J. W. Wilson and Mr. W. H. Pollard acted as marshalls. The drill given by the members of the Star was highly complimented by all present, the work being faultlessly done. Previous to the work the Baptist quartette rendered two selections, Miss Hazel Guile charmed her audience with a vocal solo and Mrs. J. W. Wilson was presented with a beautiful Past Matrons pin of gold. Mrs. Wilson was taken completely by surprise but she soon regained her poise and responded to the presentation speech in happy vein.

At the conclusion of the work refreshments were served by the Star and the Chapter to the three hundred guests present.

The officers installed by Elizabeth Chapter are: Matron, Mrs. Emma Bellows; patron, Mr. F. W. Snyder; associate matron, Mrs. Fred Scholz; treasurer, Mrs. F. H. Sadelmyer; secretary, Miss Alma Richardson; conductress, Miss Elsie Guile; associate conductress, Mrs. H. D. Wismer; chaplain, Mrs. C. C. Hewes; marshall, Mrs. J. W. Wilson; historian, Mrs. George Gardner; warder, Mrs. D. E. Spencer; sentinel, Mr. J. W. Wilson; pianist, Miss Ethel Bonner; Ada, Miss Evelyn Wilson; Ruth, Mrs. Belle Stoddard; Esther, Mrs. Bert Jones; Martha, Miss Lena Gardner; Electa, Mrs. Jay Castor.

Fulton Chapter, R. A. M., installed the following recently elected officers: High priest, E. T. Jones; king, F. W. Snyder; scribe, Howard Morin; trustee for three years, Dr. H. S. Orchard.

MARRIED

The marriage of Mr. Charles A. Tilden of this city and Miss Bessie Parcell of Utica, occurred on Monday at the home of the bride in Utica.

Miss Anna E. Flynn of this city and Mr. George Johnston of Little Falls were united in marriage at the Catholic church on Monday morning. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother in Sixth street and then Mr. and Mrs. Johnston left for Sandusky, Ohio, where they will reside.

Last Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hannis in the Lewis House, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Susan June Hannis to Mr. Clayton Everett Hall, both well known young people of this city. The parlors had been decorated with pine, miniature trees forming the principle feature in the decorations, the color scheme throughout being green and white. The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father and she was accompanied by her sister, Miss Helen Hannis, as bridesmaid. The bride was gowned in ivory crepe with garniture of Duchesse and point lace and she carried bride's roses and valley lillies. Her bridesmaid wore blue crepe de chine and she carried roses. The Misses Lucile and Beulah Morley in gowns of white over pink, served as flower girls. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Clarence Hall. The Rev. C. O. Wadsworth officiated and united the young couple in marriage. At the conclusion of the ceremony and congratulations a bridal collation was served the hundred guests in the beautifully decorated dining room, and later Mr. and Mrs. Hall left for an estern bridal trip. Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of burns, boils, piles, cuts, sores, bruises, eczema and sprains. Only 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

BAD ACCIDENT AT INGALLS CROSSING

Sunday afternoon at the milk train on the O. & W. R. R. ran into an open switch at full speed at Ingalls Crossing, causing an accident that might have cost several lives. On the train were Mr. C. E. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reynolds and son, Mr. C. H. Wood and son and Mr. German, all of this city, beside several other passengers from other towns, and they were thrown about the car promiscuously by the shock. The engineer, fireman and brakeman on the milk train all sustained severe injuries and the passengers turned to and assisted in the work of removing them from their precarious positions under the engine which had tipped over.

The Fultonians late at night found a farmer who would bring them to their homes by sleigh. The failure of the railroad employes to take the slightest interest in making them comfortable in their predicament has been the cause for unfavorable comment on the part of all who were victims of the carelessness.

REPORT OF W. C. T. U. MEETING

Splendid Meeting Held—Report by County President—Much Interest

The monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held December 30th at the home of Mrs. Charles Hudson. It was a very stormy day, but forty ladies were present.

Promptly at 2 p. m. the meeting was opened by singing "Jesus, lover of my soul," with the President, Mrs. W. McCully in the chair. Mrs. T. J. Redhead conducted the devotional.

Mrs. McCully then read a letter from the State President, Mrs. Ella A. Boole; then the afternoon was given over to Mrs. S. M. Barker, County President, who gave a report of the National Convention held at Baltimore, an account full of charming and helpful things told in her own informal, enthusiastic way, giving us some rare glimpses of this great convention. (The first National Convention was held in Baltimore, Mrs. Gardenier of Oswego, editor of the State paper, was one of those that attended that first convention in 1878).

In opening the convention, the Crusade Psalm, 147, was read, and Crusade hymn, "Give to the Winds Thy Fears," was sung.

A few words of the city and their welcome; then of the women gath-

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold anywhere. Price 25 cents.

NEARLY 60,000 POSTOFFICES

First Assistant's Report on Condition of Postal Service.

Washington, D. C.—Dr. Charles P. Grandfield, First Assistant Postmaster General, in his annual report submitted to Postmaster General Hitchcock shows that the number of postoffices in operation on June 30, 1910, was 59,580. The gross revenue of the postal service in the fiscal year amounted to $224,126,657, an increase of $20,566,247. The expenditures for the year aggregated $229,977,224, an increase of $8,973,121.61. The deficit was $5,843,566, compared with $17,441,719 for the preceding year. Although the business of the postal service increased more than 10 per cent., the expenditures decreased from an average of 8.06 per cent. for each of the preceding ten years to 4.06 per cent. in 1910.

The number of postoffices established was 1,508 and the number discontinued 2,073. At Presidential offices 2,576 postmasters were appointed and at fourth-class offices 5,428 were appointed.

The policy of the department to make no changes of postmasters so long as their services were satisfactory was followed uniformly throughout the country.

An urgent recommendation is made that the department be authorized properly to adjust the salaries of assistant postmasters. Under the present system it frequently happens that an assistant postmaster receives a smaller salary than some of the clerks whose work he supervises.

It is also recommended that in the event of the death of a postoffice clerk in the line of duty provision be made for the payment of a reasonable sum to his heirs, as is now done in the event of the death of a railway postal clerk in the line of duty. In the office at New York alone four employes have been killed and sixty-four incapacitated since 1908 as the result of injuries received in the performance of their duty, yet it has not been possible for the department to afford them or their families any assistance.

It is the policy of the department not to require any more work in postoffices on Sundays and holidays than is absolutely necessary. To this end an endeavor is being made to bring about a greater degree of uniformity in the amount of Sunday work and to provide for one day of rest in seven for each employe.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all druggists.

SEMI-ANNUAL CLEANUP SALE

On Wednesday, January 4th, we commence our SEMI-ANNUAL CLEAN-UP SALE. It will last for 30 days. As in previous years we have this sale at the end of each season for the purpose of cleaning up odds and ends in Suits, Raincoats and Overcoats and all Winter Furnishings. We do this to reduce our large stock and not to carry garments over from one season to another. It is good business to do this at this time of year, to sell all winter goods left regardless of cost or profit. 'Tis an unusual opportunity that is knocking at your door; be you wise and open it wide and purchase for yourself and boys to the fullest extent of your ability to do so. Note the prices, then come to the store and see the values.

WE GUARANTEE TO DO JUST AS WE ADVERTISE. WE MUST UNLOAD OUR LARGE STOCK AND THESE PRICES WILL SURELY MOVE IT.

LOT I.

25 Small Men's Suits in sizes 33, 34, 35. One of a kind left. Some worth up to $10.00. While they last $3

LOT NO. II.

20 small size men's overcoats, sizes 32, 33, 34, 35. Some worth up to $12; only one of a kind left, while they last $3

LOT III.

175 Men's Soft Hats, samples, sizes 6 7-8; 7, 7 1-8 only. Some of these worth up to $3. Good shapes, while they last 98c

We cannot emphasize too strongly the opportunity here presented for the saving of money. In every department the most extraordinary price cutting is very much in evidence, while on many items the prices are the lowest ever heard of.

Better Men's and Young Men's Suits

There is no doubt in any one's mind in Fulton and vicinity but that we carry the BEST MAKES OF CLOTHING.

And when we offer you our entire stock of well made goods at these very low prices there can be only one result—THEY WILL MOVE FAST—so it will pay you to call early and have first pick.

To Times Readers

This edition is filled with good news to you. Our advertisers have told you a story of profit sharing and value giving that should appeal to you each and every one and the Times hopes that you will read every advertisement with the same interest and gusto that would attend your perusal of the same space filled with the chit-chat of the day.

As for our stories—we know many things we have not been able to tell you this week because of the amount of room asked by our advertisers. Next week we will tell you all about these many matters.

OLD AND NEW

Where are they hidden, all the vanished years?
Ah, who can say!
Where is the laughter flown to, and the tears?

Perished? Ah, nay!
Beauty and strength are born of sun and showers;
Shall these not surely spring again in flowers?

Yet let them sleep, not seek herein to wed
Effect to cause;
For Nature's subtelest influences spread
By viewless laws.
This only seek, that each New Year may bring
Our of new gifts a fairer, softer Spring.

Francis W. Bourdillon.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

The serious illness of Mrs. C. L. Knapp, wife of the Congressman from this district, is learned with regret by our residents.

Mayor Conners has re-appointed Hon. N. N. Stranahan and Mr. John Brennan members of the Board of Education and Messrs. G. S. Piper, T. H. Marvin, F. A. Gage members of the Board of Governors of the Lee hospital.

Mr. M. S. Powell has been elected president, treasurer and manager of the Iroquois Motor Vehicle Company of Syracuse, of which Mr. E. R. Redhead has been elected vice president and secretary.

An effort is being made to secure a pension for James Halligan, the soldier from Company D, of Oswego, who, it will be recalled lost his legs by falling from an Oswego bound train two years ago July 4, after attending the celebration in this city. The contention of Halligan's friends is that he lost his legs in the discharge of duty.

Nehasane Rebekah Lodge, No. 269 will hold its regular meeting Tuesday evening, January 10, in I. O. O. F. Temple. The meeting to be called promptly at 8 o'clock, as a great amount of business isto be transacted, initiation of a class of candidates, installation of new officers by District Deputy President Mrs. Blair of Cleveland. At the close of which a banquet will be served.

REPORT W. C. T. U. MEETING.

ered there from the East, the South, the West, and some of their characteristics that impressed her. She told of a banquet by the N. Y. State delegation, Mrs. Gardenier being especially honored, it being her wedding anniversary. A fountain pen was given to her. An original poem, and the following toast (in part):

"Somebody's always wearing a smile,
Somebody is always kind;
Somebody is always searching the file.
Somebody is scribbling all the while;
Somebody always helps us work,
Somebody was never known to shirk;
She's our Editor."

Mrs. Barker told us of the many addresses given, mentioning particularly those by Miss Ellen Stone, Madam Barakat, as being of interest to us, and then of one being given by Capt. Hobson, Congressman from Alabama, hero of Santiago, an advocate of woman suffrage and prohibition. He brought out some startling facts of the effect of alcohol on the nations. He spoke of the time he was a prisoner of the Spaniards in Santiago. From his window he could see the Spanish flag floating over the fort, and he watched the flag that would tell the story of Cuba—would she be free our would she remain in bondage. One morning as he looked the flag was still there, but soon there came the sound of cannon that grew louder and louder, and that day the Spanish fleet was destroyed, and as he still watched that flag, he saw it pulled down and the Stars and Stripes unfurled and he knew Cuba was free—and he had the conviction that our land would be freed from the curse of rum. "It is written" said he, "in the stars and in the book of fate."

Mrs. Barker spoke of the evening when some forty departments of work were demonstrated by the National Superintendent; emigrant work by fifty emigrants on platform; non alcoholics in medicines by twenty physicians, etc. Fifty young lady students from one of the colleges in Baltimore came on the platform, two holding aloft a large globe bound with white ribbon; extended in all directions held by the fifty students as they sang:

"All round the world the ribbon white is twined;
All round the world the glorious light has shined;
All round the world our cause has right of way,
We raise the anthem, swell the victory
Some glad day."

Mrs. Barker concluded by saying the outlook, as reviewed from the convention, was encouraging. It means much for the cause when such men as Capt. Hobson champions it at Washington, and there is a growing sentiment among our young people of the great evil of the liquor traffic. Over one million essays were written by students on the subject the past year.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Barker for her report.

Mrs. McCully closed the meeting by prayer, and singing the chorus:

"It's coming; it's coming;
The morn for which we pray;
We'll take the world for Christ's own Kingdom
Some glad day."

MRS. J. MAHLERWEIN,
Secretary Pro tem.

The Violin Class of Mt. Pleasant have postponed their entertainment until Saturday evening, January 14, in Grange Hall. The program will include music by the class and by Mr. Perchway, also recitations and readings. Refreshments will be served at the close of the program. The class has been newly organized and they deserve all the encouragment and patronage that their friends can give.

Miss Zulma Allen invited a number of her friends in the High school to start from her home on a sleigh ride party on Monday evening. The rain of Monday, however, made the roads impassible and the ride was abandoned. The merry crowd repaired to the home of Miss Barbara Gilbert in Academy street where the evening was most delightfully spent in song, dancing, violin and flute selections, and games. Delicate refreshments were served late in the evening and the guests repaired to their homes declaring that they had spent the most enjoyable evening of their lives.

The dancing reception given by the Citizens club on Wednesday evening was a signal success, over sixty couples being in attendance. Music for dancing was acceptably rendered by the Webb orchestra and games and other amusements were furnished those who did not care to dance.

The boom for Mayor Conners for the position of division superintendent of the middle division of canals, has not died out. In fact his claims for the position are being steadfastly presented by his friends throughout this city and section. No one is more popular than he among his party associates and friends and it is earnestly desired that he secure the appointment. Indeed it would seem that the State Democracy could hardly afford to turn him down.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by all druggists.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Maria S. Allen Rath

Columbus, O., Dispatch, Dec. 22, 1910

After a confinement to her room of over a month, Mrs. Maria S. Allen Rath, wife of the late Joseph Rath, entered into rest at 11:42 p. m. December 21, at her residence, 80 Winner avenue. Mrs. Rath was one of the women who lived each day the life of a cultured Christian woman, practicing good deeds in every direction in a simple and unpretentious way. She will be sadly missed by all who have had the privilege of knowing her.

Although a woman of 87 years she was mentally young, taking great interest in all the topics of the day. She is descended from an old and honorable family, being a grandniece of Colonel and Ira Allen and a grand-daughter of William Warner of revolutionary fame; also a cousin of the late Charles Dudley Warner. Her father was one of the pioneer settlers of St. Lawrence county, New York. She was educated at Governeur seminary in the northern part of New York state, after leaving which she spent some years as a successful teacher, marrying in 1849, Mr. Joseph Rath of Ogdensburg, New York. The family lived in St. Lawrence county, New York, until after the civil war, in which Mr. Rath served four years. After the close of the war, they moved to Fulton, New York, where Mr. Rath engaged in a successful furnace and hardware business, until 1876, when to secure a milder climate, the family came to Columbus, Ohio, where they have since resided.

Mrs. Rath from childhood had been a member and worker in the M. E. church, and brought her letter to the Broad street church of Columbus. She leaves two daughter, Mrs. M. E. Rath Merrill and Mrs. John Cashatt; also two grandchildren, Allene Count Merrill and Helene Rath Cashatt.

Funeral services will be held at the late residence, 80 Winner avenue, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, and will be conducted by the pastor of the Broad Street M. E. church. Friends of the family will be welcome. The burial will be private in Green Lawn cemetery.

Announcement!

LIKE A STROKE OF LIGHTNING from a clear sky came the announcement that we must vacate our present business location—BUILDING BEING LEASED OVER OUR HEADS. After being placed in the humiliating position of being compelled to sell our entire stock in order to pay all DEMANDS OF CREDITORS, WHO ARE CLAMORING FOR THEIR MONEY. The crisis was reached when the announcement came, that of being forced to vacate our building, which has been our home for the past ten years, practically compelling us to quit business in Fulton.

Below will convince the most skeptical that this sale, which begins Thursday, January 5th, will be a strictly legitimate, bona fide sale, the greatest slaughter of modern merchandising ever held in this city.

The following is a copy of the notice served on us to vacate:

To Harris Rosenbloom, Tenant, and to all persons occupying the property hereinafter described:

TAKE NOTICE, That we hereby require you to quit and remove from the store and premises now occupied by you, situate in the City of Fulton, in the County of Oswego, N. Y., and described as follows: The North store in the block at the corner of Cayuga and South First Streets, and known as 35 South First Street, Fulton, N. Y., on or before the 1st day of April, 1911.

We desire to express our appreciation of you as a tenant, but as we wish to have the store remodeled for banking purposes, we therefore give you this formal notice so that you may have time to secure another store

Dated at the City of Fulton, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1910.

GOOD CHEER FOR THE NEEDY

The Salvation Army is doing a good work in fifty seven countries and Fulton corps has also done a little good. Since December 1, 114 new garments and 300 old garments were given out to the poor. On Xmas 84 baskets were given to 62 families. Food bought and donated was valued at $71.06; toys given, $1.75; books and bibles given, 17; oranges, five dozen; pop corn, 45 bags; bags of candy give, 135; besides apples were given to each. Total value for all relief and Christmas tree was $210.26.

Money received from kettle $20.68.

Money received from boxes $23.43.

Money from soliciting $70.84.

The kindness of the public in contributing the money and food and also the Garrett Brothers and the Fulton Livery in donating horses was much appreciated by the officers who are willing to do their part in blessing the lives of others.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

PARSON'S POEM A GEM

From Rev. H. Stubenvoll, Allison, Ia., in praise of Dr. King's New Life Pills. "They're such a health necessity, in every home these pills should be. If other kinds you're tried in vain, USE DR. KING'S, and be well again." Only 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

Epilepsy, Fits

"My son was cured of a very bad case of epilepsy with Dr. Miles' Nervine."
MRS. D. BAKER, Cleveland, O.

"My little daughter who was afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance is now entirely well after taking Dr. Miles' Nervine only four months."
MRS. C. G. BENNETT, Alma, Mich.

Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance and Spasms, are all nervous diseases. They have been cured in so many instances with Dr. Miles' Nervine that it is reasonable to conclude that it is almost sure to cure you. With nervous diseases of a severe type, persistent use has almost invariably resulted in a complete cure or lasting benefits, worth many times the cost of the remedy. The best evidence you can get of its merits is to write to those who have used it. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

PATENTS

Attorney and Mrs. Nelon Freman have returned to their home in New York city after attending the marriage of their sister, Miss Susan Hannis to Mr. Clayton Hall.

Regents examinations will be held in the High School in this city on January 16 to 20. There has been some misunderstanding relative to the dates and Prof. Farley wished the dates published for the information of those interested.

Saturday at 8 o'clock mercury registered 8 degrees below zero. On Sunday morning at 8 o'clock it registered 35 degrees above. Such sudden changes are most unhealthy and the amount of sickness among the aged and feeble this Winter has been vastly increased by the unstable weather. The rains of Friday and Monday made a very undesirable condition in roads and streets some of the pavements being in under water to the discomfort of pedestrians.

Mrs. L. T. Singer left on Monday for Philadelphia, Pa., to spend five or six weeks with her parents.

The Webb orchestra furnished the music at a ball given in Mexico on Wednesday evening of last week.

The Rev. Charles Olmstead will speak at the Salvation Army Hall, 68 S. First street on Sunday evening, January 8.

The prize waltz which drew the silk umbrellas was danced by Miss Lottie Watson and Mr. Fred Brown at the Citizens band promenade on Friday evening.

Miss Maryetta Flint entertained at a shower on Friday evening in honor of Miss Grace Burns whose marriage to Mr. Harry Partrick will take place this month.

Captain Moyer of the Salvation Army Fulton Corps has just had the honor conferred upon her of promotion from captain to Ensign; hereafter she will be known as Ensign Moyer.

Mrs. Rosser Noblin, who underwent an operation for appendicitis two weeks ago, has sufficiently recovered from the effects of the operation to be removed to her home in South Boston, Va.

Mr. Bruce Steele, who has been critically ill at Mt. Hermon, Mass., with pneumonia, is convalescing as well as possible from the disease. His mother, Mrs. Julia Steele, is still with him.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, everyday cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Y.—Pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 30, Laws of 1909, sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at their office No. 65 Lancaster street, Albany, N. Y., at one o'clock p. m. on Wednesday, the 11th day of January, 1911, for the improvement of the following highways:

Oswego County

R. No.	Name of R.	Approx. Length
772	Fulton-Hannibal, Part 1	3.67 mi.
825	Fulton-Oswego	4.61 mi.
826	Pulaski-Orwell	5.94 mi.
5082	Mexico-Union Sq., Part 2	2.92 mi
5083	Union Sq.-Pulaski, Part 1	2.61 mi

Maps, plans, specifications and estimates may be seen and proposal forms obtained at the office of the Commission in Albany, N. Y., and also at the office of Division Engineer, Fred W. Sarr, So. Clinton and W. Jefferson streets, Syracuse, N. Y. The especial attention of bidders is called to "Information for Proposers" on pages 6 and 7 of the specifications.

Proposals for each road must be presented in a separate sealed envelope endorsed on the outside with the name and number of the road for which the proposal is made. Each proposal must be accompanied by a New York draft or certified check payable to the order of the State Commission of Highways for an amount equal to at least five per cent. of the amount of the proposal which such draft or check accompanies.

This draft or check will be held by the Commission until the contract and bond are duly executed.

The successful bidder will be required to give a bond for fifty per cent. of the amount of the contract; such bond to be executed by a Surety Company to be approved by the Commission, or a bond secured by the deposit of collateral securities to be approved by the Commission.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

S. Percy Hooker, Chairman.
T. Warren Allen, Commissioner.
Robert Earl, Commissioner.

Secretary's Report

The seventh annual report of the secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Fulton Hospital, January 5, 1911 follows:

At the April meeting, 1910, Article IV of the Constitution was amended to read "the annual meeting shall be held the first Thursday in January" instead of "in March" as heretofore. This change was deemed advisable so that the annual meeting of the Auxiliary would correspond to the time of the annual meeting of the Board of Governors. That alteration made the past year of the Auxiliary consist of only nine regular monthly meetings at which the attendance averaged eighteen.

The work of the past nine months has differed from that of the previous years in that instead of being general, it has all centered toward one particular feature, which was the management and maintenance of the domestic work in the Hospital, including the food and linen supplies and the laundry work. This work was placed in the hands of the ladies by the Board of Governors on April first for the remainder of the year, or until January 1, 1911.

The new Lee Memorial Hospital was dedicated with appropriate exercises on April 15th, Mrs. A. L. Lee, the donor, coming here for that purpose, and the moving and settling into the new quarters, requiring some time, the ladies did not begin their supervision until the first of May, although paying for supplies from April first.

This work was done by ladies appointed on the House Committee, while the Entertainment Committee and Auxiliary ladies successfully carried through the plans to keep money in the Treasury to meet the bills. The gifts to the Hospital during the year have been many and very helpful; and have been greatly appreciated by those who knew the many and varied needs of a new and growing institution.

At the time of the dedication Mrs. A. L. Lee, New York, headed the list of donations for the new Hospital with a generous supply of bedding and groceries, and the people of the city and surrounding country and villages, have generously added something to the list every month. One has only to read the printed list of the last Thanksgiving donation to see that the people have the need of the Hospital on their hearts and that their hands are ever carrying gifts for the support of the institution and the comfort of the sick. In June a plan was carried through for the filling of fruit and jelly cans for the Hospital, and by that means about two hundred cans of fruit, two hundred cups of jelly and sixty-five cans of pickles were placed in the storeroom for the winter's use.

And in conclusion, the Auxiliary would acknowledge with thanks and appreciation all the help which has been given them by the people during the last Auxiliary year.

Mrs. E. E. Morrill,
Recording Secretary.

UNENTERPRISING MERCHANTS

On reason why so much trade goes out from country villages to the neighboring cities is that the village merchant fails to understand the value of advertising in the local papers, whereas the city merchant appreciates the fact that advertising pays and pays handsomely and he reaches out and reaps the harvest which should and could be gathered by local merchants if the latter had "gumption" enough to take in the situation. City advertising in village papers has developed marvelously within the past 20 years, while during the same period advertising in village papers by local merchants has correspondingly declined.—Ex.

INTERESTING LETTER

Dr. I. C. Curtis Writes From Orange City, Fla.,—Land of Sunshine and Roses—Weather Conditions Ideal

Mr. H. N. Gilbert recently received the following interesting letter from Dr. I. C. Curtis, who, with Mrs. Curtis, is escaping the rigors of our northern Winter by spending the severe months at their Winter home in Orange City, Fla. Mr. Gilbert kindly permitted The Times to publish the letter in part, as follows:

My Dear Mr. Gilbert:

We left Fulton on the 12th and stopped off at Cortland and remained over Sunday with S. J. Doyle (a boy that lived with us over thirty years ago), and on Monday met our Jennie at the train and made a good journey without stops until we reached home on Wednesday P. M. (18th) and found that our friends had taken possession of the house and had dinner all ready for us and we sat down to the table (eleven strong), and filled ourselves with "what the neighbors sent in" and visited to our heart's content.

As the trains on the F. E. C. R. R. and the A. C. L. do not mean to connect, if they can do otherwise, we had ordered a conveyance to meet us at the Junction and rode for two miles over a "pine straw" road (made by putting about three inches of pine needles on the sand where the horses and carriages travel) and enjoyed the sense of riding on a cushioned road that made it seem quite different from plowing through the sand as in former years.

The mercury ranges from 65 to 82 in the shade and as I look out of the open window while writing this, the birds are singing and a grey squirrel has been sitting up watching me pound away on this machine, his distance from me being not over twelve feet.

As I sit writing, I am looking out on a bed of roses that are as fine as any that could be purchased in any greenhouse and are in full bloom and the stems of the young growth look so red and angry and full of vigor, that one wonders if they can keep it up for the entire season.

We find that the little orange, lemon and grapefruit trees that we set out five years ago, are in bearing and we will have about two boxes of fruit and a tree called "Umbrella" that we set out at the same time and which was not larger than my thumb at its base (I mean the tree's base), has grown to the dimensions I will give: Height, twenty feet; spread of branches, thirty-five feet; circumference of trunk, two feet above the ground 54 inches.

How is that for growth in Florida white sand?

Yesterday I spent in getting my car in commission and will be able to get somewhere without walking all of the time and will get out where there are quail that I have an appointment with and to the St. Johns River, where there are a few more alligators that I have a date with and then a few of those nice fish that are waiting for a few worms that I annually feed them, so you can see that I can if I like, lead quite a strenuous life here.

Since buying this place (five years ago), I have set out about a hundred ornamental trees on the place among which are camphor, palmetto, acacia, magnolia, pine, date, holly, mulberry, loquat, California maple, Spanish bayonet and a long hedge of bamboo, in addition to orange, lemon and grapefruit, and roses till one cannot rest.

Were I to desire to sell the place, the time spent in making these additions to the beauty of the place, would greatly enhance its value, and besides that I have had the pleasure of seeing them grow and develop their beauty.

Four palmetto trees that I had set out, weighed when set about fifteen hundred pounds each and are about twenty feet in height and fifteen inches in diameter at base, for I made up my mind that I would have some trees in the yard that would amount to something and not have to wait so long that I might never live to see them of any size, for the palmetto is a slow grower and it is estimated that there are a lot of trees of that species that are here on the river that are between five hundred and a thousand years old and a tree that is a hundred years old is a young one, comparatively.

When you write, let us hear all of the news, for we are interested in all that is going on there, but in my letters to you it must be largely descriptive, for all the people and places in this immediate vicinity are strangers to you and I am handicapped as to what to write about.

There is a mineral spring about 2½ miles from here coming out of a bank, that is about twenty feet in height, or else comes out of the ground at the base of the bank, that flows enough water all of the time so that a loaded canal boat could float in it from the spring to the river, a distance of ½ mile.

No one has ever been able to take soundings in this spring but I suppose that the current of the water is the cause of the line and lead being stopped from taking measurements.

Arthur, your brother, estimated that there were 3,000,000 gallons of water flowing from the spring every hour.

Guess I have bored you enough for this time, so will say as they do in the magazines, "To be continued in our next."

Sincerely,
I. C. CURTIS.

CHIEF ROSS'S REPORT

Chief of Police Ross Files Annual Report—Fewer Arrests But Greater Receipts Than in 1909

Police Chief Ross has filed the following report for the year 1910, with City Clerk MacNamara. In comparsion it shows a much more satisfactory condition of things than during 1909, in that during that year there were 412 arrests made with a total of $924 collected. In 1910 there were 276 arrests made with fines collected to the amount of $1,342.43.

The report in full is as follows:

Number of arrests, 276; male, 266; female, 10; public intoxication, 161; assault in third degree, 18; assault in second degree, 2; assault in first degree, 3; petit larceny, 24; bastardy, 1; grand larceny in first degree, 2; grand larceny in second degree, 3; burglary in third degree, 2; violations Excise law, 2; violation city ordinance 12; defrauding hotel keeper, 3; disorderly persons, 14; miscellaneous charges, 12; juvenile delinquency, 12; adultery, 2; rape in first degree, 1; robbery in first degree, 1; carrying dangerous weapon, 1; total, 276. Of the above number 70 were non-residents and ten arrests for other Police Departments.

Discharged, 35; pleaded guilty, sentence suspended, 69; number convicted, 142; not disposed of, 10; held for Grand Jury, 20; total, 276. Fines imposed and collected, $1,086.60; fees in criminal matter due from county, $140.50; patrolman fees for civil service, $115.33; total $1,342.43. Chief Police expenses for 1910, $250.10; police calls 68, fire 13 at $1.00 per call, $81.00; meals for jail prisoners and lodgers, $133.25; total $463.35; balance, $379.08. Lodgers for 1910, 89 Property stolen and recovered $200.

In a great measure the increased amount of fees for the city has been brought about by the probation system in operation here. Heretofore when one arrested could not pay his fine he was committed to jail. Under the new order of things if the prisoner expresses a willingness to pay his fine on the installment plan, he is parolled in the care of Chief of Police Ross, to report to him each week and pay his stipulated sum until the total is paid. In case of misconduct he may at once be taken into custody again, but generally there is no further trouble from the man. This makes additional work for the Chief as it necessitates his keeping an extra set of books, as many as seven probationers having been before the Chief in a single evening to remit fines.

LETTER FROM DR. MARY WALKER

Reads Times and Gives Many New Facts—Dr. Walker Holds Unique Place in History—Proud of Record.

Editor Times: I have read an article in your Times, relating to my "Capture by the Confederates."

Regarding the date, time, place, etc., in fact, nearly the whole account, was evidently written as a garbled hearsay item. I have no time to write the true text.

Twenty five of the Union surgeons were exchanged for fifteen confederate surgeons, on August, 1864; all exchanges having been made on the James River.

A General was asked for me, but a prominent surgeon, Dr. Lightfoot, of Tennessee, was the special exchange. I met the tall, fine looking gentleman. I speak of this with pride, as it was the first "equal rights" acknowledged in any war, where a woman surgeon was exchanged for a man surgeon. I was the first woman in the history of the world to be an official in the medical department of an army in time of war. More than thirty years after, because of my having been a president, Dr. Annita McGee received the same grade of appointment in the time of the Spanish war. She is a splendid woman, who was a mere child at the close of the fraternal war, and was slender and but a little taller than myself, with eyes, hair and complexion similar to my own, at the time she was made an A. A. Surgeon.

I send this as an amendi honorabie, and expect editors of papers, who have copied your article, to copy the above also.

Yours truly,
Mary E. Walker, M. D.,
Notary Public, etc.

CLAIM NO JURISDICTION

Judge Rowe Monday, on application of J. T. McCaffrey, granted a writ of habeas corpus returnable before Judge Merrell on Wednesday, directing the people to show cause why Tony Leopardi should not be released from jail.

He was sent from Fulton for four months and fined $50 for carrying concealed weapons. Mr. McCaffrey claims that the City Court of Fulton had no jurisdiction in the case.

MARRIED

The marriage of Miss Myrtle A. Walker and Mr. Frank B. Howard took place on Thursday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. G. E. Walker in Erie street, in the presence of 40 invited guests. The Rev. J. G. York of the Baptist church was the officiating clergyman and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Olive Walker. The groomsman was Dean Howard. The bride was attired in pearl grey messaline and she carried jacqueminot roses. The bridesmaid wore pink messaline and carried pink and white carnations. The bridal march was played by Miss Cora Griffin of Syracuse, who also played during the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Howard will make their home in Fulton after a brief bridal trip.

CONGREGATIONAL SOCIETY PROSPEROUS

The annual meeting of the membership of the Congregational church was held last week and showed the society to be prosperous and growing.

Messrs. Z. Newell and Everett Bishop were elected trustees of the Society for three years to succeed G. B. Fairman and D. C. Case. G. B. Fairman was chosen clerk and F. J. Switzer was re-elected treasurer.

Various reports showed there are 232 active members and that the society is in a prosperous condition. During the year the Woman's Missionary Union has supplied the church with new cushions at a cost of about $370.

G. B. Fairman and Wells D. Hannum were elected deacons, Mrs. G. B. Fairman, treasurer, and W. H. Barrett, clerk of the church.

The Sunday school of the congregation, with a membership of 306, raised $300 during the past year.

ANNUAL MEETINGS HELD

COMMON COUNCIL

Brief Session Held—Times Unanimously Re-designated as Official Paper of City for 1911

The Common Council held a short session on Tuesday evening.

The city charter is so vague and the amendments not on file, so that at the last meeting Alderman Wolcott raised the question as to whether or not the official paper for the ensuing year should not be designated to make the proceedings perfectly legal. Mr. Wolcott's action was misunderstood by some outsiders who had learned of his action and quite a little tempest in a tea pot was created thereby. At the meeting last evening Alderman Smith of the Fourth Ward introduced a resolution to the effect that the Times be re-designated as the official paper for the ensuing official year; Alderman Wolcott seconded the motion and the Times was unanimously re-designated.

The report of Sealer of Weights and Measures O'Brien was accepted.

To the Common Council of the City of Fulton, N. Y.:

The petition of the Seventh Day Adventist Society of Fulton, N. Y., respectfully shows that the said society was in the year 1909 an association organized exclusively for religious purposes, and that said association was assessed upon the tax roll of the City of Fulton, East Side, in that year upon the property occupied by the church building of said association at a valuation of Five Hundred (500) Dollars, upon which a tax of $14.62 was levied.

That said church building and property was used exclusively for church purposes, and no officer or member, or employee of said association received any pecuniary profit therefrom.

Your petitioner therefore asks that the said tax upon said property be cancelled.

Dated, December 27th, 1910.

The Seventh Day Adventist Society of Fulton, N. Y.
By M. W. Milks, Chairman of Board of Trustees.

State of New York, } ss
County of Oswego, }

M. W. Milks being duly sworn, says that he is the chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Seventh Day Adventist Society of Fulton, N. Y., an officer of the petitioner named in and which subscribed the foregoing petition; that he knows the contents of said petition, and that the same is true, to the knowledge of deponent, except as to matters herein stated to be alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters he believes it to be true.

M. W. Milks.

Sworn to before me this 27th day of December, 1910.

Arvin Rice,
Notary Public.

Alderman Johnson introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That the petition of the Seven Day Adventist society of Fulton, be granted, and that the tax of $14.62 levied against the property be, and the same is hereby cancelled, and the Chamberlain is hereby directed to correct his record accordingly.

Aye: Aldermen Palmer, Malone, Johnson, Smith, Wolcott, Newton.

Alderman Wolcott offered the following and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That the Mayor appoint a committee of three to confer with the assessors in regard to an erroneous assessment.

Aye: Aldermen Palmer, Malone, Johnson, Smith, Wolcott, Newton.

—Carried.

The Mayor appointed as such committee Aldermen Wolcott, Malone, Newton.

Adjourned to January 10, 1911.

CITY OF FULTON, ss.

STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the New York State Agricukural Society will be held in Albany, January 17, 18 and 19, and the principal subject for consideration will be the development of our agricultural resources and the relation between this problem and the cost of living. Eminent speakers will address the meeting, among thos secured being President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University, President G. C. Creelman of Ontario Agricultural College, and men high in agricultural, official and railroad circles. It is expected that two State governors will be on the program. Considerable time will be given to the presentation of reports of four standing committees that were appointed last year and it is expected that these reports will be fully discussed.

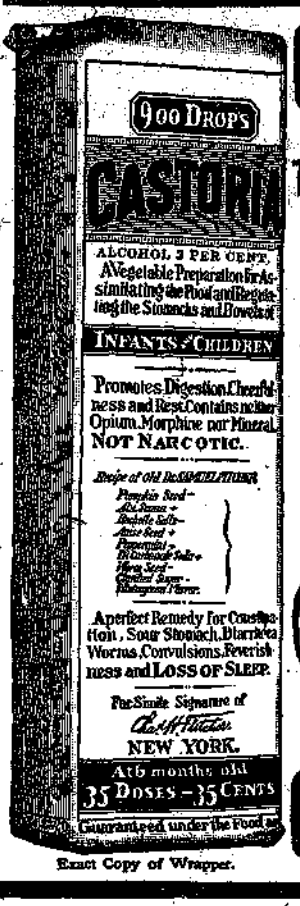
MONEY IN ELECTIONS

(New York Evening Post)

Victory does not always rest with the biggest campaign funds. There doubtless have been times when the lavish outlay of money did a great deal to turn the tide in a close election. Legitimate expenditures may still have such an effect in some cases. But figures recently published, showing the sums spent at the November election in New York and other States, demonstrate clearly that money nowadays is of little avail when there is a landslide or anything approximating it. The Republican national congressional committee spent $74,373 and lost control of the House of Representatives; the Democratic congressional committee expended $27,771 and turned a Republican majority of 47 into a Democratic majority of more than 60. In New York State, on the other hand the Democrats spent $519,037, and their ticket, State and legislative, won; while the Republicans spent $398,638 in behalf of a defeated ticket. The Republican congressional fund may have saved a few seats for the party in close districts; the large Democratic fund in this State probably made the Democratic victory more complete. But neither one had any decisive effect.

Legislation enforcing publicity of receipts and expenditures and prohibiting contributions from corporations has done much to lessen the reckless use of money in elections. It has checked and discouraged the tendency, to use money illegitimately on a large scale. Doubtless there is much still to be accomplished in the purification of our political campaigns. Money is certainly still spent for which no accounting is, or can be, made. But a survey of the figures printed throughout the country since election, compared with conditions known to exist 10 years ago, shows that a great advance has been made. The Association to Prevent Corrupt Practices at Elections, in a report on campaign expenditures in this State, declares that the statements filed this year at Albany are much more satisfactory and complete than ever before. Attention is called to the fact that local committees have generally for the first time listed the amounts paid to party workers at the polls and for carriage and hack hire to get out the vote on election day. Some of them even carefully recorded the amount paid to individual workers by name and election district. Such frankness would have been unthinkable ten years ago.



There is still a wide difference in the amounts spent in various States in the union. In Wisconsin, for instance, funds of both the Democratic and Republican State committees were but little more than $8,000 each, the Republicans spending less than $200 more than their opponents. The sums spent in New York were much larger in proportion to the total vote cast. On the other hand, McGovern, who was elected Governor of Wisconsin, swore to the expenditure of more than $12,000 in his campaign, which was more than twice the amount spent by Dix and Stimson together. In McGovern's case, however about $10,000 was spent at the primary campaign in which he was pitted against four other aspirants for the nomination. It is this increased expense that constitutes one of the arguments against the direct primary, although it is reasonable to suppose that McGovern would have spent more on the election had the primary not existed. His expenditure does not compare in size with that of Foss the Governor-elect of Massachusetts. Neither one limited himself as did Judge Baldwin in Connecticut, who adopted the plan of spending one year's salary for election expenses. A perusal of the list of contributors to the local funds of some of the up-State counties shows that in such Republican strongholds as Monroe and Onondaga, a regular scale of contribution was levied on officeholders based on a ratio that ran from two to four per cent of the annual salaries. The fact, however, that many officeholders did not contribute at all appears to indicate that only "moral suasion" was used to secure payment.

An analysis of the expenditures of the State and county committees in this State shows some interesting and significant facts. The figures are as follows:

	Rep.	Dem.
Amount expended by State committees	$157,142	$328,870
Less amount contributed to county committees	65,250	209,350
	$91,892	$119,520
Amount expended by county committees	306,746	399,516
Net total	$398,638	$519,037

From this table it will be seen that the Republican county organizations bore the greater share of the burden of their own campaigns, raising $301,496 of the $366,746 which was spent, while the Democratic county committees raised less than half, $120,166 of the $399,516 expended by them. In other words the opulent Republican machines of Albany, Buffalo, Syracuse and Rochester were expected to finance their own campaigns, in the necessity of carrying their local tickets, and they responded very well. Aldridge got but $1,000 from the State committee, and Hendricks but $1,500. On the other hand, the weak Democratic organizations in the up-State counties, with no patronage, had to be taken care of by the State committee. In Oswego county, the State committee sent $3,770 of the $4,450 used; in Broome county, $4,615 of $5,244; in Onondaga, $12,000 of $15,505; in Cayuga county, $3,380 of $4,000; in Jefferson, $5,500 out of $6,990, and in Monroe, $12,900 of $14,400. In the six counties of Onondaga, Monroe Oswego, Jefferson, Cayuga and Broome the Democratic State committee sent local committees $40,770, while the Republican State committee contributed but $6,900 to the organizations in the same counties.

In 41 counties from which reports have been received, the Democratic county committees had larger sums at their disposal than the Republicans. In 13, the Republicans had larger funds. The Democrats carried a large majority of the 41; the Republicans, all but one of the 13. In former years, had the money sent up-State by the Democrats been made public without indicating where it came from, the charge that Wall street bought the election might have been made. But, happily, the law which requires that the names of subscribers shall be made public enables us to tell exactly the source of financial support.

STOMACH TROUBLE CURED

If you have any trouble with your stomach you should take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. P. Klote of Edina, Mo., says: "I have used a great many different medicines for stomach trouble, but find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets more beneficial than any other remedy I ever used." For sale by all druggists.

A New York man shot himself five times in an attempt to commit suicide, which is a striking commentary on Gen. Wood's contention that every man should learn to be a good marksman.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

STATE RAIDED RESTAURANTS

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 3, 1911.—The Special Agents of the State Department of Excise and officers of the Detective bureau of the New York City Police Department, on Wednesday visited eight wine cellars and restaurants in the Borough of Manhattan, with search warrants issued by Supreme Court Justice Page, and warrants for the arrest of the proprietors issued by Chief Magistrate McAdoo. The places visited were selling liquors without liquor tax certificates.

About one hundred barrels and one thousand bottles of various wines and liquors were seized and taken to police headquarters, and the prisoners were arraigned before Magistrates Appleton, Krotel and Herrman.

It takes a phlegmatic race like the English to stand the suspense of elections lasting three weeks instead of one day, as we do.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Oswego, Dec. 28.—It was expected that the Committee would be ready to report today, but this was found impossible as some of the Supervisors are meeting with the Town Boards of their respective towns today. The following ratios were announced:

	County	Highway
Amboy	1.10	.50
Boylston	1.00	.90
Constantia	1.00	.64

Fred M. Hart, the exprot accountant, in his report on the affairs of the County Treasurer's office, today paid a fine tribute to County Treasurer Moore for the excellent manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the county and suggested that some way be made to place sufficient funds at the disposal of the Treasurer so that there would be money enough on hand to pay the orders that are drawn.

There is usually from $10,000 to $15,000 in orders that are deposited in banks drawing interest. There is no occasion for this, Mr. Hart says. The reason for the deficit is that the towns and county do not raise sufficient money each year and that contingent expenses not provided for are also responsible for the shortage in the funds. The reports was adopted and ordered printed in the journal, but no action was taken.

Mr. Buck presented the report of the Committee to Settle With the County Treasurer and the report of the accountant, F. M. Hart, who examined the books. Ordered printed.

By Mr. Fuller: That the Bridge Committee, of Fulton, be given the authority to look after the county's interest in the lower bridge of that city, and that the County Attorney and County Superintendent, to whom the matter was referred, be authorized to submit their report to the committee instead of the Board. Mr. Fuller said that the resolution had the approval of the County Attorney.

On motion of W. M. Gallagher the Board went into executive session to discuss the resolution.

The resolution of Mr. Fuller, after coming out of executive session, was adopted.

A resolution by W. M. Gallagher increasing the salary of the Special Deputy and Court Clerk and the Index Clerk from $60 to $70 a month was made a special order for tomorrow.

Reports of Coroners C. J. VoWinkel and H. C. Marsh relative to disposition of property found on dead bodies was received and ordered filed.

The report of the County Superintendent of Highways, being a detailed account of the year's work, was received and ordered printed in the Journal. In the report, a request is made for an automobile. No action was taken on this, though it is looked upon with favor by many of the Supervisors. Adjourned.

Oswego, Dec. 29.—The Board of Supervisors this morning tabled the resolution introduced a short time ago providing for quarterly sessions of the Board of Supervisors. Chairman Sweetland advocated quarterly sessions at a meeting held ten days or two weeks ago and a day or two later Superintendent Comerford offered a resolution providing for special sessions. It was made a special order for today and Supervisor Terry's motion to table the resolution was adopted without debate.

Supervisor Jackson presented a resolution providing for an increase in the salary of the County Superintendent of Highways from $1,000 to $1,200 per year and authorizing the Supply Committee to purchase an automobile for not more than $1,200.

Supervisor Rounds moved that the matter be made a special order for tomorrow at 11:30 o'clock.

Mr. Hamer presented the report of the special committee appointed to consider the question of heating and ventilating the Court House.

He said two engineers had examined the Court House. The first said a new boiler for heating was necessary at an expense of $3,000 and the second said the present boiler was all right but the chimney should be enlarged and the pipes covered with asbestos instead of felt.

Both recommended an electric fan ventilating system by which the hot air at a temperature of 70 degrees would be forced into the court room. The heating and ventilating as recommended by the second engineer would cost between $2,500 and $3,000, instead of $3,000 for the heating alone.

Supervisor Comerford's resolution that the special committee be authorized to make the improvements at an expense not to exceed $3,000 was adopted.

Mr. Crimmins moved that the committee for working prisoners be authorized to change the present plan of employing a guard if deemed advisable and instead employ an assistant farmer at a compensation of $50 a month to help on the farm and guard the prisoners. Adopted.

Mr. Vincent moved that the chairman and clerk be authorized to look after the county's interests. Adopted.

Mr. Fuller moved that the county sealer of weights and measures be allowed an expense account of $400. The present salary is $1,000 without expense.

An amendment by W. M. Barker that the resolution be laid on the table, was lost by a vote of twelve to nineteen.

Supervisor W. M. Gallagher moved that the Fuller resolution be made a special order for tomorrow. Adopted.

Mr. W. M. Gallagher presented a resolution asking that our representatives in the Assembly and Senate be authorized to favor the resolution providing for a pension for teachers who have taught for over fifty years, the members of college faculties not included. Supervisor Harinett moved that the resolution be made a special order for to morrow. Before action could be taken Supervisor Gallagher withdrew his resolution.

Mr. Jackson moved that the chairman and clerk distribute mortgage tax moneys. Adopted.

The special order relative to increasing the salary of the court clerk and index clerk in the County Clerk's office from $60 to $70 per month was continued until to morrow.

Chairman Sweetland called attention to the present cost of furnishing light and power at the County Jail from the gasolene engine now there. This engine was installed by the Special Jail Committee. The cost for having a man run the engine for gasolene, etc., during the past year was in the neighborhood of $1,600. He stated that he had figures from the People's Gas and Electric Company showing that the cost for furnishing power and light for the month of December, the heaviest of the year would be $63.41. He said that by installing a motor and using this electric power that the jail could be furnished with light and heat at the rate of about $600 per year. The Supply Committee was empowered to take this matter up and make the necessary arrangements for the installation of the motor and changing over to this new system.

Before the meeting Supervisor Gayer of Fulton was making a vigorous protest on the Fulton equalization situation. He had figured it out that Fulton's end of the county tax so far as the county's end was concerned amounted to 50 cents on every $100 valuation which made an increased amount to be paid by the taxpayers of over $4,700. This Mr. Gayer contended was due to the way Fulton had been treated by the equalization committee and he did not like to see the extra tax put on Fulton.

It is stated that the Fulton ratio will be between $2.80 and $2.90.

Oswego, Dec. 30.—The Supervisors will conclude their session this afternoon with suitable presents to Chairman and Clerk and the usual expressions of good feeling.

At the morning session all the reports were presented and the Supers played the part of Santa Claus by increasing the salary of Superintendent Howard and buying him an automobile, Court Clerk Coulter, Index Clerk Alsever and Mortgage Tax Clerk Burlingame increasing the salary of each $120 a year, giving them $840 instead of $720 for their services. All of these resolutions went through on a divided vote.

The salary of the county sealer of weights and measures were increased by giving him $200 for expenses.

The report of the Sheriff and Jailors' Committee commended Sheriff Taft for the manner in which he presented his report. None of the Sheriff's bills were cut; and he was allowed actual moneys expended in attempting to bring from Seattle former Policeman Blodgett, of Fulton, wanted here on an indictment for permitting a prisoner escape from jail.

The report said that the jail at Pulaski is maintained more as a home for tramps than anything else and called upon the attendants and Justices there to be a little more careful in the method of doing business for the county. The amount of all the bills claimed was $16,575.06 and the amount allowed $15,667.26.

An amendment recommended to the Legislature, to the law passed last year making the office of Sheriff a salaried one, was approved and sent to the county's representatives in Albany.

It provides for a matron at the jail in the Courthouse, as the law directs, gives the deputy sheriff's fees when engaged in criminal business, directs the county to pay bills created on direction of any State department having power to direct the Sheriff. The latter refers to the Quarantine law. Last year the deputy sheriffs had bills against the county for $2,000 growing out of this law. Under the new law the Sheriff would have to pay those charges from his salary of $3,000 a year.

The Board, under the amendment, can also make a contract with the new Sheriff for boarding prisoners or they can pay for actual cost of keeping the inhabitants of the jail. The measure was drawn by County Attorney Coville, approved by him, and introduced by Mr. Hamer.

The Committee on Miscellaneous Accounts paid their respects to the Chairman of the Supply Committee thusly: "We have considered it necessary and proper to disallow many items and several accounts have been withdrawn and corrected. We have allowed several accounts for work and services which we believe to be excessive and extravagant for the reason that the work and services were ordered by the Chairman of the Supply Committee and performed and receipted for the proper county officials and therefore could not be legally disallowed.

"In our judgment the Chairman of the Supply Committee has, in many instances, contracted for work and purchased supplies which were not necessary, and which could have been dispensed with without loss or detriment to the county, and frequently at prices in excess of those which might reasonably have been obtained. It is also apparent that in several instances the Chairman of the Supply Committee has violated the regulation of the Board in regard to letting contracts to the lowest bidder, this having been accomplished by letting work in several distinct items each less than $100, thereby causing the county financial loss. In these cases we have disallowed such items and charges to such an extent as could lawfully be done."

The amount of the accounts claimed was $46,783.11. The amount allowed was $45,173.93. The bill for repairing shoes was allowed, it having been properly certified by the Supply Committeemen.

Mr. Pierce presented the bond of H. W. Kaudt, County Treasurer-elect, for $60,000. Approved by the Board upon recommendation of the County Attorney, County Judge and County Clerk.

By Mr. Hydorn: Appropriating $800 to work prisoners at County Jail Adopted.

By Mr. Fuller: Certifying amount of county tax to be levied on Fulton. Adopted.

By Mr. Gallagher: Recommending to the county's representatives in Albany their favoring the enactment of a law pensioning school teachers. Adopted.

By Mr. Rounds: Directing that supplies for the county be purchased under the bid system. Adopted.

Mr. Jackson's resolution increasing salary of Superintendent of Highways and buying him an automobile was adopted, 23 to 7.

The resolution granting the increase to the County Sealer of Weights went through by a vote of 20 to 10.

The resolution increasing the salaries of Mr. Alseveer and Mr. Coulter in the County Clerk's office was adopted by a vote of 20 to 10, and the resolution to increase the salary of Mr. Burlingame was adopted 16 to 14.

The Chairman was directed to purchase a new safe for the Sheriff and he named as a committee to approve the last day's minutes, Messrs. Comerford and Crimmins.

This afternoon all the reports submitted at the morning session were adopted.

The Chairman and Clerk of the Board were authorized to enter into a contract with the Sheriff for board of prisoners at $2.94 per week.

Chairman Sweetland was presented with an easy chair, Clerk Mahany with a handsome watch fob and Attorney Coville with an emblematic watch fob.

KILL MORE THAN WILD BEASTS

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

ONLY TWIN D. A. R. ARE 70

The only real twin daughters of the American revolution in the United States are Mrs. Julia Ann Demarary and her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Russell, of Lake Odessa, Mich., beside that, they are the oldest twins in Michigan. They celebrated their seventieth birthday October 24. Their father was 78 when they were born.

Their father, John Peter Frank, enlisted in the continental army from Philadelphia in 1776 and served all through the revolution. After the death of his first wife he married an English woman many years younger than himself.

Still, even if the authorities do get active, the trial of the sugar trust frauds is not likely to be short and sweet.

LETTER FROM SAN DIEGO, CAL.

The following letter from a former townswoman will be read with interest by her many friends in this vicinity. The violets which were enclosed were proof conclusive that in some section of the globe was a land that is fairer than this and recalled the fact that sunshine and roses might be exchanged for our present snow drifts.

Editor Times:

While I am watching the old year out I know of no better way to use my time than by writing to you. I think Fulton must have changed in two and one-half years by what I see in my "Times." There are many new names; some seeming to take an active part in the city life, but they had not been heard of when I left. Then the new trolley; and to think it will be through to Oswego in the early summer. The canal work by all reports must be giving a strange look to local points, to say nothing about the few new industrial plants that have been added. The Memorial Hospital and the Case Memorial chapel must both be fine from the cuts I have seen in the "Times." Such things are a permanent improvement to a town and I know you must all feel proud of them. It seems strange to think of our Presbyterian church with an entire stranger in the pulpit.

Weather here is unusually fine. We should be enjoying (?) our earlier rains at this time, but have only had two nights of rain so far and the country is sadly in need of rain for its crops and its feed. It is just like May here now, cool enough for a little fire in the evening, but the days are so fine one can sit right out doors and can even enjoy being on the water. One of the New Year stunts of our local rowing club is its annual dip in the ocean, and a large number of members and their friends are ready for that swim in the early morning if it was not too early I would like to see it. Of course the water is pretty cool, yet there are people here that go in every day in the year and enjoy it.

The vessels of the navy are in and out of our harbor all the time. It is their Southern port on the Pacific. Only a few miles further south and they are in the waters of Old Mexico. It is only a drive from here of about twelve miles to the border line and we can see the mountains and the islands always from our windows that belong to Mexico. Then too, it is here that the navy have their target practice. There are now some of the large warships; seven or eight torpedo boats and two of the submarines in port. Of course part of them will leave in a day or so for Northern points.

Did I tell you that this summer at the big gun target practice at the Fort here the gunners broke the world's record for speed and also for accuracy of aim? They felt quite elated over that matter. One Sunday while the "West Virginia" lay at anchor in bay, a local passenger boat had advertised to carry people out for 25c or "two bits" apiece from 9 'till 4. They took them out every half hour all that time and some single loads netted them $15.00, quite an income for a little gasoline and two men. San Diego is nothing at all if she is not up to or a little ahead of the best that can be done to make money out of the travelling public. Not that the charges for these things are exhorbitant, but some one sees and uses every opportunity that offers, and you always get the worth of your money. $1.25 will give you an all day's auto trip into Old Mexico with two or three side stops at points of interest. $1.00 will give you an all day's carriage trip around the bay to the theasophical school on Point Toma, a stop at Old Town where Ramona was married and a delightful ride along the ocean, till you reach the Point Toma light house and a point which is the only place in the world where the waves always roll in from three different directions at the same time. 25c takes you a round trip to Ocean Beach. 15c gives you a round trip to Coronado hotel and Tent City, both with its beautiful Japanese gardens and its free concerts by a band that is paid $5,000 (yes, five thousand dollars) a week during June, July and August.

Violets, lillies and roses are blooming all about us here. Some fruits are high. Oranges, 10 to 20 cents per dozen; lemons, 5 to 10 cents per dozen; Apples, 5 cents a lb; potatoes, 11 lbs. for 25 cents; eggs, 35 to 40 cents per dozen; butter, 40 to 45 cents a lb, and other things about as they are at home. Labor is about the same here. Rents are pretty high but they always are in a large city. Water is $1.00 per month for each separate meter but you are allowed 10,000 gallons for that dollar.

Hoping that each person in the home town may have a prosperous New Year, I must close.

Very truly,
Frances T. Payne.

San Diego, Cal.,
Dec. 31, 1910.

SHOW INCREASED RECEIPTS

Showing a marked increase in gross and net receipts, the annual report of the Syracuse, Lake Shore & Northern Railroad has just been made public, covering its last fiscal year. The gross earnings for the year were $344,449.38 as against $208,013.14 for the year previous, an increase of $136,437.24. The net earnings from operation, taxes deducted, were $95,910.44 as against $64,441.33 for the year before, an increase of $30,469.11.

The last fiscal year saw $207,563.60 expended for improvements and extensions, a considerable decrease from the year before when $330,944.58 was so invested. The number of regular employes increased from 106 to 206 and the average number of cars operated per day increased from 17 to 22.

All other lines in the Beebe System prospered equally with the Lake Shore. The Rochester, Syracuse & Eastern made a phenomenal showing, its gross income increasing more than 50 per cent., from $382,001.58 in 1909 to $503,217.96 during the last year. The net earnings ran up from $170,145 to $241,717.21 for 1910. The report of this road shows $2,953.994.37 spent for improvements and extensions. The Auburn & Syracuse Electric Railroad also did its banner business, its gross income increasing to $412,305.22 from $410,530.04 and its net receipts increased from $142,568.27 to $153,565.42. Each of the smaller roads in the system showed proportionate gains in gross receipts and net earnings.

ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes, H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything. I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in George town, S. C., for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." Its positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, and all bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

Experienced Fire-fighters Needed.

Some enterprising correspondents for out-of-town papers are agitating the proposition of consolidating the offices of fire chief and assistant fire chief, paying one salary to a man and thus removing from the department at least one of its experienced fire-fighters. Of course the very spirit and letter of the Civil Service law would be thus violated but that did not enter into the discussion.

At present, Chief Waugh, with 16 years experience in fire duty, and Assistant Chief Rude, with 20 years actual experience in fire fighting, draw combined salaries of $80 per month. Mr. Rude is on the job every minute; maintains discipline, practices economy and looks well to it that every emergency is prepared for. Chief Waugh visits the department several times each day; inspects every section of the fire-fighting apparatus; arbitrates differences; discusses the improvement of conditions with the firemen and takes the keenest interest in all that pertains to the fire force. He at all times reaches the scene of a conflagration sooner or as soon as the teams can make the run. The men in the department all respect and like him and there is the heartiest co-operation between Chief and men.

If such a charter amendment should become a law, and one man be removed, the city would suffer for the lack of that one experienced fire fighter, who would be worth more in time of action than a score of inexperienced volunteers.

The records made by the firemen under the present regime have been too excellent for our citizens to stand meekly by and permit or to sanction change. This department should be left entirely out of politics or playing of favorites, and it can be only for one or the other of these reasons that any such change would be contemplated or permitted. The Times does not believe that either Mayor Conners or the other city officials would be a party to so unjust an arrangement. Unjust so far as the city and unjust so far as the present incumbents of the department are concerned.

The President has announced that he will not take the initiative in bringing together in holy accord the belligerent wings of the Republican party known as the stand-patters and the insurgents. He says that he will address himself to the business of the country and leave any peace-making program to the contending parties.

This is the season of war scares, promoted, it is said by some, in order to get large appropriations for the army and navy and for the contractors who furnish military supplies. There is a report that the Japanese government has successfully negotiated with President Diaz of Mexico for a port and a depot of supplies on the western coast. If there were truth in this, it would be cause for immediate interference by the United States government.

When it was announced some days ago that Senator-elect Lorimer had been given a clean bill of morals with reference to his election as Senator, there were many who said, "How will Col. Roosevelt feel now for refusing to sit at table with him and having the refusal published over the world?" but now that the Senate has refused to approve the clean bill prepared by Senator Burrougha and others and propose to take up the matter again, it is quite possible after all that history will justify Ex-President Roosevelt's action.

With the exception of the death of Senator Elkins of West Virginia, no event of very great importance has occurred in Washington since the adjournment of Congress. The death of Mr. Elkins makes it certain that there will be two Democratic Senators from his State. Senator Scott of West Virginia will be succeeded by a Democrat, and the legislature being Democratic will elect a Senator of that party to succeed Senator Elkins. The late Senator was one of the wealthiest of what has been called the "American House of Millionaires'." His death is generally explained in the press as caused by overwork at the late Congressional session, but anyone at all familiar with the facts will not be slow to attribute his illness to high living. He no doubt had a powerful constitution, but no constitution can forever withstand a perpetual banquet.

If appearances are to be trusted, something will be done at this session of Congress to prevent the influx of undesirable people from Europe. Surely if there is any choice of undesirables the Asiatics by way of the Pacific are less vicious than some who have been recently coming across the Atlantic. A deputation of American newspapers numbering thirty-two called on President Taft to protest against the hardships encountered by immigrants landing in this country. Their spokesman, Louis Hammerling, told the President that they objected to the suspicion with which immigration officers looked upon those arriving in this country. President Taft told them that he went last Fall to Ellis Island and remained there during the forenoon listening to the cases presented to the immigration commissioners and that once or twice, moved by compassion, he intervened in behalf of immigrants whom the commissioner would have turned back, and that he has since followed those cases in which he had been influenced against his better judgment, but that he had to make the humiliating confession that the outcome vindicated the commissioner and showed that his experience was better than the President's compassion.

MANY PLACES OF BUSINESS TO CHANGE

Several Merchants Seeking Other Quarters—Empty Stores at a Premium in Fulton

The coming of the Spring will see many changes made in the matter of location in the business section of this city. The First National bank will occupy the present Rosenbloom store in the Bee Hive block; Mr. Rosenbloom may lease the store in the Church block now occupied by W. D. NacNamara, but Mr. W. H. Patterson is seeking to purchase the block. Mr. MacNamara will remove to his own block now occupied by the American Express company, the Western Union Telegraph company and Optician W. P. Hillick; this necessitates these several tenants seeking other quarters. The shoe firm of Wells & Beckwith are closing out their business and the co-partnership will be dissolved. Mr. Wells may continue the business or the store will be leased to another shoe firm. The store occupied by I. Shay will be on the market soon, it is expected, although the firm may decide to continue after their affairs are adjusted. The removal of the First National bank from its present quarters will leave that store vacant but it is rumored that the electric light company may lease the desirable location. It is also rumored that should M. Katz & Co., decide to vacate their present quarters that the Citizens bank, having outgrown their present building, might take possession and remodel same.

SUPREME COURT TRIAL TERM

A novel case, that of Uriah H. Lewis vs. the O. & W. railroad, went to trial Monday. Mr. Lewis, who lives in Fulton, asks $10,000 for personal injuries. E. E. Hart received a shipment of a carload of baled hay over the O. & W. from Central Square. Lewis worked for Hart and was sent to unload the car. When he opened the door, it is alleged, that two bales fell out of the car and hit him, crushing him under them and severely injuring him. The contention of the plaintiff is that the car was improperly loaded in that the bales were piled on the ends and in that the re were no boards across the door to keep the bales from falling out. O. M. Reilly with Udelle Bartlett as counsel appeared for Mr. Lewis, while P. W. Cullinan represents the defendant company.

Altogether twenty cases were considered by the Grand Jury and fifteen indictments found among the number.

John Lysk, Fulton, charged with corrupting the morals of a child.

Carl Smith, John T. Otis and Frank Bennett, Fulton, charged with assault, second degree, were not indicted and were released from jail.

WANT TO STOP TRAIN

Albany, Jan. 6.—The Public Service Commission, Second District, has received a complaint, from residents of the village of Altmar, Oswego county, asking that the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company be required to stop Train No. 44 at Altmar so that passengers from that station can reach Richmond Junction in the afternoon and make connections there with the trains running to Oswego, Syracuse and Watertown and that passengers from Altmar can also make connections at Utica with the main line of the New York Central.

The company has been asked to answer the complaint within ten days.

DEATHS

The 4-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodard died on January 3. The funeral was held on January 4, and burial was made in St. Mary's.

The remains of Mrs. Samuel Abbott, who died in Albany on January 2, were taken to Syracuse for interment. The deceased was the mother of George W. Abbott, formerly of this city.

Lovelle Johnson, a son of the late Willard Johnson, and brother of Mrs. Mary Hall of Canandaigua, died in Ogdensburg on Friday. The remains were brought to Fulton on Monday for interment in the family lot in Mt. Adnah.

Miss Julia A. Eastman, aged 74, a former resident of this city, died in Wellesley, Mass., on Sunday after having been connected with the Hall school for girls at that place for eighteen years. The deceased was also the author of several excellent books for children.

Clarissa J. Chubb, aged 31, died at her home in First street on Saturday after an illness extending since the death of her husband, Elwin, last August. The funeral services were held from the late home on Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. F. A. Miller officiating. Burial was made in Mt. Adnah. She is survived by her six children, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hall, and one sister, Miss Velma Hall.

Patrick O'Melia died on Sunday evening at the home of his sister, Mrs. Bridget Nealis in West Broadway, after a long illness. The funeral services were held from the Catholic church and burial was made in St. Mary's. The immediate survivors are two brothers, William O'Melia of Syracuse and John of this city, and five sisters, Mrs. Nealis, at whose home he died; Miss Nora O'Melia of Fulton; Miss Winifred O'Melia of South Granby and the Misses Catherine and Sara O'Melia of Lynn, Mass.

Mr. F. W. Snyder was called to Mannsville on Tuesday of last week by the death of his father, the Rev. Brainard Deforest Snyder, who had passed away after an illness of two years, in his 60th year. The deceased entered the ministry in 1871, and had occupied successfully many pastorates. The deceased was twice married. His first wife died about thirty years ago. His second marriage was with Mrs. Sarah McCallum of Mexico, who survives him, also two children, Fred W. Snyder of this city, and Mrs. Fred Austen of Lacona and a step-daughter, Mrs. George Radley of Alexandria Bay. The funeral was held Thursday at Mannsville. Interment at Mexico.

The death of Albert A. Rowlee occurred at an early hour Saturday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George H. Wright, in Watertown. Mr. Rowlee had been a sufferer from rheumatism and heart trouble for several years. About three months ago he went to Watertown to visit his daughter, hoping that the change might be beneficial. He was, however, taken worse and failed rapidly until the end came. Mr. Rowlee was 65 years of age and had been a life long resident of this town. He was active in Grange circles and a consistent member of the First M. E. church of this city. He was a devoted husband and father and a highly respected neighbor and friend. Naturally of a genial and happy nature, he bore his suffering of many months with a fortitude which won for him the sympathy of all who knew him. He leaves to mourn his loss, a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Wright, at whose home he died; one brother, Byron E., of Witchita, Kan.; and two granddaughters, Lillias E. and Helen I. Waugh of Fulton. Brief services were held from his late home in this city on Monday at 10:30 a. m. and from the Mount Pleasant M. E. church at one p. m., the Rev. C. L. Peck officiating. Burial was made at Mount Pleasant. The Brotherhood choir of the First Methodist church accompanied the funeral party to Mt. Pleasant where they rendered appropriate and appreciated music.

BEAUTIFUL LIFE ENDED

On Thursday afternoon, at her home in Lowville, Mrs. Charles L. Knapp, aged 50, passed to rest after several years of frail health and a few weeks of severe illness. Bright's disease was the cause for death, and medical skill, loving care and tender nursing were powerless to stay the approach of the grim messenger. During Congressman Knapp's public career the deceased had been his constant companion and advisor; a more than helpmate and wife. She was a veritable inspiration and guide; and together the husband and wife had planned for years of happiness and comradeship. Ambition had been gratified and public duty discharged by the husband now so sadly bereft, and with the closing of his present official term in Washington in March years of travel, sightseeing and carefree devotion to each other had been decided upon. Plans were approaching completion for a year's travel around the world.

But the ways of Providence were other, and the beautiful life has gone out, leaving the husband with only the sympathy and love of his friends throughout the district, where he is so well known, for solace.

If words might be given fervor and life to convey to Mr. Knapp the tender sympathy that is felt for him it were well. But they are too cold and expressionless. Yet he must know the deep outpouring of condolence and regret felt for him in his loneliness.

The funeral services were held from the late home on Monday afternoon, many friends from Oswego and other sections of the State attending to pay a last tribute of respect to the womanliness they had all admired and respected.

Veteran Stephen Buck carries with great pride a unique cane made from a branch which he cut at Gettysburg on July 3, 1893, just 30 years almost to the hour from the date of the commencement of the battle, in which he participated as a member of the 59th New York Vol. The cane is silver mounted and carries a shield shaped device in silver—a counterpart of the Third Brigades official badge.

The marriage of Miss Phoebe A. Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Barnes, to Mr. Frank C. Holbrook of Point Peninsula occurred on Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents in Oneida street, the Rev. C. L. Peck officiating. The bride and groom were unattended and the ceremony was witnessed by the immediate relatives of the young couple. After a bridal collation Mr. and Mrs. Holbrook left for a brief bridal trip, after which they will reside at Point Peninsula.

Just as a starter for the New Year, Contractors D. E. Wadsworth and Fred E. Woodcock were on Tuesday awarded the contract for the construction of the Baldwinsville Odd Fellows $30,000 temple. The work is to be commenced in the early Spring. The architect and the building committee came to Fulton to personally inspect Mr. Wadsworth' work prior to placing the contract with him, and after looking over several buildings constructed by him, they were so pleased that they promptly gave him the contract.

Mr. Bryan is out in a disclaimer of further presidential aspiration, and he has named four candidates who in the order given are, in his opinion, eligible to the office. We have heard of them before. They are Faulk of Missouri, Harmon of Ohio, Gaynor of New York and Wilson of New Jersey.

A member of the Kansas legislature wants to abolish the office of assessor. Why not make the reform thorough, and abolish the collector, also?

Hetty Green's son says that Wall street is needed. Of course. The magazines must have something to roast.

"I believe" remarks a juvenile court judge in Washington, "that a girl who cannot cook bread has not yet attained her education." Opinion concurred in; judgement affirmed.

CLEAN MOUTHS

State Department of Health a Pioneer in Crusade for Clean Mouths.

Albany, Jan. 8, 1911.—By the appointment of Dr. H. L. Wheeler of New York City and Dr. W. A. White of Phelps, as Dental Consultants and Special Lecturers on Oral Hygiene of the New York State Department of Health, Commissioner Eugene H. Porter has earned the distinction of being the first State Commissioner of Health in the United States to take an active part in the crusade for clean mouths and to enlist the assistance of members of the dental profession in behalf of the health of the community.

The duties assigned to Dr. Wheeler and Dr. White comprise the giving of public lectures on the subject of oral hygiene and the prevention of tooth decay and consulting with local health boards and school authorities with regard to the starting inspection of the teeth of school children and the opening of free dental clinics.

Dr. Gulick, President of the School Hygiene Association, has estimated that two decayed teeth in the mouth of a child are sufficient to retard the child six months in its studies.

Decay of the teeth, technically known as dental caries, is a germ disease, and Commissioner Porter thinks that, as a germ disease, it should receive the consideration and attention of State and local boards of health, just as these have been given to scarlet fever, diphtheria, tuberculosis and other germ diseases.

Decayed teeth are very prevalent among school children and adults. School inspectors in New York City report that ninety per cent. of school children are in need of the professional services of a dentist. Dental decay interferes with the proper mastication and digestion of food and leads to ill nourishment. Moreover, it produces in the mouth a condition which is very favorable to the growth of other disease germs such as those of diphtheria and scarlet fever, so that measures to prevent the decay of the teeth and improve the condition of the mouths of school children will also help to control the development and spread of other common communicable diseases.

The text of the lecturers on oral hygiene will be that a clean tooth never decays and that a lazy tooth becomes in time a rotten tooth.

Many requests from Catarrh sufferers who use atomizers have caused us to put up Liquid Cream Balm, a new and convenient form of Ely's Cream Balm, the only remedy for Catarrh which can always be depended on. In power to allay inflammation to cleanse the clogged air-passages, to promote free, natural breathing, the two forms of Cream Balm are alike. Liquid Cream Balm is sold by all druggists for 75 cents, including spraying tube. Mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

REDUCED FARE TO ITHACA

The New York State College of Agriculture has just been notified by the Secretary of the Trunk Line Association that a reduced rate of 1½ cents a mile within a radius of 150 miles of Ithaca has been granted for Farmers' Week and that tickets are good from February 18th to 25th inclusive. This is a marked reduction and should command attention from all persons considering the possibility of attendance at Farmers' Week at Ithaca.

WANT SHEPARD FOR SENATE

New York Jan. 2, 1911.—Headed by forty of the most prominent business and professional men in the ranks of the Democratic party of this city, the "Shepard Committee" has today begun to enroll thousands of voters, within and without the Tammany organization, who are volunteering to urge the qualifications of Edward M. Shepard to represent Democracy in the United States Senate. Though this committee has been formally organized only a few days, it is already receiving stacks of letters from independent and regular Democrats here, who declare they will gladly do what they can to present to their representatives in the legislature the common claim that Mr. Shepard is the man best able to strengthen the party at Washington during the next six years. Leaders of the movement declare the next six years. Leaders of the movement declare that the results of this preliminary sounding of sentiment show that their candidate is today stronger in this city than ever before.

"Every evidence is now shown that Edward Shepard is the strongest candidate under consideration," said William Church Osborn, chairman of the Shepard Committee, at its headquarters, 71 Broadway, today. "I fully believe that the Democrats of this county as well as of the whole State will express a sentiment for his selection that will prove almost unanimous by the time the legislators meet to express the will of their constituents. Our committee is only responding to a State-wide demand to urge Mr. Shepard's qualifications for this exalted place."

CHESTNUT TREES DYING OF CANCER

Scientists Fail to Check Ravages of Parasite.

AMERICAN SPECIES DOOMED.

Familiar Winter Vender of Roasted Nuts Will Soon Be Missed From City Corners—Destruction of Native Birds Blamed For Loss of Valuable Groves by New York Botanical Expert.

The immigrant chestnut seller on the street corner, who has been a feature of the fall landscape in New York and other large cities since shortly after the days of Henry Hudson, is about at the end of his rope.

This is the last autumn probably, according to statistics, that there will be enough chestnuts in America for him to sell unless they are imported. And the imported chestnut is not as good as the little native nut.

Victims of Cancer.

Everywhere throughout the country hundreds of thousands of handsome chestnut trees stand dead or dying of the fearful chestnut canker, the parasitic fungus known to science as diaporthe parasitica murrill, a name given it in honor of Dr. William A. Murrill, assistant director of the New York botanical park, who first called attention to the deadly disease. The fungus destroys the inner bark of the tree, and when it has eaten its way all around the tree dies.

All up the Hudson there are thousands of barkless trees standing dead in the forests and private grounds. John D. Rockefeller tried desperately to save his trees, but the fungus made no exception of his magnificent estate at Pocantico Hills.

The government at Washington is trying to discover some way of saving the trees, but has not yet succeeded. It may be possible, botanists say, that some trees on islands far removed from the chestnut belt and some of those of the American species in foreign countries that have been taken from America as curiosities may be saved and after the pest has run its course may spread the beneficent trees over the earth again.

Salvation Is Vague.

In that way alone it is hoped to save the American variety. But it is admitted there is little hope of saving the forests, even those not yet attacked. The effect already is to reduce the price of chestnut lumber, which is used to a large extent for electric poles and for manufactures, and to make firewood cheaper in some towns, but in the end it is thought it will make the lumber almost priceless.

"This scourge and its attendant loss to humanity," said a botanist connected with the New York botanical park, "should again draw attention to the danger we run from letting people kill our native birds. It is very likely that some of the birds that have been reduced almost to extinction had the all important duty of keeping this particular enemy of the chestnut in subjection and that with the disappearance of the birds the pest got the upper hand, and now we pay for our carelessness by losing the trees."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Tomorrow will be another day—but the majority of us will be up against the same old grind.

Perhaps the straight and narrow path might be more popular if made wide enough for gasoline joy buggies.—Chicago News.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 7.—The program for the fourth annual National Corn Exposition, to be held January 30th to February 11th, in the eight immense buildings on the Ohio State Exposition grounds has just been completed, and provides for one of the greatest National Agricultural Expositions ever held in the world.

The buildings are connected by enclosed walks, comfortably heated and brilliantly illuminated, in all resembling a great summer garden with palms and plants and tender growing crops, giving the visitors a whiff of nature which will more remind them of a balmy June day than of the winter season.

This great National Corn Exposition will be a grand round-up of all State agricultural shows and agricultural meetings. The name "Corn Exposition" does not mean that only corn will be shown, for all grains and grasses, the prize winners only, at the various State shows, will be in competition for the valuable National trophies.

More than 35 States will have competative exhibits. Twenty-five State agriculture colleges and experiment stations will have scientific exhibits, each demonstrating its most advanced experimental work. These exhibits, which will be in charge of expert demonstrators will deal; in a practical way, with nearly every phase of the science of agriculture. For instance: North Carolina will emphasize the cotton industry—from the growing plant to the manufactured article—with cotton gin and loom in actual operation, while Illinois will especially emphasize its soil work. Never before in the history of the world has there been such a showing of results in agriculture, based on scientific investigation.

The federal department of arriculture will be represented with its famous exhibit which fills two large furniture cars, and which has just been returned from the international exposition at Buenos Ayres.

Important among the many meetings, exhibits and other special features of this greatest of agricultural expositions may be mentioned the meeting of the American Breeders' association; the Ohio Dairymen's association; the National Rural Life Conference, the Ohio Conservation association, the Ohio Corn Improvement association and numerous live stock associations. There will be special features of vital interest to the Y. M. C. A., churches, colleges, schools, the farmer, and the city man and their families alike.

Special entertainment features will include a two-ring winter circus, band concerts with vocal soloists, and moving pictures.

Speakers of nation-wide reputation will deliver addresses daily on the National Corn Exposition program.

Program

The program for the fourth annual National Corn Exposition to be held on the Ohio State Exposition ground January 30 to February 11, is as follows:

FIRST WEEK

Monday, Jan. 30.—Exposition opening day. Official opening exercises in evening at 8 o'clock in Exposition auditorium. Addresses by Governor Harmon of Ohio; Mayor Marshall of Columbus; President Pretzman and Secretary Bassell of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce; President E. D. Eckles, Columbia, Mo.; Dr. W. O. Thompson, president Ohio State University, Columbus, O. National Dairy banquet, Exposition auditorium, in evening. Ohio State Dairymen's association, host. Dairy dishes will be served. Governor Warner will deliver the principal address, his topic to be "The Old Fashioned Dairy." J. D. Nichols of Ohio, will be toastmaster. Plates for 1500 guests.

Friday, Feb. 3.—National Corn Day—Speakers, P. G. Holden, Iowa; C. G. Williams, Ohio; G. I. Christie, Indiana; William Dietrick, Illinois; C. G. McCall, Ohio; W. J. Spillman, department of agriculture. National Corn banquet in evening, Exposition auditorium. Plates for 1500 guests. Corn dishes will be served. Ohio Corn Improvement association, host. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, address on "The Evolution of American Agriculture." Senator Burton of Ohio, Senator Clapp of Minnesota, and others will speak. Governor Harmon of Ohio, will preside. Secretary Sandles, Ohio State Board of Agriculture, toastmaster.

Saturday, Feb. 4. — Conservation Day—Speakers, Gifford Pinchot, ex-forester for the government, and W. C. Brown, president of the N. Y. Central railroad company. James R. Garfield, chairman.

SECOND WEEK

Monday, Feb. 6.—Address in afternoon by Governor Pennewill of Delaware. Subject: "The Farmer as a Statesman."

Tuesday, Feb. 7.—Opening of National Rural Life Conference. Vital problems in agriculture will be discussed. Meetings and conferences will be of interest to everyone. Plan to attend and participate in discussions. Great mass meeting in forenoon. Dr. L. H. Bailey, dean and director of the New York Agricultural college of Cornell university, ex-chairman of the Roosevelt Country Life commission, chairman, "Commercial Co-operation in the Rural Community," will be the topic. In the afternoon Dr. Bailey will deliver an address on the same subject.

Wednesday, Feb. 8.—Address by A. E. Roberts, international secretary of the County Work department of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Warren H. Wilson, superintendent of the Church and Country Life Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church, will speak on "The Country Church and Community." Afternoon: Addresses by Willet M. Hays, assistant secretary of agriculture; Prof. A. B. Graham, of Ohio State university; and Miss Mabel Carney of Cheney, Wash., bearing on the problems of the rural school.

Thursday, Feb. 9.—Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of Massachusetts Agricultural college, and an ex-member of the Roosevelt Country Life commission, chairman of mass meeting in morning. 'Social Co-operation in the Rural Community" will be discussed. Mr. Butterfield will deliver an address on the same subject in the afternoon.

Friday, Feb. 10.—"Co-operation between Producer and Consumer" will be the topic. Prominent economists and representatives from the co-operative organizations of all sections of the country will join in the discussions.

Saturday, Feb. 11.—States' Day—Program of interest to representative of every State and every country. Exhibits will remain intact until midnight.

There is a real cure for
Rheumatism

No case of rheumatism is hopeless. Many rheumatic sufferers know of the curative properties of Oil of Wintergreen. WINTERGREEN COMPOUND contains this oil in scientific combination with many other ingredients of great value in the cure of rheumatism. And we can prove that it does cure. We have never heard of a case requiring over 12 bottles of to stamp it out. Most people get relief with the first bottle and a permanent cure with less than six. Read this testimonial.

D. P. Stedman, Druggist, Attica, N. Y., writes: "I began to improve on the second day, and on the morning of the fifth day I dressed and got ready for business without thinking I ever had any lameness and have not had a twinge of lameness since."

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us his name and 50c. for a regular size bottle fully prepaid. Wintergreen Compound Co., 380 Orange St., Rochester, N. Y.

FEVER SORES

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MEET

(Crowded out last week.)

The What-so-ever Circle of the "Kings Daughters" of the Baptist church were entertained on December 21 by Mrs. Frank Stafford at her pleasant home on Broadway. The usual work was postponed and the afternoon given up to special enjoyment. Some very fine music by different ladies was very much enjoyed. Several selections were read; among others, the original poem, "The night before Christmas" (written in 1822, by Dr. Clement Clark Moore) and a parody on the same which was quite amusing. Upon entering the parlors which were decorated with Christmas greens and colors red, our eyes were delighted by the sight of a magnificent Christmas tree laden with gifts. Dear little remembrances from each one and for each one, which were distributed. All were perfectly satisfied with "Santas" choice. The tree has become a feature of Christmas time. At the hour of 6 o'clock we were invited to the dining room, which was a picture in itself being also beautifully decorated. Pretty Xmas cards gave the name and place of each lady at the table. The delicious and bountiful feast was fully enjoyed and all voted Mrs. Stafford a charming hostess.

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of burns, boils, piles, cuts, sores, bruises, eczema and sprains. Only 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

A Philadelphia judge has decided that a husband has no redress when his wife goes through his pockets and takes money from them. Some judges are awful long in waking up.

RATIO NOT SO HIGH

The handing on increased valuation in the amount of $94,999 to Fulton by the Equalization Committee of the Board of Supervisors during the last session, made every tax payer in this city sit up promptly and take notice. In fact from the temper of the majority on the committee it would appear that Fulton should count herself lucky that she did not receive $200,000; the deed could have done as easily as what was done, but the official figures just compiled and are authentic, will show that after all is balanced up, the matter is not so serious as at first appeared.

The Board of Supervisors placed a total valuation upon Fulton, including the $94,999 increase of $5,334,479; total county ratio being but .0050 or .0½ per cent. The increased valuation will make an additional $474.99 1-2 as apportionment upon the city's total valuation.

The county levy in 1909, was $30,952.17; in 1910, $27,189.99, a decrease in the levy on Fulton of $3,762.32. Add to this decrease the mortgage tax fees which will come to Fulton, totalling $2,167.97, and it will be seen that Fulton with her increased valuation of $949.99, is still $5,930.29 better off than she was in 1909.

Despit this better condition, than was feared, the Committee should not be relieved of blame in the unjust addition and they should be severely censured because of the fact that the towns are not assessed to nearly their just valuation. In fact it is probable that many of the town residents who talk the noisiest about depreciation, over assessment of property, etc., are not on the assessment rolls. A committee to investigate this matter might be appointed with beneficial results to the county treasury.

Again, Fulton should have more representation in the county legislative halls. It behooves the city fathers to look to it that a charter amendment to this end becomes law as speedily as possible. By sheer force of numbers the town supervisors could saddle upon the cities increased valuation to become oppressive. The only hope the cities of Oswego and Fulton have is that just men may be sent always from the towns to sit upon the Board of Supervisors and to determine the valuation of properties in the cities.

Notwithstanding this country has the best fire fighting equipment in the world, it each year loses more than two hundred millions of dollars by fire. This is four or five times as much as is lost in all the European countries. The president of one of the fire insurance companies has said that if the loss by fire in this country could be cut down to seventy-five millions a year, the saving would be equivalent to adding a billion of dollars to the wealth of the country every ten years. The conditions are bad, but better than in former years, for concrete and steel are to some extent protecting cities from the holocausts of former days.

Nevada's population increased 93 per cent. The census must have been taken July 4, when Reno was full of prize fighters and sports.

ELKS FAIR OPENS SATURDAY

Decorations Will be Unique and Beautiful—Will Not Solicit Donations From Merchants

Everything is fast assuming proportions in connection with the Fair which the local lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks are to hold for one week, commencing with this week Saturday evening.

The Fair committee have already divested the large lodge room at the Home of its furnishings, and the work of setting up the booths, and getting the electrical decorations properly installed has commenced.

The setting of the booths and decorations being suggestive of the Orient the Elks have named their fair "The Elks in Japan," and it is said that when the Fair is formally opened on Saturday evening a novel and interesting as well as beautiful sight will be presented to the people in the way of decoration, and something never before seen in this city. The booths and decorations are from the brush of Artist and Scene Painter Worden of this city, which is sufficient to insure that they will be worth seeing.

The Elks have established themselves in a favorable way before the merchants of the city this year, in that they are not asking or accepting donations of any articles whatsoever except from members of the order, and in doing this it is barely possible that they have established the possibility of having a more complete line of novelties, owing to the fact that when donations were made it was always impossible to complete a good assortment from the various sources, whereas now that they are purchasing everything to be used, they are in position to make selection and secure a first class line of articles and in such a way as to make a complete assortment.

There will be six booths, outside of the ice cream cone and soft drinks booth, as follows:

Walsh, and his famous canaries, which will fill the room with their sweet music.

A cut glass booth, containing a dazzling array of this beautiful material.

A hammered brass booth, filled with all of the latest novelties in it is new and popular line.

A booth of Japanese Poodle Dogs, a novelty which has set other cities in a craze over these cute little creatures.

Umbrellas will be shown at another booth, and those who have had their own supply depleted by loans can replenish, having a large and varied assortment of the very best to choose from.

Schrafts popular candy, with the souvenier spoon will be handed out from another booth.

The tickets for the capital prize of $100.00 in gold are being sold rapidly.

A door prize will be given away each night, and good music will be in attendance, so the people are insured of a delightful entertainment every evening with not a dull moment.

The proceeds of this fair, which it is hoped will be large, will go towards still further paying for the beautiful home now owned by the order, and only within a few years purchased of Hon. Thomas [illegible]

Since taking possession of the building the Elks have improved the grounds, and this season have given the home a new coat of paint greatly adding to its beauty and general appearance.

The Elks, since their lodge was established in this city some eight years ago, have shown a most rapid and healthy growth, and now claim a membership of about 225, and have also demonstrated the fact that when they attempt anything in the line of entertainment it is usually carried to a most successful end.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB

Met at Home of Mr. John Hunter—Unusually Large Attendance—Instructive and Interesting Program Presented.

The regular meeting of the Current Events Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter on Monday evening of this week. The attendance was unusually large.

On motion of the membership committee, Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Teall were elected members of the club. Announcement was made that the lecture to be given by Senator Stranahan, under the auspices of the club, would take place on Tuesday evening, January 24, in the Public Library auditorium.

The programme for the evening was in charge of Mr. Thomas Hunter and Rev. George W. Wellburn.

At the request of Mr. Hunter, Mr. T. M. Ripley spoke on the subject of the Panama Canal, quoting statistics of the work, to give the club members some idea of the magnitude of the project. Mr. Ripley also commented on the fact that the Board of Sanitation report no cases of plague or yellow fever originating on the Isthmus, showing the efficient way in which this Board is accomplishing its purpose.

Following Mr. Ripley, Mr. Wellburn briefly discussed matters of current interest, and also touched upon the English political and educational problems.

Following these discussions, Mrs. Murdock, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Thomas Hunter, entertained the club with two vocal selections.

In conclusion, Mr. Hunter spoke briefly on matters of local interest: the prosperous condition of the local banking institutions, and the volume of business done in the City of Fulton during the past year.

TO COMPLETE POWER HOUSE

Manager Emerick of Fulton Light, Heat & Power Company Will Hasten Work

The Fulton Light, Heat & Power company has let the contract for their new power house to be erected at the corner of Van Buren and East First street. It will be of fire proof construction, brick and metal forming the building material, and will be 45x98 feet. It will have a capacity for two 20-ton turbin engines capable of producing 1,000 horse power each. But one engine will be installed at first, but should the demand for the current prove sufficient, the second engine will be installed without delay. Coupled with the power now generated at the present power house, it is probable that the one engine will prove sufficient for several years to come.

The work of construction will commence in the early Spring. The O. & W., railroad company will build a spur to the power house site at once.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Annual Meeting of the Fulton Chamber of Commerce will be held Friday evening, January 20, 1911, at 8 o'clock in their rooms, No. 44 S. First street.

The annual dues are now due and should be paid to the secretary. If it is not convenient for you to pay before, you can pay the secretary on Friday night.

It is desired that there be as large an attendance as possible at this meeting, as the reports from the officers and committees will be read and matters of interest discussed.

Refreshments and cigars.

FOR RURAL PARCELS POST

Bill Hitchcock Favors Reported to Senate—To Be Tried For One Year On Rural Routes

Washington—A measure providing for a limited parcels post on rural free delivery routes was reported favorably to the Senate last week from the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads. The report was presented by Senator Burrows, and represented the unanimous action of the committee.

The bill was that recommended by Postmaster General Hitchcock after he had made an exhaustive study of the parcels post problem as applied to rural free delivery. It provides, in substance, that for one year, beginning April 1, 1911, the Postmaster General may authorize postmasters and carriers on such rural routes as he shall select to accept for delivery by carrier, at such rates of postage as he shall determine, packages not exceeding 1 pounds in weight containing no mail matter of the first class and no matter that is declared by law to be unmailable. The results of this experiment the Postmaster General is directed to report to Congress at its next session.

Postmaster General Hitchcock and experts of the department earnestly favor the establishment of the parcels post on rural routes. Mr. Hitchcock said in part:

This form of service can be conducted with little if any additional expense to the government. It will not require the appointment of more carriers, for those already employed have the necessary equipment in the way of horses and wagons to distribute the parcels as well as the ordinary mail, which is rarely of such volume as to take up more than a small part of the space in the carrier's wagon. A rural parcels post of the kind proposed, if successfully conducted, probably would lead to the establishment of a parcels post system applicable to the entire country. Before the parcels service is extended, however, it would be desirable to obtain definite information as to the nature and volume of the business to be handled.

The measure reported by the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, if enacted into law, as I hope it may be, will be a preliminary step in the development of a general parcels post service. Through the practical experiment provided for in this bill the Postoffice Department will obtain important and valuable data, through the consideration of which it will be in a more advantageous position to develop a general parcels post along conservative and economical lines.

Mr. Hitchcock pointed out the value of such a service to business interests and to the people of the country, particularly those in rural communities.

WIDE BRIDGE PROBABLE.

The outlook for a street wide bridge at Broadway grows more encouraging all the time so far as the arranging of the detail is concerned. Of course the project will require the endorsement of the taxpayers before it can be accomplished.

The Board of Public Works, and Engineer Stowell of Albany, in conjunction with the bridge committee from the Common Council and Mayor Conners, have held frequent consultations and it is probable that costs will be submitted to the public in a short time.

If the bridge project be satisfactory to the taxpayers, it will be so constructed as to eliminate factory hill. The American woolen company is willing to sanction this arrangement so far as they are concerned. The New York Central would like the privilege for a cash consideration of laying their tracks on, over or under the proposed bridge, that they might reach the mill. Unless this is done they may build a bridge of their own at Pratt street to connect with the woolen mill.

At any rate the bridge is a necessity to the city.

NOTICE

The Annual Meeting of the stockholders of the Fulton Fuel & Light Company, will be held at the office of the Company, Fulton, N. Y., Saturday, February 4th, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of electing Directors for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may lawfully come before the meeting.

STATE CONVENTION ON TAXATION

Supervisor Fuller Attended From Fulton—Matters of Interest and Information Presented

The State Tax conference held in Utica on Thursday and Friday of last week, was one fraught with deep interest to all taxpayers in the Empire State. Exhaustive papers were read and able discussions conducted by specialists along the taxation and equalization lines. Representatives from every county and practically every town in the State were present with the probable result that more satisfactory taxation will ensue. Supervisor Fuller of the Fourth and Fifth Wards represented this city.

A committee of nine was appointed to arrange for a permanent organization and to call the next convention.

Mr. Wade from the committee on resolutions presented the following report and moved its adoption. He said that many valuable suggestions have been made which are not acted on as they are left over until a future time, as plans are not yet sufficiently matured. No radical changes are proposed. After this report has been acted on, he should present a report on permanent organizations. The resolutions follow:

"Since the actual value of the property is the sum for which it will sell under ordinary circumstances, and since the best evidence of such value is the record of actual sales under ordinary circumstances, and

"Resolved, That the true consideration in every deed, mortgage or lease, should be made known to the assessor before such deed, mortgage, or lease is entitled to be recorded, and that the law shall be amended to require such information.

"Whereas, The assessment of the land and the assessment of improvements upon the land are necessarily distinct and separate calculations, and

"Whereas, The assessment roll should show as fully as possible all the facts entering into the final assessed value fixed upon each parcel, and

"Whereas, This system of separate assessment has been employed in some of our cities and in several states with beneficial results,

"Resolved, That in the assessment rolls of all cities there should be added a column in which the value of the land, exclusive of improvements, if any, should be set down.

"Whereas, The present methods of equalization by county boards of supervisors are varied and seldom produce satisfaction, and

"Whereas, As long as the need of such equalization exists, it should be attained by means of equitable rules, applied uniformly in all the counties.

"Resolved, That the tax law should be amended to provide for equalization by county boards in the same manner as equalization by the State board, and

"Resolved, That assessments in each county should be under the supervision of a county supervisor of assessments, who should advise and assist the local assessors in their assessments and assist the State board in their general supervision throughout the State, to the end of securing uniform assessments.

"That the State Board of Tax Commissioners should have authority and power to order re-assessment when necessary to accomplish the results herein referred to.

"Whereas, The tax law prescribes no time within which the various Boards of Supervisors of the counties of this state shall report their equalizations; and,

"Whereas, Delay in submission of such reports causes delay in the preparation of assessment rolls and the collection of taxes;

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this conference that proper legislation be enacted that will correct this defect.

"Whereas, Under the existing provisions of the tax law relating to the assessment of special franchises is made at full value by the State Board and certified to each taxing district at full value; and,

"Whereas, In order to have such assessment equalized or reduced to the same rate of assessment that is employed in assessing other real property in each taxing district, it is necessary for each owner of such special franchise to obtain a writ of certiorari to reduce the assessment of such special franchise to the rate of assessment in taxing district; and,

"Whereas, Each year hundreds of such writs are granted, thereby imposing a useless burden on the owners of such special franchises and needlessly consuming the time of the courts and the assessing officials;

"Resolved, That the tax law should be amended to require the equalization of such assessments of special franchises by the State Board of Tax Commissioners after the other assessments upon the tax roll have been completed by the local assessor and before the tax roll is presented to the Board of Supervisors.

"We suggest the amendment of Section 182 of the tax law so that assessment of taxes thereunder shall be made by a fixed mathematical rule and not otherwise.

"We favor the general principle in the imposition of inheritance taxes and the administration of the law that will provide for taxation of real property in the State in which it is situated and all intangible personal property at the domicile of the decedent.

"We also favor moderate graded rates and liberal exemptions on lineal bequests and minimum exemptions and reasonably increased graded rates on collateral bequests.

"These principles will obviate double taxation, will not impose unfair burdens on estates of decedents and can be made to yield satisfactory revenue to the state.

"Whereas, Without a proper statistical basis true comparsion between the counties, cities, towns and other taxing districts in this State is impossible, and without true comparsion the determination of the real economic effects of tax laws and their administration is impossible; and

"Whereas, Today no public official or officials are charged with the duty of gathering complete fiscal statistics;

"Resolved, That it should be made the duty of some State board or department to gather complete fiscal statistics from all taxing districts annually, showing among other things in sufficient detail the revenue collected, the sources of revenue, the public debt, the sinking fund provisions and the total expenditures by the different departments or officials."

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Hon. N. N. Stranahan Will Talk of European Trip In Library Assembly Hall on Jan. 24—Lecture to be Illustrated With Stereopticon Views

Under the auspices of the Current Events club, Hon. N. N. Stranahan will on Tuesday evening, Jan. 24, give an illustrated lecture in the Library Assembly Hall which will prove most entertaining and instructive. Mr. Stranahan spent the Summer months in European countries and he penetrated to many points not frequently visited by the tourist. His trained eye caught bits of coloring and characteristics of th people not usually noted by travelers. Coupled with this will be historical points and much else of interest told in Mr. Stranhan's delightfully informal manner.

Tickets may be secured from members of the Current Events club. The seating capacity of the hall is limited and it is expected that it will be taxed to its fullest capacity on Tuesday evening.

BOARD OF PARDONS SUGGESTED

Replying to criticisms of his actions in relation to the position he took on the many applications made to him for pardons or commutations from men within the walls of penal institutions of the State, former Governor Horace White in a statement says that he neither pardoned nor reprieved anyone, but that there were seventy four restored to citizenship.

Governor White hopes for a board of pardons when a new constitution is submitted to the people in 1914, as he believes that this work should be vested in a tribunal especially equipped by training and fitness, instead of being in the hands of the Governor.

He said: "It is physically impossible for any Governor of the State to perform his other constitutional and statutory duties to have opportunity for study and reflection upon great public questions and at the same time to give appropriate attention to this line of duty. The interests of the State require thorough scrutiny of and judicial action on these applications. Each year the need becomes more apparent from a moral, economical and sociological point of view."

Governor White's record during his three months tenure of office was: Pardon (conditional) 1; commutations, 14; restorations, 74.

POSTAL DEFICIT GREATLY REDUCED

Annual Report of the First Assistant Post Master General Replete With Valuable Suggestions

The annual report of the First Assistant Postmaster General which has just been issued, is replete with valuable suggestions and with information of a general nature to the public who, as a general rule give little attention to postal affairs, notwithstanding they are matters of vital import.

The Postmaster General states:

The number of post-offices in operation on June 30, 1910, was 59,589. The gross revenues of the service for the fiscal year amounted to $224,128,657.62, an increase of $20,566,274.55, or 10.10 per cent., and the expenditures to $229,977,224.50, an increase of $8,973,121.61 or 4.06 per cent. the deficit being $5,848,566.88 as compared with $17,841,719.82 for the preceding year. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, the revenues increased at the rate of 6.31 per cent. and the expenditures at the rate of 6.07 per cent. For the ten years ended June 30, 1909, the average annual rate of increase in expenditures was 8.06 per cent. It will thus be seen that although the business of the postal service for the last fiscal year increased at the rate of more than 10 per cent. the expenditures dropped from 6.07 per cent. increase in 1909, or from an average increase of 8.06 per cent. for the ten years preceding, to 4.06 per cent. in 1910. This is a most unprecedented and gratifying showing.

It has been the policy of the department for a number of years to make no changes so long as the services of the postmasters prove satisfactory. The policy of recommending the reappointment of presidential postmasters who have proved efficient has been followed uniformly throughout the country.

Of the total number of 2,576 presidential postmasters appointed during the last fiscal year, 1,803, or more than 75 per cent. were reappointments.

While this is a practical application of the merit system, the method of selecting a postmaster when it is necessary to make a new appointment would be improved upon if the presidential postmasters were included in the classified competitive service.

It is the policy of the department not to require any more work in post offices on Sundays and holidays than is absolutely necessary to prevent congestion of the mails and to provide reasonable postal facilities for the public. To this end the department is endeavoring to bring about a greater degree of uniformity in the amount of Sunday work in post offices throughout the country and to provide a day of rest for those employees who are compelled to work all day on Sunday.

There is a very strong sentiment throughout the country in favor of the discontinuance of the delivery of mail on Sundays, and this sentiment should be respected. Postal employees are undoubtedly entitled to one day of rest in seven. All reputable commercial and industrial establishments close on Sundays. To accommodate the traveling public, and those who have important personal mail arriving on Sundays it may be necessary to keep the general delivery window open, but it is the experience of the department that with the growing use of the special-delivery service urgent messages requiring attention on Sunday are not sent in the ordinary mail and that calling at the postoffice on Sunday for mail is usually a matter of habit

Alderman Smith introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Whereas, The City Charter provides that at the first meeting of the Common Council in each official year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, it may "Fix and determine the legal fee per folio, or otherwise, for the publication of all minutes of meetings, notices bylaws, rules, ordinances and regulations, and such reports and other matters as the Common Council, or this act, directs to be published in the official newspaper of this city," and

Whereas, The Fulton Times, published in said city, having been designated as the official paper during the year 1910, at the rate of compensation of 17 cents per folio for the publication of all notices, etc., set forth in the foregoing preamble, therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Board re-designate the said Fulton Times as the official paper of said city during the year 1911, or the official term of said Common Council, at the same rate of compensation, viz.: 17 cents per folio, for the publication of all notices, minutes, etc., required by the said Common Council in its official capacity.

Aye — Alderman Palmer, Malone, Smith, Wolcott, Newton.

Carried.

CITY OF FULTON, ss:

I hereby certify that the above resolution was duly adopted at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Fulton, held at the City Hall, on the 10th day of January, 1911.

William MacNamara, City Clerk.

Approved this 10th day of Jan. 1911.

TAKE NOTICE, CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Hyde Metal Boat Company, a corporation organized last year for the manufacture of steel boats, desires a new location and Mr. Hyde will be in Oswego, this week for a few days to discuss the matter of moving the plant to that city. Since its organization the company has met with a larger measure of success than was at first suspected and the prospects are excellent, it is said, for not only a large domestic, but a large expert trade as well. These boats are peculiarly adapted to the warmer climates, where ravages of the torredo worm will cause the destruction of wooden boats in one or two years. The metal boats are built knock-down, crated in small space and possess many features which are attracting the attention of houses engaged in export business.

LEOPARDI RE-ARRESTED

Judge Merrell on Tuesday ordered Tony Leopardi, of Fulton, released from jail on a writ of habeas corpus which was secured in his behalf by Attorney J. T. McCaffrey. Leopardi was sent to jail for fifty days for carrying concealed weapons and Mr. McCaffrey contended that the City Court, Fulton, from which he was sentenced, had no jurisdiction. Judge Merrell ordered Leopardi released, but he was immediately re-arrested on another charge.

OSWEGO SALOON KEEPERS SAD

The Oswego Palladium quotes saloon keepers as follows: "Of course we have to have new years, they are bound to come, but if I had my way one year would just naturally blend into the other and there wouldn't be any fuss or flurry about the advent of another twelve months," said the bar-keep this morning as he sprinkled a little nutmeg in a milk punch for one of his regular mid-morning callers.

"Perhaps you don't know it," he went on, "but every new year hits the cafe men hard, mighty hard. Of course the oldtimers, the tipplers, stay with us; new years or old years make no difference to them; they must have their 'touch', but if you'll notice you don't see many of the other class of drinkers making the rounds at this so-called joyful season. And I never saw the water wagon so loaded as it is this year. I venture to say that 500 men in the city jumped on with the new year. Some of them, of course, with the year over two weeks gone, have already begun to backslide. Some will slip off gently all the rest of the year and some, if they know what is good for them, will never get off. But the fact remains there are a big bunch on now and we're feeling it in our business."

All the cafe men in the city are sounding the cry. They all say that they never saw a New Year start so dry. "I'm using just twice as much water," said the proprietor of a well known place today, "as I did last month and it's not going for chasers, either. But it won't last long. Unlike Jeffries, they'll come back. But at that this New Year's resolution fad is not to my liking; it's growing far to rapidly."

20,000 Colored Posters to be Displayed in Next Three Months on Billboards—Value $100,000

During the next three months, the billboards of the United States will display 20,000 educational posters on tuberculosis, according to an announcement made today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

This will conclude the campaign begun a year ago, when the National Billposters Association donated free space to the tuberculosis cause, the Poster Printing Association offered free printing, and nine paper manufacturers gave the paper for the posters. The combined value of these several donations for this three-month campaign is nearly $100,000.

The posters are in six different designs and are all printed in three colors. They are 7 feet wide and 9 feet high. Already nearly 2,500 of these posters have been hung on the billboards of 48 different cities, and it is planned to distribute 20,000 more before April 1st in over 400 towns and cities. Any anti-tuberculosis society in the United States may receive free of charge, except for transportation, as many of these posters as can be hung on the boards in its territory. The National Billposters and Distributors are conducting the campaign.

The posters show in graphic form how fresh air, good food, and rest cure tuberculosis; how bad air overwork, and closed windows lead to consumption; and how the carless consumptive menaces the health of his family by spitting on the floor.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WOULD PROTECT MOUNT VERNON

The effort to protect Mount Vernon, the home of the Father of His Country, and its historic surroundings from desecration by the erection of a penal institution in the immediate vicinity, to which reference was made recently in this column, has led the President to refer the entire matter to the Commission of Fine Arts, of which D. H. Burnham, of Chicago, is president. The Mount Vernon Ladies' Association made an earnest plea to President Taft to forbid the erection of the proposed reformatory so close to this historic shrine, and Mr. Taft called in the commissioners of the District of Columbia and listened to their reasons for proposing the scheme. They contended that while the tract of land practically adjoined Mount Vernon, they purposed to place the reformatory as far as possible from the Mount Vernon grounds and that no other equally advantageous site could be procured. This latter assertion is disputed by those who have investigated the situation. Considerable surprise was expressed, when Frank Millet, the artist, took sides with the commissioners on the ground that the nearness of Mount Vernon would of itself have a salutary influence on the inmates of the reformatory. After hearing both sides of the controversy the President decided to refer the entire matter to the Arts Commission and ask it to prepare a comprehensive report on the subject.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

HONOR PUPILS

Pupils in the Public Schools Who Passed to a Higher Grade With Honor

The following are the "honor pupils" in the different A Classes in the Public Schools who will pass to a higher grade at the beginning of the next term—January 23.

The following are the qualifications necessary to pass "with honor". "Pupils who have not been tardy, who have not been absent more than eight half days during the half year nor and more than eight dismissals, who have 90 per cent. or more in deportment and have attained a standing of not less than 75 per cent. in every subject, will be designated as honor scholars and will be entitled to promotion without examination and their promotion cards marked "with honor." No pupil can be an "honor" pupil who has more than one unexcused absence."

STOMACH TROUBLE CURED

If you have any trouble with your stomach you should take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. F. Klote of Edina, Mo., says: "I have used a great many different medicines for stomach trouble, but find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets more beneficial than any other remedy I ever used." For sale by all druggists.

STATE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

The New York State school of Agriculture at Morrisville, N. Y., is announcing its first annual Farmers' Week to be held January 23 to 27, 1911.

The program for the week is one that is of interest and value to everyone interested in agriculture. Problems concerning soils, fertilizers, farm crops, dairying, stock feeding, and fruit growing, will be discussed by the different members of the faculty of the school, and by experts from the U. S. Department of agriculture and from the State College of Agriculture at Cornell University. For the evening sessions speakers of national prominence have been secured. Among them are Dr. L. H. Bailey, Dean of the College of Agriculture at Cornell University, one of the leading agricultural educators of the country; Dr. J. R. Stedman of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington, a prominent specialist in the national farm institute work; Dr. W. H. Jordan, Director of the New York State Experiment Station at Geneva; Hon. John T. Roberts of Syracuse. The president of the Board of Trustees of the new school, and a leading spirit in the advancement of the agricultural interests of the state; and others of like importance.

There will be special demonstrations and lectures for the ladies on the problems of the home, while questions regarding cookery, selection and purchase of foods, household sanitation, home hygiene and nursing will be given special attention. Women are giving more and more attention to the science of housekeeping, and the opportunity offered during this Farmers' Week for receiving information and inspiration for her work should be embraced by every woman who can possibly make arrangements to get away from home for the week or even for a day.

Special features of the week will be the meetings on Tuesday, the 24th, which will be especially devoted to the interests of live stock and dairying. Exceptional opportunities will be offered this day for the getting together of breeders of pure bred stock, milk producers, and others interested in some special line of animal industry.

Wednesday, the 25th, will be known as Grange Day, and topics of interest to members of the grange will be discussed by prominent grangers. These meetings will, however, be open to everyone.

Thursday and Friday will be devoted especially to farm crops and fruit growing, and especial emphasis will be laid on problems connected with soil management, selection and application of fertilizers, orchard practice, marketing fruit, diseases of farm crops, and the production of staple farm crops—corn, alfalfa, clover and small grains.

Anyone interested in any of the work of this week should write to Director F. G. Helyar, Morrisville, N. Y., for a program and information.

FAILURE OF THE LIBERAL NEWS

The schedule of assets and liabilities of the Liberal News Company, of Watertown, show assets of $11,045.85 and liabilities of $14,819.84. The news was started in July, 1910, for political Anti-Republican organization purposes, and it went the way of all such periodicals.

Nervous Collapse

"I have traveled for thirty years continually. I lost a great deal of sleep, which together with constant worry left me in such a nervous state that finally, after having two collapses of nervous prostration, I was obliged to give up traveling altogether. I doctored continually but with no relief. Dr. Miles' Nervine came to my rescue—I cannot describe the suffering which this Nervine saved me. Whenever I am particularly nervous a few doses relieve me." A. G. C. LIBBY, Wells, Me.

There are many nervous wrecks. There is nervous prostration of the stomach, of the bowels, and other organs. The brain, the kidneys, the liver, the nerve centers are all exhausted. There is but one thing to do—build up the nervous system by the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. Its strengthening influence upon the nervous system restores normal action to the organs, and when they all work in harmony, health is assured. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

MEAT PRICES TO STAY HIGH

Fort Worth, Texas, Jan. 14.—The cost of meats will not be lower for some years to come, according to H. A. Jastro of Bakersfield, Cal., President of the American National Life Stock Association who delivered this afternoon the principal address at the opening of its annual convention.

Mr. Jastro said the last ten years had been a transition period. Big ranches have been cut up and smaller holders are pursuing a more diversified kind of agriculture and stock raising. Unlimited free range is gone and public grazing land still remaining is overstocked and overgrazed.

The growth of the industry has not kept pace with the increase in population, with a consequent diminution of meat. Prices for the last year have averaged higher than for many years, and the speaker believed they would be maintained for some time to come. Despite the high prices, Mr. Jastro said, the business was not so remuneartive as in former years.

Regarding high prices for food products, Mr. Jastro declared that if the tariff was responsible it should be revised.

"This association," he asserted, "courts the most exhaustive inquiry into the cost of raising live stock, and I promise in advance the active support of the association in ascertaining all the facts."

Time, he said, had proved his statement last year, that placing hides on the free list meant a loss to cattlemen of approximately $1.50 a head.

CORONATION JEWELS OF KING GEORGE

When King George is crowned in Westminster Abbey next June he will wear two jewels more valuable than any one monarch ever wore to show the pomp of royalty. These, by his command, are called the "Stars of Africa." They are the largest portions of the famous Cullinan diamond.

The larger "star," weighing 516½ carats, by direction of the late King Edward, has been placed in the sceptre, which once was used by Charles II. The smaller "star," 309 3-16 carats, has replaced the sapphire that was set in the crown of Charles II by George IV just below the ruby of the Black Price. The crown of King George now contains examples of all the methods of diamond cutting from the days of the second Charles.

The court jewellers have so placed both of the "stars" that they may be removed and form part of Queen Mary's jewels at state ceremonies. —New York World.

ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes, H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything, I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in George town, S. C., for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." Its positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, and all bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

DEATH OF ENGINEER BICKERT

News has been received of the sudden death of Edward Bickert, a well-known O. & W. engineer, on Wednesday while he was enroute to his home in Norwich from Mayfield, to which place he had taken a freight train. Mr. Bickert had just recovered from injuries received in a wreck at Fulton several weeks ago. His wife was formerly Miss Cora Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Doyle, of Oswego, who with a five-year-old son, survives.

ANDELFINGER FAMILY IMPROVED

The members of Martin B. Andelfinger's family that were all so badly injured in a trolley accident in Brooklyn New Year's eve are improving. Mrs. Andelfinger is still in a serious condition owing to another break in her thigh but recently discovered. Mr. Andelfinger was able to be moved from the hospital yesterday with his fractured leg in a plaster cast. His two children, Arline and Russell, were also expected home Friday. —Oswego Times.

REDUCED FARE TO ITHACA

The FREE Sewing Machine

This "different" machine, this "superior" machine, this perfect master piece—the machine of your imagination which you sighed for every time the thread slipped around the spool pin of your old machine and broke, every time its shuttle wore out, every time its stitch slipped, every time its needle broke, every time your back became weary and your feet became tired, this machine with its 32 fault-removing inventions we now offer to you at your own terms as low as

$1.00 A Week

The price is so low that we promised Mr. Wm. C. Free, the inventor of this 20th Century machine that we would never publish it. You are accustomed to paying so much more for machines which are not near so good that it will be hard for you to realize that the lower priced FREE sews faster, runs lighter, is more beautiful, lasts longer and makes a more perfect stitch than the highest priced machine on the market. To appreciate the price you must first come to our store and see the quality.

Then as an evidence of the implicit faith we have in The FREE ourselves, we want you to give it a right in your own home. Sew on it. Test it on all sorts of material.

Then if after 30 days you are not entirely satisfied—if you are not absolutely convinced that it is the best machine you have ever sewed on—the most improved—the most up-to-date—and at its low price, the biggest bargain you ever made—return the machine to us and we will refund all you have paid on it so that the trial will not cost you one cent.

We make this offer because we know that when you notice for 30 days how ornamental its beautiful French Leg design, its golden oak finish and its dustless lapcushion are.

When you find out how convenient it is——how when the machine is closed, the drawers are automatically locked—

—how when you raise the lid, the head lifts automatically—the drawers unlock and the belt is on——how but a touch on the improved Head Latch button release the head—

—how the 5 sets of Ball Bearings make it so light running that treadle will keep running 5 minutes longer than other machines—

—how the Rotocilla Movement makes it faster than the fastest Rotary and simpler than the simplest Round Bobbin Machine—

—and how it has a score of other improvements—

—then after you have enjoyed all these conveniences for 30 days, you will never be satisfied to be without The Free. Come tomorrow and take The Free home with you for a 30 days trial.

Democrats Hopelessly Divided—Sheehan Needs Ten Votes to Secure Prize Over Shepard—Gov. Dix Declines to Interfere.

Albany, Jan. 17.—William F. Sheehan against the field.

This sums up the situation tonight after the first day of legislative balloting for the office of United States senator to succeed Chauncey M. Depew.

And for the first time since the bitter fight that followed the resignation of Senators Conklin and Platt in 1881 the Legislature of New York faces a dead lock on this question.

Th Senate and Assembly balloted separately this afternoon and neither house gave any candidate the majority required for a choice.

The first joint ballot will be taken at noon to morrow, and if Mr. Sheehan holds all the legislators who voted for him today he will lead the field with 91 votes. Five members were absent today. Of the remaining 105 votes, 79 were Republicans. The other 26 Democrats divided their votes among Edward F. Shepard, Alton B. Parker, James W. Gerard, Martin W. Littleton and D-Cady Herrick.

Of the twenty six Democrats who voted against Mr. Sheehan today twenty two have solemnly pledged themselves not to abandon their stand. Three of the remaining five voted for Mr. Shepard today and are said to be in sympathy with the pledge taken by the twenty one.

Mr. Sheehan's opponents declared to night that five of his 91 votes would desert him on the first joint ballot to morrow.

To night the anti-Sheehan leaders were too busy trying to prevent the leading candidate from gaining strength to devote much time to concentration on any other candidate.

MANTELL AT THE WIETING

Mr. Mantell, America's foremost tragedian will be seen in a round of the most widely varying roles during his engagement which opens at the Wieting next Monday night, Jan. 23, 1911.

He will cover almost the entire range of classic characterization. Any one of the superb performances he gives of these trying roles would be sufficient to establish him as a great actor, but when his masterly acting of Macbeth, Shylock, Richard, King Lear, Hamlet, Othello and Richelieu, all within the confines of one week, is considered, the critic is reasonably likely to award the palm of genius to a man of such varied capabilities.

William A. Brady, who directs the tours of Mr. Mantell, has surrounded the star with a company which represents the efforts of years in the determination to bring together the best obtainable company of English speaking classical actors, while the productions are the most elaborate and beautiful ever attempted in Shakespearean drama in America. What is perhaps more important, they have the additional distinction of being absolutely correct from a historical standpoint, even to the most minute detail.

Miss Marie Booth Russell will be seen as Lady Macbeth, Portia, Juliet, Ophelia, Goneril, Desdemona and Lady Anne, Fritz Leiber, the young leading man, is a graduate from Ben Greet's London Company, as is also Miss Agnes Elliott Scott, a talented actress of wide experience. Alfred Hastings is a veteran of the stage, having been in the support of Edwin Forrest, Edwin Booth, John McCullough, Lawrence Barrett and other lights of an earlier day. Several other members of Mr. Mantell's company have been recruited from those of the late Richard Mansfield and Sir Henry Irving, and in every respect the big organization is a competent one.

The following repertoire will be presented: Monday night, Macbeth; Tuesday night, Hamlet; Wednesday matinee, The Merchant of Venice; Wednesday night, Richelieu; Thursday night, Othello; Friday night, King Lear; Saturday matinee, Hamlet, and Saturday night, Richard III.

Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Mail orders addressed to F. P. Martin, Manager Wieting Opera House with express or post office orders and stamped envelopes will receive prompt attention.

Prices for this engagement will range from 25 cents to $2.00 for night performances. Matinees 25 cents to $1.50.

MARRIED

Sunday the marriage of Mr. David Katz of this city to Miss Bessie Tumin, a former teacher in the Syracuse schools, was solemnized in Syracuse in the presence of the immediate relatives of the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Katz are enjoying a bridal trip to New York city, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C., at the conclusion of which they will make their home in this city, having leased a suite of rooms in the F. E. Goodjon house in Buffalo street.

Make a note now to get Ely's Cream Balm if you are troubled with nasal catarrh, hay fever or cold in the head. It is purifying and soothing to the sensitive membrane that lines the air passages. It is made to overcome the disease, not to fool the patient by a short, deceptive relief. There is no cocaine nor mercury in it. Do not be talked into taking a substitute for Ely's Cream Balm. All druggists sell it. Price 50c. Mailed by Ely Bros., 66 Warren street, New York.

rather than necessity. It is therefore believed that, sustained by public sentiment, the Department will find it practicable to so curtail the delivery services as to make it possible eventually to relieve nearly all carriers from duty on Sunday and that with the cooperation of the postmasters it is feasible to provide one day of rest in seven for all clerks and carriers without any increase in force.

Postmasters at city-delivery offices were requested to bring to the attention of their patrons by means of a circular issued by the department, through notices in the local press, and by other means, the manifold advantages to be derived by the use of private mail receptacles and to urge that these be providde at all residences and places of business. The selection of the style and kind of box is left entirely to the householder. He may cut a slot in the door if he prefers to do so.

Such receptacles facilitate the work of carriers and are a great convenience to the patron. They obviate the necessity for responding to the carrier's calls at inconvenient moments, permit the safe delivery of mail in the absence of members of the household, and prevent the occasional necessity of a carrier proceeding on his route without delivering mail because of the failure to answer his ring within a reasonable time.

The canvass is in active operation and good results are being obtained. Advance reports received from a number of postmasters indicate that a considerable proportion of the patrons will provide means for the reception of their mail. The postmasters at many cities have with some success in the past urged patrons to provide such receptacles, and at offices where this has been done to any considerable extent it is said that a saving of about 6 seconds has been made on each stop. If all patrons had boxes the time thus gained would amount to approximately one and one-half hours per carrier each day, representing a saving of several million dollars annually.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS SUCCESS

Washington, Jan. 6.—The apparent success of the postal savings banks, which at present are only in an experimental stage, is very gratifying to Senator Carter of Montana. "Looking back over a public career beginning more than twenty years ago," said the senator, "I think that the greatest achievement of my career is the postal savings bank law. I believe it will result in more public good than anything else that I have accomplished."

During several years when Senator Carter was pushing his postal savings banks bill he was the subject of much derisive comment. Then he went to the Chicago convention and had a postal savings banks plank put in the platform. But even then he had to make a hard fight to get the bill through the senate, for there was a great deal of opposition, and it was difficult to pass a measure that would satisfy all.

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES

To many, winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. PALERMO

The social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Biddlecomb Friday evening was well attended, over a hundred being present. The next Aid will b eheld with the Rev. George Ward at the parsonage on January 27.

Over fifty friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hart of Vermilion gave them a pleasant surprise party Monday evening January 9. Mr. and Mrs. Hart were presented tokens of esteem and hearty congratulations in honor of their tenth anniversary of their marriage. During the evening a bountiful collation was served and fine music was rendered by Mrs. Philo Bledden and Rev. Spencer Owen. There were vocal selections given by the young people which were thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hart many more anniversarys of their wedding day.

The community was shocked to hear of the sudden death of Addie Gardner Campbell which occurred at her father's home Friday morning, January 13. Mrs. Campbell had many friends in this vicinity who extend sympathy to the family in their bereavement.

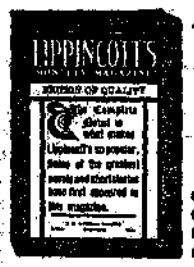
The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

A CORRECTION



In the report of the Salvation Army Christmas work it was omitted to thank the Presbyterian and the Baptist church; the Fourth street school, sixth and eighth grades, and also the Elks Lodge for their very liberal assistance in donating. The Presbyterian church donating shoes, rubbers and clothes, and the other societies clothing and food. If it were not for the kind friends donating so liberally it would not have been possible to do so much good.

THE WEEK

Business conditions remain substantially unchanged. Industrially the most important event of the week was the meeting of the iron and steel men, at which no action looking to lower prices was taken; but, barring a better outlook for the export business the trade continues at about the same reduced percentage of producing capacity. The report of the leading producer showed a falling off of 85,656 tons in unfilled orders during December, which is a much smaller decrease than in recent preceeding months. There is more inquiry for certain lines of cotton goods but the high cost of production leads to measures for curtailment of supply. Advanced prices have been named on some products, although in fine plain goods an easier tendency is noted owing to the pressure on the part of mills to secure business. An increased attendance of buyers is reported in the shoe markets, and in practically all quarters sentiment is optimistic concerning the spring and summer trade. Hides have been depressed by reports of the closing down of numerous tanneries, although no material change has as yet occurred in quotations. From different leading cities come reports which indicate a diversity of conditions with, on the whole, a fair degree of activity. While at most centers the lull usual after the holidays is still in evidence to a greater or less extent it is no more pronounced than in previous years, and at many points there are signs of reviving activity. In some lines the receipt of a satisfactory volume of spring orders is already reported and frequent requests are made for prompt shipment, which is thought to indicate depleted stocks of merchandise on the shelves of retail merchants, particularly in dry goods and footwear in the West and South. Bank clearings, while showing heavy declines in New York, are slightly larger in the rest of the country, while railroad earnings in December increased 7.5 per cent. At the port of New York foreign commerce aggregated $34,463,964 against $25,092,582 a year ago, the imports being $18,305,071 or $2,146,178 in excess of the exports.—Dun's Review, Jan. 14, 1911.

BANK OFFICERS ELETECD

Oswego—The annual election of directors of the First National Bank of Oswego resulted in the re-election of the present Board, as follows: John T. Mott, Elliott B. Mott, T. P. Kingsford, L. W. Mott, C. A. Tanner, C. C. Place and D. D. Long. The present officers were also chosen to serve during the coming year: John T. Mott, president; L. W. Mott, T. P. Kingsford and E. B. Mott, vice-presidents; L. W. Mott, cashier; C. J. McDowell and F. S. Thrall, assistant cashiers.

The Second National Bank of Oswego at their annual meeting elected as directors: R. A. Downey, O. F. Gaylord, C. B. Benson, Neil Gray, Sr.; F. A. Emerick, H. A. Wilcox, N. L. Bates, R. S. Sloan and F. E. Sweetland. The directors elected these officers: President, R. A. Downey; vice president, F. A. Emerick, and cashier, F. E. Sweetland.

WILL SUPPLY NAVY WITH POCKET KNIVES

Camillus.—The Camillus Cutlery Company is working on a large order for pocket knives which was recently received from the United States Navy Department. A similar order was furnished the government a year ago. Very few people in this locality are aware that every sailor in Uncle Sam's service carries a Camillus pocket knife.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purgative. Sold by all dealers.

The Winter of 1910-1911, will go down in the history of Northern New York as a most unpleasant Winter from every standpoint. Sudden changes from cold to warm, little snow and considerable rain; slippery walks and poor sleighing have been the main features so far. Considerable sickness has been attributed to the climatic changes.

Dr. Wallace of Syracuse was called to Fulton last week in consultation with local physicians in the case of Mr. Bernie Buell, who has undergone two operations on a toe to arrest the progress of blood poisoning. Dr. Wallace expressed the belief that Mr. Buell, who has been confined to his home since early Fall with the trouble, would entirely recover.

Contractor Fred W. Woodcock is a candidate for the superintendency of the Oswego canal. At a meeting of Democrats held on Wednesday evening Mr. Woodcock's boom was launched and he has secured favorable comment from many quarters relative to his fitness for the office. It would seem that Fulton Democrats were to be turned entirely down by the Democratic powers that be, and that all they are to have is the satisfaction of having voted the party ticket.

Phoenix Register: The city of Fulton wants its charter amended so that the number of its supervisors shall be increased to one from each ward. The citizens of Fulton feel that they have been unjustly dealt with in the matter of equalization by the board of supervisors and that if the cities were given larger representation on the board the result might have been different. Those best posted in the matter claim that there is another boost due the City of Fulton in that direction.

TREASURER KANDT MAKES CHANGES

Hereafter County office Will Remain Open During the Noon Hour

County Treasurer Herman W. Kandt has announced that during his administration the County Treasurer's office will be kept open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the afternoon, continuously. In the past it has been the custom to close the office during the noon hour, but Mr. Kandt feels that there are a large number of people who come in from the East and over the Phoenix line at noon who would find it very convenient to transact their business during the noon hour and catch the trains out early in the afternoon. He figures that the new arrangement will also benefit Oswgeo people who have no chance to call at the Treasurer's office except during the noon hour.—Times.

FEVER SORES

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.

WOMAN RURAL CARRIER

The Postal Department has appointed Mrs. Annie Palmer, wife of Carrier Aurie Palmer, as carrier on rural route No. 9, to fill the vacancy caused by her husbands transferral to the city carriership. Mrs. Palmer is the first woman in Oswego county to have been appointed to a rural route.

The house in Ontario street belonging to Mr. John Richardson and occupied by Mr. R. Lewis and family came near being the scene of a conflagration on Thursday when a lighted match dropped into a basket of waste paper quickly blazed up and set fire to a table spread. The flames spread rapidly and but for the heroic work of Mr. Lewis, who was painfully burned, the house would have been destroyed.

The officers of C. R. & B. A., were installed last week as follows: Spiritual advisor, the Rev. J. L. Lindsman; past president, Mrs. Hannah Cole; president, Mrs. Theresa White; vice presidents, Mrs. Mabel Stewart, Miss Zeta Dwyer; recorder, Mrs. Margaret Hartnett; assistant recorder, Mrs. Anna Dwyer; financial secretary, Miss Cora Gallon; treasurer, Miss Carrie Martin; marshal, Mrs. Mayme Taylor; guard, Mrs. Margaret Hartigan; trustees, Mrs. Alice Barnes, Miss Eva Frawley, Miss Ella Gleason.

Charlton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter, suffered a painful and severe cut on the fleshy portion of his right hip as the result of falling upon a bottle he had in his pocket on Thursday. The lad was skating with friends on the canal near the Hunter factory, and in some manner he fell backwards striking heavily upon the bottle of medicine he had with him. A large piece of the broken glass entered the flesh cutting a wound several inches long, and very deep. He was taken home on his sled by his playfellows where a physician cared for the injury, the boy losing a quantity of blood en route.

THE CORNELL CORN SHOW

Held During Farmers' Week, Feb. 20-25, at The College of Agriculture, Cornell University

This Winter during Farmers' Week, from February 20 to 25, 1911, there will be held at the College of Agriculture, a Corn Show. This has been a regular feature at the college for the past two or three years and has attracted considerable attention. This show has already been advertised throughout the State. A large number of entries are anticipated from corn growers.

As may be seen from the following list of classes there will be opportunity for any farmer growing corn in New York State to compete in this contest. The prizes will consist of diplomas for the best exhibits of single varieties, and banners for granges and other agricultural societies. Doubtless many farmers who expect to send corn to this show have their exhibits prepared and ready to ship. The grower should send the best ten ears of corn that he can select, of any type; including flints, dents, sweet corn and pop corn. For the purpose of reducing express charges it is suggested that farmers unite in sending their exhibits. When five or more entries are sent in one package from the same community the College will bear the express charges when less than five are sent, they should be prepaid. In many cases it would be possible for the farmers having but one or two entries to send these with the local grange exhibit. If the exhibitor wishes his sample of corn returned he will be required to pay the return expressage. If the exhibit is to be returned this request should be written plainly on the package and also stated in a letter from the exhibitor. If not so stated the exhibit becomes the property of the College of Agriculture.

Conditions of the Show

Each exhibit shall consist of ten ears of corn.

All exhibits must be sent in time to reach the College of Agriculture on or before February 15th.

Specialists and seed growers are not allowed to entered exhibits for prizes.

Each exhibit must be accompanied by the statement of class under which it should be placed in the show.

Each individual exhibit in a collection from Grange or other agricultural association may also compete for prize in the various classes. Thus while helping out the exhibit from the Grange or other society the grower may compete for diplomas. If desired to compete in this way, a statement to this effect must accompany the exhibit which is included with the general exhibit from Grange or other agricultural association.

Each ear of an exhibit should be wrapped separately and the whole exhibit well packed.

Ship all exhibits to Professor C. H. Tuck, College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

Entries and Prizes

Class 1, ten ears yellow flint corn, Diploma; class 2, ten ears white flint corn, Diploma; class 3, ten ears flint corn other than yellow or white, Diploma; class 4, ten ears yellow dent corn, Diploma; class 5, ten ears white dent corn, Diploma; class 6, ten ears dent corn other than yellow or white, Diploma; class 7, ten ears Evergreen sweet corn, Diploma; class 8, ten ears Country Gentleman sweet corn, Diploma; class 9, ten ears any other variety of sweet corn, Diploma; class 10, ten ears white rice pop corn, Diploma; class 11, ten ears red rice pop corn, Diploma; class 12, ten ears golden pop-corn, Diploma; class 13, ten ears white pearl pop corn, Diploma; class 14, ten ears any other kind of pop corn, Diploma; class 15, the best Grange exhibit of corn, ten ears of each variety, Banner; class 16, best exhibit of corn above from any other agricultural association, Banner; class 17, best single ear of flint corn, Diploma; class 18, best single ear of dent corn, Diploma.

No corn will be returned to any exhibitor unless clearly stated by the owner that the corn is to be returned. All other exhibits become the property of the college of agriculture.

Some diseases are not curable

Rheumatism

is not in this class, although many people who have been fooled and bled by quacks and fakirs believe it is. Only a few physicians are able to cure rheumatism. And these few are not readily accessible to the great mass of rheumatic sufferers. A wonderfully successful remedy in the cure of rheumatism is

Wintergreen Compound

QUEER SITUATION.

(Syracuse Journal)

How much should a divorce cost? That question was up in Municipal Court all the morning and there was no evidence that it would be decided before night. Ross Bacon and Mrs. Anna Kahn were both in court as witnesses, they and Attorney Gerson Rubinstein being the most interested parties. Neither of them ever had a divorce, but Mrs. Kahn, who looks like a pretty little school girl, once applied for one, and employed Mr. Ruberinstein to secure it. Her husband, Chester H. Kahn, applied first and named Ross Bacon in his allegations. To-day Lawyer Rubinstein produced a letter from Mr. Bacon agreeing to stand the expense of the defense.

The letter was put in evidence—that is, a part of it was. It contained a postscript which Judge Ryan decided had nothing to do with the case and six interested jurors looked disappointed. At any rate Lawyer Rubinstein was not suing Mrs. Kahn but Mr. Bacon for his services in the preparation and completion of the three days' trial.

Mr. Rubinstein was his own attorney and Mr. Bacon had George E. Mull, with E. W. Cregg as counsel. Mr. Cregg took up the bill of particulars in detail and there was a wide difference of opinion as to the proper cost of many items.

The thing that caused the most argument, however, was Mr. Rubinstein's statement that he had subpoenaed Mrs. Kahn at her own trial. "I wanted to impress upon her the exact date on which she must be in Court," he said, and he added that he had paid her the statutory 50 cents for the service of the subpoena.

Mr. Rubinstein swore Attorney Lewis Howlett of the firm of Hopkins & Howlett as an expert on what divorce motions cost. Attorney Frank O'Neil was on hand for the defense. It is contended by Mr. Bacon that Mr. O'Neil received $100 for winning his case and that Mr. Rubinstein received $105 for the defense. Mr. Bacon will try to prove that he only agreed to guarantee that Mr. Rubinstein would be paid, and that he was paid by the granting of counsel fees by the court. Mr. Rubinstein's bill was for $200.

REMINISCENCE

When on the old homestead back in the seventies, I contracted a load of pigs with a wholesale grocery firm in Syracuse for ten dollars per hundred, and thought it was a fine price then, but I think the price has reached twelve dollars or more during the pas year. I sent our hired man across the country with them and I came to Fulton and went on the train. When I came to the desk to do business I found the book keeper was one of my old friends, Dick Esmond. He always had a genial and pleasant manner and a kind word for everybody. I think I became acquainted with him at Falley Seminary. No wonder he succeeded in becoming a master of men in the war of the Rebellion. I see he has passed over to the majority. Peace be to his ashes.

SWIFT & COMPANY

Stockholders at Annual Meeting Vote to Increase Capital Stock

Chicago, Jan. 11.—At the annual meeting of Swift & Company stockholders voted to increase the capital stock from $60,000,000 to $75,000,000. There were 461,578 shares voted in favor of the proposition and sixty against. There were the usual number of stockholders present, including about a dozen easterners. The company has over 12,000 stockholders. Directors were re-elected.

Stockholders of record January 16 may subscribe for the new stock at par in the ratio of one share for four shares now held until February 4.

The annual report for the fiscal year ended September 30, 1910, shows 11 3-4 per cent. earned on the capital stock. Gross sales were in excess of $250,000,000.

OH, YOU FALSE HAIR

New York, Jan. 16.—The cutting off of their pigtails by the Chinese is going to "be the answer" to the market in human hair, according to Augustus H. Skillin, receiver in bankruptcy of Louis Levusove, manufacturer of human hair goods. Skillin says that a year ago there was a big boom in the human hair business and manufacturers stocked up heavily. Now prices have dropped, due to the news from the Orient, Skillin says, that the Chinese are whacking off their ques. Large shipments of Chinese hair are expected in the near future.

The Alexander stocks of women's ready-to-wear apparel will be offered at a small fraction of their regular prices

Tailored coats, suits, skirts, dresses and furs are involved in this extraordinary trade event

Many of these were bought for this season. Not a piece in the lot a year old as the stocks were all NEW when the Alexander store was opened last March

Because of the very low prices, no garments sent on approval. No free alterations. No exchanges. One price to all.

It is not our business practice to deal in "job lots," but the Alexander stock consisted of several thousand pieces that looked right to us. It had the reputation of being of a high grade.

Our business sense of progressive merchandising compelled us to give the stock our careful attention. It gave us an opportunity to make a purchase with the object of presenting to the people of this and adjoining counties a good chance to get a greater amount in return for their money than is possible in the regular way.

The sale prices placed on these garments are (considerably) lower than any that have been quoted for garments of equal worth and value.

We consider the disposal of the Alexander purchase of seasonable ready-to-wear apparel the most important trade movement that has taken place in this locality in many years.

Tailored suits, coats, skirts and dresses made up of good materials, in becoming styles, and shown in a good assortment of sizes.

Now is your time to save money. An event that is worth an extra trip to Central New York's Greatest dry goods store.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers—E. J. Penfield Re-elected President—Reports Received from the Several Committees

The regular annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held in the rooms on Friday evening. A satisfactory number were present and the program consisted of reports from the different officers and committees, the election of officers, the appointment of special committes, and refreshments were served at the close of the business and during the social session.

The reports of Secretary H. L. Stout and Treasurer L. C. Foster show a healthy condition of the organization. A considerable amount of work has been accomplished during the past year in the matter of securing new industries and investigating the claims of firms looking after new locations. Many have been found unworthy of consideration; others have required too much capital while several others are still under advisement and correspondence.

The Treasurer's report shows:

Bal. on hand Jan. 20, 1910,	$617.32
Received from 1910 dues,	317.00
Interest on bank account	12.03
Total	$946.35
Amount disbursed	$700.63

Leaving a balance of $245.72, in the treasury.

The following officers were elected:

President, E. J. Penfield, re-elected;

Vice President, George B. Fairman;

Treasurer, L. C. Foster;

Director to fill unexpired term of F. J. Switzer, A. W. Wiltsie;

Directors for two years, T. H. Webb, D. L. Lipsky, R. B. McRae, E. E. Hart.

The secretary will be appointed at the first meeting of the Board of Directors to be held in February.

Chairman A. T. Jennings of the Membership Committee reported a total of 160 members, an increase during the year from 74 to 160, with 15 new names proposed for membership at the meeting.

Chairman N. L. Whitaker of the Industries Committee reported on the work accomplished during the year with the probable outlook for the future. His report was most gratifying, too.

Mayor Conners as Chairman of the Federal Building Committee presented the correspondence between Postmaster Hughes, Congressman Knapp and the Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department, relative to the status of our new Federal building. It is very probable that the coming Summer will see something done toward the matter of a building. Had it not been for the controversy over a site the building would even now have been in process of construction. The delay placed Fulton's number well down on the list in the architects office.

Prof. G. B. Deuel and Mr G. B. Fairman were appointed a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of Mrs. Charles L. Knapp, wife of Congressman Knapp. They were unanimously adopted as follows:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, to call home the wife and companion of our Congressman, Charles L. Knapp, and

Whereas, We keenly appreciate the value of the sympathetic hand in all times of affliction and distress, therefore

Resolved, That we, the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Fulton, N. sympathy that is ours to give in brother, Congressman Knapp, the sympathy that is our to give in this time of his bereavement.

Signed, G. B. FAIRMAN,
GEO. B. DEUEL,
Committee.

The matter of a tuberculosis hospital site was discussed and it was desired that the hospital be located as near Fulton as possible. A committee composed of Drs. E. J. Cusack, N. H. Haviland and Messrs. G. B. Fairman and William Hunter were appointed to urge the measure.

The report of H. M. Morin, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee was as follows:

Fulton, N. Y., Jan. 20th, 1911.
Chamber of Commerce,

Gentlemen: The following is a brief report of the entertainment committee, during the meetings held by the Chamber in 1910. The committee served refreshments, and cigars at seven of the meetings.

During the summer meetings they served ice cream, cakes, lemonade and cigars, at the other meetings they served different kinds of sandwiches, cakes, coffee and cigars; at the October meeting an oyster supper was served.

The only way to judge the quality of these suppers is to be present and try them. Do not miss the February supper.

Howard Morin,
Chairman.

The energy and effort of President Penfield has stimulated every officer and member of the Chamber into greater activity during the past year and it is believed and expected that the coming year will prove even more productive of results than the past. The bringing of the Aluminum manufacturing company to Fulton and locating them in the old tobacco factory will be of great benefit to Fulton when the company expands and grows, as it is bound to do, orders coming in increased numbers all the time.

JURY DECIDES FOR DEFENDANT

A verdict for the defendant was returned in the case of Jacob Cooper against Menzo Murgittroyd of Phoenix in Supreme Court Friday morning. The case was tried at the December term, but the jury disagreed. Cooper asked for $25,000 for the death of his wife, Betty Cooper, who was killed in an automobile accident last May. Assemblyman Sweet was named as one of the defendants with Mr. Murgittroyd, but was able to establish his innocence in the matter.

CANAL REPORT CRITICISED

Oswego Canal Shippers Do Not Think They Have Had Fair Play—Report Does Not Give Reason For Decrease in Tonnage.

Former Superintendent of Public Works Frederick C. Stevens has issued a report on the canal tonnage for 1910 which shows a decrease of 43,124 tons. This is explained by the fact that some sections of the canals of the State have been closed during the past year, and others were not open for the full time because of the work on the barge canal.

Another reason for the decrease in tonnage given is that at the present time many of the Erie Canal boats have been abandoned because of age and the owners are not bringing out new boats until the barge canal is completed and larger craft can be used.

The Oswego Canal shows a decrease in tonnage over the past but this would naturally be expected. In the first place the opening of the canal was delayed for some time because of the conditions of the barge canal contract work. Then, only a portion of the canal between Oswego and Battle Island was in shape for navigation and no boats could pass from here to Syracuse and the main line of the Erie.

In his report Mr. Stevens takes up at some length the plea for a longer open season of the canal but the Barge Canal Act states specifies that during the work of construction the present canal shall only be open from May 15 to Nov. 15.

He believes that if any change in the season is made that the opening should be delayed until June 1 and the closing until December 1.

The superintendent refers to the constantly increasing number of pleasure craft using the State canals, there has been more than 2,000 permits issued by this department during the past season, and recommends that the Legislature enact laws for the regulation of traffic similar to those now enforced by the United States government on Federal waters.

Many Oswego shippers have expressed their disapproval of the report, not because of what it did contain but because of what it did not contain. They feel that Mr. Stevens should have made a word of explanation in the statement given out that for the past two years with the exception of a short distance between Oswego and Fulton, that the Oswego canal had been closed to traffic. The Oswego men feel that the showing of the Oswego canal given in the report without this explanation does no good to their city or to the Oswego canal.

CHARTER REVISION COMMITTEE NAMED

Mayor Conners has named as a committeee to revise the city charter seventeen well known citizens in whom the electors and tax payers will impose full confidence that the work will be carefully and systematically done and that every effort will be expended toward conserving Fulton, her rights and priveleges. The committee is non-political in nature and will work from an unbiased standpoint in every particular. There are many large discrepancies in the charter, capable of interpretation many ways and it is to remedy these defects and to make other improvements in the guide to government that time has proved necessary, that the revision is to be taken up at this time.

The committee appointed by Mayor Conners is composed of Hon. Nevada N. Stranahan, Giles S. Piper, Thomas Hunter, Herbert J. Wilson, George M. Fanning, N. L. Whitaker, H. L. Paddock, Joseph R. Murphy, Hannibal street; Frederick Summerville, J. A. Foster, John Frawley, J. R. Sullivan, John Stevenson, T. H. Webb, W. A. Butts, Horatio Allen and John Brennan.

INCREASES LIFE OF AUTO TIRES

Valuable Acquisition for Motorists—Inventor Has Received Many Letters of Commendation in Which He Places His Hopes for Success.

Hid under the balcony of the Automobile Show at Madison Square Garden is being exhibited one of the most useful acquisitions a motorist can well conceive, and which will prove to be one of the sensible products which has accompanied this industry to its present heights.

In Myhtib the inventor has successfully concealed by thus naming his preparation the virtues the compound really merits. In its application, however, he has placed his hopes for success, and experience forces the conclusion, for letters of commendation have poured in on the factory from every user.

Myhtib is a preparation for increasing the life of the tire. The enemy to rubber is disintegration, caused from the elements, foreign oils, and acids. From actual experience from uninterested owners of cars who have used this coating, it has been determined that the life of the tire has been increased from 50 to 100 per cent. An expression from a State chemist who made microscopical tests, reported to the company that he found that it penetrated the pores of the rubber, thereby reducing friction and excluding the heat from the fabric, which increases the life of the tire. "I also find," he concludes, "that the application transforms the entire combination into an air, water, and oil proof material.

These facts presented to the user of an automobile should prove a boon, for none have escaped the ravages of tire destruction and Myhtib will earn a devotion from the motorists for serving so good a cause in the interest of economy.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 18, 1909.
To Whom It May Concern:

I, Charles E. Crane, hereby take oath that I caused the accompanying rubber tire, size 34 in. x 4 in. to be coated with "Myhtib" Rubber Tire Preserver, when new, and placed the same on one of the rear wheels of my automobile, (which weighs over 3000 pounds) on September 22, 1908, and this tire has been in constant use since then and until this December 18th, 1909.

This tire has traveled 9600 miles during aforesaid period, or about three times as far as any other tire I ever owned.

Charles E. Crane.
Hartford, Conn., Dec. 18, 1909.

This is to certify that Mr. C. E. Crane of this city appeared before me on this day and date, December 18, 1909, and took oath to the above statement.

Frances W. Bann,
Notary Public.

December 24, 1910.

Mythib Composition Co.,
Room 4,
284 Asylum St., Hartford, Conn.,

Dear Sirs: Replying to yours of recent date asking for a statement from me regarding the use of the compound manufactured by you for the treatment of automobile tires, would say that I used the same on my automobile tires at the beginning of last winter, and although I did not keep any record of the mileage of the tires after that time which would enable me to approximate the benefit received from the treatment, I am of the opinion that the tires received material benefit from the same, and a large amount of additional mileage was secured from the use of Mythib preparation.

I have taken occasion to recommend the preparation to several of my friends who own automobiles, some of whom have since expressed to me their opinion that their tire mileage was very much increased by its use.

Very truly yours,
J. H. Roraback.

PELLEY COMPANY IN TROUBLE

Recently Removed From Fulton — Company Falls Into Hands of Receiver—Several Fulton Stockholders.

The Pelley Paper Company, which recently removed from this city to Springfield, Mass., has passed into the hands of a receiver and the outcome is in doubt as to whether or not the company can be operated by the receiver to the benefit of its creditors or whether it will be best to wind up the affairs as speedily as possible.

The company when in Fulton showed such an utter lack of knowledge of business principles and such a total ignorance of the cost of production that the outcome is not surprising. They could and did secure a volume of business but as some one has said, "any fool can sell paper; it takes quite a man to make money on it," and that seems to have been the cause for the financial shoals upon which they seemed always stranded.

The receiver has written local creditors and stockholders regarding the failure and to assure them that whatever is best for the protection of their several interests will be done. It is devoutely to be hoped that the investors may receive 100 cents upon their every dollar as several of them can illy afford to take any loss.

MANIAC SHOOTS NOVELIST

David Graham Phillips, the brilliant author of many popular works of fiction, was shot and probably mortally wounded on Monday evening as he was entering the Princeton Club, New York city, by Coyle Goldsborough, a music teacher, a Socialist and a member of a well known Washington, D. C., family. The cause for the shooting will probably forever be shrouded in mystery as the assailant turned his smoking weapon on himself and died immediately from the self inflicted wounds.

Philips was taken to a hospital where his chances for life are very slim, a bullet piercing a lung; another perforating an intestine, the third shattering the left wrist and the fourth entering and passing completely through the hip.

The only suspected cause for the shooting is that the act was that of an insane man with a fancied grievance. It is probable that in some one of the writer's stories his assailant found a fancied pen picture of himself and thus avenged his fancied insult.

The novelist suffered a severe hemorrhage in the night on Tuesday and died soon after.

FIRST METHODIST CONFERENCE

Society Prosperous — Many Organizations Perfected — Rev. C. L. Peck's Return Requested

Following the sermon by Rev. C. E. Miller, the fourth quarterly conference of the First Methodist Episcopal church was held, with District Superintendent Miller in the chair. Reports covering about nine months of the year were read.

Rev. C. L. Peck, pastor, reported 100 people following the scriptural readings and notes and a good number pledged to daily prayer and systematic Bible study. Eighteen people have been received into full membership, while twenty-two have been granted letters to other churches, and six members have died. The present membership is 838. Pastorial calls and visits numbered 885.

The presentation of "Ways to Work and Win" plan of fifteen departments for volunteer enrollment brought 365 responses and promises for work in the various departments. In the department of boy's work, nearly forty, ranging from 12 to 17, have been enrolled as Troop No. 169 of the Boy Scouts of America, who are persuing various healthful lines that appeal to boy nature.

The boys are uniformed and divided into patrols of eight each, each patrol having a leader and a corporal. The plans include a boy scout volunteer messenger service, an orchestra and a week summer camp and outing.

H. L. Paddock, superintendent of the Sunday school, reported an average attendance of 300. Curtis Austin, president of the Junior Endeavor, reported a membership of 108. Mrs. Harry L. Waugh, president of the Young People's Society, reported vigorous activities among the young people. H. J. Wilson, president of the Brotherhood class, reported increasing numbers of men meeting for Bible instruction, stimulated by a friendly eleven-sided contest. The church deaconess, Mrs. T. A. Brown, reported 331 garments supplied, fifty-four children brought into Sunday school, twenty-four Bibles and testaments supplied and $125 expended in relief work.

W. A. Butts gave a favorable report as church treasurer and M. V. Connell, as chairman of the Committee for inspecting Church Records and Auditing Accounts; F. J. Parkhurst, as class leader; R. E. Phillips for the trustees and H. L. Paddock and W. H. Patterson as treasurer of the centennial fund, also told of the condition of their departments.

W. E. Perry of the Committee on Deaconess' Work recommended the re-engagment of Mrs. Brown, and it was unanimously ordered. A resolution offered by J. H. Howe, commending the work of the pastor, Rev. C. L. Peck, and requesting his return was unanimously adopted. W. A. Butts, E. E. Morrill and Dr. D. E. Lake were elected delegates to the layman's annual conference.

THE WEEK

Improvement in financial conditions has been a marked development in the past few days, and to some extent has been accompanied by a more active trade distribution, although the industrial contraction of the last half-year is still in evidence. The bank statements report a larger supply of available money, though the Bank of England still maintains its 4 1-2 per cent. rate. There is a more active demand for bonds, especially by institutions; the new New York City bond issue seems to be favorably received, and an accretion of strength is shown by the securities market. This improvement is reflected also in the more encouraging aspects of the iron and steel market. While production is still only half of producing capacity, and there is no decided change in conditions, yet there is new export business of note and increased buying by the railroads. Copper is slightly weaker owing to the fact that stocks are heavy notwithstanding the big world consumption. Conferences have been held by cotton goods manufacturers to consider curtailment of production; but, on the other hand, the week shows a better wholesale and retail distribution, and the export trade has been especially good during the past two months. Increased orders are also reported in the shoe market, imparting greater confidence to the trade. More attention is given to the Winter wheat condition. This, on the whole, appears excellent, the absence of sufficient snow in some States being compensated for by ample rains which have moistened the ground in nearly all sections. Railroad earnings now compare favorably with 1910, the record for the first week of January making a gain of 4 per cent. Bank clearings outside of New York during the past week decreased 1.3 per cent. from 1910 but gained 9.6 per cent. over 1909, while in New York there were decreases of 26.7 and 4.3 per cent., respectively. One of the notable gains of the situation is the marked improvement in the foreign trade situation. This was revealed in the total figures for the month of December; and also shows in the record of New York in the latest week when the exports were $16,272,718, against $14,774,887 in 1910 and $15,442,543 in 1909. As imports declined as compared with the past two years, there was an excess of exports amounting to $1,355,045.

A more optimistic feeling prevails in iron and steel, recent development encouraging hopes of a more active business, although current improvement is by no means pronounce Yet it is significant that consumers show a greater willingness to cover their wants, and the decision to maintain prices on finished materials has removed one element of uncertainty from the situation. Some slight irregularity still exists in the terms at which new orders are accepted, but the fact that no general cut in values is intended has induced buyers to release contracts held up pending definite knowledge on this point. In the rail trade the prominent feature has been the placing of three export orders for Argentina and Mexico, amounting in all to about 25,000 tons, and while the demand from domestic sources is still light, numerous inquiries are reported. The attitude of the railroads is reflected in larger buying of rolling stock, and the structural division makes a good showing, although only small individual lots have been taken. Conditions in pig iron are less promising than in the finished lines, but here, also, the inquiry has broadened, though some further price concessions are noted.

Many large dry goods buyers have been in the primary markets, but their operations are still along conservative lines. A good export trade has been done with the Far East in the past seven weeks.

Footwear conditions show a substantial improvement. Orders for spring delivery are larger, and New England manufacturers in some cases have accumulated a larger reserve of orders than for many months past. There is a more confident feeling all around, and the prospects for a steady normal business from now on are very encouraging.

It is to be hoped that Government's tobacco case doesn't go up in smoke.

The number of people killed yearly by wild beasts don't approach the vast number killed by disease germs. No life is safe from their attacks. They're in air, water, dust, even food. But grand protection is afforded by Electric Bitters, which destroy and expel these deadly disease germs from the system. That's why chills, fever and ague, all malarial and many blood diseases yield promptly to this wonderful blood purifier. Try them, and enjoy the glorious health and new strength they'll give you. Money back, if not satisfied. Only 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

Rheumatism

will soon lose its terrors for you if you'll try WINTERGREEN COMPOUND. We know this is true. Thousands of bottles have been taken by sufferers in all parts of this country. Thousands of cures have been the result.

Wintergreen Compound

is not a cure-all. It is a specific remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lumbago and Gout, and will positively cure these painful and dangerous diseases.

Read the following letter; then go to your druggist and ask for a bottle of Wintergreen Compound.

Chas. W. Lewis, Duncannon, Pa., writes: "Six weeks ago I was carried home from work stricken with an attack of lumbago so bad I could not raise both hands from my knees at the same time, and my doctor did not seem able to help me much. My parents sent me a bottle of your compound, and today I feel better than I have for one year."

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us his name and 50c. for a regular size bottle fully prepaid. Wintergreen Compound Co., 360 Orange St., Rochester, N. Y.

KILLING A MUTINY

Dramatic Incident In the Early History of Our Navy.

THE PLOT ON THE OLD ESSEX

Commodore Porter Got Wind of the Conspiracy Just as It Was Ripe, and His Prompt and Drastic Action Cowed the Crew and Saved the Ship.

There has never been a fleet mutiny or a squadron mutiny in the United States navy. The most notorious case in the naval history of this country was the conspiracy to mutiny on the brig of war Somers, which was discovered before it came to a head and resulted in the execution at sea of Philip Spencer, midshipman, son of the then secretary of war, and one petty officer and one seaman.

Another famous case was the one in which Commodore Porter acted with such vigor and promptitude that he completely crushed the rebellious spirit that had manifested itself and saved his ship.

When Commodore Porter was in command of the Essex in the early history of our navy there was an attempted mutiny on board. Here is an account of how it was suppressed which is vouched for as authentic: "While the Essex was lying at the Marquesas islands, recruiting and refreshing her crew from one of the long and arduous cruises in the Pacific, Commodore Porter was informed through a servant of one of the officers that a mutiny had been planned and was on the eve of consummation; that it was the intention of the mutineers to rise upon the officers, take possession of the ship and after having remained as long as they found agreeable at the island to hoist the black flag and 'cruise on their own account.'

"Having satisfied himself of the truth of the information, Commodore Porter ascended to the quarterdeck and ordered all the crew to be summoned aft. Waiting until the last man had come from below, he informed them that he understood that a mutiny was on foot and that he had summoned them for the purpose of inquiring into its truth. 'Those men who are in favor of standing by the ship and her officers,' said the commodore, 'will go over to the starboard side; those who are against them will remain where they are.' The crew to a man moved over to the starboard side. The ship was still as the grave. Fixing his eyes on them steadily and sternly for a few moments, the commodore said, 'Robert White, step out.' The man obeyed, standing pale and agitated, guilt stamped on every lineament of his countenance, in front of his comrades.

"The commodore looked at him a moment, then, seizing a cutlass from the nearest rack, said in a suppressed voice, but in tones so deep that they rang like a knell upon the ears of the guilty although the crew: 'Villain! You are the ringleader of this mutiny! Jump overboard!' The man dropped on his knees, imploring for mercy, saying that he could not swim. 'Then drown, you scoundrel!' said the commodore, springing toward him to cut him down. 'Overboard instantly!' And the man jumped over the side of the ship. He then turned to the trembling crew and addressed them with much feeling, the tears standing upon his bronzed cheek as he spoke. He asked them what he had done that his ship should be disgraced by a mutiny. He asked whether he had ever dishonored the flag, whether he had ever treated them with other than kindness, whether they had ever been wanting for anything to their comfort that discipline and the rules of the service would allow and that it was in his power to give.

"At the close of his address he said: 'Men, before I came on deck I laid a train to the magazine, and I would have blown all on board into eternity before my ship should have been disgraced by a successful mutiny. I never would have survived the dishonor of my ship. Go to your duty.' The men were much affected by the commodore's address and immediately returned to their duty, showing every sign of contrition.

"But mark the sequel of this mutiny and let those who, in the calm security of their firesides, are so severe upon the course of conduct pursued by officers in such critical situations see how much innocent blood would have been saved if White had been cut down instantly or hanged at the yardarm. As he went overboard he succeeded in reaching a canoe floating at a little distance and paddled ashore. Some few months afterward, when Lieutenant Gamble of the marines was at the islands, in charge of one of the large prizes, short handed and in distress, this same White, at the head of a party of natives, attacked the ship, killed two of the officers and a number of men, and it was with great difficulty that she was prevented from falling into their hands."—New York Post.

Nora Was Wise.

"Nora," censured the house butler, "if you must break the missus' vases, why don't you break the cheap ones instead of those expensive imported ones?"

"Oh, no," laughed Nora, with a gay flourish of her feather duster. "If I broke the cheap ones she would take them out of my wages."—Chicago News.

RUSIE'S TERRIFIC SPEED.

His Thunderbolt Delivery Terrorized the Batters.

A veteran ball player who has batted against nearly all of the noted pitchers in the last twenty years named Amos Rusie as the universal standard of speed in shooting the ball across the rubber.

"There have been many fast pitchers in baseball, and all of them in their time when they cut loose for fair have baffled the best of hitters with their speed, but you will notice that when fast pitchers are spoken of the one remark is always made, 'Has he the speed that Amos Rusie had?' And, I think, it will be that way forever. As long as great names are remembered or baseball is the nation's game Rusie will remain the champion speed merchant, the one pitcher who could send in the ball faster than any one else that ever lived. When you say 'fast as Rusie' you don't mean it, either; you only wish to show that your favorite pitcher is a very speedy boy.

"Words fail really to describe the speed with which Rusie sent the ball. He was a man of great width, great strength and the ability to put every ounce of his weight into the pitch. Coupled with this he had a set of dazzling curves which were manufactured with the same effort required to produce the speed. Some men can throw a straight ball with great force, but have to slow up in order to develop curves, but Rusie drove in a curved ball with all of his tremendous power.

"Facing Rusie to a timid man was like going into battle must be to an inexperienced soldier. The distance was shorter then. Rusie had the whole box to move around in instead of being chained to a slab, and he simply drove the ball at you with the force of a cannon. I have stood up to all the great pitchers of nearly twenty years, I have seen scores of them come and go, and none of them inspired the terror in a batsman's heart that was put there by the mighty Rusie. The ball was like a white streak tearing past you without time to balance yourself, figure the course of the ball or take aim at it. The fellows with the wide curve might fool you into reaching out and missing them, but you weren't reaching out at Rusie—you simply swung at a white streak as it hurled past, and if you took a full arm swing the ball was gone and in the catcher's hands before you had half finished the swinging motion.

"The convincing proof of Rusie's terrible speed was this: If any other pitcher hit a man the man swore, limped a moment and went to first. If Rusie hit a man the man retired from the game and sometimes went to the hospital. To be hit by Rusie was worse than to have an ordinary man smash you with a rock."—New York World.

He Didn't Know Them.

The late Rev. Horatio Stebbins of San Francisco was a man of large mind and noble powers, but more familiar with the world of intellectual and scholastic interests than with trivial and timely things. His household was blessed with a charming daughter who grew up tall and beautiful, commanding the admiration of all who saw her.

One day a visitor said to the good doctor: "Doctor, your daughter grows more charming day by day. Why, she's a regular Gibson girl."

"Ah, thank you, thank you," replied the doctor in his best manner. When the visitor had gone, turning to his wife the doctor asked, "My dear, who are the Gibsons?"—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Change For the Better.

The nine-year-old boy of a Baltimore family who is compelled by his parents to practice daily upon the piano may not be a clever performer, but he has a pretty shrewd notion of the worth of an instrument, as well as a rather mature wit, as is evidenced by an incident in the household not long since.

His father upon returning home from a week's absence heard the lad plugging away at the piano.

"When did you learn that new piece, son?" asked the parent.

"It isn't a new piece, dad," answered the boy. "The piano has been tuned."—Lippincott's.

She Won.

He was a philosopher and a talker. She was a woman of action. They stood together on the bridge and watched a tug that was hauling a long line of barges up the river.

"Look there, my dear," said he. "Such is life. The tug is like the man, working and toiling, while the barges, like the women, are"—

His wife gave him no time to finish the sentence. "I know," she said. "The tug does all the blowing and the barges bear all the burden."

Not So Bad.

"What's the worst you can say about him?"

"He hasn't an honest hair in his head."

"Well, that's bad enough."

"Oh, not so bad as you think. I mean he wears a wig."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Dining Hint.

Fletcher says you should "hold your face down" when you are eating, so that your tongue will hang perpendicularly in your mouth. To do this most comfortably get down on your hands and knees when you eat, explains the Chicago Record-Herald.

Whenever one of the days above appointed falls on a holiday the Court will be held the day following.

CLAYTON I. MILLER,

Ten Doctors Said He Would Die

"In 1903 we wrote you regarding my husband, who was suffering from heart trouble. He was superannuated by the North Georgian Conference. Ten doctors at different times said he would die. You advised Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Restorative Nervine; we did as advised, and improvement was apparent from the very first. He recovered and the Conference in 1904 gave him a charge. He never felt better, although he has very heavy work and does a great deal of camp meeting work. I am so glad we took your advice and gave him the medicine, and feel that I ought to let you know of the wonderful good results from its use."

MRS. T. S. EDWARDS,
Milner, Ga.

This proves what Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy will do. Get a bottle from your druggist and take it according to directions. It does not matter whether your heart is merely weak, or you have organic trouble, if it does not benefit you take the empty bottle to your druggist and get your money back.

CORRESPONDENCE

The following extract from a letter written by Mr. W. J. Pentelow will be read with interest:

This is another of the many beautiful days that we are enjoying in this lovely clime, no rain yet with perpetual sunshine. Have just looked at the thermometer on our porch which indicates 80 degrees; too warm to work in the flower garden.

Last Sunday forenoon we left home for the city of Los Angeles. At 1 p. m. took a car for the aviation grounds, which are situated on quite a high hill, the top being broad and level and covering a large territory. They have the largest grand stand I have ever seen; it is an immense structure. A band was stationed in the center and half way down on either side you could not hear the music at all. They report 75,000 people in attendance. There were 12 or 15 machines on the grounds, each in its own shed or quarters, also the remnants of the machine in which Hoxie was killed the day before. They did some very fine flying around the grounds and across in every direction. No very high flying but showed splendid display of the control of the machines. Two of the Wright machines did some fine work. While standing still they started the machinery and within 55 feet of the starting point were in the air clear of the ground and after several miles circling around the grounds they would light in the identical spot from which they started. They did this several times to show how complete was the management of the machines. We enjoyed this exhibition very much indeed it being the first we had witnessed. Saturday the Los Angeles Times was delivered to all the cities in this immediate vicinity by an aeroplane. On returning to the city about 5 p. m. we took a car for Pasadena where we arrived about 6:30 at the home of the Petrie's where we visited during the evening; the next morning we journeyed down town to Colorado street where we viewed the parade, which was fine. A number of very expensive floats were in the procession using millions of beautiful flowers. In the afternoon we took a car for the field where the sports were taking place, chariot races, etc. On arriving at the grounds the grandstand was full to overflowing and all the available standing room so we remained but a short time and returned to the house. In the evening Rob took us down town in his auto to see the evening parade, a comic one, principally take-offs on the parade of the morning. Tuesday morning we came into Los Angeles, where we spent the balance of the day looking through the stores. One of the stores (Hambergas) is an immense structure which contains all there is of earth worth seeing. They have on the fifth floor, two eating places, one a tony place for the rich, the other for the common herd and the common one, which we patronized, was good enough for us; good, well-cooked wholesome food. On the same floor is a theatre where you can for 5 cents have a good seat and enjoy moving pictures and both vocal and instrumental music and light comedy. We returned home in the evening pretty tired.

Friday night of this week I go to Riverside to attend the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce and on the 6th of February we hold ours at the Hotel Del Rey.

EVENINGS AT HOME

I'm sitting in my easy chair before the fireside's cheerful glare. All modern comforts are at hand; electric lights and music canned; the triumph that great men have wrought are gathered in my cozy cot. The neighbor children gather round, to hear me drivel and expound about the good old times gone by, which I applaud—I wonder why? I wonder why old men are prone to view the present with a groan and talk of vanished years as though they were the smoothest goods below? The children listen while I tell of times when everything was well, when girls were angels, minus crowns, and men were saints in handmedowns, and life was one long round of joy, without a sorrow to annoy. And in my heart, I'm conscious that I'm simply talking through my hat. I'd hate to read by smoky lights, and sleep on ticks of straw at night, and go to bed at six o'clock, because no candles are in stock, and go out doors to get a drink, and find the cistern on the blink. We lived like horses in those days, and yet, much to my own amaze, I brag and brag, in prose and rhymes, about the good old vanished times. Walt Mason.

APPELLATE DIVISION DECIDES

Rochester, Jan. 12.—The Appellate division has handed down a decision, with an opinion by Justice McLennan, in which all the Justices concur, reversing, with $10 costs for disbursements, the decision of Justice Andrews whereby he vacated an injunction, granted by himself, restraining the Common Council of the city of Fulton from selling or offering for sale a certain franchise for the distribution of so-called Niagara power in the city of Fulton. The Appellate division has also granted the motion of the plaintiff that the injunction be replaced with $10 costs.

MOSES IS GOOD ENOUGH NAME FOR ANYBODY

New York, Jan. 19.—If "Moses" was good enough name for the man who inflicted the plagues upon Egypt, led the children of Israel out through the Red Sea and handed down the first code of laws, it is good enough for any New Yorker, at least that is the opinion of Justice Goff, who refused the application of Samuel Moses to change his name to Moss. Moses said his name subjected him to ridicule, which led the Justice to observe: "It is not the name a man bears that subjects him to ridicule so much as the conduct of the man himself."

Senator Beveridge not only has some very decided convictions, but also the courage of them.

OSWEGO COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

"Beat 1910," is the slogan of the officers and directors of the Oswego County Agricultural society which held its annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon last. The last Fair was the most successful one held in years, and Secretary Allen announces that 1911 will eclipse even that effort. The society is sound financially and is growing all the time. The next Fair will see more room for exhibits, the space being entirely too small last year to accommodate the exhibits wishing to come.

President Kingsbury appointed a committee to prepare resolutions of respect on the death of former members, W. M. Hinsdale, H. H. Dobson and Grove Dutton, all deceased since the last Fair.

The directors and officers elected were: President, C. I. Kingsbury; treasurer, V. W. Shattuck, Fulton; secretary, H. Putnam Allen, Fulton; vice presidents, Noah Merriam, Z. B. Austin, C. C. Wilcox, M. C. Hammond, E. L. Huntington, Byron Worden, Lawton Beardsley, C. E. Sackett, James L. Bracket, Edward B. Tice, Ezra B. Tucker, A. F. Morehouse, Ray Davis, M. F. Crahan and John Talmadge; directors for three years: C. H. Lockwood, W. H. Merriam, and L. B. Babcock; Privilege Committee, A. Gregg of Pennellville; delegates to State convention, C. I. Kingsbury, H. Putnam Allen, V. W. Shattuck and F. A. Moore.

FOUGHT IN THE TREES.

Curious Duel Between a Pair of Fire Eating Frenchmen.

In the swashbuckling days of the early part of the nineteenth century the dueling hero in France was the Marquis Merle de Sainte-Marie, whose affairs of honor were almost incessant. One of these is said to have been so ridiculous that it helped to set in motion the current of feeling that has since made dueling so much less honorable than it once was.

It appears that one day there called upon the marquis one Pierrot d'Issac, himself a famous duelist. Now, in French pierrot means sparrow and merle means blackbird.

D'Issac struck himself on the chest with emphatic dignity. "Marquis," said he, "I am a Bonapartist and you are a royalist. Moreover, I am the sparrow and you are the blackbird. It seems to me that there is one bird of us too many."

"I quite agree with you, monsieur," politely replied the marquis, "and my choice is pistols, and, as is appropriate for birds of our species, let us fight in the trees."

Pierrot d'Issac was agreeable to this unique suggestion, and as if it were not a sufficiently ridiculous thing that one man should challenge another because his name was Sparrow and the other Blackbird the duel was actually fought from trees. The seconds stood on the ground below.

At a given signal the pistols were fired, and there was a rustling among the leaves of one of the chestnut trees. Pierrot d'Issac came tumbling to the ground "like a ripe chestnut," as one of Sainte-Marie's seconds expressed it, whereupon Merle de Sainte-Marie in a facetious mood began to chirp triumphantly in imitation of the song of the blackbird. D'Issac waited till he had recovered from his wound and then challenged Sainte-Marie for the chirp.

This time there was nothing amusing about the encounter. It was fought with swords, and Sainte-Marie was badly wounded. The sparrow had avenged himself on the blackbird.—New York Herald.

FORBES' GREAT FEAT.

His Newspaper Story of the Last Days of the Commune.

One morning after the siege of Paris, when the city was believed in London to be still in the hands of the commune, Sir John Robinson, manager of the Daily News of London, reached his office to find the late Archibald Forbes lying on the floor asleep, his head on a postoffice directory, while the printers were hard at work on his manuscript, the story of "Paris in Flames," a most vivid description of the last days of the commune.

"Forbes had telegraphed from Dover announcing his coming," said Sir John Robinson, "the printers had been waiting, and thus the country heard of those terrible days for the first time.

"London was ablaze with excitement. Bouverie street was impassable through the newsboys shrieking for copies, and in parliament Mr. Gladstone was questioned that afternoon and could only say he hoped the story was exaggerated.

"When Forbes wakened from his slumber amid all this turmoil what a spectacle he was! His face was black with powder, his eyes red and inflamed, his clothes matted with clay and dust. He was a dreadful picture. He had been compelled to assist the communists in defending a triangular space upon which three detachments of the Versailles troops were firing and had actually to fight the citizens how to build a barricade."

By aid of dummy dispatches addressed to Lord Granville and the queen Forbes escaped from this threatening triangle and wrote all the way to England, being the solitary passenger on the mail boat.

Must Have Been a Storm Scene.

"As perhaps there may be some one who has not heard the story of the Dutch painter, I tell it," says Elihu Vedder in the Atlantic.

"A person calling on this painter heard a most infernal uproar in his studio. Things seemed to be falling and brass plates flying about, and there were loud shouts.

"The servant came to the door in a state of great anxiety and told the visitor at once that the master could not be disturbed.

"'I should think he couldn't be much more than he is,' said the visitor. 'But what under the sun is the matter?'

"'He is painting a sky.'"

A Student of the Drama.

It was at a performance of "Macbeth," and the three weird sisters had just made their first appearance and chanted their uncanny incantations when a handsomely dressed, intelligent looking woman in the third row turned to her escort and inquired, "What's the idea in having those witches?"—New York Press.

Deserved to Get It.

"I want to ask you for a bit of advice," said the insinuating man.

"What is it?"

"I want you to put yourself in my place and me in yours and tell me how you would go about it if you wanted to borrow $10 from me."—Exchange.

Rays and Raise.

"Sounds interesting. I wonder if my boss would emit a ten dollar raise of salary!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

COLD STORAGE REGULATION

Chicago Packers Think Uniform Action or Federal Legislation Preferable to Single State Laws.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Chicago packers say that if cold storage regulation as advocated by Governor Woodrow Wilson is considered desirable, concerted and uniform action by all States or general Federal legislation is preferable to isolated action by single States.

J. Ogden Armour says State legislation would hurt all concerned in that particular State. He does not believe that the industry needs regulation and insists that the system makes for low rather than for high prices.

E. J. Cudahy says: "Probably only three per cent. of our entire output is kept in cold storage for any length of time. Any packing house or commission merchant, who keeps his wares in cold storage for the length of time that Governor Wilson is quoted as having stated as not uncommon, is heading for the bankruptcy courts. It does not pay to carry stocks for more than six or eight months."

"HOBBLE SKIRTS" NOT WORN BY ANGELS

Watertown, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Hereafter time in, these parts will be reckoned from the day the Rev. Father Burns preached his famous "hobble skirt" sermon. To-day orthodox Watertown is divided into two hostile factions. The fair sex declares it was "just horrible." Mere man, grins and says it was "some sermon."

The Holy Family church was crowded Sunday when Father Burns arose to speak, though no one had an inkling of what was coming. Father Burns started off on marriages, divorces, temperance and similar sober topics. Near the end of the discourse he leaned over the pulpit and said solemnly "and you, young men, don't think that every young woman is an angel, for remember no one ever saw an angel in a hobble skirt and a mushroom hat."

EGGS AND BUTTER

The Parish Mirror says: "The merchants here are paying twenty five cents per dozen for eggs and twenty five cents per pound for butter."

BARNES MADE CHAIRMAN OF STATE COMMITTEE

New York, Jan. 21.—At an executive session of the New York Republican State committee this afternoon, William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, was elected chairman to succeed Ezra P. Prentice, who recently resigned. Barnes, recognized leader of the "Old Guard" received 25 out of 37 votes. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., and Seth Heacock of Herkimer were also voted for.

The progressives in the committee tried to prevent the election of a chairman at this time but the "Old Guard" was in complete control and carried things to suit itself. The election came after a session of two and a half hours during which there were many sharp tilts between the two factions. Lloyd Griscom of this city, led the fight for the progressives.

Lloyd Griscom moved to make the election of Barnes unanimous. This was done. In accepting his new position Mr. Barnes said:

"The strength of the Republican party has always been its courage. It opposed the extension of slavery, fought disunion, greenbackism, free trade and free silver. It never sought the easiest way or shirked its responsibilities.

"It never advocated any political frenzy because of its popularity. It is the party of progress and cannot become the apostle of discontent. The industrial and political welfare of the country depend upon orderly procedure under the American constitution.

"That document has not yet failed to meet the requirements of our great increase in population and the multifarious trades, industries and occupations."

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1911.

DEATHS

Kenneth Merwin, aged 11 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Gifford, died at the home in Seventh street on Friday. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon.

In Syracuse, January 18, 1911, Carrie M. Mason, wife of Stillman W. Mason, aged 79 years. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, Frank L. Mason, Syracuse, a brother, Judson Prosser, of Newark, N. J., a sister, Mrs. W. E. Fuller of this city. The funeral was held at the home of F. L. Mason, No. 313 East Calvin street, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. Dumly of the First Baptist church officiating.

Joseph LaBeef died at his home in Seventh street on Tuesday from tubercular trouble from which he had long suffered. The Presbyterian Men's Bible class had planned to send the deceased to Denver, Col., in search of health upon learning of his condition, but the disease was too far advanced to permit of his undertaking the trip. The immediate survivors are three sons, Rufus, Norman and Earl, and one daughter, Rhoda, of this city and another daughter, Mrs. Methott of Oswego.

Robert R. Rust, aged 24, passed to rest on Sunday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimore Rust, in Buffalo street, after a life long period of ill health and physical condition which, however, never seemed to check his ambition nor to daunt his courage. He suffered greatly from spinal trouble and heart disease but he always presented a cheery face to the world and was a favorite with all to whom he was known. For several years past he had been employed in the Farley Jewelry store as watchmaker and repair man, and he was faithful to duty and to his employers interests. He went to his home at the close of business on Xmas eve, never to leave it again until he leaves it in his casket this Wednesday afternoon for burial in Mt. Adnah. The services will be held at 2:30 o'clock, the Rev. J. G. York officiating. The immediate survivors are the parents and one brother, Fred.

FULTON'S COMPLETE CENSUS

The Times on Tuesday afternoon received from E. Durand, of Washington, D. C., director of the thirteenth Federal census, a telegram announcing the total population of Fulton's six wards as follows:

First ward, 1646.
Second ward, 2501.
Third ward, 1562.
Fourth Ward, 1143.
Fifth ward, 1543.
Sixth ward, 1785.

The report gives Fulton a total population of 10,480.

LIBRARY REPORT

The record of circulation of books at the Public Library for the second quarter of the year is as follows:

October	2125
November	2275
December	2026
Total	6426

The number of books lent during the first quarter was 5,374, making a total of 11,800 for the first half of the year; 439 books were used in the library during this same period.

Readers and users of the reference library since July 1st, 4,299; new borrowers registered, 133; new books added, 177, of which 42 were gifts contributed by Mrs. A. H. Grant, Mrs. W. J. Watson, Mr. C. L. Dines, Hon. A. S. Roe, Rev. C L Peck, Mr. C. H. David.

TAMMANY MAY DROP SHEEHAN

Senatorial Situation Still Deadlocked—Compromise Candidate May Be Selected

Albany, Jan. 24.—The daily ballot for United States senator showed no change in the strength of th eleading candidates, but the air to night teemed with rumors.

In the absence of surface developments underground news was exceptionally plentiful. None of these could be traced to a reliable source and some to no source at all.

The most persistent report was that the Tammany leaders had let Mr. Sheehan know that they would stand by him only until Friday, and that if did not gain the necessary twelve or thirteen votes on the next two ballots they would begin to look for another candidate. Some of Mr. Sheehan's friends said this was too ridiculous to discuss.

There was some alarm in the "insurgent camp" when it became known that Assemblyman Friedman of New York, one of their number, had conferred with Mr. Sheehan. Mr. Sheehan said that he had sent for Mr. Friedman, but would not say what they had discussed. Mr. Friedman insisted that his attitude was unchanged.

Mr. Sheehan received 85 votes on the sixth ballot to day, thirteen less than the number required for election.

GAVE TALK ON ITALY

The lecture on Italy, given in the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Thursday evening by Hon. N. N. Stranahan, was most interesting and instructive to the 500 present. Rev. J. L. Lindsman introduced the distinguished speaker, who was presented to the Pope during his sojourn abroad last year.

Mr. Stranahan illustrated his lecture with stereopticon views taken by himself during his trip, and he spoke principally on his interview with the Pope and on the beautiful church edifices with which Italy abounds. The views of the cathedrals, and other pictures which he presented brought vividly before his hearers the sights and scenes in that historic country. Mr. Stranahan spoke for two hours and he held the close attention of his audience throughout.

Prior to the address, vocal selections by Miss Franc LaLonde, who was accompanied by her sister, Miss Bertha LaLonde, and by Messrs. A. E. Kraus and Lawrence Ranger, were enjoyed.

GROWING SAFE AND SANE

New York, Jan. 23.—There appears to be an epidemic of lowering the big salaries of the industrial and financial world these days. The Steel trust showed its symptoms last week, and now comes further evidence in the Equitable Life Assurance society's intention to pay its president $50,000 instead of $80,000.

The death of Paul Morton, president of the Equitable, has furnished opportunity for reduction. It was learned to day that the trustees probably would insist on the lower salary when electing his successor on the theory that $50,000 would be sufficient to command the services of the ablest man in the life insurance business. Those who took this view pointed to the fact that C. A. Peabody, president of the Mutual Insurance company, was drawing only $50,000 a year.

SURROGATE'S COURT

By the will of Malinda Hitchcock, late of Volney, filed Tuesday, the Volney M. E. church gets $400, and the interest on $400 is given toward "preaching the Gospel" at Hawks school house, Volney. If preaching is discontinued there, the $400 goes to the Freedmen's Aid Society. Mrs. Hitchcock left $1,000 real and $6,000 personal property.

Letters on the estate of Alfred Morgan, Schroeppel, went to his wife, Sarah, who gets his entire estate, $1,200 real and $400 personal property.

Letters were also issued on the estate of Flora D. Keller, Fulton, who left $1,500 real, and Mary P. VanBuren, Volney, who left $4,000 real and $32.67 personal.

Surrogate Miller handed down a decision in the matter of the claim of William Dexter against the estate of William Rivett, Fulton, for $28 for nursing. He holds that the claim is outlawed, in view of the fact that it was not referred to him until six months after it had been rejected by the executor.

The contest in the estate of Richard Frazier, instituted by nephews and nieces, was abandoned Monday afternoon and letters issued to his widow, Anna Frazier.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

MARRIED

The marriage of Miss Maude Sheldon and Mr. Howard Ives was solemnized on Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bartlett in Mount Pleasant.

The marriage of Mr. Bert Reynolds and Miss Alice Lawton took place on Sunday afternoon at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reynolds, the Rev. C. L. Peck officiating. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds of Syracuse. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds left on a bridal trip after the ceremony and upon their return to this city they will make their home at No. 409 Worth street.

Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker in Syracuse, Mrs. May M. Nodyne and Mr. Lewis E. Garrett were united in marriage. Mr. Garrett is the senior member of the livery firm of Garrett Brothers, this city, and Mrs. Garrett is the widow of the late Dr. E. H. Nodyne who was killed by a trolley last April. Both are well known in this city where they have many friends. After a bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Garrett will be "at home" to their friends in the furnished flat of Mrs. F. K. Jones's in South First street.

Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the parochial residence of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Mr. Harry E. Partrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Partrick, was united in marriage with Miss Grace Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burns, the Rev. J. L. Lindsman officating. The bride was becomingly gowned in a tailor made suit of blue cloth and she was attended by Miss Blanche Humphrey as bridesmaid. The groomsman was Mr. Ray Westover. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception to the immediate relatives of the young couple was held at the home of the bride, and later Mr. and Mrs. Partrick left for a bridal trip to Boston, Mass. Mr. Partrick is night telegraph operator at the New York Central station and is deservedly popular with a large circle of friends in the city of his nativity and where he has always resided. Mrs. Partrick is also well known and has many friends in this city. The Times extends congratulations to the young couple, who will make their future home in this city.

Minetto, Jan. 9.—A very pretty wedding occurred last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loran Littlefield when their daughter Hattie Duryea became the bride of Harry D. Candee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. C. Miller and one hundred relatives of the couple were present. The bride wore a gown of blue silk with pearl trimmings; carried a boquet of white roses and was attended by Miss Goldie Kellogg of Minetto as bridesmaid. The latter was attired in old rose silk and carried white roses. The groomsman was Mr. George Lounsley of Oswego, cousin of the groom. Little Miss Ruth Littlefield, sister of the bride, was ring bearer Miss Anna Madry played the wedding march. Following the ceremony refreshments were served. The dining room was decorated in green and white. Mr. and Mrs. Candee departed on an evening train for a honeymoon trip to Syracuse and Auburn. Among the wedding gifts was a house and lot from the bride's aunt, Mrs. Case, and $65 in cash. Mr. and Mrs. Candee will be at home in East Minetto after February 1. The Fulton guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Candee, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Carver, Misses May and Hattie Parmalee, Mr. and Mrs. Chesbro, Mr. and Mrs. George Pelton and Glen Chesbro.

Men Who Are Reckless In Handling High Explosives.

STORIES BY HUDSON MAXIM.

The Accident by Which the Inventor's Left Hand Was Blown Off—John Bender's Contempt For Dynamite—Mixing Fire and Nitroglycerin.

"It is practically impossible," writes Hudson Maxim in Adventure, "to make the ordinary laboring man appreciate the necessity of care in the safe handling of explosives, and the life of the careful man is always endangered by the actions of the careless one.

"After I had sold the works at Maxim and had invented motorite I needed a place in which to make the material and hired a branch of the works there for that purpose. It was winter. My wife had accompanied me as a precautionary measure. She was sitting in the laboratory to keep warm, near a big barrel stove charged with bituminous coal.

"On entering the laboratory for something my wife asked me what was in those two tin pails sitting near the stove. She said that she had a suspicion it might be nitroglycerin, and she informed me that one of my men had just been in stirring the fire and that the sparks flew out in all directions, some of them lighting in the buckets to be quenched on top of the oily liquid.

"'Horrors!' I said. 'It is nitroglycerin!'

"I called the man who had placed it there and told him to take it away. As it was necessary to keep the material from freezing he took it into the boiler house near by. A little later on, going into the boiler house, I saw one of the men stirring the fire while the other was standing with his coattails outstretched in either hand, forming a shield to keep the sparks from flying into the nitroglycerin.

"In the manufacture of high explosives and in experimenting with them a little absentmindedness, a very slight lack of exact caution, a seemingly insignificant inadvertence for a moment, may cost one a limb or his life. The accident that cost me my left hand is a case in point.

"On the day preceding that accident I had had a gold cap put on a tooth. In consequence the tooth ached throughout the night and kept me awake a greater part of the time. In the morning I rose early and went down to my factory at Maxim, N. J. In order to test the dryness of some fulminate compound I took a little piece of it, about the size of an English penny, broke off a small particle, placed it on a stand outside the laboratory and lighting a match, touched it off.

"Owing to my loss of sleep the night before my mind was not so alert as usual, and I forgot to lay aside the remaining piece of fulminate compound, but instead held it in my left hand. A spark from the ignited piece of fulminate compound entered my left hand between my fingers, igniting the piece there, with the result that my hand was blown off to the wrist.

"Once when entering my storage magazine at Maxim, in which were several carloads of dynamite along with 37,000 pounds of nitroglycerin, I saw John Bender, one of my employees, calmly but emphatically opening a case of dynamite with a hammer and a chisel. I promptly discharged him.

"Not long afterward the innkeeper at Farmingdale called on me to buy some dynamite, and said he had engaged Bender to blow the stumps out of his meadow lot. I told him Bender was courting death for himself and everybody around when handling dynamite, but Boniface still wanted Bender to do the work.

"'Well,' said I, 'the dynamite you want is 16 cents a pound, but if John Bender does not succeed in blowing himself up and killing himself with the dynamite you can have it for nothing. On the other hand, if he does blow himself up you must pay for the dynamite.'

"A few days later there was some hitch in Bender's exceptional luck. A particularly refractory old stump had resisted a couple of Bender's dynamic attacks. The failure to dislodge the stump Bender took as a personal affront because it reflected upon his skill as a stump blaster.

"'Next time,' said he, 'something is going to happen.' He placed about twenty pounds of dynamite under the deep rooted veteran, touched it off, and several things happened in very quick succession. The huge stump let go its hold on earth and proceeded to hunt Bender.

"It was a level race, but the stump won. Striking Bender on the north quarter, it stove in four ribs, dislocated several joints and damaged him in several other respects and particulars. Boniface came to settle for the dynamite.

"'Sixteen cents a pound,' I said. 'Bender hasn't a chance in a hundred. Wait till the doctors are through with him.'

"'What do you say to a compromise,' suggested Boniface, 'of 8 cents a pound? For, really, I do not believe that Bender is more than half dead.' And the account was settled on that basis."

Kind words are the brightest of home dowers. They make a paradise of the humblest home.

THE GOLD WAS THERE.

But Mark Twain Missed It by Just One Pail of Water.

With Steve Gillis, a printer of whom he was fond, Mark Twain went up into Calaveras county to a cabin on Jackass hill, where Steve's brother Jim, a lovable, picturesque character (the "Truthful James" of Bret Harte), owned mining claims. Mark decided to spend his vacation in pocket mining and soon added that science to his store of knowledge. It was a halcyon, happy three months that he lingered there. One day with Jim Gillis he was following the specks of gold that led to a pocket somewhere up the hill when a chill, dreary rain set in. Jim was washing and Clemens was carrying water. The "color" became better and better as they ascended, and Gillis, possessed with the mining passion, would have gone on regardless of the rain. Clemens, however, protested and declared that each pail of water was his last. Finally he said in his deliberate, drawling fashion:

"Jim, I won't carry any more water. This work is too disagreeable. Let's go to the house and wait till it clears up."

Gillis had just taken out a pan of earth.

"Bring one more pail, Sam," he pleaded.

"I won't do it, Jim! Not a drop! Not if I knew there was a million dollars in that pan!"

They left the pan standing there and went over to Angel's camp, which was nearer than their own cabin. The rain kept on, and they sat around the grocery and barroom smoking and telling stories to pass the time.

Meanwhile the rain had washed away the top of the pan of earth left standing on the slope of Jackass hill and exposed a handful of nuggets—pure gold. Two strangers had come along and, observing it, had sat down to wait until the thirty day claim notice posted by Jim Gillis should expire. They did not mind the rain—not with that gold in sight—and the minute the thirty days were up they followed the lead a few pans farther and took out $20,000 in all. It was a good pocket. Mark Twain missed it by one pail of water.—Chicago Post.

INSURANCE MAPS.

Handy Guides For Underwriters In Fixing Premium Rates.

Many persons must have noticed when making application for fire insurance that it is the practice of the underwriter to examine certain maps before he will fix the rate of premium or accept a risk on the property offered. His lithographic surveys marked off in diagrams of red and yellow and other colors are always in evidence, sometimes bound securely in dozens of large volumes, on other occasions laid conveniently in piles of loose sheets for handy reference.

Few persons realize, however, that these maps contain all the information which the underwriter desires to know about the building he is asked to insure and that in most instances more matters are explained to him by a single glance than the applicant could make even though he be the owner of the property.

As a matter of fact the details set forth are most explicit. The mapmaker has managed by colors, characters and signs to give a full description of the construction, equipment and occupation of the building, everything which over fifty years of this sort of surveying has proved to be of any possible interest to the insurance man. It is so complete, for instance, that an agent in New York city can readily form a good idea of the character of a risk situated in some town in Missouri or California, or, vice versa, agents in towns in these western states can likewise tell the character of a risk in New York city.—Cassier's Magazine.

Poising on Nothing.

Away up in the air, far beyond the mountain tops, the great condors will hang poised as motionless as if perched on solid rock. True, their wings are outstretched, but even through glasses not the slightest motion is perceptible. They remain in this position for many minutes, sometimes for an hour, making a careful scrutiny of everything below them in their search for prey. Then, with a slight tilting of the wings, they flap slowly away, or, having found what they were seeking, dart like a bullet toward it. The eagle, hawk and other species have this same faculty of poising apparently on nothing.

Banked Rails.

In rounding a curve the tendency of the weight of a train is invariably to shift to the outside wheels. To counteract this tendency the outer rail of a curve is raised on a higher level than the inside, the elevation being in an exact proportion to the sharpness of the curve as determined by the principles of engineering. If both rails of a curved track were of exactly the same elevation a train would not dare round it at high speed.

Tender Hearted Youths.

Enthusiastic Small Boy (helping fat man, worse for liquor)—Thanks, missus, but jest hang around a minute and watch th' fun when he falls ag'in.—New York Times.

PATROLMAN DYER BRAVE

Early on Sunday morning Mrs. S. P. Cole and her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Lamphere were awakened by sounds they located as coming from the I. Shay store, which is closed pending bankruptcy proceedings. Suspecting burglars were at work Mrs. Cole went to the telephone and called up police headquarters. Patrolmen Edward Dyer and Daniel Hartigan responded to the call and they too were convinced that burglars were at work.

Patrolman Dyer hastened to secure the key to the store from Attorney A. L. Rice, Patrolman Hartigan guarded the rear of the store and Mrs. Cole watched the front to give the alarm if the men should attempt escape from that direction. At the rear of the store a 3-inch pipe about 25-feet long had been braced from the ground against one of the Shay store windows and it was by this method that the men had made an entrance into the clothing store.

As soon as Patrolman Dyer could secure the key he unlocked the front door, called to the burglars to throw up their hands, and sent a bullet scudding along the floor toward them to prove that he meant business. The shot subdued the men, who were heavily armed, and they emerged from the darkness that surrounded them into the light from Mr. Dyers flash light with hands in the air. Attorney Rice manipulated the flash light while Patrolman Dyer fastened the corporation bracelets upon the pair who proved to be Sicilians and employes of the McDermott Contracting company.

A survey of the men and the store showed that the stock had been well looked over and that one man had selected a coat from the stock and donned it. Nine cheap collar buttons were found in one of their pockets. In all probability each would have plentifully supplied himself with what ever he needed that the store contained and have been well away with the goods before the burglary was discovery but for the timely attention of Mrs. Cole. The men have been held in $1,000 each to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The fact that both men were armed when apprehended shows that the patrolmen run an extra hazzardous risk when ever they attempt to make an arrest of a foreigner. It would undoubtedly be a paying policy in the end to frequently round up our strange foreign residents and search them, heavily fining them for violating the ordinance relative to carrying concealed weapons.

UNSEXED

[Note.—Seattle women must take the following oath, or they cannot register as voters: "I do solemnly swear that I am a male person over twenty years; eleven months and ten days of age."]

Pause ladies, in your vote career!
Pause, pause and lend a listening ear—
If you will swear that you are male,
Nobody will, of course, assail
Your soemn oath, and thus if you
Are males you can't be ladies, too:
And when it may be said by men
A woman is no lady, then,
By heck, it's time she made a note
Of what it means to cast a vote.

TO LEASE FOSTER THEATRE

It is rumored that Mr. Irving Galusha, who with Mr. W. L. Woodbury conduct Dreamland and The Theatorium, is negotiating for the lease of the Foster theatre thus completing the chain of play houses in the city.

PULLMAN RATES TO BE CUT

Owing to the activity of the Interstate Commerce Commission, urged on by a patient and long suffering public, there will be a difference in the rates for upper and lower Pullman births after February 1. Which you have will now be depended upon what you please to pay.

The rate for the lower births from any point will be unchanged, but the rate for the upper births will be less.

The little points of this nature do not make travelling public take kindly to the talk of abolishing the Commissions sitting in judgment on situations of this character.

FARLEY TO SUCCEED CLEMENTS

Albany, Jan. 23.—Gov. Dix today sent to the Senate the nomination of W. W. Farley of Binghamton, as State Excise Commissioner to succeed Maynard Clement whose term expires April 1. Farley is the Democratic State Committeman from the Broome-Delaware district. The office pays $7,000 a year.

It may be better to be right than to be speaker, but it must be bully to be right and Speaker too.

GLIMPSES OF EUROPE

The lecture given last evening in the assembly room in the Library by the Hon. N. N. Stranahan, was attended by an audience which taxed the seating capacity of the hall. Mr. Stranahan was at his best on this occasion, and his every description was filled with interest and information for his listeners. There was nothing dry or hackneyed about the lecture, originality of thought and expression abounding. Mr. Stranahan viewed Europe leisurely and by so doing he gathered to himself a wealth of facts not discernable to the hurried traveller. His love for art and history found satisfaction in the scenes and he presented them to his listeners in a manner to engage their rapt attention and to make lasting impression upon them.

The stereopticon views were made from pictures taken by Mr. Stranahan and they revealed many rare glimpses of beauty and interest.

Frank Campbell, clerk in the water department, after suffering a relapse from typhoid fever several weeks ago, does not convalesce as rapidly as his many friends would wish.

City Clerk MacNamara has already commenced the remodeling of his block in First street in which is located the American Express office, the Western Union telegraph office and W. P. Hillick. Work of cementing and improving the basement is well under way and as soon as the present occupants find other quarters or surrender their leases on March 1, the work of remodelling the two floors will be rapidly pushed. Mr. MacNamara proposes to install a French plate front, two stories, and to make the block into one of the finest and most desirable stores in the city. The location is ideal and the store will certainly be an addition to that section of the city when completed.

Great Reduction in Prices

Not wishing to lay off any of my workmen at this time of the year, I will say to the public that I have about 4 tons of horse shoes ready to nail on and from now on until the middle of March I will do all kinds of blacksmithing, horse shoeing, wagon and sleigh repairs at 20 per cent. on a dollar less than at the present prices. Any work done at my shop will be done right.

PLEASANT POINT CLUB OFFICER

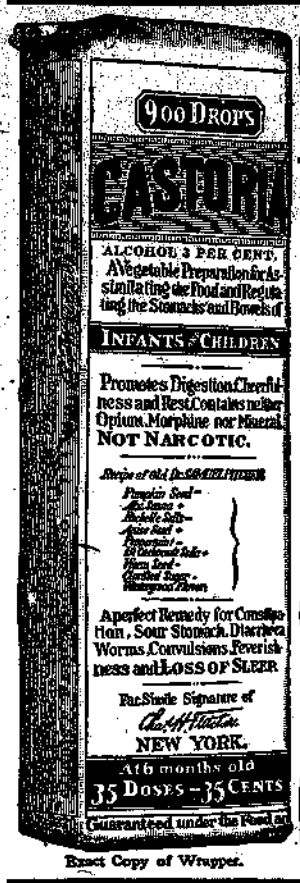
The annual meeting of the Pleasant Point Club was held in Oswego on Wednesday at which time reports for the past year were presented and plans formulated for the coming year. The club is in a prosperous condition, 1910 having been the most flourishing in its existence, and the belief was expressed that the coming season would see the club house even more popular than before.

In the early Spring a 12-foot veranda will be built around the hotel, the present one being but 7-foot. The lighting plant installed last year is in first class condition and the garage was libarally patronized. This year a mile of roadway will be built according to State road specifications, to lead from the club house to the State road leading to the station. All New York Central trains will stop at Pleasant Point and the railroad company will erect a shelter at the stop to care for passengers.

The following directors and officers were elected at the meeting for the ensuing year: C. E. Hodges, Syracuse; O. J. Coughlin, Syracuse; B. W. Bennett, Thomas Hunter, J. H. Howe, Fulton; D. D. Long, Robert Jones, L. W. Mott, O. S. Osterhout, Oswego.

The officers for the ensuing year are: President, O. S. Osterhout; vice president, Thomas Hunter; secretary and treasurer, A. F. McCarthy.

FEVER SORES



Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.

Manicuring Done

The work will be well done, either at No. 101 South Fourth street, or an appointment may be made to have it done at your own home. Phone 3421.

A Tenant For Life.

"Have you boarded long at this house?" inquired the new boarder of the sour, dejected man sitting next to him.

"About ten years."

"I don't see how you can stand it. Why haven't you left long ago?"

"No other place to go," said the other dismally. "The landlady's my wife."

The Family Scrap Book.

Mrs. Sauers (to Willy as minister calls to see Mr. Sauers)—Willy, is your father in? Willy—Yes; he's upstairs looking over your scrap book. Mrs. Sauers (puzzled)—You mean my family account book? Willy—Well, it's all the same. He and you always have a scrap every time he goes over it.

"Grooge is a very grouchy sort of man, isn't he?"

"Yes. Won't even ride in anything but a sulky."—Baltimore American.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

Collar as a Verb.

The verb "collar" has long been used transitively, meaning to "seize or take hold of a person by the collar; more loosely, to capture." The verb was thus employed early in the seventeenth century. Steele in the Guardian, No. 84, wrote, "If you advised him not to collar any man." Other instances are Gentleman's Magazine, 1762, "His lordship collared the footman who threw it," and Marryat's sentence in "Peter Simple," "He was collared by two French soldiers."

Oswego Times: It appears from the report brought home from Albany by Superintendent Ormsby that the dam site is not yet settled. The English language is so pliable and accommodating that there is nothing profane in saying that we are sorry to note this hitch in the dam business. But then, the voters of this city helped bring about a change in the State administration of these dam affairs and so they have no kick coming if the whole dam project is held up.

The night school being held in Phillips street school is well attended and interest seems intense on the part of the 101 students, six of whom are Americans, one Greek, several Italians and the majority are Poles, the interest in the school evidently being urged by the Polish church leaders. The unexpectedly large attendance has necessitated the employing of an additional teacher, Miss Rose M. Libbey being engaged in the work in conjunction with Principle L. W. Cole of the Phillips street school; Miss Mollie G. Cavanaugh and Miss Marie Benson.

The special meetings at the First Methodist church are continuing this week and there is a marked growth of interest with some definite and very gratifying results. The pastor is assisted two evenings this week, the speaker last evening being the Rev. Charles E. Miller of Rome, superintendent of Ontario District, and this evening the Rev. R. Eurog Jones of Mt. Pleasant will preach. The new song book, "Sunday School Praises", is proving usually popular and profitable, and the music each evening is an enjoyable feature All people are welcome to participate.

The officers of St. Joseph's Council, Knights of Columbus, were installed on Tuesday evening as follows: Grand knight, Maurice M. Conley; deputy grand knight, L. Will Branche; chancellor, the Rev. D. J. Dooling; financial secretary, George White; recording secretary, John Martin; treasurer, James Campbell; warden, Fred Miller; advocate, Harry O'Brian; inside guid, Fa. Schneider; outside guard, B. I. Crahan; trustee, John Donovan. At the conclusion of the work a dancing reception was held which was enjoyed by about sixty couples. The entertainment committee was composed of Messrs. George McDonald, B. J. O'Grady, James Campbell and Fred Schneider.

The twentieth anniversary of the lower Oswego Falls Grange, No. 719, was observed at their regular meeting on Saturday evening. About two hundred persons were present and an excellent program was given by the Lecturer, Mrs. G. Frank Hallock, after which a sumptuous supper was served, consisting of oysters, chicken pie, sliced ham and other things too numerous to mention. The secretary, Thomas Coles, gave an interesting history and reminiscences of the Lower Oswego Falls Grange, prepared by himself and wife. The retiring Master, William Hubbard, also read a paper giving some facts of interest relative to the first organization of the order. The new Master, James McCoy, and Overseer Fred Voglegaang occupied their respective chairs. Five of the charter members were present and made some remarks, after which several recitations and songs were rendered. There are at present two hundred and ninety-two members of the Lower Oswego Falls Grange. It has been considered the banner Grange until recently Hannibal Grange having eclipsed it upon passing the three hundred mark.

REDUCED FARE TO ITHACA

The New York State College of Agriculture has just been notified by the Secretary of the Trunk line Association that a reduced rate of 1½ cents a mile within a radius of 150 miles of Ithaca has been granted for Farmers' Week and that tickets are good from February 14th to 25th inclusive. This is a marked reduction and should command attention from all persons considering the possibility of attendance at Farmers' Week at Ithaca.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE STATE

Among the Fulton claims filed against the State for damages on account of the barge canal construction are the following:

Lucy A. Nelson, $34,000.
William White, $3,012.
George G. Chauncey, $155,000.
Samuel N. Hoyt, $11,000.
Fred A. Gage, two pieces, $203,034 and $209,735.
Cora B. Chauncey, $3,000.
Frank B. Dilts and B. W. Bennett, $51,000.
Volney Paper Company, $573,450.
Hunter Arms Company, $156,655.
Charles W. Allen, $51,630.
David E. Mason, $80,503.
C. C. Benedict et al., $80,503.
Victoria Paper Mills Company, $247,303.
Alfred M. Seymour et al., $307,303.
George E. True et al., $60,103.
G. J. Emery Company, $40,303.

Other claims for $1,000 and $2,000 are made by Edwin E. Hart, Bessie S. Dilts-Bennett, Oliver C. Breed and Charles R. Lee, executor.

At Oswego, the Oswego Canal company, has two claims, one of $10,000 and the other $40,000.

Little work has been done at other points along the Oswego river. In some cases where the claims were small they have been settled.

MORE LAND AT PINE PLAINS CAMP

Watertown, Jan. 20.—It was announced here to day that in a short time action would be taken to increase the present size of the Government Reservation at the Pine Plains Camp. The original appropriation made by Congress for acquiring lands for a practice camp was $75,000. Of this amout about $65,000 was expended in acquiring the present lands. This leaves a balance on hand of $10,000.

The present reservation is very irregular and it is the intention to purchase enough land to straighten out the boundaries so that the entire camp will be compact and its boundaries easily followed. With this idea in view several pieces of land which now cut out into the camp will be acquired.

At the time of the original purchase the price per acre averaged $6.66 and about 9,500 acres of land was obtained.

Congressman C. L. Knapp was instrumental in securing the $75,000 appropriation for the reservation.

COUNTY TREASURER REFUSES ORDERS

An interesting question has been raised within the past few days as to whether the county orders, signed by Chairman Sweetland of the Board of Supervisors with a rubber stamp, are valid. County Treasurer Kandt has declined to accept a number of these orders from the City Chamberlain's office. He recently referred th question to the State Comptroller and to the United States Fidelity and Casualty company of Maryland. Comptroller Sohmer holds that if orders issued by the board must be signed by the chairman that the signature must be written and orders signed with a rubber stamp are not valid. Superintendent Marshall of the Bonding company holds that the County Treasurer would be personally liable in case the order had been fraudulently issued. Mr. Kandt's bond was furnished by this company.

The fact that hundreds of orders have been signed with the rubber stamp makes the matter of unusual interest. These orders have been distributed to every part of the County.

County Treasurer Kandt said that he was forced to take this action to protect himself.—Oswego Times.

ESCAPED WITH HIS LIFE

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes, H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything, I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in George town, S. C., for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure." STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

At the meeting of the State Bar Association, held in Syracuse last week, the following appointments were made for the member of committees for the Fifth Judicial district: Executive, Virgil K. Kellogg, Charles L. Stone and D. P. Morehouse; Law Reform, G. H. Cobb, Charles T. Titus and Louis L. Walters; Admissions, Albert P. Fowler, Thomas S. Jones, Willard B. VanAllen and Charles N. Bulger; Grievances, William P. Goodelle, E. C. Emerson, J. P. Lynch; Candidates for Judicial Office, Virgil K. Kellogg, William P. Goodelle, W. C. Prescott; Legal, Robert Lansing.

A paper was read by Adelbert Moot, of Buffalo, on "How Can We Improve Our Courts," and this showed by tables the days worked by seventy four different judges of the Supreme Court in the State.

In this list Justice William S. Andrews, of Syracuse stands secon with 274 days in court to his credit. The only one who devoted more days to his duties was Justice G. A. Benton, of the Seventh district.

Others who served more than 200 days were Justice Cuthbert W. Pond, of the Eighth; A. E. Sutherland, of the Seventh, and Joseph Morchauser, of the Ninth district. Other Justices in this, the Fifth district, are credited with the following: P. C. J. DeAngelis, 52; Irving R. Devendorf, 54; W. M. Rogers, 74; William E. Scripture, 100.

Eighteen in New York State are credited with less than 100 days each, mostly in New York and Kings counties. With 50 days of faithful work, Mr. Moot believed, all congestion of calendars would be relieved.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ORIGIN OF AN EXPRESSION.

"If This Court Knows Herself, and She Thinks She Do."

We frequently bear the expression, "If the court knows itself, and it thinks it does," but few persons are aware of the origin thereof.

The individual who gave birth to it was a Pike county Missourian named Blackburn, who flourished in the west many years ago. Blackburn ran away from home when he was a mere boy and sought his fortune in the west, where he grew to manhood as an Indian fighter, hunter, trapper and mountain guide. Although not an educated man, he was possessed of great acumen, to which was united a keen wit. When gold was discovered in California, Blackburn was one of the first to proceed thither. The miners as a sort of joke elected him alcalde, an office that combined the duties of mayor and justice of the peace. The first case coming before the new alcalde was that of a gambler who while drunk had ridden his horse over a young Mexican woman. She was seriously injured.

The trial took place in the largest cabin in the neighborhood. The gambler, who was rich, had retained able counsel to defend him. Alcade Blackburn called the young woman to the witness stand. She told a straightforward, honest story. When she had finished the alcalde peremptorily ended the trial. The attorney for the defendant protested vigorously, but the alcalde disposed of his protest thus: "If this court knows herself, and she thinks she do, I fine you $500 dumages and assess upon you the cost of puttin' this young woman in good condition."

When asked what he meant by "good condition" the alcalde replied that the gambler must pay the doctor's bills and all other costs of the young woman's sickness.—Exchange.

MOZART'S UNTIMELY END.

Sad Finish of the Career of the Great Musical Genius.

Late hours, unwearied vigils, everlasting labor, the effects of chills, damp and exposure, in the hard life he led—a life alternating between brilliant passages and the most loathsome drudgery, between rosy anticipations of fortune and inevitable and eternal disappointments—had their effects on the vigorous constitution of Mozart. His lamp of life burnt out untimely. While still a young man—only thirty-five years old—he fell into ill health, the symptoms of which were a fitful, restless nervousness, a craving for inordinate excitement and a rapid decay of the physical stamina of his constitution.

Unfortunately for him, in the absence of any strong influence at home which might keep him in the path of duty, he was tempted to seek recreation abroad and fell into the company of a dissipated set of men, haunters of the theaters and taverns of Vienna, the chief spirit of whom was one Schikaneder a low, coarse man of neither refinement nor talent. In company with this crew the glorious genius, whose critical state of health demanded the utmost care and attention from loving hands, flitted night after night from tavern to tavern in Vienna, deluding himself with vice under the idea that he was gathering the secret spirit of brotherhood for use in his opera, "The Magic Flute," on which he at that time was engaged.—Rowbotham's "Private Life of Great Composers."

Teeth in Their Stomachs.

Whatever it may be that the lobster and the crab, rapacious, never daunted, are eating they always see something else that they want and can't wait until they have masticated the first before attacking the second. But they don't give up the first, not by any manner of means. Nature, humoring this rapacious bent, has fitted the lobster and the crab with teeth in their stomachs, and they swallow their half masticated food and finish the chewing process with their stomachs while they seize and chew the other thing that has attracted them. Lobsters and crabs have no teeth in their mouths. They chew with their claws what they have time to and hand the unfinished job down to their stomachs to do the rest of the chewing.

Dollar Bills From All Over.

"That dollar silver certificate you have there has been gathered together from all over the world," said the bank cashier. "Part of the paper fiber is linen rag from the orient.

"The silk comes from Italy or China. The blue ink is made from German or Canadian cobalt. The black ink is made from Niagara Falls acetylene gas smoke, and most of the green ink is green color mixed in white zinc sulphite made in Germany.

"When the treasury seal is printed in red the color comes from Central America."—New York Sun.

No Apology Necessary.

"I congratulate you most heartily," said the nearsighted guest at the wedding, "on this happy—oh, I beg your pardon! I thought I was speaking to the bridegroom."

"That's all right," the other man replied. "I accept your congratulations. I am the father of the bride."—Chicago Tribune.

Very Lucky.

"I don't get what I deserve for my jokes," wailed the humorist.

"You're lucky," sympathized his friend.—Toledo Blade.

ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY WINS SUIT AGAINST STATE

Court of Appeals Holds That State Is Liable For Water Rights Taken for Barge Canal

Albany, Jan. 8.—A principle that may substantially increase the cost of the barge canal was established yesterday when the Court of Appeals decided that the Fulton Light, Heat & Power Company is entitled to compensation not only for land taken for the canal but for its water rights, as riparian owner, to the center of the Oswego river at Fulton.

The court in effect holds that the State is liable for water rights appropriated for the barge canal, when it is shown that the claimant has acquired such possession from the State of such rights. However, the court does not pass upon the question whether title to the river could be obtained through private use or occupancy, adverse or permissive, however long continued or by prescriptive right.

The court affirms the judgment of the Court of Claims which awarded the claimant $299,000 for damages and $56,103 interest.

BAPTIST BARACA'S BANQUET

The defeated side in the Baptist Baraca contest last Fall, banquetted the winners at the church on Friday evening, the Trustful Ten circle of the church furnishing the menu which was most appetizing. Sixty sat at the festive board and mirth and merriment abounded, the vanquished accepting the jokes of the winners in prime good spirits. The tables were artistically set and the ladies who waited upon the tables wore shoulder sashes of red crepe paper to indicate which went down in defeat before the Whites when the contest closed.

The Rev. J. G. York presided as toastmaster and following the menu a toast list was called for which kept the interest of the guests keenly alive until the last. Those who were called upon for responses were Messrs S. J. Sturdivant, H. K. Fiske, C. Richards, Fred Trask and Irving Galusha. Musical selections were rendered by the Baraca chorus and Messrs. Castor and Sturdivant.

PAUL MORTON DIES SUDDENLY

The financial and business world was shocked to learn on Wednesday night of the sudden and wholly unexpected death of Paul Morton, President of the Equitable Insurance Company and one of the leading figures in the financial world today. Mr. Morton had attended a meeting of the directors of his company at noon, had dined with his brother at 2:35 made an engagement with him for dinner at 6, and died suddenly at 5 o'clock of the same day.

The deceased was Secretary of the Navy under President Roosevelt, resigning his portfolio to become President of the Equitable. His capacity for work was unlimited and it was to the "all work and no play" policy that he owes his demise at the age when most men are really just entering upon their greatest successes.

The highest tribute that can be paid man was paid the deceased by ex-President Roosevelt when he heard of his passing away. He said in part: "He was a stanch and loyal friend and an absolutely square man in every relation."

ASSEMBLYMAN SWEET ACTIVE

Important Measures Recently Introduced in the State Legislature by Our Representative.

Assemblyman Sweet has introduced in the legislature a bill amending the Agricultural Law of 1909 (Chapter 9) by adding a new section, 319, providing that no action to recover damages arising upon a contract, or for alleged negligence, shall be maintained against the New York State Agricultural society or against any county, town or other agricultural society, or fair association, or agricultural exposition, unless a verified statement of the cause of action shall have been presented to the president or secretary of such organization, and in no case after the expiration of one year from the time the cause of action occurred or the injury was suffered.

Mr. Sweet introduced a bill providing that the Supervisors shall receive in addition to their $200 a year salary $3 a day for attendance at special sessions of the Board and mileage for once going and coming from each regular and special session. The bill also provides for the payment to the Supervisors of actual and necessary expenses while engaged in committee work more than three miles from their residences.

Mr. Sweet also introduced a bill to increase the annual salaries of the special deputy and court clerk and index clerk of the County Clerk's office from $720 to $840 a year as recommended by the last Board of Supervisors, and Senator Cobb's bill appropriating $140,000 for the Oswego Normal school construction work.

SWEET INTRODUCES SHERIFF'S BILL

Number of Important Changes Proposed in Measure

Albany, Jan. 31. — Assemblyman Sweet introduced a bill amending statute of 1909, making the office of Sheriff of Oswego County a salaried one. It adds a matron for jail in Oswego to the list of employes to be appointed by the Sheriff, and provides her salary like those of other appointees shall be fixed by the Supervisors. It provides also that service actually and necessarily performed by any under sheriff or deputy sheriff upon requisition of any State department or official, which are made County charges by law, shall be paid by the County instead of being paid by the sheriff out of his salary. The bill provided that deputy sheriffs shall receive fees allowed by law for services in criminal proceedings before a justice of peace or police justice and that these fees shall be paid by the county instead of by the sheriff out of his salary. It permits supervisors to audit and allow bills of the sheriff for maintaining prisoners at any special session of the board as well as at annual sessions. Under the present law auditing must be done at each annual session.

POSTMASTER ALEXANDER RE-NOMINATED

President Taft on Tuesday sent to the Senate the nomination of Postmaster J. B. Alexander of Oswego to succeed himself. The Senate will undoubtedly promptly confirm the nomination.

The Times congratulates Mr. Alexander upon this merited preferment and the people of Oswego that the high standard of their postoffice service is to be maintained.

Col. Bryan is not a candidate for nomination. The Commoner says so, and it's in a position to know.

MARRIED

Mr. Fred L. Whiting and Miss Susie M. Chapman were united in marriage at State Street parsonage on Monday evening, the Rev. F. A. Miller officiating.

The marriage of Mrs. Hattie May Bradshaw to Dr. Robert Case Scott, all of Syracuse, took place on Wednesday, January 25, at the Church of the Savior, Syracuse. After a brief trip Dr. and Mrs. Scott will make their home in Syracuse where Dr. Scott is established as a homeopathic physician.

MACCABEES LODGE

The Order of Maccabees keep humming and seem to be making honey. Their installation of officers was held last Wednesday evening at their hall. The Grand Medical Examiner, Dr. Hedden, and another official of Syracuse was present, making some remarks and conducting the installation. A fine program was rendered and refreshments served.

The star feature of the evening's entertainment happened when Mr. Ross Wolever, chairman of the committee, introduced to a large audience Doctor Lafayette as a graduate of Cambridge University and Professor of Phrenology. Eight volunteer subjects came to the front when called for, upon the platform and the learned professor proceeded to manipulate thier various bumps. These subjects were some of the distinguished and solid citizen's of the town. In the examination of a celebrated judge's cranium the professor at once became eloquent on the Anantas bump. Also on the George Washington bump. Again in another instance, everything being on the fly, the Professor got to soaring up among the stars on the nicotine bump. It being one of the most popular bumps of the age. Any person wishing a private examination can get it by calling at the sign of the horses head on Cayuga street and the Professor will impart information that will start you on the road to success in life.

THERE WILL BE NO CHANGE

Albany, Jan. 27.—At a conference held today at the State Engineer's office, at which were present State Engineer John A. Bensel, C. E. Treman, Superintendent of Public Works, Mayor John Fitzgibbons, Francis E. Cullen, City Attorney John R. Pidgeon, Superintendent Ormsby and President Victor Belisle, of the Water Department Frank W. Thorpe and other representatives of the Minetto-Meriden Shade Company, assurances were received that no changes will be made in barge canal contracts which cover the Oswego and Minetto dams. The State officers announced that matter's stood as they did at the close of the last Administration, dispelling the fears of the committee with the statement: "That they had been chasing a phantom and that no change was under consideration or contemplated. The committee left the conference with a feeling that the interests of the city of Oswego were absolutely safe in the hands of Messrs. Bensel and Treman.

SENATORIAL SITUATION IN ALBANY

Situation Very Desperate From Democratic Standpoint—Insurgents Ask Republicans to Drop Depew—May Concentrate on Candidate

The Senatorial situation at Albany remains hopelessly deadlocked. Tammany refuses to entertain suggestions of a compromise candidate and the Insurgents as stubbornly refuse to accept Sheehan.

The latest development in the matter is that the Republicans drop Depew and select some independent candidate whom their combined votes can elect. This suggestion has brought panic to the Tammany camp and may bring the mighty Murphy to his knees.

Murphy and Sheehan on Monday asked for conferences with the insurgents, the tenor of the conference not having been given for publication.

SUPREME COURT ADJOURNS

The January Term of the Supreme Court adjourned on Friday.

The term has been remarkable for the small verdicts returned and the number of verdicts found for the defendant, both by jury and by nonsuit.

A partial list of the cases tried and the results follow:

Frederick Blake vs. Lee Beardsley; verdict for defendant.

Uriah Lewis vs. the O. & W.; $2,000 for plaintiff.

Jesse B. Allen vs. Fulton Motor Car Company; $600 for plaintiff.

Harmon Boucher vs. George F. Stackhouse; $500 for plaintiff.

William H. Collins vs. Victoria Paper Mills Company; $3,000 for plaintiff, largest of term.

Jennie Marsden vs. Granby Paper Company; non suit.

Harry Halstead vs. City of Fulton, $400 awarded.

JUSTICE ROGERS DYING

Justice Watson M. Rogers fell two weeks ago on an icy pavement, striking his head. He seemed not to suffer any inconvenience from the fall at the time and continued the practice of his profession until a week later when he lapsed into unconsciousness from which he has not rallied, his physicians stating that death is inevitable.

OSWEGO VISITED BY FIRE

Two firemen were overcome by smoke and thousands of dollars' worth of damage done by a fire which for an hour Friday morning raged in the Jones Block, corner of West Bridge and Water streets, Oswego. The fire was one of the worst which the local department has had to contend with in years and it was only after heroic effort that the flames were brought under control and the building, one of the principal business blocks in the city, saved. The smoke, which poured from every opening, was suffocating and it was a miracle that some of the firemen did not suffer serious inhalation of the fumes, which filled every room and corridor. The fire was a mysterious one and is supposed to have had its origin in the boiler room, although five minutes before the fire was discovered the janitor of the building visited the boiler and found every thing in its usual condition.

Among the heaviest losers among the occupants of the block are the proprietors of the Mylott Clothing store, Fisher's jewelry store, the Western Union telegraph; Dr. H. M. Wallace, instruments, etc.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB

On Monday evening Attornel and Mrs. S. B. Mead entertained the Current Events Club. The Committee which had charge of the Lecture given at the Public Library last week by Hon. N. N. Stranahan, reported the gross receipts from the same to amount to $75.00, and that the expenses were $10.00, leaving a balance on hand of $65.00. This amount was voted paid over to the Public Library. A bill of $6.75 for printing was ordered paid.

Prof. Fairgrieve and Mr. Ripley had charge of the programme for the evening in place of Messrs. Stranahan and York, who will lead the next meeting. Mr. Ripley gave an interesting review of current events. Among other things, he spoke of the floods on the Ohio River, the Senatorial situation at Albany, scientific progress, and, locally, of the proposed new bridge at Broadway and the question of City Charter revision. Mr. Ripley also briefly discussed foreign topics, and commented on the new uses found for lignite in the development of power.

Following Mr. Ripley, President Fairgrieve spoke on educational problems and school systems, past and present, with special reference to the industrial training feature. Prof. Fairgrieve gave it as his opinion that it is unwise to attempt to carry this industrial training idea to the extent which some claim it should be tried.

At the close of the meeting, a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Stranahan by the club for the highly entertaining lecture which he gave at the Public Library on Tuesday evening of last week.

WITHERILL'S SEEK LOST JEWELRY SIGN

The police have been trying since Christmas to find some trace of a sign which was lost from Witherill's department store about that time. The sign was a display advertisement of a prominent jewelry manufacturer of Providence, R. I. It was about two feet by one and a half, made of white celluloid throughout, except for a dark shell diamond shaped center, the sign designe being studded with white brilliants. Around the sign was a rolled plate frame.

The whole might appear only a bauble to the ordinary person, but it is valuable to the manufacturers. Witherill's are offering a reward for its return.

About the middle of December the store received some display goods from the Providence house, with a memorandum which stated that two signs had been sent. One of these, a small one, was found with the goods. The other is still missing. By correspondence with the manufacturers, it was learned that it was shipped in a box its own size and fitted snugly in the bottom. The supposition is that the box was opened at the other end and the tight fitting sign overlooked. The packing case case was sold with many others which piled up in the Christmas rush, and all trace of it and of the parties buying it was lost. Detective William Dorner began a search among the cartmen of the city and others who might have handled the box, but no trace of it has been found to date.—Herald.

REDUCED FARE TO ITHACA

The New York State College of Agriculture has just been notified by the Secretary of the Trunk Line Association that a reduced rate of 1½ cents a mile within a radius of 150 miles of Ithaca has been granted for Farmers' Week and that tickets are good from February 18th to 25th inclusive. This is a marked reduction and should command attention from all persons considering the possibility of attendance at Farmers' Week at Ithaca.

A Story of the Sunny South Right After the Civil War

Written For The Times

BY CAPTAIN O. J. JENNINGS

Epherum Hardiman was born a slave and lived to gain his freedom during the Civil War, after which time he and Aunt Phillis, his wife, settled down as farmers; he buying by contract a tract of land containing ten acres. On this they built a little log cabin and commenced looking about for a mule and the necessary implements to pitch a crop with. Epherum went to many of his old acquaintances asking who had a cheap mule to sell; after canvassing the neighborhood without success he went to Mr. Bradway and said:

"I'ze ben lookin' for a mule and I keovent find one."

"Uncle Ephe, that seems strange, the country's full of mules; I should think you could find one in most any field."

"For gord, Mr. Bradway, what's you tellin' me. I knows there's plenty of mules but how's I gwine to get one, that's what I'ze came to see you about? I wants a mule for my own; haven't you heard 'bout dat lan' Phillie and I done bought?"

"No, Uncle Ephe, I haven't."

"Lor, Mr. Bradway, we's done bought ten acres and we's built a house on it, and gwine to the farmers jus' like you all."

"Well, that's right, go on and put in a crop, be industrious, take good care of it, and you will get along all right."

"For gord, Mr. Bradway, how's I gwine get along and pitch a crop if I don't have no mule?"

"Well, why not buy one?"

"Dat's what I say;" Phillie say, "go long now an buy a mule," but for she don't know nothin bout what buyin a mule is, an Mr. Bradway, I'ze begin to think I don't know much bout that kind of business either."

"Well, you must study on it and learn."

"Look's here, Mr. Bradway, don't be trifling with dis poor ole nigger; I keanut buy no mule, every body what's got a mule to sell say what you got to pay for mule with? and I say I'ze bought lan' and own a house; they say go long, you don't own nothin', you's only got a contract, now what's I gwine to do?"

"Well, Uncle Ephe, you must in some way be helped to put in a crop; the question of what shall be, or rather what our duty towards your people is today, a problem that I have given some thought to; you are now a free man, a citizen, with all the rights enjoyed by the white man, and it became your duty, in exercising those rights, to obey the laws and be industrious; your resolution to try to support yourself and family by tilling the soil is praiseworthy and should be encouraged by the community in which you live; I will think the matter over and tomorrow you come and see me when I will try to have some plan by which you can be helped to a mule to put in a crop."

"God bless you, Mr. Bradway, I'ze goin' right home and tell Phillis we's gwine to have a mule."

"No, no, don't tell her that, say you hope to have one to put in a crop."

"Well, can't I tell her what you say 'bout we all being citizens and have a right to be 'dustrious and obey de law."

"Oh, yes, say anything to make Phillis happy that's within the truth and right. Here Epherum I want to tell you and impress it upon your mind as strongly as possible the im-

THE WEEK

There has been a distinct improvement in the two directions in which the progress of business contraction has been most pronounced. This has contributed notably to the growth of confidence without which active enterprise is impossible. The larger activity in iron and steel, shared to some extent by the other industries, the better feeling exhibited in the financial markets, and the increased confidence resulting therefrom, are the three most important developments of the week. The successful placing of the New York city bond issue at prices above par, with heavy subscriptions, has had a favorable effect upon financial sentiment and imparts added strength to the investment situation, while the marking down of the Bank of England rate to 4 per cent. is a development of promise. The betterment in iron is chiefly in finished products, tin plate, wire and structural materials, the pig iron situation showing little or no change. The dry goods market is also exhibiting more encouraging aspects in various lines, and the outlook is thus more favorable, in spite of the difficulties of adjusting prices to the cost of production. There appears a broadening tendency in wool, while the demand for leather and hides has also improved. It is noticeable that these better reports come from no one locality but from most of the leading trade centers. While these improvements in the business situation do not alter the fact that the volume of trade is still much below the average productive capacity, yet the indications of recovery from the recent contraction are very welcome and encouraging.

It is now possible to discern definite signs of improvement in iron and steel, and as a result of the larger buying of finished materials sentiment in the trade has become increasingly optimistic.

Encouraging developments are noted in the structural department, where many deferred orders are coming to the fabricating mills and the transporting companies are giving out bridge work with greater freedom. Tin plate operations are on a more extensive scale than for several months past, and the outlook in sheets is also materially improved.

In the dry goods markets jobbers are doing an increasing trade in piece goods, while retailers have made fair progress on their January clearances and should complete their inventories during the coming week. In the primary markets for cotton, woolen and silk goods, complaints are general of the competition for business and the difficulty encountered in securing profitable prices for goods to be made. Distributers are placing fair orders but without speculation of any kind, despite the very favorable values quoted. Advances have been named on some lines of staple men's wear after a fair volume of business has been booked for fall delivery. Business in napped cotton goods has also been large and there is a continued steady demand for prints in staples and fancies, staple ginghams, tickings and a few other lines of domestics.

The footwear market shows no material change. There is still a contingent of buyers in the Boston market, some of whom have placed good sized orders, as formerly noted, but the majority are content to examine conditions and postpone the bulk of their purchases until their return home. Trade in leather continues to improve, especially in sole and belting stock, and transactions in New York and other markets have been on a more liberal scale.

Continued erratic fluctuations prevail in domestic wheat markets, although the general tendency of prices has been toward a somewhat lower level. Actual conditions of supply and demand are of a bearish character, yet active support is given by professional interests at the West and frequent sharp rallies occur. The movement at the Northwest shows a tendency to expand, whereas the cash demand remains light and the winter wheat outlook is improved.—Dun's Review, January 28, 1911.

William E. Corey has resigned from the Presidency of the United States Steel Corporation. And it's such cold weather for a man to tramp the streets looking for a job. Poor fellow.

Women are divided into two classes, male and female. Female women live in bungalows with geranium window boxes, have mostly light hair and kinky, helped or born-so; if first, bought puffs, if second, home made. They smell of Eau de Cologne and taste a bit of violet powder. They meet you at the door in a silly silky pink thing. Your slippers are by the fire, also evening paper. Two inch steak and chocolate cornstarch pudding for supper. They play "Dollar Princess" after—while you read favorite periodical. Five children upstairs in bed. Male women use unscented soap, wear skirts longer behind than in front, and vote. You take elevator up to seventh floor, three room apartment. Meet landlord at the door. Wife sent last month's rent to campaign fund. Wife writing pamphlet at desk, "Is that you, Senator Humphreys?" Takes off spectacles. "Oh, just you, John." Seven o'clock; supper not ready. Dishes from yesterday morning in pail under stove. Morning milk on steam beater, sour. Cold ham in ice chest; no ice, ham turned. Mouse in bread box, no bread.

You suggest perhaps it would be advisable to go out to dinner. Wife takes you to Vegetarian Restaurant Sees Mr. O'Kelly who's running for Assemblyman, Seventeenth District; invites him to eat carrots with you. Decides to attend meeting on proposed charter amendment limiting number of Slot Machines in Saloons with Mr. O'Kelly. You go out and get in maudin condition.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A CALL FOR A HALF CENT

Resumption of coinage of the half cent piece is being agitated in some quarters, the principal argument advanced in its favor being that it would save money for buyers, especially the poor, who need it most. In all cases now where the half cent figures in the price of an article the dealer gets the benefit of the odd half cent unless the customer purchases two of the articles. There are many things sold two for a cent, two for a nickel or two for a quarter of which some purchasers desire only one. The half cent piece would enable them to buy exactly what they want at its exact price. If the demand for the half penny becomes general Congress no doubt will give heed to it and order a resumption of its coinage.—Springfield Union.

THIRTY YEARS TOGETHER

Thirty years of association — think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time —or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it's the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy.

A law passed by the last legislature gives the keeper of a hotel or a boarding house the right to sell by auction to the highest bidder, after six months any unclaimed article or baggage that is held for board. Notices of such a sale, however must be printed in the local newspaper. After paying all expenses, if there is any surplus left over, and the owner cannot be found, such surplus must be forwarded to the county treasurer.—Exchange.

BURIAL OF MRS. EDDY

Grave Made Impervious to Desecration or Decay for Centuries

Guards on Duty

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 26.—In a concrete grave on the shores of Lake Halcyon, in Mount Auburn Cemetery, there was laid today a bronze coffin containing the body of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of the Christian Science denomination. On the coffin rested a bronze box, inclosing a complete set of the written works of Mrs. Eddy, together with all recent Christian Science publications, while the silver plate beneath gave her name and the dates of her birth and death.

Although the body of Mrs. Eddy was placed in its final resting place, the guards who have been on continuous duty since the preliminary burial were not dismissed, but were transferred to a little house built for the purpose beside the grave. The men continue to be fully armed.

The cool winter air held breathless when the directors of the church which Mrs. Eddy originated and a score of its strongest supporters assembled at the brink of the grave. Judge Clifford P. Smith, the First Reader of the Mother church, repeated Psalm LXXXXI and the last two verses in Jude, both of which were read at the funeral on December 8 last. Then the grave, with its contents, was sealed with the most modern appliances. Some months later the spot will be marked by a mausoleum.

General Henry M. Baker, of New. N. H., Mrs. Eddy's cousin and the executor of her will, was the only member of the family in the little gathering, but it was announced that all claims to other burial places had been waived. So the Church buried the body of its leader.

Since the funeral of Mrs. Eddy at Chestnut Hill, five days after her death, on December 3, the bronze coffin has filled a niche in the receiving tomb at Mount Auburn, with a guard beside it day and night. That guard was relieved shortly after noon today, when half a dozen carriages rolled up to the door of the tomb, and an hour later the coffin was drawn out and placed on a bier.

The bronze plate covering the features of Mrs. Eddy was pushed back, and one by one the little company gazed for the last time on the placid face of the leader. The features had scarcely changed in the seven weeks. There was a slight darkening here and there, but signs of dissolution were lacking.

ATTACK LIKE TIGERS

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif., "I have ever found." They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

HALLIGAN DENIED PENSION

Attorney Joseph T. McCaffrey has received word from Adjutant-General William H. Verbeck, National Guard, that he had disapproved of the application of William Halligan, Oswego, for a pension. The only reason given was that he followed the recommendation of the Board of Medical Examiners, which came there several weeks ago and examined into the case. Mr. Halligan, then a member of the Forty-eighth Separate Company, had his leg cut off by a Central train at this city about two years ago, while returning from a July Fourth celebration.

THE FEBRUARY WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION

The February number of Woman's Home Companion is a delightful St. Valentine number. There is a special valentine song, valentine ideas, and a valentine book-list.

The fiction includes another part of "The Admiral's Niece," a story by Kate Douglas Wiggin and her collaborators, which is making a big hit; "In the Land of To-morrow," by Maude Radford Warren, is now in its second part and is proving most exciting. Short stories in this number are contributed by such well-known authors as Alice Brown, Hulbert Footner, Owen Oliver and Mary Heaton Vorse.

The third part of "Spain's Royal Love Story," by Kellogg Durland, is devoted entirely to the story of the three little children of the King and Queen of Spain and is a charming and homelike tale. Frank A. Waugh opens our eyes to the beauty of the winter forest in an article entitled "My Tree Friends in Winter;" Kate V. Saint-Maur, in a short article entitled "The Care of Cage Birds," gives us valuable information concerning our feathered pets. "American Portrait-Painters," by J. Nilsen Laurvik, is the first of a new series on art in America, and love scenes from the most popular plays of the season are shown.

The Home Decoration and Handicraft Department is even more comprehensive than usual, taking up the questions of the small apartment and the country house. "Dotty Darling and the Kewpipes" still make fun for the children, and "The Adventures of Jack and Betty" form one of the most enthralling of little folks' features. Miss Gould's Fashion Department is excellent with modish and useful suggestions.

GOVERNOR DIX AND THE HIGHWAYS

In Governor Dix's message to the Legislature he proposes to do away with the Highway Department and to turn over to the already busy office of the State Engineer the building and the maintenance of the State and County highways.

For many years the State Engineer had charge of the State highways; they were simply a department or pigeonhole of his office, the work was not satisfactorily done, therefore the Legislature created the Highway Department and three men were appointed for six, four and two years respectively, so that there should be a continuous plan in building and maintaining roads which should not be altered every two years by reason of the election of a new State Engineer. The Department has been in operation for two years, they had everything to learn and have really done well. Is it not a mistake to destroy this Department and put the work back in to the hands of the State Engineer where it may become one of the spoils of politics?

Ely's Cream Balm has been tried and not found wanting in thousands of homes all over the country. It has won a place in the family medicine closet among the reliable house hold remedies, where it is kept at hand for use in treating cold in the head just as soon as some member of the household begins the preliminary sneezing or snuffling. It gives immediate relief and a day or two's treatment will put a stop to a cold which might, if not checked, become chronic and run into a bad case of catarrh.

HARNESSING SALMON RIVER

Papers Filed Indicate That the Time for Beginning Work is Approaching

That the harnessing of Salmon river for the development of electrical power, a scheme promoted by C. A. Lux, of Syracuse, is to become a reality is evident from a big bunch of papers filed in the County Clerk's office today, releasing Mr. Lux from claims for damages as a result of the interference of the natural flow of Salmon river. The releases are given by property owners below the falls. The papers state that the scheme is to build a dam near the falls to keep back the water which is to be returned to the river channel through a tail race at about two miles East of Altmar.—Palladium.

We have no objection to an increase in the membership of the House of Representatives, provided its Statesmanship capacity is increased also.

A Reliable Remedy for CATARRH

Ely's Cream Balm

is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at Once. It cleanses, soothes, heals and protects the diseased membrane resulting from Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts. at Druggists or by mail. In liquid form, 75 cents. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Oswego County Court Appointments

Pursuant to statute I hereby appoint the terms of the Oswego County Court to be hereafter held until otherwise ordered for the trial of issues of fact, as follows:

Second Monday in February, court house, Oswego.

Fourth Monday in May, court house, Pulaski.

First Tuesday in September, court house, Pulaski.

Second Monday in November, court house, Oswego.

I hereby designate the same terms for trial and determination of collitements, and for the hearing and transaction of other criminal business and proceedings.

Trial jurors are required to attend each term.

No grand jury is required.

Terms for the hearing and decision of motions and appeals and trials, and other proceedings without a jury, will also be held as follows:

On Monday of each week, except July and August, and except when the above named trial terms of county court are in session, at the Judge's Chambers, in the city of Oswego, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Dated, Oswego N. Y., Dec. 15, 1909

LOUIS C. ROWE,
Oswego County Judge.

SURROGATE'S COURT

During the year 1909 and until otherwise ordered, terms of the Surrogate's Court of the County of Oswego, will be held as follows:

On Monday of each week, except in the month of August, at the Surrogate's office in the city of Oswego, at 10 o'clock, a. m.

On the second Thursday of each month, except August at the Court House in the village of Pulaski, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Whenever one of the days above appointed falls on a holiday the Court will be held the day following.

CLAYTON I. MILLER,

It seems rather hard just at this time Marse Henry Watterson should hike off to Europe and leave Champ Clark and the Democratic party to work out their own salvation.

It is intimated that Tom L. Johnson will be the next mayor of Cleveland. Hasn't Tom done enough for that city that now has 3-cent fares and a new position as the sixth city in the nation?

Wait until the Democrats get to scrapping over their own rules.

Rheumatic Pains

"My mother is a great sufferer from rheumatism, and Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills is the only remedy that relieves her."

MRS. G. DAVENPORT,
Roycefield, N. J.

The pains of rheumatism are almost invariably relieved with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They also overcome that nervous irritation which prevents sleep because they soothe the nerves. To chronic suffers they are invaluable. When taken as directed, they relieve the distress and save the weakening influence of pain, which so frequently prostrates. Many sufferers use them whenever occasion requires with the greatest satisfaction, why, not you? They do not derange the stomach nor create a habit. Why not try them? Get a package from your druggist. Take it according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

DECIDE TO HOLD STATE CONVENTION

Commission Government Men of This City and Rochester Start Movement — Rochesterians entertained At Dinner Here

At a joint meeting last night of the officers and executive committee of the Commission Government Association of Buffalo and the administration committee of the Commission Government Association of Rochester, arrangements were completed for the calling of a State convention at Rochester on February 3rd and 4th for the formation of a State Commission Government Association. The call is to be issued by the Buffalo and Rochester associations through their secretaries to the cities and towns in the State that are now agitating the adoption of the commission plan. Between thirty and forty cities and towns, will probably send representatives as the interest has become State-wide.

The Rochester representatives at the meeting last night consisted of Prof. Fairchild, the geologist whose reputation is world-wide; Prof. Howard Mosher, who holds the chair of civics at the University of Rochester, formerly the Democratic county chairman of Monroe County, who raised the standard of Democracy in Rochester and who successfully lead the fight against "Boss" Aldrich last Spring; the Rev. Paul Moore Strayer whose church is one of the largest in Rochester, at the head of the People's Sunday evening meetings where working men and non-churchgoers meet in a theatre, who is the ministerial delegate to the Trades and Labor Council and also president of the Rochester Lunch Club; Frank Keogh, member of the Trades and Labor Council representing some of the most prominent labor unions in Rochester, a man whose opinions carry a great deal of weight with the workingmen; N. S. Olds, a former newspaper man and now advertising manager of the Stein, Bloch & Co., the clothing manufacturers of national reputation; C. W. McKay, one of Rochesters foremost lawyers and prominent in the Republican organization there; and Lester Fisher, secretary of the Commission Government Association of Rochester.

The Commission Government Association of Rochester has on its advisory board some if the most wealthy and influential men of the city.

Dr. F. Parke Lewis, president of the Buffalo association, entertained the Rochester delegation and his fellow officers at dinner at the Saturn Club.—The Buffalo Courier, Tuesday, January 2, 1911.

CREDITORS LEVY ON CORTLAND WAGON CO.

Cortland, Jan .28.—Notices of judgments in favor of twelve different creditors of the Cortland Wagon Company have been filed in the Cortland County Clerk's office and Jerry L. Eades has executed them, levying on the property, goods and chattels of the company. The buildings are the only part of the plant not included in the Sheriff's levy.

ACCUSED OF STEALING

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

A headline says "Nat Goodwin seems to be fond of girls." But in notation if we may judge by his divorce record.

At last there is a cure for

Rheumatism

available to the great mass of sufferers from that terrible disease. A few physicians have been able to cure rheumatism. Among the number was a specialist in rheumatic cases who was remarkably successful in all his cures. The secret of his success was all contained in one valuable formula—the formula for Wintergreen Compound.

Here is a specific remedy—a positive and permanent cure that has been used in thousands of cases—always with the same successful results. And it is a positive cure for Neuralgia, Lumbago and Gout.

S. B. Riley, Altoona, Pa., writes: "My father, who is 82 years of age, has been a sufferer from rheumatism for five years and was in such a condition that he had to be handled almost like a child. After using three bottles of Wintergreen Compound he improved rapidly and now goes upstairs without the aid of anyone."

SOLDIERS MONUMENT FOR PARISH

Parish, Jan. 26—Parish is to have a handsome new park with a soldiers and sailors' monument as one of the decorative features.

Announcement was made today that S. F. Mills, of this village, and Nathan Petrie, of Ashton, Ill., members of the banking firm of Mills & Petrie, in the latter city, both natives of Parish, have given a firm of well known sculptors a commission for a monument to cost $2,000 and that the town has purchased a site, having bought the George Hogan property near the depot for $800. The house will be removed, the lot graded and shrubs and flowers placed therein.

The monument is to be twenty-five feet high and ten feet across the base and will be marble and granite. Mr. Mills, one of the donors, has retired from business after a long and successful career in Ashton, Ill., and now makes his home here. Mr. Petrie is one of the well known family of that name that has lived in Parish for many years. He still resides in Ashton, but is a frequent visitor here and retains a deep affection for his old birthplace.

Both park and monument will be ready for dedication on Memorial Day and a big celebration is being planned with members of the G. A. R. from all over the county in attendance.

FORGET IT

If you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd,
A leader of men, marching fearless and proud;
And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud
Would cause his proud head to in anguish be bowed,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a skeleton hidden away
In a closet and guarded, and kept from the day
In the dark, and whose showing, whose sudden display
Would cause grief and sorrow and life-long dismay,
It's a pretty good thing to forget it.

If you know of a thing that would darken the joy
Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy
That would wipe out a smile of the least way annoy
A fellow or cause any gladness to cloy,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

OSWEGO COMPANIES CONSOLIDATE

The stockholders of the Pell Motor Car Company and Barnes Gear Company of Oswego, have approved of the consolidation of these two concerns and the details are now being worked out. When the Pell Company closed down last Fall a committee of stockholders was appointed to look up the affairs of the company and they recommend consolidation with the Barnes Gear Company, the leading members of both concerns being the same.

As a result of the decision to consolidate, the Barnes Gear Company will be re-incorporated and its capital stock increased. The transfer of stock will be made, it is said, on the basis of one to two. The Pell stockholders receiving one share of Barnes Gear Company stock for two of theirs, the quoted value of the Barnes Gear stock being 200.

When the consolidation is completed, the Pell Company will be reopened and the stock on hand used in manufacturing cars.

HIGHWAYS AND THE STATE ENGINEER

Ten years ago, when State road building was commenced in this State, it was under the direction and control of the State Engineer. His office is a busy one, having charge of the canal and the surveying. The conduct of this work, particularly under the administration of Mr. Skene, was most unsatisfactory. The Highway Department was created by the Legislature, they have been in charge for two years and considering the fact that they were new to the work they have done well. Should the idea of having trained and experienced men for road work be abandoned after two years' trial and should the work of the building and the care of the highways be put back into the office of the State Engineer? We think not.

ACTRESS GETS MEDAL

In recognition of distinguished services to dramatic art, Miss Ellen Terry, the English actress, was presented with a gold medal Thursday afternoon by the founders of the New Theatre, New York city. The presentation was at the New Theatre before a notable assemblage of men of letters, playwrights, musicians and the flower of stageland. To Miss Terry falls the dual distinction of being the first woman and the first British subject so honored.

JOHN O'BRIEN MAY WIN

Albany, Jan. 28.—That John OBrien of Phoenix will be appointed superintendent of the Oswego canal is almost assured. No candidate ever had stronger backing. Mr. O'Brien is a mill owner and has just passed the half-century mark. His loyalty as a Democrat has never been questioned. In fact he has been one of the pillars of the party. For years he has sacrificed himself in running for nearly every office against big odds, and now his friends want to see him landed in this job.

O'Brien has the indorsement of three-fourths of the County Committee; all of the mill owners along the Oswego River are with him, and he is the choice of Republicans and Democrats alike. The present incumbent, D. S. Burleigh, has written to the State superintendent of public works saying that he would be pleased to aid Mr. O'Brien until he is familiar with the duties of the office. The pressure being brought to have Superintendent Treman appoint Mr. O'Brien will, it is said, bear fruit.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor, often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

The republican senators from New York, New Jersey, Maine, Ohio, Nebraska and Montana will confer a great favor upon their party by not dying, as democrats will come in then.

Kingsley's Stammering.

Charles Kingsley loved talking, had an enormous deal to say on every conceivable subject and longed to say it. But his stammer was always checking him. He gurgled and gasped and made faces and would sometimes break off in a conversation or a meal, rush out into the open air and liberate his suppressed emotions by rapid exercise or physical exertion. Yet, as has often been observed in similar cases, when he had to preach the stammer subsided, and, though there was some facial contortion, the flow of the discourse was never interrupted. He said to his friend Tom Hughes: "I could be as great a talker as any man in England but for my stammering. When I am speaking for God in the pulpit or paying by bedsides I never stammer. My stammer is a blessed thing for me. It keeps me from talking in company and from going out as much as I should do but for it."—G. W. E. Russell in Winchester Guardian.

Official City Paper

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1911.

Politics, foreign relations and ship subsidies seem to be strangely mixed in the new and great "American idea" in which the leaders of the Republican party are seeking to interest President Taft and the people of the United States. This idea is to build a railway through North, Central and South America, so that it will be possible to transport merchandise by rail from this country as far as the Straits of Magellan, if desired. Politics are involved in it because the leaders of the Republican party feel that their recent disastrous defeat can be retrieved only by some great project capable of firing the imagination and patriotism of the American people. Perhaps the leaders of the Republican party seek to follow the example of Bismarck, who, when the German Empire was torn with internal dissentions, precipitated the Franco-Prussian War in order to take the eyes of the German people from their troubles at home and direct them toward foreign conquest. Foreign relations are involved in the idea because the apparent failure of the favorite plans of President Taft and Secretary Knox to capture the Far East as an American market makes it necessary to provide another outlet for American manufactures. Ship subsidies are involved, because if American products can be distributed throughout Central and South America without ships, the necessity for a subsidized merchant marine will disappear. The vastness of the undertaking is realized, but the American people are thought quite capable of carrying it through.

There is just now much agitation on the question of fortifying the Panama Canal. Philanthropists, peacemakers, or perhaps sentimentalists are opposed to any step looking to naval military protection. Statesmen and militarists, on the other hand, are unable to see safety except in fortresses and big guns. Congress has been memorialized by distinguished men and women who made much of the argument that the Suez Canal was without fortification and that inasmuch as England had left this canal open and undefended, there was no reason why the Panama Canal should be fortified. This statement, however, appears to have been presented without complete geographical or political knowledge. A sum equal to the cost of the Panama Canal would not be sufficient to fortify it as strongly as the Suez Canal is fortified. The fortification of this Canal begins on the west at Gibraltar, is continued at Malta, at Cairo and Alexandria, and on the east at Aden. In other words, England has full and tight control of the Mediterranean at Gibraltar and of the Red Sea at Aden. No enemy can approach within hundreds of miles of Suez without accounting to Great Britian. It is true that there are French and Spanish and Turkish and Austrian ports on the Mediterranean or connecting waters, but their naval forces are insignificant as compared to the fleet that England constantly maintains in what is substantially a British lake.

When the United States bought Alaska about fifty years ago for seven millions of dollars, and a facetious editor referring to its great distance and to its Russian origin, proposed to call it "Damlongway-off," no one imagined how incalculably rich in gold and iron and fish-eries and coal it is, to say nothing of vegetable productions, that country would become. There are people but little past middle age who can recollect that that part of the country where Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma and other prosperous states are situated, was supposed to be a desert utterly unfit for agriculture. A great part of Texas was at that time regarded as a sterile waste, but it is now covered with cities, towns and villages. Within a generation Canada has doubled her population and multiplied many times her wealth, and yet the rich forests of Labrador and splendid regions about Hudson Bay are almost untouched. It is not improbable that the younger generation in America will, during the next half century, witness such financial and industrial power in the northern half of the Western Hemisphere as the world has never before known.

The action of the United States in generously waiving the indemnity of $11,000,000, resulting from the Boxer uprising in China, has borne good fruit. China has since regarded this country as her best friend, and has sought advice and guidance from us on matters affecting her international relations. At the present time the Chinese government is defraying the expenses of upwards of one hundren students every year in American universities. These students, as they graduate, return to China and are scattered among the different provinces of China for the purpose of gradually Americanizing the people and customs of that country.

What is hailed as the victory of Governor Wilson of New Jersey in defeating ex-Senator Smith for reelection to the Senate and in securing the election of James E. Martine, is arousing comment in Washington. It was felt that in precipitating the fight against Smith, Governor Wilson staked his political future.

CORRESPONENCE

Oberlin, O., Jan. 30, 1911.

Editor Times: I have been in Michigan and have neglected to urge the Boosters of Fulton to pitch in and have a Home Coming of Co. E. and H., 24th N. Y. Inf., and celebrate May 6 to 13, 1911, which will be fifty years from the date they left Fulton to work for Uncle Sam in the Uncivil War. It is not possible that the people of your city will forget the first two companies enlisted there unless the new and active generation now on top shall snub the idea.

It was my pleasure lately to help Eagle Lodge, F. & A. M. of Burr Oak, Mich., to celebrate its fiftieth birthday. I was the Senior W. M. of the lodge, in the State, and gave an address at a fine banquet. The occasion was rich to me as I met many old friends whom I had not seen in many years. I joined the Masons in 1864 in Red Creek, demitted to Fulton in 1866, I believe, and to Burr Oak in 1868, where I have stuck ever since.

Last week I heard the brillant Gov. Osborne give a patriotic address to the G. A. R., at Lansing, Mich., which was superb and I believe his election was no mistake. Sand seems sticking squarely safe in his crop.

Now hurrah, for the 50th anniversary mentioned above. Don't neglect it you Booster Club, commence advertising the Home Coming quickly. Invite all ex-soldiers of Fulton and vicinity to join the celebration and have a circus.

Yours,
Norm G. Cooper.

OPEN EVENINGS

DEATHS

The death of the 3-months old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Jones of Mt. Pleasant occurred on Friday.

The remains of Mrs. Joseph Acker, a former resident of Fulton, arrived here from San Diego, Calif., last week for interment in St. Mary's. Mrs. Acker died on November 16, 1910.

The death of Mrs. Frederick G. Spencer at her home in Third street on Saturday afternoon, followed a long, painful illness from cancer for which there was no relief. The funeral services will be held from the late home this Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. F. W. Betts of Syracuse officiating. Interment will be made in Mt. Adnah. The deceased is survived by her husband, Attorney F. G. Spencer, and many friends.

The death of Willard E. Hutchens, aged 56, occurred on Monday at his home in North First street. He is survived by five sons, Fred K. and William of Woodstock, Ind.; Almon of LaPorte, Ind., and Edward and Harry Hutchins of this city; and three daughter, Mrs. Anna Lent of Rocky Mont, N. C., Mrs. Lottis Courseneau of Hamilton, Canada, and Miss Mary Hutchins of this city. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

Mason Blodgett, aged 65, left his home on Friday morning in his usual health. Within an hour he passed away at the Allen Excelsior works, where he was employed, an attack of heart trouble causing his demise. He was conversing with some of his co-workers near the stove when he was seen to stagger. A physician was called but he passed away before the physician arrived. The funeral services were held from the late home in Cayuga street on Tuesday afternoon and burial was made at Gilberts Mills. The immediate survivors are the widow, one brother, Mr. Monroe Blodgett of this city, and one sister, Mrs. A. Bidwell of Sterling.

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 29. —The Rev. Dr. R. Dewitt Mallary, President of the American International College, died this morning of stomach trouble at his residence, 773 State street, after a short illness. He was born in Fulton, N. Y., September 28th, 1851, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Mallary. Dr. Mallary removed with his parents to Brooklyn, N. Y., when very young and attended the public schools of that city for several years. He then entered Syracuse University, where his uncle, John R. French, was a member of the faculty, and took a preparatory course, which fitted him for Amherst College. He was admitted to Amherst, where he graduated in 1877.

The community was inexpressibly shocked on Tuesday morning to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. M. V. Connell, which occurred at her home in Oneida street early on Tuesday morning. She had been about her home all day Monday in her usual health, the fatal illness coming suddenly in the night. Several physicians were summoned to her bedside but she was beyond medical skill. The deceased was a very active member of the First Methodist church and had a large circle of friends throughout this section of the State who will mourn her loss. The funeral services will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home, Rev. C. L. Peck officiating. Interment will be made in Mt. Adnah. The immediate survivors are the husband and two sisters, Mrs. O. A. Kipp and Miss Cordelia Sanders of Hannibal.

The sad intelligence has been received of the death of Mrs. Emily C. Wheelock, aged 72, wdow of the late Josiah A. Wheelock, which occurred at the home of her daughter, 93 West Schuyler street, Oswego, on Sunday, after several weeks of painful illness. The deceased was one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Oswego, going there from Connecticut many years ago. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church of that city and took a deep interest in all of its affairs. The funeral services will be held from the late home this Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock, the Rev. Mr. Crissey being the officiating clergyman, and the body will be brought to Fulton for interment in Mt. Adnah. The immediate survivors are one daughter, Mrs. F. A. Moss, Oswego; two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Ferris of this city and Mrs. Charles Whitaker, Boston, Mass., and two brothers, Messrs. I. N. Moss of Owasa, Mich., and D. L. Moss of Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Edwin McMurchey, aged 60, died in a hospital in Syracuse on Saturday after several months of ill health to remedy which he underwent an operation on Friday. The weakened system failed to rally from the shock and he passed away. The deceased was a well known resident of the city in which he had resided for twenty one years, being at the time of his death secretary and treasurer of the Smith Premier Typewriter Company. He was born in Cincinnati, O., in 1851. He came to Syracuse as auditor for the Smith Premier Typewriter company, when that company was just beginning to market its machines and he had seen the wonderful growth year by year of the industry, advancing from auditor to the board of directors, to treasurer and then secretary and treasurer. In the early days of the company he established the numerous branch offices and traveled hundreds of thousands of miles, both in this country and abroad, in performing his duties as auditor. Mr. McMurchy was a man of kindly disposition, loyal to every trust and his associates in the home office and the hundreds of managers and salesman in the Smith Premier organization, whose friend he was, will greatly mourn his departure. He was a member of Central City lodge, No. 305, F. and A. M., and of the Masonic club. He leaves, besides his widow, two sons, Ellsworth McMurchy of Syracuse and Russell McMurchy of Buffalo; two brothers, Harvey McMurchy of the Hunter Arms company of this city, who is at present in California; Harry McMurchy of Cincinnati, O., and a sister, Miss Enretta McMurchy of Hartwell, O.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Rust and family wish to express their gratitude to their neighbors and friends for the many kindnesses shown them during the illness and death of their beloved son and brother, Robert. They would express especial thanks to the Baraca Bible class and the Philathea class of the First Baptist church and others for beautiful floral offerings.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

The Chamber of Commerce, at its annual meeting held on Friday evening, January 20, adopted unanimously the following resolution of sympathy for Congressman Charles L. Knapp, in the death of his wife:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, to call home the wife and companion of our Congressman, Charles L. Knapp, and

Whereas, We keenly appreciate the value of the sympathetic hand in all times of affliction and distress, therefore

Resolved, That we, the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Fulton, N. Y., hereby extend to our friend and brother, Congressman Knapp, the sympathy that is ours to give in this time of his bereavement.

Signed, G. B. FAIRMAN,
GEO. B. DEUEL,
Committee.

DIPHTHERIA AT MADISON BARRACK

Watertown, Jan. 30.—An epidemic of diphtheria is now raging in the officers' quarters at Madison Barracks and a large portion of this section is under the strictest quarantine. Today it was reported that there were eleven cases under medical attendance.

During the past summer there have been a few sporadic case but it is only during the past few days that the trouble has assumed the proporitions of an epidemic. The peculiar thing is that the cases are all confined to the officers' quarters and that not one of the enlisted men is affected yet. To prevent the further spread of the disease all of the cats and dogs on the parade ground have been ordered killed.

The Boston doctor who is breeding new animals would make a hit if he could breed a turkey all breastmeat.

THE MICROBE'S SERENADE

A lovelorn microbe met by chance,
At a swagger bacterial dance
A proud bacilian belle and she
Was first of the animalculae,
Of organisms saccharine
She was the protoplasmic queen,
The microscopial pride and pet
Of the biological smartest set.
And so this infinitesimal swain
Evolved this pleading, low refrain:

Oh, lovely metamorphic germ,
What futile scientific term
Can well describe your many charms
Come to these embryonic arms
Then hie away to my cellular home and be my little diatome.

His epithelium beamed with love,
He swore by molecules above
She'd be his own gregarious mate
Or else he would disintegrate
This amorous mite of a parasite
Pursued the germ both day and night
And 'neath her window often played
This Darwin-Huxley serenade.

Oh, most primordial type of spore,
I never met your like before;
And, though a microbe has no heart,
From you, sweet germ, I'll never part,
We'll sit beneath some fungus growth
Till dissolution claims us both.

Thursday will be Candlemas Day and how the bear behaves on that occasion will be the index for climatic conditions during the coming six weeks. If Thursday is sunny bruin will retire to his cave to sleep for six weeks longer; if stormy weather prevails he will know that Winter is a thing of the past and we may proceed to unpack the Summer flannels. And then here is another forecast: "If in January the sun appear, February and March will pay full dear."

The fire department was called out twice at noon on Monday, the high wind prevailing making the runs up First street very unpleasant. The first call was to the home of Mr. C. H. Hulett where a cloth laid on a register had ignited, filling the house with smoke. No damage other than to the cloth. The second call was to Shaw's barber shop in Broadway where quite a blaze had kindled from some unknown source. The shop was damaged by fire and water.

"...you can say you got a mule ...right along with your work; ...must be able to pay for it this ...so I am going to let you keep ...your plowing and other work ...coming Winter, when you ...much to do, you can cut ...wood for us to pay for the use ...How will that suit you?"

"...suits me zactly. I'll cut all ...wood you'll need for de whole ...an do anything else you say ...be all right; but, Mr. Brad... what's I gwine to tell Phillis ...plow?"

"...you can tell her the plow's ...hain't done pay nothin' for ...

"That will come alright when you cut the wood; the harness, Phillis will pay for in doing the washing and ironing. Next season, if you get along well, I will sell you the mule; in the mean time you can keep using it just the same as if you owned it."

"Mr. Bradway, you's mighty good to the ole man, and I suttenly do believe the Lord will bless you for de help you's giv'na us to get a start in de world, and Phillis and I gwine to pray for you."

"Thank you, Uncle Ephe, tell Phillis to come over to-morrow."

The next morning, when Mrs. Bradway went into the kitchen to give some directions about the house work, Phillis was there helping do up the morning work. "Good morning, Aunt Phillis," said Mrs. Bradway, "you are here quite early."

"Lor' Miss Margret, (all married ladies are addressed by their Christian names by the colored people), I'ze been here for long time, what shall I go at?"

"Well, I thought I would have you come over and we would talk over the matter of the work you might be willing to do for us."

"Lor', Miss Margret, I'ze willin' to do any wuck you all wants done."

"Well, I would like to have you wash one day each week and iron one day; how much do you charge a day for your work?"

"Lor', Miss Margret, I'ze never got nothin' for all the wuck I ever did, I'ze always ben slave an had to do jus' what I was tole, and then some times I had to take a whiffin besides doin' the wuck."

"Phillis, the day is past when you can be legally whipped and every feeling of self respect outraged. I hope you may be blessed with prosperity to enjoy the freedom you never should have been deprived of."

"I thanks you Miss Margret and with the help of God I'ze always goin' to do right and then may be I'll be happy like you all."

"Aunt Phillis, by doing right in all things, it will do much to make your life happy; but about the wages I shall pay you? What do you think it should be?"

"Lor, Miss Margret, I don't know nothin' 'bout dat, you jus' let me do de washin' and ironing and when I'ze done 'nough to pay for de harness you jus' say so."

"Very well, when will you commence?"

"I'ze ready now."

"Go ahead then, the girls will show you where the things are to do with."

The mule and necessary tools to work with being at hand, the work of pitching a crop began with a will. Epherum was up and at work by times every morning; by the middle of April their ten acres was all plowed and fitted to plant, and a garden spot laid off which Phillis had got partly planted. The evening of the day the work of fitting the land was completed, Epherum lighted his pipe and sat down on a bench out side their cabin door to enjoy a smoke and plan in his mind what he would do on the coming morrow. As he sat there the children, two boys and a girl, came out and climbed upon the bench and the little girl into his lap. Directly Phillis came out and sat down beside them; after a brief silence she said, "Ephum, what you studyin' 'bout?"

"Lor', Phillis, I was thinkin' 'bout what I had to do to-morrow."

"Can't you plant corn?"

"No, its too early."

"Then what can you do?"

"That's what I'se studyin' 'bout and I'ze 'bout made up my mind the best we can do is to crop next that ten acres of Mr. Bradway's what joins us cross de road and put in corn; what you thinks that will make twenty acres corn, S'pusin' de garden and sweet tater patch?"

"Can you take care all dat, Ephum?

"Lor', yes, and do some wuck for Mr. Bradway besides."

"Well, then I'd go over and see him in de mornin' and get de lan' to wuck if I could."

Early the next morning Epherum was at Mr. Bradway's waiting for him to get up; as soon as they met and exchanged greetings, Epherum said: "Mr. Bradway, I'ze came over to see if you'd let me put crop corn in on dat ten acre lot jus' cross de road from we all?"

"Uncle Ephe, can you work so much land in addition to what you already have?"

"Lor' yes, Mr. Bradway, I'ze got my ten acres all plow'd and fitted ready to plant and I can jus' as well wuck that ten acre lot as not."

"How is old mally mule standing the work?"

"Well, Sir, dat mule am a heap fatter than de day I took her; she gutteny is a good mule and I tends to have her look better all de time."

"Well, Uncle Ephe, I think I shall have to let you work the lot: but is not the land most too stiff to plow with one mule? Well plowed that lot ought to produce six or seven barrels of corn to the acre."

"Dat's so, Mr. Bradway."

"Uncle Ephe, I think you better have the land plow'd good and deep and to do that you must have another mule; you go down to the stable and tell Richard I sent you to get a mule that will work with old mally, a harness and a double plow; then hook the mule to the wagon and take the plow over home and go at the plowing when you are ready."

"For shuer dat won't be long, for I'ze goin' right at it dis morning."

"Very well, but Uncle Ephe, we haven't made any bargain how we should divide the crop."

"For gord, Mr. Bradway, I hadent thought 'bout dat."

"Well, you must keep in mind that it's necessary to have agreements made; this is a business transaction and you must look out for your interests and be careful that you do not agree to anything you cannot carry out."

"Lor' Mr. Bradway, dis poor ole nigger doan' know nothin' bout makin' greements. Jus' you make de bargain and greement for me."

"Well, Uncle Ephe, in consideration of my furnishing the extra mule and plow and the land being a little better than the average I should say it would be about the fair thing that I should have one third of the crop, now tell me what you think would be a fair division?"

"Mr. Bradway, what am a third?"

"A third in this case would mean you take two tubs and give me one. If you raise 90 tubs of corn you keep sixty and give me thirty."

"Lor', Mr. Bradway, shouldn't you have as much of de corn as we all?"

"No, Uncle Ephe, I don't think so; you must keep in mind that you should get what you fairly can in crop vertling land; in this case you have put me on my honor to make a bargain for you as well as for myself, and I am aiming to be fair to both sides; yes I should think you ought to have two thirds of the crop."

"Thank you, Mr. Bradway, now I'ze going home and tell Phillis how we's made a bargain and you's done the fair thing and then I'ze a goin' get right at the plowin' of that lan'."

FOR THAT TERRIBLE ITCHING

Eczema, tetter and salt rheum keep their victims in perpetual torment. The application of Chamberlain's Salve will instantly allay this itching, and many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

Her Correction.

Two young women were talking over their restaurant luncheon the other day about the quality of a certain prima donna's voice.

"Oh, she can sing," cried one of them enthusiastically. "She certainly can sing. Music like that would coax Apollo from his lyre."

The other girl dushed and looked troubled. After a slight pause she spoke in gentle reproof.

"I don't want to correct you, dear," she said. "But don't you think that word is usually pronounced 'lair?' It is spelled l-a-i-r, you know."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears, and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

A Hard World.

"Barker is awfully dis couraged."

"What's the matter with him? It earns enough to keep his family together, doesn't he?"

"Yes, but he wants to make enough to keep them apart."—Philadelphia Ledger.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which in many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

A MAN OF MYSTERY.

Peculiar Life of Metastasio, the Celebrated Italian Poet.

Metastasio (1698-1782), the celebrated dramatic and operatic poet, spent fifty-five years in Vienna with the Martines family without ever learning German or wishing to learn it.

Besides his utter indifference to all speech but Italian, Metastasio possessed many peculiarities of character. None might mention death in his presence. Those who alluded to smallpox before him he made it a point not to see again. In all his fifty-five years in Vienna he never gave away more than the equivalent of $25 to the poor. He always occupied the same seat at church, but never paid for it. He took all his meals in the most mysterious privacy. His greatest friends had never seen him eat anything but a biscuit with some lemonade. Nothing would induce him to dine away from home. He never changed his wig or the cut or color of his coat.

Metastasio was to have been presented to the pope the day he died and raved about the intended interview in the delirium of his last moments. Mrs. Piozzi (familiar to readers of Boswell's "Life of Dr. Johnson" as Mrs. Thrale) collected these particulars from the ladies of the Martines family, with whom Metastasio was so long domesticated without speaking or understanding a word of their language from first to last.

ETIQUETTE IN SIAM.

On Hands and Knees Before the King Was Long the Custom There.

Perhaps the most revolutionary reform carried out by the late king of Siam was the abolition of the arbitrary rule of etiquette which forbade an inferior in rank to raise his head above that of a superior or even level with it. The inferior must not even pass over a bridge while a superior was underneath it, nor must he enter a room in an upper story while a superior was occupying a room beneath it. Servants approached their masters on hands and knees. This custom is by no means obsolete today in spite of the royal edict, for many of the powerful nobles who live far away from the court still enforce it.

In 1874 the king held a large court, at which no one present presumed to appear otherwise than on hands and knees. It was at this audience that the edict forbidding the custom was read to the prostrate multitude. They there and then rose and stood like men in the presence of their sovereign for the first time on record. Since then there has been no prostration at the royal audiences. But if a superior stops to speak to an inferior in the street the latter will still bend or lower his head in some way as a mark of respect.—London Saturday Review.

Spoiled in the Making.

Behold, when a man on a trolley car removed his hat the other day little Willie observed that he was bald—yes, very bald, for not a single hirsute rambler trailed over his shining pate. But when it came to whiskers the bald party was right there with the flags. He had whiskers in bundles, whiskers in stacks. In fact, he had enough whiskers to start a rat factory and make a fortune.

"Say, mamma," finally remarked Willie, turning to his mother, "just look at that man there."

"Hush, dear!" returned mamma. "He will hear you. What's the matter with him?"

"Everything is the matter with him," replied the youngster. "When the angels made him they put his head on upside down."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

His Blunt Critic.

Irving Bachelier was introduced one day by a mutual friend to a western mountaineer.

"Mr. Bachelier," exclaimed the friend to the mountaineer, "is an author of repute in the east."

"Oh, yes," drawled the mountaineer. "I know of him. I was locked up in my cabin here by the snow two winters ago, and I only had two books to read the whole five months, your book, sir," he said, turning to Mr. Bachelier, "and the Bible, and I read them through several times."

"Indeed!" said the author, a smile of satisfaction wreathing his face.

"Yes, sir," continued the old mountaineer, "and I never knew before how interesting the Bible was!"—St. Paul Dispatch.

Grenada Was Bought Cheap.

The island of Grenada, in the British West Indies, was bought by the French from the Caribs by a solemn treaty in the middle of the seventeenth century, and the price paid was two bottles of rum. Esau's mess of pottage was a good stroke of business by comparison. The Caribs soon regretted having sold their birthright and gainly tried to get the island back by force. It is now one of England's most prosperous colonies in the West Indies.

E Pluribus Unum.

The country is indebted to John Adams for its national motto, with an Englishman of note sharing in the honor. It seems that while Adams was minister to England Sir John Prestwick, an eminent English antiquary, suggested to him a good motto to represent the union of the American colonies. Adams at once was taken with the idea, which he transmitted to Charles Thompson, the secretary of congress, who on June 20, 1782, reported to that body his design for a government seal. In this the Latin legend "E Pluribus Unum" was to be borne on a ribbon held in the beak of an eagle.

Just where Sir John got the idea is not certain, but it is a fact that the motto was in use on the cover of the Gentleman's Magazine, first published in 1730, and it may have struck his fancy by its applicability to the situation then obtaining in America.

New Zealand's Glaciers.

The great size of the glaciers around Mount Cook, in New Zealand, has been often remarked. The Tasman is eighteen miles long, the Murchison ten miles, the Godley eight miles, the Mueller eight miles and the Hooker seven miles. Most of these glaciers have moraines of exceeding roughness, but the approaches to them are not steep, as is usually the case with European glaciers. The southern Alpine snow line is only a little over 7,000 feet. Glacially polished rocks are rare, and in many ways the mountains are singularly different from those of central Europe.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

Bad Manners.

The guests were entertained after dinner at the Pastime theatre and left for their homes at dusk.

SURGEONS' FEES.

Pretty Big Sometimes, but There Is Another Point of View.

I have a warm spot in my heart for the big American surgeons, says a writer in the New York Telegraph, and because of regular attendance for years at some of the most famous clinics in this and other cities I have been a witness of their unadvertised charities—acts of mercy and kindness which were never heard of outside the walls of the hospitals they honor by their services.

I knew a wealthy man whose daughter was suddenly stricken and whose life was saved by the attending surgeon. His fee was $25,000. Straightway the father emitted a wail.

"It's robbery," he said. The surgeon stood firm.

"Your daughter's life is worth $25,000 to you," he countered. There was no denial.

"Well, this fee means that I can operate on fifty persons without any charge, and if you don't like it you can force me to sue, but I will get it without a suit or you will stand a lot of publicity."

And he got the money without recourse to a court of law.

It is safe to mark it down when you see a story of some great surgeon who has charged a high fee that there are many of his patients enjoying good health and relief from pain because he charged them nothing at all.

THE CLANRICARDE PLAQUE.

A Famous Specimen of the Sixteenth Century Goldsmith's Art.

One of the greatest cinquecento jewels in the world is the Clanricarde plaque, owned by Lord Clanricarde, who is known as the "hermit peer" and who claims direct descent from the kings of Connaught. He guards with jealous care this precious example of the goldsmith's art, keeping it safe from possible thieves and the common gaze in a bank vault, to which he goes occasionally with great secrecy to feast his eyes upon its magnificence. Some years ago, by royal request, he lent it to an art exhibition in London, where it was admired and coveted by some of the greatest connoisseurs of Europe.

The huge disk is as delicately wrought as a spider's web and represents the figure of Hercules wielding a diamond sword. The sword blade is composed of a mass of perfectly matched steel white stones, and a superb blue diamond scintillates from the hilt. The present owner inherited it from his mother, who was a Miss Canning before her marriage to the Irish lord, and the plaque is practically priceless. Aside from its value to collectors and its worth as a specimen of rare and exquisite art, it is incrusted with a fortune in jewels.—New York Press.

"Clipping Sunday."

At Painswick, in Gloucestershire, the Sunday following Sept. 8 is called by the curious name of "Clipping Sunday" and connected with a quaint custom. In the churchyard are ninety-nine yew trees, and tradition says that all attempts to complete the hundred by planting another yew have failed because the newcomer invariably dies. Every year before the feast of the Nativity of Our Lady—Sept. 8—these mystic yews are clipped, and the Sunday "in the octave" thus becomes "Clipping Sunday." After service there is a procession of parishioners around the churchyard, and then all join hands and form a ring round the church. Finally they gather at the foot of a flight of steps leading to the chancel door, from which a sermon is preached.—London Chronicle.

City of Three Kings.

Do you know what city has been given the name of the City of Three Kings? It is Cologne, in Germany, and the reason is that it is in Cologne that the three "kings," or "magi," or "wise men," who went to Bethlehem to offer gifts to the infant Jesus are supposed to be buried. According to an ancient legend, their bones were brought from Milan to Cologne by the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa in 1162 and presented to the archbishop of Cologne. Visitors to the cathedral are shown the supposed souls of the magi, studded with diamonds and inscribed with the wise men's names in rubies.—St. James' Gazette.

The Mantle of Charity.

The lady was making some remarks about the kind of clothing some other ladies at church had on.

"The finest garment a woman can wear," said her husband, "is the mantle of charity."

"Yes," she snapped, "and it is about the only dress, judging by the fuss they make over the bills, that some husbands want their wives to wear."

Quite Simple.

HONORED THE MONKEY.

Origin of the Coat of Arms of the Earl of Leinster.

Most of the wild animals have a place in heraldry, and many strange and impossible creatures, such as griffins, dragons and unicorns, have been invented as emblems of daring and valor. But the donkey and the monkey have not been so used, except in one instance, where the monkey has been admitted to the ranks of titled nobility. The story of this adoption is told by Mr. Curtis in his book, "One Irish Summer."

On the Leinster coat of arms are three monkeys standing with plain collar and chained; motto, "Crom-a-boo," "Tipperary." This is the only coat of arms, I am told, that has ever borne a monkey in the design. It was adopted by John Fitzthomas Fitzgerald in 1316 for romantic reasons.

While this Earl of Leinster was an infant he was in the castle of Woodstock, which is now owned by the Duke of Marlborough. The castle caught fire. In the confusion the child was forgotten, and when the family and servants remembered him and started a search they found the nursery in ruins. But on one of the towers was a gigantic ape, a pet of the family, carefully holding the young earl in his arms. The animal, with extraordinary intelligence, had crawled through the smoke, rescued the baby and carried it to the top of the tower.

When the earl had grown to manhood he discarded the family coat of arms and adopted the monkeys for his crest, and they have been retained to this day. Wherever you find the tomb of a Fitzgerald you will see the monkeys at the feet of the effigy or under the inscription.

SPENDTHRIFT ISABELLA.

A Sight That Checked Her Royal Extravagance For Awhile.

We are accustomed to think that the day is long past when a sovereign could oppress and offend a whole kingdom by personal extravagance. But the late Isabella of Spain belonged in spirit to the sixteenth century. An incident of her reckless career, which ended in the loss of the throne, is noted in Munsey's Magazine.

She spent money, pouring it out like water, at a time when the treasury was nearly bankrupt and when the proverb "Poor as a Spaniard" was far too true. All her best advisers urged her to practice economy. Very few of them succeeded, and these only for a short time.

A certain chamberlain of hers once hit upon a plan to make her realize how enormous were the sums that she was spending. Passing through the hall of the palace, she was surprised to see a vast heap of silver pieces, resembling the contents of a great bin of wheat, but piled up in the middle of the floor. The queen summoned her chamberlain.

"What is the meaning of all this money?" she demanded of him.

"Oh," he replied, with a low bow, "this is merely the amount which I have brought out to pay the bill of your majesty's glovemaker."

The queen colored and then laughed, and for several months she was less extravagant in her expenditures for clothes.

Not Immortal.

Poet—Didn't you like the verses I wrote yesterday?

Editor—No; they would offend our readers.

Poet—Sir, those lines are immortal!

Editor—Don't fool yourself. I "killed" 'em myself.—Cleveland Leader.

Disinterested Affection.

"I'm afraid, Edward, you're marrying me only because I've inherited from my uncle 100,000 crowns."

"Why, Blanche, how can you think that of me? Your uncle is nothing to me. I would marry you no matter from whom you inherited the money."—Der Floh.

The Faultfinders.

Mention has been made of a person who, even in heaven, would complain that his cloud was damp and his halo a misfit.—William Winter.

Who serves his country well has no need of ancestors.—Voltaire.

CARBOLIC ACID.

Peculiar Effect Pure Alcohol Has on This Irritant Poison.

One of the most frequent irritant poisons used for suicidal purposes is carbolic acid, and a more agonizing death could not be selected. Why any one should select this poison it is hard to understand unless on account of the fact that it is cheap and easily obtainable. This form of poisoning can usually be easily recognized by the odor, which is well known, and by the white burns or marks on the lips and mouth, which are typical of carbolic acid poisoning.

Send for the nearest physician, and in the meantime, as carbolic acid kills quickly, the first aid treatment must be prompt in order to get results. If possible cause the patient to vomit by giving an emetic, such as ipecac or salt and water, a tablespoonful to a pint of warm water. This, however, frequently fails to work on account of the irritated condition of the mucous membrane of the stomach. One of the best chemical antidotes is epsom salt in solution. Another good chemical antidote is alcohol, the only trouble with this remedy being that it cannot be given in a pure form. It has to be diluted with water and for that reason loses its efficacy.

Just exactly why alcohol counteracts the effect of carbolic acid is not known, but if, for instance, carbolic acid is splashed on the hands and they are at once immersed in absolute alcohol there will be no resulting burn.—Dr. H. H. Hartung in National Magazine.

ROUTED THE SINGER.

Tosti's Encounter With a Persistent and Peppery Stranger.

"Tosti used to tell an amusing little story of feminine persistence," says Harold Simpson in his book, "A Century of English Ballads." It was during one of his busiest mornings, with a long list of singing lessons to be got through, that a knock came at the door of Tosti's flat. His valet was ill, and so Tosti went to the door himself. A lady, a stranger to him, stood on the threshold.

"'Signor Tosti?' she inquired.

"Tosti bowed.

"'Oh,' said the lady, 'I am singing your song, "My Memories," at Manchester tonight, and I want you to kindly run through it with me.'

"'Madame,' answered Tosti politely, but firmly, 'I fear it is impossible. I have two pupils with me now, and a third is waiting in the anteroom, while others will shortly be arriving.'

"'But you must!' the lady persisted.

"'I am sorry'— began Tosti again when he suddenly received a violent push backward and the lady walked into the studio.

"Tosti followed, protesting. After a long argument, which threatened to become heated, the lady snapped out:

"'Very well; I shan't sing your song, then!'

"'Madame,' said Tosti, taking her by the hand, 'I am infinitely obliged to you.'

"The lady gave one look at him and fled."

When Lawyers Are Quiet.

One George Wilson, a lawyer, who had much litigation in some of which he was personally interested as a party or as a trustee, finally passed away, and a short funeral sermon was delivered by a member of the bar in the presence of a few old personal friends. The lawyer told how the old man had been abused and maligned, but that, in fact, he had helped the poor and unfortunate often and was not a bad man.

On returning from the services an old lawyer was asked by another lawyer about the services and what was said. The old lawyer replied, "For once old George could not file a demurrer or motion to any of the proceedings which had taken place."

The lawyer who made the inquiry replied, "Well, this must be the first time George did not move for arrest of judgment."—Green Bag.

Wagner as an Acrobat.

Ferdinand Praeger related an incident of a visit to Wagner at his Swiss home. The two men sat one morning on an ottoman in the drawing room talking over the events of the years. Suddenly Wagner, who was sixty years old, rose and stood on his head upon the ottoman. At that moment Wagner's wife entered. Her surprise and alarm caused her to run to her husband, exclaiming, "Ah, Richard, Richard!" Quickly recovering himself, he assured her that he was sane and wished to show that he could stand on his head at sixty, which was more than Ferdinand could do.

A Hiccough Cure.

A correspondent writes to us to the effect that he has found hanging by the hands with the legs clear of the ground, the hands well apart and the breath held for say fifteen seconds, an infallible cure for hiccoughs. With children, hold them up off the ground by both hands. Our correspondent states that he has never found this method to fail.—London Globe.

Prosaic.

They began their honeymoon trip in the day coach.

"Darling," he murmured, "I can see the coals of love in your eyes."

"Them ain't coals, Jonathan," she said; "them's cinders."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Changed Impressions.

"What has become of that man who talked hard times so vigorously?"

"Oh, we won't hear any more of that from him," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "He's on the other side of the market now."—Washington Star.

How Power is Stored up In a Watch to keep it CONSTANTLY RUNNING.

WATCH MAINSPRING.

When you wind your watch you coil up a strip of steel about 2½ inches long, thus storing up nearly one pound of power within the main wheel. This power is carried by a train of wheels to the balance, to which it is delivered in homeopathic doses that keeps it in uniform motion. If the spring is made of poor steel or improperly tempered it soon loses its elasticity and the watch does not then run alike when first wound and when near the end of 36 hours.

This would not happen in a South Bend Watch. The South Bend mainspring is made of a specially blended steel and is tempered by men who have devoted their lives to that particular operation. They do not loose their elasticity.

OBJECT TO SO MUCH PITTS CONTROL

Utica, Jan. 30—The Press says: An effort to dump the new constitution of the Prohibition party so far as Oneida county is concerned, will be made when the County Prohibition Committee meets in extra session at the Y. M. C. A. building in this city February 8th at 11 a. m. The meeting has been called by County Chairman Barnacle for the purpose of having the committee consider the matter of rejecting the constitution.

"At the last session of the County Committee," said Mr. Barnacle, "the constitution was adopted without a thorough knowledge of its provisions".

Now Prohibition leaders find that the constitution is not satisfactory to them. Their objections were voiced by Mr. Barnacle when he said yesterday:

"The main objection to the constitution prepared by State Chairman Pitts is that it aims to weaken county control of party affairs and places altogether too much power in the hands of the State Chairman. According to the constitution, the powers of county management are distributed among three Assembly district Chairmen whose duties are to carry out the directions of the Election law (in so far as it applies to party affairs of that Assembly district) of the State central Committee (or its Executive Committee), and of the officers of the State Central committee, those higher authorities being given precedence in order named. The County Committee or its Executive Committee under the Constitution can do nothing except call conventions and carry out the prescriptions of the State election law. One can readily see that this Constitution would diffuse county control of party affairs, weaken effective party management and place too much power in the hands of the State officers."

OH, O'REILLY!

[One New York patrolman broke up a parade of one thousand anarchists.—News item.]

Let cables twang with telling tale
Of soldiers, firemen, bluecoats bold
Sent out on anarchistic trail
In London town so old;
We point our bluecoats out with pride—
One had a thousand terrified.

With red flag borne aloft, they walked,
A babbling, bloody-breathing crowd;
When to their head O'Reilly stalked
And quickly had them cowed.
He didn't wait for soldiers' aid—
"It's pinched ye are!" was all he said.

Before he came a thousand throats
Had yelled defiance at the law;
They sang their song to wildest notes,
And devastation saw.
No firemen's hose filled them with dread—
O'Reilly came! Their cause lay dead.

BABY CARRIAGE BURNED

Attorney Francis E. Cullen is in Altmar, where he is appearing before Justice of the Peace James W. Stout for the New York Central in an action brought by Irving Fields, of Altmar and Oneida, for $18 damages for the destruction of a baby carriage. On the 28th of March last Mrs. Fields left her baby carriage outside the station and went inside until a freight train on the main track pulled out to let her pass the crossing. When she came out the carriage was a mass of cinders and the corner of the station was scorched. A spark from the locomotive started all the trouble and resulted in the action. S. C. Huntington, of Pulaski, appears for the plaintiff, which will appear in the trial, and The action brought out one fact which will appear in the trial, and that is that the passenger station is on the property of the village, and Mr. Fields threatens to bring a taxpayers' action to compel the railroad company to remove their station.—Palladium.

FIELD'S MINSTRELS IN SYRACUSE

Two Performances at the Wieting Opera House, Wednesday, Feb. 8th—Matinee and Night

Al. G. Field and his great big minstrel company will give two performances at the Wieting Opera House, Syracuse, Wednesday, February 8th, matinee and night, and will be the banner attraction at that popular playhouse this season. The Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels is the oldest, largest and finest ever presented to the amusement loving public, having been continuously before the lovers of refined minstrelsy for 25 years.

The company comprises 65 of the foremost minstrel performers of America and Europe. Mr. Field always keeps his show up to date, and to commemorate the twenty fifth milestone of his successful career, has made a herculean effort to even surpass his past successes.

The cute little burlesque on Rostand's Chanticleer, entitled "Can't-I-Cheer," a barnyard idyl, with its chickens, ducks, peacocks and other members of the feathered family, is a decided novelty. "Fun at the Seashore," with Knapp & Listette, the Duo of Drolls, is a genuine laugh provoker that is intended to dispel the blues. "Ships and Sailors," the big patriotic naval spectacle, is the most sensational piece of stage realism ever attempted. All the ships used in this production are exact duplicates of Uncle Sam's warships and pass in plain view of the audience during a storm at sea. The heroic deed of Commodore Perry and his brave men transferring from one battleship to another during the historical naval battle on Lake Erie, brings the audience to its feet.

special matinee for ladies and children will be given, at which popular prices will prevail. To miss taking the children to this grand silver jubilee is not treating them right.

PALERMO

Mrs. Fred Washer spent the past week at Syracuse.

Mrs. Chester Jewett entertained a number of relatives and friends Thursday afternoon and evening in honor of Mr. Jewett's birthday.

The many friends of Mason Blodgett were surprised to learn of his sudden death at Fulton Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Hill, who underwent a critical operation at the Good Shepherd hospital at Tuesday is improving nicely.

Mr. L. G. Hart has returned home from a recent visit with relatives at Watertown.

Mrs. Maude Ridgeway visited friends at Fulton the past week.

Mr. Frank Hill spent Tuesday at Syracuse.

Mrs. Sarah Morgan of Gilberts Mills was a recent visitor of Mrs. Llewellyn Hart.

SPECIAL TERM, SUPREME COURT

The Special Term of Supreme Court will convene in Oswego on Feb. 6. Justice Rogers was scheduled to preside but another judge will be assigned.

TOBACCO GROWERS

Baldwinsville, Jan. 28.—The annual meeting of the Tobacco Growers' association of Onondaga county held in this village this afternoon was one of the important gatherings of the year in this, the center of the tobacco growing area. In spite of the unfavorable weather there was a good attendance of growers from Central New York. The session lasted from 1 until 4 o'clock, several speakers were heard and they brought out many points of interest with reference to fertilization and the treatment of tobacco in its various stages of development. George W. Harris, crop technologist for the United States government, who is stationed in Baldwinsville, made an interesting report of experiments made during the last season. Mr. Harris stated that an agreement was entered into between the Bureau of Plant Industry of Washington and the New York State Experimental station at Geneva, for the purpose of carrying on a series of crop rotation experiments in the Onondaga tobacco district, in which tobacco was to be a leading crop. The experiments are to be continued for a period of four years. In accordance with the agreement arrangements were made with F. J. Patchet of Cold Spring, Lysander township, and W. Burton of Baldwinsville, Van Buren township. The results of these experiments were given in detail.

The season of 1910 produced the largest general growth of tobacco known in this section in many years and several old growers have stated that they have not seen such a yield per acre since the days of the old State tobacco.

In the seasons of 1908 and 1909, which produced what may be called normal growths of tobacco, the Hayes tobacco proved to be very satisfactory type for filler purposes. Mr. Harris stated that he was convinced from the experiments of the last three years that a good crop of either Russian hairy vetch or red clover, plowed under, with the addition of 50 or 60 pounds of commercial fertilizer containing phosphoric acid and potash, especially the former, will produce in a normal season a crop of desirable filler tobacco weighing from 1,400 to 1,600 pounds.

The following officers were elected by the association: J. Schenk, president; Jesse Ferris, vice president; Burt Giddings, secretary; Fred Fisher, treasurer; executive committee, J. W. Upson, Charles Keller, F. W. Fenner and Ward Southern.

Charles Keller was elected delegate to the New York Drainage association meeting to be held at Ithaca.

GOVERNOR DIX'S PET BILLS

Albany, Jan. 30.—Two bills carrying out recommendations made by Governor Dix in his annual message to the legislature made their appearance today. They abolish the State highway commission and the advisory board of canal engineers.

The highway bill provides for the appointment of a superintendent of highways, to hold office during the pleasure of the governor. He is to receive an annual salary of $5,000 and a State highway commission consisting of the superintendent of highways, the State engineer and the State superintendent of public works is created.

The other bill, after abolishing the advisory board, provides that the State engineer may make temporary appointments of consulting engineers at such compensation as the governor may approve.

COMMON COUNCIL

In the absence of the Mayor and City Attorney last evening, the Common Council did not transact any important business. They audited a few bills and adjourned until Thursday evening at 8 o'clock when it is expected the bridge and other important matters will be taken up.

PROVIDE LIGHT FOR AMBULANCE

Some provision should be made for lighting the ambulance. The calls for the ambulance are more apt to come at night than by day, and yet there is no possible way of lighting so stereopticon news of the Maq- require the attention of a physician enroute but without light no assistance could be rendered. Recently the writer saw a patient placed in the ambulance and the stretcher failed to slip into place; likewise the seat for the nurse failed to settle and there was no light other than that furnished by some matches carried from a nearby house. The night was bitter cold but the patient had to be exposed to the cold for at least ten minutes before matters could be arranged and the conveyance proceed on its way to the hospital.

A light is a necessity for use in the ambulance and one should be provided at once. A strong electric torch such as is carried by patrolmen would be better than none at all.

REV. WELLBURN TO LECTURE

Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Presbyterian church, Rev. G. W. Wellburn will speak on "Trans-Atlantic Travel;" illustrated with 30 stereopticon views of the Mauretania. Mr. Wellburn is a speaker of rare ability and he will have some thing of interest to tell. His lecture has been carefully prepared and his lantern slides will also be of a high order.

Half a hour prior to the lecture Mrs. Thomas Hunter, who is very talented, will give an organ recital. An evening of enjoyment and profit is assured all who attend this entertainment.

CITIZENS BAND

The Citizen's Band will have another of their popular concerts and promenades on Friday evening of this week at Church's Hall. These events are constantly growing in popularity as is evidenced by the constantly increasing attendance and the organization find themselves slowly but surely reaching the end toward which they have been working, that is, new uniforms and other equipment.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

Adopted by Fulton Reading Circle on Death of Prominent Member

Again the Fulton Reading Circle has been called upon to part with one of its members. On the morning of January the thirty-first we learned with regret of the sudden death of Mrs. M. V. Connell.

It seems fitting that we place upon our record a tribute to her faithfulness to the society during the many years of her membership.

We are quite sure that no member of the Reading Circle enjoyed and appreciated its pleasures and privileges more than Mrs. Connell, and we believe that her sweet presence and lovely, courageous spirit, have been and will continue to be an inspiration to each one of us.

Resolved, Therefore, that in the death of Mrs. Connell the Fulton Reading Circle realizes that it will miss one who took a deep interest in the subjects presented for consideration and was always willing to do her part toward making the Circle helpful and beneficial to all its members.

Resolved, That this memorial be placed upon our records, that a copy be sent to the bereaved husband, Mr. M. V. Connell, and that a copy be also sent for publication to the Fulton Times.

Mrs. George E. True,
Mrs. B. C. Brown,
Mrs. E. R. Redhead,

TROLLEY TO OSWEGO JUNE 1

Fulton to Oswego Extension May be in Operation Even Earlier Than That Date—Work on Lower Bridge Will be Commenced at Once

That the Fulton to Oswego extension of the Syracuse, Lakeshore & Northern Railroad is to be completed and in operation by June 1 at the very latest was officially announced in this city Monday by Chief Engineer T. H. Mather of the Beebe Electric Railway system. There is, in fact, a considerable possibility that the opening date may be somewbat earlier than that as an early spring would permit much greater progress than now expected. The most severe weather, however, will not delay the opening beyond the first of June, the company declares.

It is also officially announced that work upon the strengthening of the lower bridge in Fulton will be begun this week and that Vice-president Bliss of the Williams Bridge Company of Syracuse is now in Fulton making final preparations for the erection of the necessary false work and timber structures. The Williams company has been awarded the entire contract for the erection of additional truss which the trolley company proposes to add to the bridge in order to make possible the operation of its heavy interurban cars over this structure. The contract for the fabrication of the steel work has been awarded to the American Bridge Company of New York and the mills of the latter company are already busy turning out this material and shipments will be begun very shortly.

To dispel all further doubts on the subject, an official statement was given out by the Syracuse, Lakeshore & Northern Company in which it was positively stated that the company has abandoned all thought of building an independent bridge across the Oswego river at Fulton for the purpose of connecting up its present tracks from Syracuse with the extension to Oswego and that the grants made to the company by the City of Fulton permitting it to use the existing lower highway bridge in this city will be made immediate use of.

The Williams Bridge Company's contract calls for the placing of an additional truss for the entire 1,100 feet of the bridge, this truss being so designed as to take up the entire weight and strain of the company's cars while crossing the bridge so that none of the strain will be brought against any parts of the existing structure. The additional truss will, in fact materially strengthen the bridge for all purposes.

The company will lay a single track across the bridge and it is now preparing to deliver rails on the ground and just the instant the weather will permit the rails will be laid not only on the bridge but in the streets at each end to connect up the company's present tracks with the extension.

The I. M. Luddington Sons Company, which has the contract for the grading on the extension are already planning to resume operations in order to be finished by the time the bridge is in readiness for use.

OLD OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Fulton Fuel & Light company was held at the office of the company on Saturday when the old officers were re-elected to succeed themselves as follows: President, Mr. J. A. Foster; vice president, Mr. B. O. Tippey; secretary, Mr. J. A. Sloan; treasurer, Mr. W. E. Moss; manager, Mr. John McSweeney.

The past year has been one of advancement and growth to the company, and the annual meeting revealed a condition most pleasing to the members and the stockholders and very flattering to Manager McSweeney. Excellent satisfaction has been given the company's patrons; the Public Service Commission has given the highest rating upon the quality of gas manufactured; the mains have been extended and there have been no backward steps taken by the company. The present year gives promise of even greater advancement.

WARD'S HOTEL DAMAGED

Kitchen Range Blown Into Small Pieces—Boarders Went Hungry for Breakfast But Thankful to Preserve Lives—No One Injured

A terrific explosion which shook the hotel to its foundations and was heard and felt for blocks, occurred in the hotel in First street conducted by James H. Ward at 6:30 o'clock on Monday morning. Mr. Ward had kindled a fire in his large kitchen range a few moments before the explosion which blew the range into hundreds of fragments, demolished windows, threw stove doors many feet away and stow holes through ceiling, side walls and floor. The burning coals were scattered about and merry little blazes were started in several sections of the kitchen. Fortunately no one was in the kitchen at the time of the explosion, Mrs. Ward having left the room but a moment previous and the employes were rushing in and out as they prepared the breakfast for the boarders. Painful and instant death must have overtaken anyone in the kitchen at the time of the wreck.

The fire department was summoned to the scene of the fire but Mr. Ward had kept his presence of mind throughout the shock and confusion and he threw buckets of water upon the flames, subduing them before the firemen reached the scene.

The reason for the explosion which caused such havoc and heavy loss cannot be ascertained. Some believe that a high explosive in the coal caused it; others believe that the water front in the stove may have been frozen during the night and in its heating up the explosion may have been caused. There are as many theories as there are people regarding the disaster, but of one fact there is no question and that is the wholesale destruction of stove and kitchen.

BARACA CLASS BENEFIT

The fourth entertainment in the Baraca Bible class course will be Mr. Irving T. Roberts in "The man of the hour." Mr. Roberts will present this drama in the Baptist church on Wednesday evening next, February 5, at 8 o'clock, and he should and undoubtedly will be greeted by a large audience.

The press, the stage and the spectators speak very highly of Mr. Roberts ability and of his presentation of this highly educational and entertaining play. The following was taken from manny notices received relative to Mr Roberts in "The man of the hour:"

My professional association with Mr. Irving Roberts, who has been my principal support in "David Garrick" and "A Soldier of France" during the season of 1909 and 1910, compels me to state that he has shown himself to be an artist of rare ability. The company has appeared in the leading theatres of the country, including an engagement in New York and Brooklyn, where Mr. Roberts received the highest commendation. He is a thorough student and from an actor's standpoint I consider his rendition of "The man of the hour" the most wonderful piec of stagecraft I have ever witnessed. Summed up, he is master of the situation. Clifton Mallory.

ASSEMBLYMAN SWEET VICTORIOUS

His Efforts Have Saved Oswego County Over $40,000—State Must Pay for New Bridge at Phoenix.

Albany. — Assemblyman Sweet has succeeded in securing a new bridge over the Oneida river at Three Rivers, and that too, at no cost to the adjoining counties of Oswego and Onondaga. The bridge, which will cost about $75,000, must be paid for out of the barge canal funds.

This is the last hindrance to the scheme of building a State highway from Oswego to Syracuse. The efforts of Assemblyman Sweet in this matter have been marked by persistency and a great deal of red tape. He has saved Oswego County nearly $40,000 through his untiring efforts.

The original plans provided for a bridge to take the place of the old cross-over bridge. Then there came a change in administration. Attorney General Jackson ruled that the State should not build a highway bridge as the State had ceased to acquire the cross-over bridge for canal purposes.

Then Assemblyman Sweet came into office and about his first act was to take up this matter. He has fought a battle against odds with the result that he will save the Counties of Onondaga and Oswego about $75,000.

He succeeded in having included in the general supply bill an appropriation of $50,000 for a new bridge, but when the matter came before Governor Hughes he applied the knife. The executive contended that the State should build the bridge and the money should be taken from the barge canal funds. This is what Assemblyman Sweet had always contended.

Then Assemblyman Sweet got busy and made a formal demand upon the State engineer for the construction of the bridge. This was last July. The engineer referred the matter to the attorney general. Mr. Sweet secured affidavits from three of the old residents in that neighborhood who knew of the existence of the old original bridge. One of them built the bridge on contract with the State. The attorney general was slow in the matter, but through the persistency of Assemblyman Sweet an opinion was at last obtained. This was the last week of the previous administration. The attorney held with Mr. Sweet and Governor Hughes.

On Jan. 25th last, Mr. Sweet notified State Engineer Benson of the decision and he stated that he had already directed that plans for the new bridge be drawn. He assured Mr. Sweet that the work would be pushed and that the construction would proceed at once.

The work on Contract 12 of the barge canal has been completed to the bridge.

THE WEEK

Improving outlook in iron and steel, greater interest in dry goods, larger dealings in hides and leather, generally excellent crop advices, an expanding market for bonds, facilitated by the continuing ease in money, the indications of an increasing American credit balance abroad, due in part to the better conditions in foreign commerce; and the action of the Union Pacific system in voting to spend $75,000,000 in the next few years in double-tracking the road—these are signs of a forward movement which serve to inspire larger confidence among business men in all branches of trade and industry, in spite of the fact that the volume of transactions is still below the point of normal output. While bank clearings report a decrease of 2.6 per cent. outside of New York and 15.3 per cent. in New York as compared with 1910 and only moderate gains as compared with 1910, this fact would, in the light of the more hopeful feeling that exists, seem to represent more the past than the future. It is significant, moreover, that railroad earnings, notwithstanding the late increase in number of idle cars, are so well maintained, showing a gain during three weeks of January of 4.7 per cent. As financial improvement is apt to precede industrial, the expanding sales of bonds are of special significance, the Exchange transactions in January being larger than a year ago and nearly double those of December. There was, moreover, a large output of new securities during January. The failure record of last month also denoted improvement. The better outlook in iron and steel is based mainly on the reviving demand for finished materials, and the improvement in export orders. The reports from the principal cities show that the January improvement has been fairly general, although gradual, notwithstanding the fact that retail trade has been somewhat retarded by unseasonable weather.

Recent indications of improvement in iron and steel have become more pronounced with the result that the future outlook is now viewed with increasing optimism. The tendency toward greater activity has thus far been confined chiefly to the finished material markets, yet signs are not lacking of some revival of demand for pig iron, although conditions in this division still make the least satisfactory showing. However, reports from eastern territory suggest that buyers are displaying more interest, which partially offsets the complaints of quietness in other directions. Sentiment generally has been helped by the announcement of the double-tracking of the Union Pacific Railroad in the West, since this work will require a large tonnage of various forms of material involving an outlay of $75,000,000. This highly significant development closely preceded the financial statement of the United States Steel Corporation for the last quarter of 1910, which showed the smallest net earnings for any similar period back to 1904 and unfilled orders on hand of only 2,674,757 tons. Such an exhibit served to emphasize the dullness that prevailed in the industry during the closing months of last year, yet encouragement is now derived from the fact that daily bookings of new business were materially increased during January and by the expansion that is taking place in the active blast furnace capacity of the leading producer. Export trade is still a prominent feature in the present situation, one order having just been placed for the shipment of 30,000 tons of rails to Mexico.

In the dry goods markets competition for business is very keen and buyers are proceeding with deliberation. The larger producers are getting business on many lines on a close margin of profit, but if the yardage secured proves large the returns will be satisfactory. Concessions in favor of buyers have been made by foreign and domestic producers of dress goods and other lines, but the stimulating effect of close prices not especially marked as yet. Jobbers are doing a steadily expanding business in domestics, prints, ginghams and a few other staples. Limitation of production continues, but distribution does not expand materially. There is, however, a healthier tone throughout the trade than there was a year ago. Export trade is quiet, but the shipments for the week serve to bring the movement for January above that of the same month a year ago.

Some fair sized mail orders are being received for boots and shoes, but in general business is not as good as when buyers were personally inspecting the market. However, it is anticipated that the demand will improve as soon as all of the jobbers have returned to their respective homes. The call for specialties is very active and indications are that the demand for goods made from cloth fabrics will continue unabated. Prices are firmly held and the new discounts demanded by tanners on leather have occasioned many protests throughout shoe circles. Pronounced activity rules throughout hide and leather circles with sales on a much more extensive scale than has previously been the case for a long period.—Dun's Review, Feb. 4, 1911.

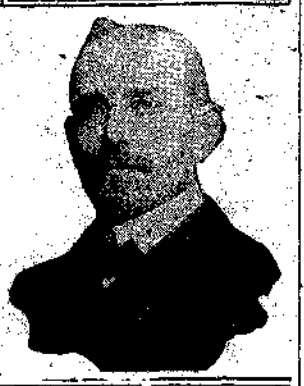
Nervous Prostration



"I suffered so with Nervous Prostration that I thought there was no use trying to get well. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and although skeptical at first, I soon found myself recovering, and am to-day well."

Much sickness is of nervous origin. It's the nerves that make the heart force the blood through the veins, the lungs take in oxygen, the stomach digest food, the liver secrete bile and the kidneys filter the blood. If any of these organs are weak, it is the fault of the nerves through which they get their strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for the nerves. It soothes the irritation and assists in the generation of nerve force. Therefore you can hardly miss it if you take Dr. Miles' Nervine when sick. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

BURNING OF WIDOWS.

The Horrible Rite India Maintained For Over Twenty Centuries.

The abolition of the horrid rite of widow burning in India was decreed by the British authorities in 1829.

The dreadful practice was found there by the Macedonians under Alexander the Great 300 years before Christ, and for more than twenty-one long, weary centuries did it repeat its almost inconceivable torture and agony upon the women of India. The sacrifice, while not actually forced on the wife, was so strongly insisted on by public opinion that it amounted to a law, and its victims were legion. Scores of widows were often burned upon the funeral pile of a single rajah. In Bengal, the head center of the monstrosity, thousands were sacrificed annually, and the figure for all India was appalling.

The millions of widowed women were completely at the mercy of the remorseless superstition of the times. The ministers of Brahmanism told the widow that her sacrifice was necessary as a means of her own happiness and that of her husband in the future state, and oftener than otherwise she consented to be burned along with the dead body of her husband. Unless she did this she was covered with the maledictions and curses of the people, was virtually outlawed and unceremoniously cast outside the pale of human sympathy and consideration and had to spend the rest of her days in degradation and wretchedness. It was death on the funeral pile of her husband or a living death of contumely and shame, of loneliness and misery.

The women of India can never discharge their debt of gratitude to England for the abolition of the suttee.—New York American.

ON THE TRAIL

But He Didn't Know the Kind of Game He Was Tracking.

In the old days a man known as Judge Douglass lived in Helena, Mont. The judge had met with an accident in his youth and had lost both of his legs above the knees. He never would get artificial legs, but had some big leather pads made to fit on the ends of the stumps and walked on them.

Locomotion was slow for the judge, but he managed to cover a good deal of ground and was very fond of walking out on the edge of the town, where he could take his exercise without being the subject of remark from strangers in the city.

One day an Englishman came to Helena to hunt. He had some letters and put up at the Helena club. He stayed around for several days. Finally, after a light fall of snow, he decided to go out into the mountains and get a sheep or a deer or something.

He left early in the morning. When it came night he had not returned. His hosts around the club waited until 8 o'clock and then decided to go out and look him up, thinking he might have been lost in one of the gulches or canyons in the hills.

They formed a rescue party and went out to the edge of the town. There they met the Englishman, who was wildly excited.

"Did you get anything?" they asked him.

"No," he replied, "not yet, but I've been tracking an elephant for the last three hours."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Juries in the Old Days.

In olden times when a jury in England remained impervious to the judge's gentle mode of persuasion fine and imprisonment were resorted to. The jury that acquitted Sir Nicholas Throckmorton was condemned to eight months' imprisonment in addition to the payment of a large sum of money. In the reign of Queen Elizabeth a jury, having reduced a prisoner's alleged crime of murder to that of manslaughter, was at once sent to prison and bound over in a large sum to be of good behavior. Penalties were likewise inflicted upon the innocent wife and children of the offending jurymen.

A Moving Sermon.

"I once had a parishioner who was a miser," said an English clergyman. "For this man's benefit I preached one Sunday a strong sermon on the necessity of charity, of philanthropy—a sermon on the duty and the joy of giving. The miser, at whom I gazed often, seemed impressed.

"Next day I met him on the street.

"'Well, John,' I said, 'what do you think of yesterday's sermon?'

"'It moved me deeply, sir,' he answered. 'It brought home to me so strongly the necessity of giving alms that honestly, sir, I've a great mind to turn beggar.'"

SPECIAL POST OFFICE ERECTED

The Mail-handling System at the New Pennsylvania Railroad Station, New York City.

(By Joseph B. Baker)

On Saturday, November 27th, 1910, the Pennsylvania Railroad in New York city, which had been operating partly via Hudson River ferries and partly by electric tunnel trains running through the twin Hudson River and East River tubes to its new station in Manhattan, took up the full service at the new terminal. This change required the inauguration of a special post office of adequate size and equipment, and a new building 275 feet square, designed by the architects of the station (McKim, Mead & White) is being erected by the government on a site west of the station on Eighth avenue and extending from 31st to 33rd Street and about half way from Eighth to Ninth avenue. Both buildings overarch the cut that extends between the tunnel openings, and the handling of arriving and departing mail on the tunnel trackage, far below the street level, has required the installation of an ingenious and elaborate mechanical system.

A private street runs along the west side of the Post Office building, giving entrance from 31st and 33rd Streets to the partly completed westerly portion of the building. This temporary structure, which is now in use in connection with the new railroad station, is designed with an inner covered driveway 300 feet long and 32 feet wide and a mailing floor two feet above the street level, 312 feet long and 35 feet wide, for loading and unloading mail wagons. The arrangements comprise a large trucking plaza, and offices for a considerable force of postal employees. Between the mailing floor and the platforms on the track level is a basement level, with ample space for a complete railway mail post-office equipment; and at the track level are four platforms and six tracks set apart for the mail service, making provisions for twenty-six mail cars at a time.

Outgoing mail may be delivered to trains on the under ground trackage, and incoming mail received via a 12-foot wide motor-truck subway running for a distance of nearly 1,000 feet east and west along the track, with transverse branches. Mail arriving at the Post Office in wagons is sent down to the basement and track levels and to the subway by spiral chutes or by plunger elevators. A large number of motor-trucks, of 4,000 pounds capacity, has been provided, and the elevators are of sufficient size and capacity to raise and lower the loaded trucks between the different levels.

These facilities, however, although ample for the allotted traffic of a good sized modern railroad station, are not adequate to handle the enormous quantities of mail which arrive at and depart from this vast terminal. Over forty per cent. of the entire weight of mail entering and leaving New York city is carried over the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad, between 250 and 300 tons of mail being handled daily, comprised in 12,000 to 16,000 pouches weighing from a few pounds to 300 pounds apiece. This concentrated mass of mail must be handled with extraordinary dispatch in connection with trains moving quickly in and out of a trackage network situated fifty feet under ground. The problem was presented of devising a mechanism which must be not only thoroughly reliable and of ample capacity for the work, and so designed as to fit into an underground space cramped in the nature of things by the building structure itself, but must also be free from all possibility of causing delay to train movements or interfering with lines of sight on signals. In other words, the task was to install a complex machine for executing one of the primary functions of a railroad station—mail handling—in waste underground space that had already been reduced to the lowest practicable amount by the unalterable plans of the architects of this unique building.* This problem, in which the Post Office Department was so vitally interested, was intrusted to a mechanical engineer who had already demonstrated special ability and resourcefulness in government work in the Treasury Department, Mr. Woodwell of the firm of L. B. Marks & J. E. Woodwell, consulting engineers, New York city. His solution, a most remarkable one in departing almost entirely from conventional methods, by reason of the inflexible restriction above referred to, has proved a success in the uninterrupted facility with which the mails have been handled from the start. The electric motor operated apparatus for handling the outgoing mail was put into motion coincidentally with the opening of the new railroad station, and worked without a hitch, thus demonstrating on the first test the capacity, speed and smooth working of the machinery. To the writer the achievement seemed so clearly an expression of an individuality—that of an engineer of the modern type—that information in regard to the work was sought in a personal interview with Mr. Woodwell, and the unique methods and devices employed were made clear by the following explanation of the system as a whole divided into two distinct parts for handling outgoing and incoming mail respectively. The theater of action is in the lower part of the Post Office building and is set on three main stages, viz., at the surface and at two different underground levels. These are the street level, with the mailing floor about two feet above it; the basement fitted up as a Post Office, and duplicating the interior equipment of a group of standard R. P. O. cars, and the track level on which the mail cars stand on their six tracks adjacent to the four separate platforms.

The outgoing mail constituting 80 per cent. of the total tonnage, is handled by elaborate equipment for vertical and horizontal transportation of the pouches. Spiral gravity chutes are provided to serve each of the track platforms. The chutes terminating at the two "island platforms" (Nos. 13 and 14) are double spirals, commencing at the basement and extending downward to the level of a system of electric motor operated belt conveyers installed at a point midway between the basement and the platform. At this point each chute discharges upon either of two conveyer belts, one of which runs eastward and the other westward. A "tripper" and spout, running on a third rail, serves to discharge the pouches from each belt into the waiting cars standing on either side of either platform. To make this clear, consider the delivery of mail to a train standing on track 22, platform 13. At the chute entrance in the basement the pouches, dumped into the chute compartment leading to the west belt, are carried along on the latter until they reach the tripper mechanism, consisting of a set of idler pulleys through which the conveyer belt runs and which may be placed at any point on the travel of the belt by the car man handling the loading. The tripper is mounted on a carriage made self-propelling by an electric motor with gearing, clutches, and control levers and pedals, so that it may readily be brought to a point opposite the door of the mail car. One of the idlers is so arranged above the place of the traveling belt that a pouch traveling along on the belt on reaching the idler is caused to ride up over the idler and on to a deflecting guide and so into a delivery spout attached to the tripper. The only manual operation therefore is the setting of the motor-propelled tripper and the inserting of its spout into the door of the car; when this is done the stream of pouches pours in at the door of the car, there to be stowed away by the car man. Two of the platforms are curved, which necessitated the installation of two conveyer belts in series for each of these platforms, with a special device for transferring the pouches from one belt to the other.

By using both compartments of this double chute, delivering to the east and west belts at once, four cars can be loaded simultaneously on the two tracks bounding this platform (No. 13). The trippers are shifted along from car to car upon signals between the chute entrance on the upper level and the car man. Should the conveyers be out of service, the pouches emerging from the chute compartments can be delivered direct to the platform and handled from that point by hand trucks.

There are four systems of these spiral chutes in all. The north chute has three entrance openings on the mailing floor, one leading to the basement and the other two having openings in the basement also and going to the track level, where they deliver on the east and west conveyer belts installed over platform 8. The south chute is a quadruple one leading to platform 4 and having the same layout as the north chute just referred to, but having in addition a compartment leading from the mailing floor direct to the trucking subway. In the design of the spiral chutes, on account of the restrictions of head room and structural conditions, it was necessary to make numerous offsets of straight and curved slides and to employ changes in pitch of the spiral, baffle plates, and reverse curves; the solution of the problem being rendered more difficult by the wide variation of the load, ranging from the small, nearly empty canvas pouch to a 300-pound bag filled with periodicals. Experiment has shown that the time of arrival of a single letter and of a 300-pound pouch at the bottom of the chutes is approximately the same.

The several direct chutes installed in addition to the spiral chutes are of parabolic form, securing the maximum speed of descent of the pouches, yet delivering the latter with the minimum of velocity at arrival.

For the conveyer belts, about half a mile of the best rubber belting—five-ply canvas of long-fiber cotton impregnated and covered with rubber on both sides—is used. The use of ball-bearing rollers to support the belts minimizes wear, andeliminates all "field repairs" by enabling all wearing parts to be replaced without delay by duplicate interchangeable parts.

Four plunger elevators, operating between the different levels, can be used for lowering outgoing mail in emergencies, but their regular use is for lowering pouches of registered mail and for lifting incoming pouches.

For handling the incoming mail, one of the track platforms (No. 4) has an underground conveyer—two belts leading from east and west—delivering to a bucket elevator installed at an intermediate point. "Loading stations" spaced short distances apart, are provided, having trap-door openings in the floor, through which the pouches are thrown from arriving mail cars to be received on a moving belt. The design of this co-ordinated conveyer and elevator equipment was one of the difficult special problems of this handling system. The buckets of the elevator pick up the pouches as they come to it from the belt, and it is necessary to eliminate all possibility of crushing or injuring a pouch, or damaging the apparatus, at the transfer point between the belt and elevator. To insure this safe handling each pouch must be transferred from the belt to the elevator at the right instant for one of the buckets to receive it. This object has been accomplished, first by operating the whole conveyer and elevator system from a common electric motor installed at the top of the elevator shaft, and second, by applying a time-interval operation to the receiving of the pouches on the belt itself. When a pouch is thrown into the opening of a loading station it lands, not on the belt directly, but on a shelf above the belt. From this intermediate receptacle the pouch is automatically pushed at the right moment on to the belt running beneath. The time of this deposit on the carrier is controlled by the movement of the distant bucket elevator, through the medium of compressed air in piping connecting with a differential piston mechanism which moves the pusher back and forth; the buckets as they approach the delivery point of the belt, by operating a compressed air valve included in this piping, cause the pusher to operate at just the right moment. An interlocking mechanism incorporated with the loading levers of the stations prevents conflict of delivery of pouches from the two belts of the belt. When one belt is working the other is out of operation. The bucket elevator can handle 1,200 bags an hour.

GRANGE INSURANCE

Jefferson County Patrons Have Over $15,000,000 in Grange Insurance

Watertown.—The Jefferson County, N. Y., Patrons' Fire Relief Association is probably the largest organization of its kind in the world. At its annual meeting held a short time ago, Secretary W. H. Vary reported insurance in force at the present time $15,234,736, which is carried in 6,836 policies. The new insurance written in 1910 amounted to $4,342,251, carried in 1,820 policies. There has been 25,923 policies written since organization, carrying $53,380,100.

The receipts for 1910 were $11,401.79, the total expense of management including adjustment of losses, was $4,535.30. The losses for the year amounted to $19,000, less than thirty per cent. of which was caused by lightning. A large percentage of the losses was owing to defective chimneys and stovepipes. There are three granges having over $700,000 insurance each, two have over $600,000 and four over $500,000. Since January 1st the company has been under the State Insurance Department's jurisdiction. The cost of insurance compared with stock companies' rates show a saving in favor of the Patrons' Fire Relief Association of $3.33 on each $1,000, making a total saving to members for 1910 of $51,731.67.

Heron's Foot For Bait.

So great is the heron's repute as a fisher that it has long been thought that its feet, owing to some peculiar scent or oil which they were supposed to possess, attracted the fish, more especially eels, to within easy reach of its beak. In some places the rustic angler still believes that if a heron's foot is placed with his worms the latter are more eagerly taken by fish.—London Outlook.

Rheumatism

Can Be Cured

It's a plain, broad statement, but we can prove it. There is a real cure for rheumatism and its sister diseases—

Neuralgia, Lumbago and Gout

It is made from the formula of a physician who specialized in rheumatic cases, and who was extraordinarily successful in curing them. This wonderful formula called

Official City Paper

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1911

There is prospect of the passage of a homeopathic parcels post bill. Well, let us be thankful for small favors. For many years the monarchies of Europe have enjoyed an excellent parcels post bill, as have also some of the semi-barbaric nations of Asia. In fact, it seems that this blessing is possible in nearly all the despotisms of the Old World. But in our own despotism of interests with representatives in Congress, it cannot be had. With forty thousand rural mail carriers with their pockets barely full of letters and newspapers, many of them driving carts or four wheelers, an excellent equipment for carrying packages of eleven pounds each to the farmers and other rural residents, this blessing necessary to country people and necessary to the Postmaster General in order to enable him to extinguish the postoffice deficit, is not attainable. It is too good for American citizens.

An extra session of Congress after the 4th of March is more than possible. Congress is pulling in several different directions. Certain Senators and members of the Lower House are kicking and balking. The lesson of the last congressional election is unheeded or misunderstood. Such a self-evident proposition as the desirability of reciprocity with Canada is opposed by a Senator from Texas and the Speaker of the House from Illinois and by a recently elected Senator from Massachusetts, and all of them have some backing in Congress. Senator Bailey of Texas and Senator Brown of Nebraska have both given the Senate to understand that they are itching to filibuster, and it is evident that within the three short weeks remaining the appropriation bills cannot be passed without making concessions to recalcitrant elements in Congress.

Reciprocity as the next thing to free international trade would be the next best thing in the world. With reciprocity, fleets and armies might be discharged, custom houses abandoned, taxes reduced to one-fifth their present enormity, and living expenses turned back to the minimum cost of our great-grandfather days. The reason this country is superlatively prosperous today is because of the unhampered reciprocity between the states. Then why not a little reciprocity with our good northern neighbors? Why? Because of Congress politics and the devil. How long will mankind be beguiled with the lie that we are a free country when we are governed by a bedlam legislative body many of the units of which are incapable of looking much beyond the four corners of the nation in which their several districts are situated.

The President wants a tariff commission. The Democratic majority will control the House after March 4th wants no tariff commission but wants to pass a tariff bill of their own invention and condition, though how they can do with the Senate and White House opposition, no man and not even woman knoweth.

OSWEGO BAR ADOPTS RESOLUTIONS

The death of Justice Watson M. Rogers, which occurred on Wednesday at his home in Watertown, was deeply deplored by all who knew him in either a social, business or judicial capacity. The Oswego County Bar appreciated his many brilliant qualities and at a Term of Supreme Court held in Oswego on Monday, the regular proceedings were suspended out of respect to the deceased and tribute was paid to him.

A committee composed of Attorneys G. S. Piper, D. P. Morehouse and I. G. Hubbs was appointed to draw up resolutions on his death, which were adopted as follows:

Resolved, That the County of Oswego, lamenting the death of the Hon. Watson M. Rogers, who was assigned to hold this term of court, respectfully asks this term of court to suspend its proceedings that we may express our sorrow and deep affliction by his untimely death.

We desire to pause at this time to recall his great ability as a jurist, his courteous treatment, his faithful discharge of his duties and his determination to be always fair and to do exact justice to all parties before him. We feel that in his death this judicial district has lost one of its most brilliant jurists and one of the most honorable members of our profession. We further ask that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this term of court.

Justice Clarke ordered the resolutions to be spread upon the minutes of the Court and in conclusion stated that he as a member of the Supreme Court felt the honor paid to the memory of Justice Rogers and that such tributes as these made a man feel that life was indeed worth living.

OSWEGO WANTS RESIDENT JUSTICE

Governor Dix must have been surprised at the magnitude of the nonpartizan movement in favor of Hon. C. N. Bulger of Oswego for Supreme Court justice to succeed the late Watson M. Rogers, when the Oswego county delegation lined up before him on Tuesday to urge Mr. Bulger's appointment and Oswego county's claim on the office.

Two cars full of representative citizens of all political complexions journeyed to Albany on Tuesday morning to attend a hearing by the governor which had been arranged by Assemblyman Sweet.

Oswego county is the only county in this judicial district without a resident justice and the fact entails a hardship upon attorneys and clients. Oswego's claims have been presented at each convention but combination of other counties against Oswego have prevented her securing the coveted boon. This seems the one opportunity to secure justice and fair play and Mr. Bulger's friends are very much in earnest in their endeavor to secure the appointment for him.

Governor Dix informed the delegation from this county that he would give their request every consideration and would make an appointment within a few days.

BUTTER COSTS HIM $12 A POUND

Cambridge Grocer Buys Five Tubs Mostly Containing Earth

Cambridge, Mass.—William Barker, a grocer here, today paid nearly $12 a pound for some butter. Two men offered to sell him five tubs, each of fifty pounds for $50. Barker agreed, gave the men $34 in cash and promised them the rest later.

Afterward he found that only the top layer in one tub was butter, or less than three pounds, the rest being earth. The other tubs contained nothing but earth.

NEW PAPER COMPANY ELECT OFFICERS

The following officers were elected yesterday by the New National Paper company of Syracuse, which was incorporated at Albany Saturday, with a capitalization of $25,000: President, William Barber; vice president, George E. Thorpe; secretary and treasurer, William H. Flaklington. The new company will take over the Cataract Paper company and do a manufacturing and jobbing business at No. 362 West Fayette street.

January was the heaviest month the hospital has known.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by
A. W. BARROW, Chatham, N. Y.,
Press Correspondent New York State Grange

OLD BAY STATE.

Normal Growth in Membership and Good Progress.

Larger Interest in Agriculture and an Awakening to Responsibility For Community Leadership Are Two Important Features of Prudent Effort.

Speaking of the past year's work in Massachusetts, State Master Gardner says:

Our membership has steadily increased, our financial strength has been materially enhanced and a growing realization of the meaning, possibilities and responsibilities of grange affiliation has been increasingly borne nome to our membership. Eleven new subordinate granges and one new Pomona have been organized since this national grange last convened, while the lines have been laid for several new granges in substantial and safe grange extension. Massachusetts with her small area now rejoices in 240 subordinate granges, 24 Pomonas and 28,000 members, holding 5,500 meetings a year and reaching as a total audience more than 300,000 people in those meetings of each twelve months. Whether neighborliness prevails among the Massachusetts patrons or not may be judged from the fact that during the year the numbers of individual visits of members in "neighbors' night" excursions from one grange to another exceeded 25,000.

The most gratifying phase of the Massachusetts grange work the past year has been the emphasis placed upon two distinct objects of practical effort—first, more interest in agriculture and more vigorous efforts to promote it; second, an awakening to the responsibility for community leadership that rests upon every grange in every rural town. For the good of agriculture the Massachusetts grange meetings have emphasized in addresses, papers and discussions the extensive soil cultivation that means efficiency, the ever improving methods on the farm that must keep pace with the changing methods in every other industry, the courage absolutely necessary as an accompaniment of efficiency and improvement that make the trinity of success everywhere—on the farm as in every other employment.

Our granges have taken an active part in keeping the agricultural fairs and have furnished some of the finest exhibits. They have loyally supported the farmers' institutes and have aided materially in their success. The granges have co-operated heartily in our better farming drains and were an energetic factor in the great New England corn show.

In agricultural legislation the grange in Massachusetts has taken an active and aggressive part. More favorable legislation in behalf of the dairy interests of our state followed the milk strike, and one important measure, changing milk transportation methods in the state from contractor's monopoly of cars to a fair and equal chance for all milk shippers, passed our legislature with but one opposing vote out of more than 200 members voting. Other important agricultural legislation of the year which the grange worked for and indorsed was a largely increased appropriation for the improvement of highways in the small towns, and appropriation for the encouragement of orcharding through the offering of state prizes for the best growth and improvement in fruit on Massachusetts farms; the establishment of an inspection of apiaries, designed to stamp out diseases among trees; strong legislation to protect from unjust prosecution the dairymen who produce and sell the pure, unadulterated milk of healthy herds; an amended deer law in the interest of the farmer; complete victory in a prolonged fight to continue rigid protection of the birds, which was accomplished against united and heavily financed sportsmen's interests; positive beginnings in a practical system of agricultural education for the lower grades of the public schools; appropriations of $300,000 for stamping out insect pests within the border of the state; a quarter of a million dollars for one state agricultural college and the extension of its work over a much wider field of usefulness than ever before; increased appropriations for forestry and conservation undertakings, besides the defeat, largely through grange influence and energy, of numberless measures that would have brought direct injury to the farmers if they had ever been put upon the statute books of our state. In all matters of legislation in Massachusetts our grange policy has been to strive for a square deal for farmers and for our rural towns, but the always added determination that that square deal to the farmers must mean also the greatest and the final good of our commonwealth as a whole.

Ohio State Grange Meeting.

State Master Laylin said in his opening address that 4,700 new members had been admitted the past year, the greatest gain in a third of a century. The assets amount to $2,800. T. C. Laylin was re-elected master, and L. J. Taber, the popular lecturer, was also re-elected. The next meeting will be held at Columbus in connection with the national grange meeting.

GRANGE OF THE FUTURE.

Foundation Principles For Making the Order a Success.

One of the speakers, Hon. C. M. Gardner of Massachusetts, at the recent national grange session in Atlantic City drew a picture of the national grange of the future and indicated five foundation stones on which success must be builded. The same principles will obtain in state, Pomona and subordinate granges, and, inasmuch as these fundamentals must be exercised chiefly in the lecture hour, it is timely to review the five essentials which the speaker emphasized:

First.—That the grange shall be the continued champion and defender of agriculture, emphasizing its importance, developing its possibilities and increasing its efficiency.

Second.—That the grange shall be the advocate and promoter of rural life and things, accomplishing, in short, genuine unity and leadership for all things worthy and worth while in rural life.

Third.—That the grange shall be the uplifter and defender of the American home and instrumental in bringing continually nearer that ideal condition of the ritual prophecy when "the farmer's home shall be the brightest and happiest spot on earth."

Fourth.—That the grange shall be the teacher of American citizenship, using its exceptional opportunity because so representative of the country as a whole in a combination of all sections, north, south, east and west.

Fifth.—That the grange shall be the great sympathetic, uniting, welding force to bind together all creeds, all partisans and all workers who believe in doing some worthy thing well.

Mortimer Whitehead Out West.

Mortimer Whitehead, past lecturer of the national grange, has taken up his residence in California. On Jan. 10 he will begin a tour of Washington state in the interests of the Order. He is a forceful speaker and an enthusiastic supporter of the principles of the grange.

DEY BROTHERS TO ENLARGE

Dey Brothers & Company, of Syracuse, are to increase their capital stock from $700,000 to $1,000,000, and plan to build an eight-story addition to their building in South Salina and Jefferson streets.

TIRED OF DEADLOCK

Albany, Feb. 3.—"I don't fancy going through this farce of trying to elect a United States Senator every day," said Assemblyman Sweet of Oswego County.

"I believe we are here for business and not to prolong this contest any longer. I want to see the Republicans select another candidate. In doing this do not want to reflect upon Chauncey M. Depew, but it looks to me as though it will be impossible to break the deadlock with the present candidates.

"I think that if the Republicans would put up former Speaker Wadsworth there would be a good chance of electing him. I believe enough insurgents who have become disgusted over the contest would stand for Mr. Wadsworth. Then there are Andrew D. White and President Schuman of Cornell who could possibly win under conditions. I am thoroughly disgusted with the contest."

Assemblyman Sweet admitted, however, that the Republicans would not select another candidate than Mr. Depew.

UPPER BRIDGE ALMOST A CERTAINTY

The Board of Public Works, Common Council, Mayor Conners and the special bridge committee are securing all the information possible relative to bridge and bridge building so that when they lay the project before the people they will be able to do it intelligently and decisively. Of one fact we all feel assured and that is that a new bridge is an absolute necessity. The style of bridge must be considered and undoubtedly the tax payers will have and opportunity to vote upon kinds of bridge when the matter is submitted to them for settlement.

So far as the question has been discussed, the majority of those who are investigating the matter are inclined to favor concrete and steel, street wide and to eliminate factory hill. The estimated cost of such a bridge would be well within $175,000.

The absence of Mayor Conners last evening prevented anything being done in the matter at the meeting of the Council.

THE TOWN NEWSPAPER

Stand by your town newspaper. If there is anything in your town worth talking about, ten chances to one your little town paper had a hand in putting it there, and if there exists an unsightly or unsavory nuisance, twenty chances to one it will stay there until your town editor sees it or smells it and wipes his pen on the town board's breeches. If anybody beyond the walls of your little burg learns that there is such a place as Peaceville, it will be through your town oracle. Every village gets it money's worth in the village papers. Its the gabon that carries all your good things to market. It ought to be kept in good repair. In many cases it would pay to grease it, paint it, keep its running gears in shape and shelter it at public expense. Stand by your town newspaper. It's the guardian and defender of every interest, the forerunner and pioneer of every advance movement and sturdy advocate of law and order. Take it away and it would not be six months before the town would look as if it had been doped. Business would drag society would yawn, and grass would grow between the cobbles. Long live the town newspaper.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

Bennett, with Mr. Taylor as the principal defendant. Fred Vogelsang, the doughty little debater, will conduct the prosecution, while Edwin Wilcox will look after the interests of the defense. A jury will hear the evidence.

Some of the correspondents for out-of-town papers are grossly unfair in many respects toward local matters. For instance one paper has recently stated two or three times that the fire alarm system must be out of order as only one stroke of the bell announced fires. As a matter of fact the system has never been in better condition than during the past year, not even one broken wire having been caused this Winter by the winds and snow. The one stroke of the bell to announce telephone calls of fire was inaugurated over a year ago by Chief Waugh for the purpose of calling the Chief, any fireman temporarily away from the engine house, the driver of a team that might be out on exercise trip, etc., and it has never raised a question until now.

HUNTING LICENSES

County of Oswego Contributed a Nice Fat Sum to the State Treasurer

There were 2,552 hunting licenses issued in the County of Oswego during 1910, according to a compilation just made by Miscellaneous Clerk C. L. Alsever, of the County Clerk's office. The opening of the pheasant season probably has many to take a shot at the shooting; at any rate there were only 2,156 licenses issued in 1909, making an increase of 396 in 1910 over the year previous.

The licenses issued by towns and cities follow: Albion, 70; Amboy, 36; Boylston, 23; Constantia, 149; Granby, 52; Hannibal, 106; Hastings, 124; Mexico, 143; New Haven, 63; Orwell, 37; Oswego Town, 46; Palermo, 43; Parish, 136; Redfield, 21; Richland, 199; Sandy Creek, 164; Schroeppel, 124; Scriba, 34; Volney, 21; West Monroe, 37; Williamstown, 65; Fulton, 350; Oswego City Clerk, 19; Oswego County Clerk, 49.

A Story of the Sunny South Right After the Civil War

Written For The Times

BY CAPTAIN O. J. JENNINGS

The next day Aunt Phillis was over early and at her work, singing as she rubbed, when suddenly her voice was arrested by clapping of hands and a voice saying: "Go on Aunt Phillis!" When she turned and said: "Lor', Honey, was dat you?" For it was Mrs. Bradway's young daughter.

"Yes, Aunt Phillis, what was that you were singing?" "I don't think I ever heard it before".

"Dat's one of the pieces we sing at de Camp Meeting 'vivals."

"Well, what do you call it?"

"Lor' its 'bout dat man what's burnin' on a log way down in Georg. is for blaspheming de name of de Lord." "Honey, where you ma?"

"She is about the house some where; do you want to see her?"

"For I goes home I wish I might see her."

"I can go and tell her to come here and see you now if you say so."

"No, honey, jus' wait, she may happen to come in fore its time for me to go."

Not long after Mrs. Bradway came in, when Phillis said, "Miss Margret, does I do the washin' and ironing to suit you'."

"Yes, Phillis, its done nicely. I am much pleased with your work; why, did you think I was not satisfied?"

"No-o, but, I was thinking may be you could give me some other work to do and-and."

"What is it you want, Aunt Phillis?"

"Miss Margret, I feel awful shame to tell you, but we haint had nothin' but corn bread and sallid to eat for more an a week."

"Is it possible we have been so thoughtless of your necessities." "Phillis, why haven't you let it be known before this?"

"I was shame to have you know we was so poor, but Lor', how could we help it? When old Master tole us we couldn't be hanging roun' here with lot little nigger brats to feed, we had to go and all he and Phillis would give us was the old kinkets an de hald we all sleep in; so we got yong down here and make contract for de lan' and Epheum and me built the house."

"Well, you poor soul, you shall not go without meat another day; have you plenty of meal?" "Yes Mr. Bradway been so good and let us have corn that Epheum say we mus' pray for you all ebrey night before we go to bed."

"Oh dear, the thought that you poor, hungry almost starving beings are praying for us and we thoughtlessly letting you suffer; yes, you shall take home a good large piece of meat, some sugar and coffee."

That night on their bended knees more fervent prayers never went up than were offered by these simple, honest colored people for their benefactors. Epherum was truly happy. The work of preparing the land for the crop was going forward with a will; that Saturday night he reported to Mr. Bradway that the ten acres were all plowed and by Tuesday night he would have it dragged and marked. On Phillis's next work day at 'the Bradway's, Miss Margret said to her: "Aunt Phillis, have you any fowls (hens I mean)?"

"Lor' no, we haven't done got none."

"I have been thinking you might raise a good lot of chickens if you had some setters."

"So I could, Miss Margret, if I had the sittin' hens."

"Well, I am going to let you have four sitting hens. I have had the boys look them up today and when you get ready to go home I will have the hens put in a hamper so you can carry them in one hand and in the other a basket of sixty eggs so that you can put fifteen under each hen."

"Good Lord, O Mercy, Miss Margret, how in dis worl' is I ever gwine to pay you for what you's letti' me have?"

"That will be all right, your doing the washing annd ironing."

"But, Lor', Miss Margret, dat don't gwine to half pay for what's you's doin' for we all."

"Never mind, you take the setters home and raise the chickens and when they get large enough for broilers you can bring a half dozen over and that will pay for the setters and the eggs."

"Lor', Miss Margret, I'll bring all de chickens I raise to you."

"No, Phillis, I shall not allow you to do that; you must have a good stock of fowls to winter."

Phillis went home singing. "There is a lan' of pure delight that flows with milk and honey."

During the next week Epherum began planting corn which in due time came up and grew nicely; he kept a close eye on its growth and when it got about a foot high commenced siding it off; after completing this work he went over and told Mr. Bradway he had "done got" his corn sided.

"Uncle Ephe, you are beating me in the care of your crop. What have you got to do for the next few days?"

"Well, sah, I'se only got 'bout a days wock on 'han' and that is to make some coops for Phillis chickens when they done hatch."

"Well, when you get that job completed how would it do to make a pen for some pigs?"

"Whats de use, Mr. Bradway, of my making pen for pigs when I have got no pigs to put in it?"

"Well, you just go on and make a nice little pen and then come over here and see me'."

Uncle Ephe went home and told Phillis what Mr. Bradway said about building the pen; that evening as the family gathered at the bench near the door of their cabin home Uncle Ephe lit his pipe and puffed vigorously for a time. Phillis watching furtively every change in his looks; when suddenly he stopped smoking and gazed steadily at the growing corn. "Epheum, what you done studyin' 'bout?" said Phillis, "dat corn grow jus' de same if you doan looks at it all de time."

"I waren' studyin' 'bout de corn, I knows dats all right, but I was thinking if Mr. Bradway was jus' projectin' with me 'bout dat pig pen; what we want pig pen for, we have got no pig or muffin to buy one with."

"Epheum you ought to be shame yourself to thinks Mr. Bradway do any such thing with you, he's de bes' man in the worl' and Miss Margret, jus' an angel come right down from heaben, doan you ever say nothing like dat 'bout Mr. Bradway gain."

"Phillis, I doan mean nothin' wrong when I said dat."

"Well, den you jus' go right long and build de pig pen jus' like he tole you and then you go over there and tell him you done build the pen and see what he say."

The next day the pen was built and Uncle Ephe went over, as directed, and said, "Mr. Bradway, I done build the pen jus' like you tole me."

"Well, then you must have some pigs to put in it; go down to the stable and find Richard and say to him that I want him to get a grass bag and put two of those spotted pigs in it for you to take home."

"For de goodness gracious, Mr. Bradway, is you gwine to kill de poor ole nigger wid benefactions right here on de spot; how's I ever in de worl' gwine to pay you for what you's doin' for we all?"

"Uncle Ephe, we will leave it this way; this fall or winter when your corn is gathered in and you think it safe to spare a little of it you can sell a couple of barrels and pay me for the pigs; but if you don't see your way clear to spare the corn this Fall, then I will wait until you are better able to pay me."

"Mr. Bradway, you's de bestes man in dis worl' and Phillis done tole me so las' night and I'ze goin' to pay you more'n once for dem pigs."

"No, Uncle Ephe, once will be enough; we are making no sacrifice in helping you, you are going to pay us for all we let you have and we are only doing a Christian duty when we lend a helping hand. You people have been unjustly treated annd shamefully wronged. Human slavery never should have been tolerated in the United States; but since it did exist and you suffered by it. I deem it a duty to aid you in rising to a position you are entitled to by inheritance, that of being recognized as a man."

"For de gor'd, Mr. Bradway, I can't understand what all dis good talk 'bout us poor niggers means, but I'ze sure its jus' right cause you say so."

"Well, Uncle Ephe, you will come to understand more about the changed condition under which you are now to live as a free man; heretofore you have only existed and been governed the same as a brute and in the main been fed more sparingly than the animal you cultivate corn with, now you are in the eyes of the law a man, but as a slave you were only a chattel and your master and owner had a legal right to whip and torture you with or without cause, and no one had the right to say 'stop' much less the power to enforce it. Now you have the protection of the law and no one can with impunity lay violent hands on you; but these changed conditions do not in any way give you a right to do a wrong act. To command the respect of the community in which you live you must conduct yourself as becomes a man and gentleman."

"Mr. Bradway, you's a man of experience and I wants you to take dis poor ole man (dats what I is now you said) and jus' guide me like you had a bridle on me an may be I kin learn to be citizen and kindy 'poplar like."

"Yes, Uncle Ephe, I shall take pleasure in advising and showing you the course to pursue to enable you to become a good and respected citizen."

Soon after this conversation Uncle Ephe was trudging along home with the two pigs in a bag; before reaching their cabin home the squealing of the pigs attracted the attention of the children who ran into the house and told their mammie that "Pa done cotch a ground hog and had him in a bag."

"Shut your mauves, ebry one of you, you doan know nothin' 'bout what you Pa got in de bag." With shrieks and jumps the children kept up the cry, "Pa done cotch a ground hog;" "Shut your heads or I'll crack you jaws"

By this time Uncle Ephe had reached the stile at the garden fence and set down his bag; the contagion of excitement by this time had reached Aunt Phillis as well as the children and all started in great haste for the stile on which Epherum sat resting; in spite of Phillis's efforts to the contrary the children kept up the cry "its a ground hog." (I will here state that ground hog is the most delicate dish the colored people have) Epherum looked wise as Phillis came up quite out of breath exclaiming, "For gord, Ephum, what you done got in dat bag?"

"What you specks I'ze got in de bag?"

"Well, what is you got."

"I'ze got two of de nicest pigs you eber did see."

"One for me—'one for me' shouted both boys simultaneously."

"Yes your Pa got one for you to pull weeds for."

Phillis right then and there felt it her bounden duty to make a little talk in which she declared the good Lord was with them and his "blessin' " was 'restin' right in dat bag with de two pigs, an it all came 'bout by de goodness of Mr. Bradway and Miss Margret."

By times the next morning Ephrum was out throwing dirt to his corn; Phillis attending to her chickens and the two boys pulling weeds for the pigs; the busy life was fairly inaugurated, Epherum's corn grew nicely. Phillis was happy in her devotion to Miss Margret. The boys vied with each other in who should do the most for the pigs; the changed condition from servitude as slaves had brought true happiness to Epherum and his family; they were now on the road to prosperity.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

TOWER HILL

A Noted London Spot, the Scene of Many Famous Occurrences.

Tower Hill is perhaps both the most important eminence and the most notable spot in all London. Few of us think what great persons have quietly lived there and what others, equally great, have wept and died upon it.

To it, or rather to Great Tower street, came Rochester to pursue his trade as an Italian fortune teller, while the bedizened Buckingham often walked thither to consult a conjurer, a shrewd, farseeing rogue, who, when Felton bought at the cutler's shop on the summit of the hill for a shilling the knife with which he killed the duke's father, may have known for what purpose it was required.

William Penn was born on this hill in a house close to London wall. Forty-four years later—that is, in A. D. 1685—a poet lay dead, choked by a crust which starvation had urged him to devour too greedily, in an upper room of the Bull tavern. This was the ill fated Otway. At the time when the son of the muses lay dead Betterton, the celebrated founder of the stage after the restoration, was wringing tears from the eyes of the public, not for the famished dead, but at his own fictitious sorrows in "Venice Preserved."

It was in Great Tower street that Peter the Great used to pass his evenings drinking hot pepper and brandy with his boon companion, Lord Carmarthen.—London Standard.

ATHLETIC DEVOTIONS.

Gymnastic Exercises That Impressed the Kurdish Villagers.

Everything is liable to be misunderstood, even gymnastic exercises. This truth was brought home to George H. Hepworth, and he tells his experience in "Through Armenia on Horseback." The author was stopping in a Kurdish village, and the inn possessed but one general living room.

In the morning I began my regular gymnastics, stooping until my fingers touched the floor, throwing my arms about like the spokes of a wheel, striking out from the shoulder and going through all the exercises, none of which I ever omitted. I would gladly have taken a sponge bath, but it would have been impossible to get enough water. A pint is enough to suffice a Turk.

Well, I got under way with my exercises when I saw that my audience was excited; conversation dropped into a whisper, then ceased; word passed from one to another, and one by one the occupants of the room quietly left. I feared that they were offended and wanted to call them back and apologize. Just then my dragoman entered, laughing.

"What has happened?" I asked.

He laughed the harder as he replied: "The Kurds think you are practicing devotional religious exercises, and they retired under the impression that you would regard their presence as an intrusion."

Invisible Indians.

All Indians seem to have learned a wonderful way of walking unseen, making themselves invisible like certain spiders, which, in case of alarm caused, for example, by a bird alighting on the bush their webs are spread upon, immediately bounce themselves up and down on their elastic threads so rapidly that only a blur is visible. The wild Indian power of escaping observation, even where there is little or no cover to hide in, was probably slowly acquired in hard hunting and fighting lessons while trying to approach game, take enemies by surprise or get safely away when compelled to retreat. And this experience transmitted through many generations seems at length to have become what is vaguely called instinct.—John Muir in Atlantic.

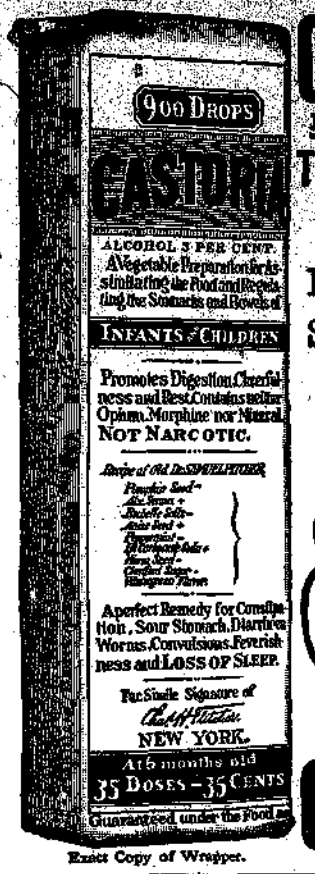
An Elusive Water Lily.

The water lily of the Amazon has very elusive habits. The buds open twice, the first time just a chink at the tip in the early sunrise hours, a sort of premonitory symptom. On the following evening it spreads its four sepals with such alacrity that you can see them move. But the big white bud among them remains unchanged until 4 o'clock in the morning, when it hurriedly spreads its blossom wide open, remaining in this condition only half an hour. Within the hour it has nearly closed, and by another hour and a half the entire flower has been drawn under water by the coiling of the stalk.

Diamonds.

Diamonds were first brought to Europe from the east, where the mine of Sumbulpoor was the first known. Golconda, now in ruins, was once a celebrated diamond mart. The mines of Brazil were discovered in 1728 and for a long time furnished most of the diamonds of commerce. In 1867 diamonds were discovered in Cape Colony, and in 1870 the wonderful finds in the Transvaal were made which resulted in the immense fortunes of the late Cecil Rhodes and others. Most of the diamonds of the world are now furnished by the South African fields.—New York American.

A Crusher.



"Yes, sir," said the trust magnate proudly, "I am the architect of my own fortune."

"Well," rejoined the friendly critic, "all I've got to say is that it's a lucky thing for you there were no building inspectors around when you was constructing it."—Chicago News.

Lisbon in Pepys' Times.

Pepys' Diary gives an unflattering picture of the Lisbon court in his day. On Oct. 17, 1661, he talked with Captain Lambert, fresh from "Portugall," who told him it was "a very poor, dirty place—I mean the city and court of Lisbon; * * * that there are no glass windows, nor will they have any; * * * that the king has his meat sent up by a dozen of lazy guards and in pipkins sometimes to his own table and sometimes nothing but fruits and now and then half a hen. And now that the infanta is become our queen she is come to have a whole hen or goose to her table, which is not ordinary." Some few months later, when some "Portugall ladys" had come to London, Pepys found them "not handsome and their farthingales a strange dress. * * * I find nothing in them that is pleasing, and I see they have learnt to kiss and look freely up and down already and I do believe will soon forget the reclose practice of their own country."

Opportunity.

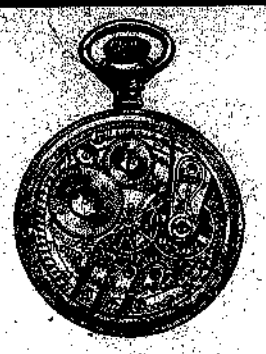
There is a story of a sculptor who once showed a visitor his studio, which was full of gods, some of them very curious. The face of one was entirely concealed by the hair, and there were wings on each foot. The visitor asked this statue's name.

"Opportunity," was the reply.

"And why is his face hidden?"

"Because men seldom know him when he comes to them."

"Why has he wings on his feet?"



"Because he is soon gone and once gone can never be overtaken," was the reply.

We all know the story of the man who sold the old farm which he had barely been able to get a living from during his entire life and his amazement and chagrin when the new owner discovered gold upon the land the first week of his ownership. A great many of us are in that very condition with regard to our opportunities if we did but know it.—Washington Star.

If science keeps on it may be able to isolate the presidential bee some day.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

Mrs. Sarah Slauson was last week called to Oswego by the critical illness of her daughter, Mrs. Tullar.

Mrs. N. L. Whitaker entertained the Cooking club at her home in Cayuga street on Tuesday evening.

Rural Carrier F. W. Blodgett has sufficiently recovered from his recent severe illness to resume his route.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter entertain at tea on Thursday evening at 6 o'clock at their home in Fourth street.

Mrs. Frances Waugh entertained the members of Columbia Circle at a thimble party at her home on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Cramer and Mrs. N. Wright have been entertaining Mrs. Anette Hammond of Adams Center and Mrs. L. D. Smith of Syracuse.

Miss Belle Tucker is very critically ill with no hope for her recovery. Her sister, Mrs. Switz Conde, was called to her bedside on Monday.

This Wednesday evening at six o'clock Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Ripley and Mr. and Mrs. Justin J. Morrill will entertain at dinner at the Ripley home.

Miss Ruby Challis gave a kitchen shower at her home in Erie street on Thursday evening for Miss Mora Hall, whose marriage to Mr. Harvey Inganells will take place in the near future.

Mrs. A. H. Grant of Richfield Springs spent the week end with her parents, Attorney and Mrs. C. H. David. She was accompanied by her son Theodore, upon her return home on Monday.

Mrs. Catherine McDonald was happily surprised at her home in Buffalo street on Wednesday evening by the members of the Wednesday Evening Euchre Club. Cards were enjoyed and refreshments served.

County Judge L. C. Rowe reserved his decision in the matter between Willis Nelson and the N. Y. O. & W. R. R., company relative to property in the southern section of the city. Mr. Nelson objects to disposing of his property in the southern section of the city to the railroad company who will undoubtedly bring condemnation proceedings to bear upon him to compel him to sell to them. The matter was heard before a commission last week.

Mr. Patrick Fox has been appointed chaplain of Camp Esmond, Spanish War Veterans.

Miss Eva Palmer has returned from Pennellville, where she spent several days last week.

Mr. Ernest Raymond spent Sunday in Hastings where he attended the funeral of a friend.

Coroner H. P. Marsh on Monday attended the funeral of the late Dr. F. S. Low, in Pulaski.

Assistant Postmaster J. T. Hargrave has been enjoying a visit of several days from his brother-in-law, Mr. Rolla G. Jardin, of Ogdensburg.

J. J. Parker's aeroplane, which made a successful ascent a few weeks since, refused to rise from the ice when tried out at Lake Neahtawanta last week. Mr. Parker hopes to perfect the engine so that atmospheric conditions will not interfere with its workings.

Mr. Harry E. Partrick, who has been night operator at the New York Central Station for some time, has been promoted to agent for the Central at North Rose and he entered upon his responsibility on Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Partrick will be followed to their new home by the best wishes of their many friends in Fulton.

City Chamberlain Deuel's proposal to keep his office open Monday evenings during February for the accommodation of those who cannot come to the office during the day, is appreciated very much by many. This is the first time in the history of Fulton that such a move has been made and often a laboring man has been obliged to lose time at his work in order to pay his taxes.

It has just been learned that Mr. Madison Dominick has invented an aeroplane and has sent the plans to Washington to be patented. Mr. Dominick refuses to make public the details just at this time.

Mayor Joseph Conners is in Albany where last evening he attended the first public reception give by Governor and Mrs. Dix at the executive mansion.

The trolley excursions to Syracuse each Sunday are proving very popular with residents of this city and vicinity, the 60c round trip tickets proving drawing cards. Its cheaper to spend Sunday with a friend or relative at that cost than it is to get a Sunday dinner at the present high cost of living, and many are mindful of that fact. The cars are well filled each trip. The excursions will continue during February.

The New York State Association of Postmasters will hold their annual session in Syracuse in May at a date to be decided upon by Postmaster Cowie of that city. Postmaster Hughes of this city has been invited to take a prominent part in the program of the session. First Assistant Postmaster General Grenfield, a close personal friend of Contractor McDermott, will represent the federal postal authorities at the convention.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Venton on the river road, was the scene of a peculiar condition on Wednesday night, their son-in-law, Edward Bennett, receiving a stabbing in the left side which tore lose one of his ribs. Dr. A. L. Hall was called to care for the injured man. None of the family nor the injured man would talk about the trouble neither has it been reported to the police authorities. Ten people occupy the house together. The wound was nearly five inches long.

Attorney Claude E. Guile has been confined to his home for several days with tonsilities. He is able to be out again.

Mr. Daniel Brannan is confined to his home in Harrison street with typhoid fever. His condition is slightly improved at present.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wilson, who have been visiting their son, Attorney and Mrs. H. J. Wilson, have returned to their home in Constable.

Miss Ada Boorman has accepted a position as teacher in a school in China, near Deposit, leaving last week to take up her work.

The infant son of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Grant Edick died at their home in Pulaski last week, after a brief illness with spinal meningitis.

Mr. Peter Klein, father of Foreman Will Klein of the Observer office, is convalescing from a serious illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Horace Baggs.

Mr. B. Silverman and family have removed to DeRuyter where Mr. Silverman has opened a clothing store.

Thomas Kelley continues very ill with pneumonia in the Lee Memorial hospital.

Agent John W. Stevenson of the American Woolen company had the misfortune to lose a valuable calf by death last week. Mr. Stevenson had recently refused $100 for the animal.

The American express company will on March 1, remove to the store north of their present quarters, now occupied by McRae & Company. Mr. Wm. MacNamara will then remodel his block preparatory to taking possession.

The recovery of Mr. S. S. Morrill, aged 96, from a severe attack of pneumonia is expected. The venerable resident is a note worthy example of what temperate living and a wholesome interest in out of door life does for a man.

Chief of Police Ross's report for January shows eighteen arrests of which eight were for public intoxication; two for petit larceny; two for burglary in the third degree; one for being a disorderly person, one for juvenile delinquency, and one for violation of section 1,990 of the penal code.

Mr. N. N. Stranahan will deliver an address on "Pompeii" before the Brotherhood Class of the First M. E. church this Wednesday evening at eight o'clock at the church. The Brotherhood extend a hearty invitation to the men's classes of the various churches, and to all men in general to enjoy this treat.

Chief Waugh of the fire department may well point with pride to the fact that as a result of four fires in January, there was not over $100 damages sustained. Some of the fires started out to be very stubborn but the flames were quickly discouraged by the competent fire fighters of the department.

Mr. W. L. Woodbury has disposed of his interest in the Theatorium and Dreamland moving picture shows to his former partner, Mr. Irving Galusha. Charles Lewis has been appointed manager of Dreamland and Mr. Galusha will give his personal attention to the Theatorium. If Mr. Galusha secures the lease of the Foster theatre it will give him a monopoly of the local play houses.

Dentist Fred L. Cary, at present located in the Langdon block in First street, has leased a suite of rooms in the Stoddard block in West Broadway which after April 1, he will occupy as a home and dental parlors. Dr. Cary enjoys a rapidly growing practice and only removes from his present quarters at the solicitation of his many west side friends who have regretted that there was no west side dentist.

"Deaconess Day" will be observed at the morning services of the First Methodist Church next Sunday. The pastor will preach a special sermon on Deaconess work, and the First church Deaconess, Mrs. Theressa A. Brown, will speak briefly, concerning her work during the past year. In the evening a Lincoln service will be held at which the pastor will speak on "Lincoln, the Man for the Gap." Patriotic songs will be sung.

THIRTY YEARS TOGETHER

Thirty years of association — think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time —or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it's the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy.

TUBERCULOSIS FIGHTERS WILL DISCUSS RESULTS

National Association Meeting at Denver in June—Fall in Death Rate Predicted.

Simultaneously with the announcement of its next annual meeting in Denver, June 20 and 21, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis presents statistics in a bulletin issued today which shows the results of the crusade against consumption in the United States for the last 10 years.

The seventh annual meeting of the National Association in Denver will be held just before the annual meeting of the American Medical Association in Los Angeles. The tuberculosis workers' convention will be divided into three sections under the direction of Dr. William H. Welch of Baltimore, president. Dr. William Charles White of Pittsburg, will be chairman of the Advisory Council of the association, which will meet at the same time. The three sections are, the Sociological, with Alexander M. Wilson of Philadelphia as chairman; the Clinical, with Dr. Charles L. Greene of St. Paul as chairman; and the Pathological, with Dr. William Ophuels of San Francisco as chairman. The report of the Executive Secretary, Dr. Livingston Farrand, will be incorporated in a statement of the results of the crusade against tuberculosis in the United States for the last 10 years, which will be transmitted to the International Congress on Tuberculosis in Rome, next September.

Dr. Farrand's report will show that 10 years ago there was only one organization in the United States for the education of the public about tuberculosis, the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. By September, 1911, the National Association says there will be over 500 such bodies. Ten years ago there were but five special dispensaries or clinics for the examination and instruction of needy tuberculosis patients, three of these being in New York City, one in Boston, and one in Providence. By September, 1911, the United States report will be able to list nearly 400 such institutions. In 1900 there were less than 100 hospitals, wards, and pavillions where tuberculosis patients could be treated, with not more than 6,500 beds all told. The National Association hopes to report by September at least 450 hospitals and sanatoria with an aggregate capacity of at least 30,000 beds.

Commenting on these possibilities, Dr. Farrand says that the educational campaign is directly responsible, not only for the great growth in institutional provision but that it will also result in the next ten years in a striking fall in the death rate from tuberculosis. He adds, "What we need most at the moment is more hospitals, more dispensaries, and more visiting nurses. We are working for these definite ends, and the next ten years will show results even more marked than those of the decade just passed."

ATTACK LIKE TIGERS

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif., "I have ever found." They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

CALIFORNIA WOMEN MAY VOTE

Amendment Passed Putting Question Up To the People

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 2.—The constitutional amendment providing for the submission of the question of woman suffrage to a popular vote was passed by the Assembly today, 65 to 6. The amendment already had passed the Senate. The Governor will probably sign the amendment, and the question of votes for women will be put up to the voters of the State.

INQUIRE INTO SANITY OF GEORGE F. STACKHOUSE

Watertown, Feb. 4.—City Judge Joseph A. McConnell and Drs. C. N. Bibbins and J. A. Barnette, forming the commission to inquire into the sanity of George F. Stackhouse, under indictment for grand larceny, are in New York today, taking evidence upon the matter. With them are former District Attorney Fred Pitcher, representing the people, and Senator George H. Cobb, attorney for Stackhouse. Mr. Pitcher and the commission left last night for New York. Senator Cobb went there from Albany. Among the testimony to be heard is that of the officials of two New Jersey asylums, where Stackhouse has been for treatment. The hearing will be continued.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor, often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

PELLY COMPANY MATTERS

There is a misunderstanding existing in Fulton relative to the affairs of the Pelley Tissue company of Springfield, Mass., now operating under a trusteeship, and the Pelley Toilet Paper Company, formerly of this city, and which became absorbed by the former company when it organized under the laws of Massachusetts. In this ignorance of the truth the Times has shared up to this week.

It appears that the Pelly Toilet Paper Company's affairs are in excellent condition and the stockholders satisfied with the conditions existing. Money was made in Fulton by the company and it became stockholders in the Massachusetts company at the time that the move for expansion and enlargement was made. The company now has orders for thousands of dollars worth of rolls on hand, the present trusteeship having been requested because of a failure to arrange for a working capital at the time the company was organized. The embarassment is only temporary and will not interfere with the financial standing of the corporation nor imperil the interests of the stockholders in any particular.

For some time prior to the absorbtion of the local company the directors of the Pelley Toilet Paper company had taken a firm hold on the business end of the proposition and had brought the firms affairs to a condition most satisfactory to all investors.

The Massachusetts laws are very different from New York laws relative to such matters, and the fact that a trustee has been appointed for the company does not necessarily mean that bankruptcy will be the end.

DEATHS

Gilbert W., the 8-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark, died on Saturday afternoon at their home on the west side. The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon.

The death of Samuel C. Howard of Volney, occurred in the Lee Memorial hospital on Tuesday morning after a brief illness. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Zilpha, the 2-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Worden, died on Sunday night at the home in North Fourth street. The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. C. L. Peck officiating. Interment was made in Mt. Adnah.

Dr. Frank S. Low, former sheriff of Oswego County and the oldest active medical practitioner in the county, died at his home in Pulaski after a several weeks illness with pneumonia. The deceased was 82 years of age and was one of the best known residents of this section. He was prominent in Masonic circles and was for many years president of the County Medical society. His funeral was held on Monday, physicians from all sections of the county attending.

Thursday morning at the Lee Memorial hospital occurred the death of Pearl, aged 24, daughter of Mr. Elon Kilts of Hastings. The deceased had made her home in the family of Postmaster Hughes for two weeks previous to her death and she had been in feeble health although very ambitious. She was stricken with appendicitis on the Monday night before her death and an operation performed on Tuesday night revealed to the attending physicians a condition almost unprecedented in the history of human suffering and one that had endured for years. A little hope was given after the operation but it was short lived. The body was taken to Undertaker Brown's and latter it was removed to the home of a sister, Mrs. Albert Larrabee, in Hastings, from where the funeral services were held on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Shepard of Mexico officiating. The deepest sympathy is extended the sisters, Mrs. Larrabee and Mrs. Westcott of Hastings in the sad passing away of the deceased.

CARD OF THANKS

To the many kind friends and neighbors who were so ready with sympathy, helpfulness, and floral offerings in the recent loss of my dear wife, I desire to express to all the different organizations, and to each individual my very sincere thanks.

NO HAPPIER THEN

There is no doubt that the cost of living was much lower when father lugged his purchases home from the grocery or market, and pulled the children's teeth with a string, ma cut her little boy's hair with a pair of shears, using a large bowl for a guide, sister had to be the family domestic until she escaped by marrying to more continual drudgery and pa wore cowhide boots on dress occasions.

But people were no happier then or better contented than now. In the olden days when the cost of living was so low, the things that we have every day were luxuries out of the reach of all but the wealthy. Does anybody want to return to the standard of living "the good old days?" We think not.—Seneca Falls Courier-Journal.

STATE ENGINEER IN FULTON

Sate Engineer Bensel, accompanied by the State Superintendent of Public Works and the Deputy Superintendent of Public Works, were in Fulton on Tuesday inspecting the barge canal work. While here Mayor Conners and the Board of Public Works invited them to look over the upper bridge and to express an opinion as to plans, location, bridge designs, etc.

Assemblyman T. C. Sweet was also in Fulton on Tuesday and met the above named officials and spent some time with them while here. Mr. Fred Emerick of Oswego was also among those who met the officials here

SHERIFF'S BILL WILL BE APPROVED

Provides For Salary For This County Official

Albany.—The bill introduced by Senator Cobb which proposes to make a change in the government of the sheriff's office when it becomes a salaried position next year, has been read twice and referred to the Committee on Internal Affairs of Towns and Counties.

Besides the undersheriff and keeper at the Oswego County Jail it provides for the appointment of a matron for the jail to be paid an annual salary to be fixed by the Board of Supervisors. The matron is to be appointed by the sheriff and may be removed by him at any time. The sheriff may also appoint such deputies, keepers, clerks and other assistants as he may deem necessary for the proper conduct of his office but shall pay the salaries of these from his own salary except in case where the services actually and necessarily performed upon the requisition of any State Department or official which are or may be by law a charge upon the County of Oswego, shall continue to be paid by the county. The foreman or Superintendent of the county farm and the guards for guarding prisoners may be paid by the county. The expense of support and maintenance of prisoners in the county jails is to be allowed by the Board of Supervisors after auditing the accounts.

THE WEITING

"The Nigger," Edward Sheldon's remarkable race problem play of the South, will be the important offering at the Wieting Opera House, Syracuse, for the entire week, starting Monday, February 20. The usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday will also be given.

The concensus of press opinion, wherever "The Nigger" has been presented, is that it is a great and soul-stirring play. When it was originally produced at the famous New Theatre, in New York City, last season the World described it as "a live battery of thrills." The New York Press declared that it "is the biggest drama on an American theme ever produced." The emotional interest and enthusiasm that "The Nigger" arouses in an audience is remarkable.

The play tells the story of a Southern sheriff and governor, who, in the midst of his political triumph, and when he has won the heart of an aristocratic young Southern girl, learns that he has negro blood in his veins. The situation that confrots Phillip Morrow, the Governor, is one of tremendous dramatic possibilities, and the author has improved the opportunity to construct a series of dramatic episodes that are as thrilling as they are daring.

Guy Bates Post, who originated the role of Morrow at the New Theatre, and won one of the greatest personal triumphs of the year, will head the company. Associated with him are Florence Rockwell, Maud Durand, Julia Hanchett, J. W. Colville, Jack Barnes, R. C. Forest, Henry Hull, John Hanchett and other players of distinction.

Mail orders addressed to F. P. Martin, with express or Post Office orders and stamped envelopes will receive prompt attention.

Prices for this engagement will be matinees, 25, 50, 75 and $1.00. Nights 25, 50, 75, $1.00 and $1.50.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all druggists.

NEW BRIDGE A NECESSITY

Decide the Matter on Its Merits — Special Election Called for March 2

The Board of Public Works, the Mayor and Common Council and hundreds of our residents who have Fulton's best interests at heart, are truly desirous for the erection of a street wide bridge of modern design and best workmanship; one which will eliminate factory hill and bring an easier means of communication between the upper Oswego Falls and the east side. The city officials have given and are giving much unrewarded time and thought to the matter, fearful all the time that while they wait the lower bridge may be closed to traffic by the trolley company and the upper bridge become so unsafe that the only means of communication between the two sides of the city will be by ferry or air ship.

The matter has now reached such formidable proportions that something decisive must be done, and the Times trusts the case will be decided upon its merits, not by pique, prejudice, or on account of lack of information relative to the burning necessity.

After many months of deliberation a bridge design which seems to the city officials to answer all requirements for now and for years, has been put upon paper and on Thursday and for a week thereafter it may be seen in the First National Bank. The next week it will be placed on the west side where the residents will have an opportunity to study it.

Time enough will be given before the special election in which the project will be submitted to the tax payers for settlement, for each to become familiar with the subject.

MT. PLEASANT

The Weslean class of Mt. Pleasant will give an entertainment on Friday evening, February 24, to celebrate Washington's birthday. A fine program will be rendered after which supper will be served.

HOUSE RATIFIES AGREEMENT

President Demands Immediate Action by the Senate—Special Session May be Called

Washington, Feb. 14. — President Taft's reciprocity agreement with Canada was ratified in thhe House of Representatives tonight through the support of an almost solid Democratic vote.

The McCall bill, carrying the agreement into effect, was passed, 221 to 92. A majority of the Republicans present voted against the measure, the division being 78 ayes and 87 noes. The Democratic vote was 143 ayes and only 5 noes. A majority of the Republican insurgents present voted for the bill.

The bill now goes to the Senate. What its fate will be in that body is problematical at this time. President Taft believes that if a filibuster can be avoided and a vote taken, the bill will pass. He is insistent that the Senate shall act one way or the other, and has indicated that he would call an extra session of Congress if it does not do so.

DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

The regular meeting of Kayendatsyona Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held at the home of Mrs. V. W. Soattuck, Monday afternoon, February 13. In the absence of the acting vice regent, Miss Elizabeth Osgood, who is ill, the second vice regent, Mrs. Harvie, presided. The necessary business occupied so much time that only a part of thhe program was given by Mrs. Harvie, leader; the subject being English Pathfinders, Cabot, Hawkins, Drake, Raleigh. The chapter with a few invited guests decided to celebrate Washington's birthday with exercises appropriate to the occasion, at the home of Mrs. F. E. Goodjon. Delicious refreshments were served by the Misses Marian and Mildred Shattuck and Ruth M. Cox and the meeting adjourned to March thirteenth when Mrs. B. S. McKinstry will act as hostess.

Notice of Special Election

The following resolution having been adopted by the Common Council of the City of Fulton, on the 14th day of December, 1910.

"Whereas by reason of public necessity, the construction of a new bridge across the Oswego River in this city connecting East and West Broadway, is now imperative and the interests of the public demand its immediate construction, now therefore be it

Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city, to be made for the construction of a new bridge across the Oswego River, connecting East and West Broadway," and the following resolutions having been adopted by the Common Council on the 14th day of February, 1911:

"Whereas by reason of public necessity the extension of the sewer system on the west and east side of the river, and that said extension is now imperative, and the interest of the public demand the immediate extension of said sewer system, therefore be it

Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city to be made for the extension of the sewer system on the east and west side of the river,"

"Whereas by reason of public necessity the extension of the water mains of the city from the pumping station south to the road known as the "Salsbury Road" in the town of Volney, is now imperative and the interest of the public demand its immediate extension, therefore be it

Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city to be made for the purpose of extending the water mains from the pumping station south to the "Salsbury Road" for the purpose of providing for the supply of water for the city."

And whereas the Common Council made an estimate of the sums necessary for the purposes set forth in such resolutions, and that the sum necessary for the city's share of the cost of erecting said proposed bridge over the Oswego River connecting East and West Broadway, is the sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000), and the sum necessary for the extension of the sewer system on the east and west side of the river is the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000), and the sum necessary for the extension of the water mains from the pumping station south to the road known as the "Salsbury Road" is the sum of Twenty Five Thousand Dollars ($25,000).

Notice is hereby given that a special election of the taxpayers of the City of Fulton, N. Y., will be held in the different wards of the city, viz.: First ward, Langdon's shop; Second ward, Kowalski's Hotel; Third ward, Division street Hose House; Fourth ward, Foster's Barn, 155 S. Second street; Fifth ward, City Hall; Sixth ward, Freeman Boat Factory, 505 Seneca street; on the 2nd day of March, 1911, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., at which the following propositions will be submitted:

"Shall the sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000) as the city's estimated share of the cost of the erection of the proposed bridge across the Oswego River in the City of Fulton, N. Y., connecting East and West Broadway in said city, be appropriated and raised by taxation, in thirty annual installments with interest, and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor."

"Shall the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000) be appropriated and raised by taxation in twenty annual installments with interest and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor for the purpose of extending the sewer system on the east and west side of the river."

"Shall the sum of Twenty Five Thousand Dollars be appropriated and raised by taxation in twenty annual installments with interest, and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor, for the purpose of extending the water mains of the city south from the pumping station to the Salsbury road to provide for the water supply of the city."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Men's Bible class of the Presbyterian church had a matter of pressing moral importance brought before it last Sunday morning. The subject was deferred for a week, so that all the men of the church and congregation might attend and give the matter that consideration which its importance demands. This combined meeting will be next Sunday in the Men's Bible Class room at the usual meeting hour, 12 noon, and a large attendance is requested.

The Haystack Mission Band held its annual meeting on Sunday afternoon at the home of Miss A. M. Gardner. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Miss Catherine Gilkie; vice president, Mr. George Rice; secretary, Miss Lily Dominick; treasurer, Miss Louise Stranahan. The subject for the meeting was "Missions among Foreigners' and the speaker Miss Louise Stranahan.

The William D. Noyes Mission Band met on Sunday at the home of Miss Helen Gillespie, Whitaker Road. Mrs. William White spoke on the work of the Presbyterian church, and Miss Gillespie gave a contribution on the Life of Abraham Lincoln. Reports were given from the secretary and treasurer and a straw ride arranged for the members.

The Ladies Aid Society will give its annual Chicken Pie Supper in the Presbyterian church parlors on the anniversary of Washington's Birthday, February 22nd. In order to accommodate all who attend the first tables will be served at 5 o'clock. The price of the tickets is 25 cents.

A TRIBUTE

In the death of Mrs. M. V. Connell, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Methodist Episcopal church realizes that it has met with an irreparable loss, which to each individual member becomes a personal one.

As for more than thirty years, Mrs. Connell was a member of this society during which time she had been unstinted in her devotion to the varied interests of the great cause it represents, her zeal for its welfare and efforts for its advancement never flagging.

It is most fitting that we as a society acknowledge our appreciation of her activities which continued to the very day of her departure. Her personality was notably sympathetic. The inspiration of her enthusiasm, the encouraging word so readily spoken, her ready intuition, excellent judgment, happy disposition, will never be forgotten. The influence of her life never be dispelled.

Not one feels worthy to receive her mantle, but united as we are in our loving memory of his leader, who has gone to her reward, we have resolved to as unitedly continue to labor in love for the cause to which she was so devoted.

Mrs. C. K. Howe,
Mrs. H. B. Emens.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

"Concentrated Christianity; Are we Christians?" will be the theme of the pastor's sermon next Sunday morning. The presence of every member of the church is urgently requested. In the evening, "Consider Jesus," will be the topic, the sixer Jesus," will be the topic, the sixth and most important of the series on "Cardinal Considerations."

Under the direction of the Boy Scouts and to help pay for their uniforms a grand entertainment will be given in the church April 7 by the original "Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock" and his son, assisted by local talent.

NEW MANAGER OF THE D. G. & E.

Is Announced and Assumed His Duties To-day—Comes to City Well Recommended

J. A. Sloan of Detroit has succeeded David Elder as manager of the Defiance Gas & Electric Company.

Mr. Sloan, who is a member of W. E. Moss & Co., a syndicate which controls a chain of electric light and gas plants throughout the country, arrived in the city Monday and afternoon looking over the local field in company with W. T. Morris, of Penyan, N. Y., president of the Defiance Gas & Electric Co., was induced to accept the management of the plant. He is also a heavy stockholder in the same. Mr. Sloan, who thoroughly understands the electricity and gas business, is an energetic painstaking pusher, his greatest ambition being to please his patrons, which means that the efficiency of the Defiance Gas & Electric Co., will be brought up to the highest possible standard.

Mr. Sloan will make a valuable addition to the citizenship of Defiance and the Crescent-News extends to him and his wife a cordial welcome.

The above item, clipped from the Crescent-News of Defiance, Ohio, tells a story of merited advancement for one of Fulton's sons of whom the former town is proud. Mr. Sloan has recently removed from Fulton where he was manager of the local gas plant. So faithfully, intelligently and well had he managed the local plant and office that his employers made him general manager of their chain of plants. Now, tired after two years of ceaseless traveling, Mr. Sloan, who has learned the gas business from A to Z, becomes superintendent and practically proprietor of the plant at Defiance.

Among the many who are delighted at Mr. Sloan's success, perhaps none are more so than his Fulton friends, among whom the Times hopes to be numbered. Congratulations and more power to the man who grew from boyhood among us.

PROPERTY GOES TO MRS. CRIPPEN'S HALF SISTER

London, Feb. 13. — The estate of Dr. H. H. Crippen, the executed wife murderer, was today awarded to Mrs. Theresa Hunn, Brooklyn, a half sister of Mrs. Belle Elmore Crippen. Dr. Crippen willed his property to Miss Ethel Clare Leneve, his sweetheart. Judge Evans set the will aside on the ground of public policy.

MARRIED

Mr. Hubert D. Ingraham of Adams Center, and Miss Charlotte M. Green, were united in marriage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Fairman on the west side on Tuesday noon, Feb. 14. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. F. Pennock of Madison, a nephew of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Charles Umstead, pastor of the Congregational church. The ceremony was attended by a number of friends and relatives of the bridal pair. The bride, who is a sister of Mrs. Fairman, has spent a considerable time in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fairman and she is held in the high esteem by all who know her. The groom is a prominent business man in the community in which he resides and in which they will make their future home. After congratulations and a delectable luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Ingraham left for a bridal trip, followed by the heartiest congratulations and good wishes of their friends.

THE WEEK

Signs of improvement continue to multiply. The marked betterment in the condition of the money and investment markets has served to inspire greater confidence in the industries and trades, and especially in the iron and steel industry, in which there are unmistakable proofs of expanding interest and activity, particularly in finished products. The building outlook brightens perceptibly as the spring approaches and there is a good prospect of much new construction. The weather conditions, while unfavorable to retail trade, have covered the winter wheat territory with snow, thus improving the crop prospects. The decline in wheat and cotton prices is a development of much interest, signifying an adjustment of values to a more normal basis. The decline in raw cotton helps the cotton goods situation, and while curtailment of mill production still continues, the dry goods market as a whole shows some improvement. Bank clearings for the past week outside of New York made a favorable showing, being 3.2 per cent. better than in 1910 and 18.3 per cent. better than in 1909. In New York the record shows a decline of 11.8 per cent. from last year and an improvement of 14.6 per cent. over 1909. Recent railroad statements by leading systems have been encouraging and during four weeks of January gross earnings increased 4.5 per cent. Foreign commerce of the port of New York in the latest week showed a large increase over the two preceding years. Exports were $7,643,657, a gain of $4,784,726 over 1910 and of $6,342,688 over 1909, while the imports were $19,081,112, a falling off of $1,511,025 as compared with 1910 and a gain of $793,811 over 1909.

Each succeeding week brings forth new evidences of expansion in iron and steel, with the latest statement of the leading interest showing a substantial increase in unfilled orders on hand. The returns of pig iron production for January do not reflect the recent marked progress in the trade, owing to dimished operations at the beginning of the year, the output falling to the lowest point since April, 1909; yet 17 furnaces were added to the active list and the daily capacity on February 1 was fully 6,200 tons greater than on the same date in the preceding month, according to the Iron Age. Finished material markets still make the best exhibit, but even in pig iron, where the contraction in business has been most pronounced, distinct signs of improvement are noted. In some instances low prices are still named; yet basic grades are firmer in eastern territory, and in the Central West quotations have been advanced. In other directions, also, a stronger tendency has developed, notably in tin plate and sheets. Tin plate and wire are especially active, with most mills booked six months ahead, and in the rail markets a steady demand from the transporting companies is reported. Structural buying includes several contracts for a liberal tonnage, while machinery is in larger demand owing to the requirements of the railroads.

Retailers are buying conservatively, but are accepting all goods under order with less friction than has been noted for many seasons past, and it is generally thought that many buyers have underestimated their requirements. Lower raw material has caused ease in some lines of cotton goods in the primary markets, but brown drills and sheetings held steadier than print cloth yarn fabrics, and the mills are increasing curtailment steadily, that at Fall River a t present amounting to about 50,000 pieces of print cloths a week. The trading in dress goods and men's wear for fall is along conservative lines, but prospects now are that the mills will secure a very fair business before the fall selling season is over. Certain lines of silks are in steady, active call. The yarn markets are quiet. Jobbers are doing a fair business on domestics, prints, ginghams and wash goods, but other departments are quiet.

There is practically no change in footwear conditions. Jobbers are forwarding some few mail orders, but there is no general buying movement in progress. However, New England manufacturers anticipate more activity, as wholesalers throughout the country are known to be short of working supplies and must of necessity replenish before long. New leather discount rates are agitating the trade considerably, and an advance in shoe prices is threatened if these rates become generally operative. The markets in hides and leather show considerable less activity than previously. Later estimates on the amount of sole leather purchased during the last two weeks in January are that fully 2,000,000 sides were moved in all, and the inducement for buyers to operate so extensively was the enforcement of new discounts on sole leather after February 1. Sales of hides have also been on a dimished scale, but conditions continue firm and recent advances secured in the hide market are being well maintained.

Prices of the leading farm products continue to recede in value, both wheat and cotton touching new low levels for the present movement. Pressure against the latter commodity has been induced by a lessened foreign demand and sustained liberal receipts, speculativeness than for some time past. Reports are still circulated of further curtailment of mill production, and domestic spinners are even more reluctant than ever to cover their requirements owing to the sharp decline in the future markets. Liquidation and short selling forced wheat prices to the lowest point touched for several months, the general situation presenting so many bearish features that little effort is made to sustain quotations. Increasing supplies and unsatisfactory milling conditions have a depressing effect, while snowfall in the Southwest has improved the winter wheat outlook. Receipts continue light, however, arrivals at western light, amounting to 2,709,409 bushels against 3,970,223 last year, and exports from all ports of the United 188 bushels as compared with 1,858,192 in 1910. Loadings of corn were delayed by adverse weather and prices were firm in the early trading, but later declined in sympathy with wheat and free offerings by Russia. —Dun's Review, Feb. 11, 1911.

ATTACK LIKE TIGERS

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif., "I have ever found." They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

CLARA BARTON SERIOUSLY ILL

Founder of Red Cross, in Her Ninetieth Year, Suffering From Pneumonia

Oxford, Mass., Feb. 9.—Miss Clara Barton, founder and organizer and for many years president of the National Red Cross in the United States, ha been seriously ill at her home, in Glen Echo, Md., for several days, according to information contained in letters received by friends in this town, her birthplace.

A reassuring note, which was received today from her nephew, Stephen E. Barton, of Boston, who is with her, said that she showed unexpected improvement yesterday, and it is now thought that she will recover. Miss Barton is suffering from an attack of bronchitis and pneumonia, her nephew wrote. She is in her ninetieth year.

LETTER 46 YEARS ON THE WAY

Went Astray on Virginia Battlefield, Is Just Delivered

St. Albans, Vt., Feb. 9.— A letter which went astray on a Virginia battlefield over forty-six years ago has just been sent to the person for whom it was intended.

Major Seymour H. Wood, of this city, who served in the 1st Vermont Calvary, in the Civil War, has mailed to Mrs. Mildred Cichell, of Norfolk, Va., a letter taken by Henry C. Pomeroy, of St. Albans, a soldier in the 1st Vermont, from the effects of a Confederate soldier, apparently dead, when the Vermonters made a charge on the Confederate works at Fisher's Hill, Va., September 22, 1864. The writer was P. V. Harris, of Company A. 42d (or 12th, the address not being perfectly legible) Virginia Volunteer Infantry, Breckinridge's corps. As the letter is dated September 22, 1864, it is evident that it was written on the very day on which the Southern soldier was killed. It is addressed to Miss Millie Snead, Lynchburg, Va., now Mrs. Michell, and to it is affixed a Confederate stamp. Mrs. Michell, who is a widow, is now in charge of the linen room of the Norfolk Protestant Hospital.

Pomeroy lost the letter shortly after the war, but recently it was found among a collection of war relics.

THIRTY YEARS TOGETHER

Thirty years of association — think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time —or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Arliss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it's the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy.

JEFFERSON COUNTY COMMENT

(Watertown Herald)

Oswego county is solidly behind Judge Bulger for the place. Not only are the Republicans with him, but for almost the first time within the memory of man an Oswego county Democrat has the undivided support of his own party. And usually the Oswego Democrats have their fiercest factional fights when their chances of getting anything are best.

20 Years With Heart Trouble

"Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has cured me of heart disease of over 20 years' standing. I was so bad that I could not do my work, and could scarcely draw a full breath without fainting or smothering. The doctor told me he could do no more for me; then I commenced taking the Heart Remedy. I shall never forget that night. I slept better than I had before in months. I kept right on getting better, until I was perfectly well."

MRS. LAURA RUSSELL,
Logan, Iowa.

When the heart action is weak, it fails to pump the blood through the lungs with sufficient rapidity. Then the lungs do not absorb the proper amount of oxygen, although they may be taking in a normal amount of air. The result is shortness of breath, smothering spells, difficult breathing, oppressed feeling in chest. Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, and in this way increases the circulation.

GOVERNOR DIX AND F. A. EMERICK

Oswego Manufacturer Condemns Governor's Canal Legislation—Declares People Should be Given Chance To Be Heard on These Important Matters.

A special to The Post-Standard from Albany Thursday night said:

"F. A. Emerick, a prominent Oswego business man, appeared before the Senate Canals Committee this afternoon to ask for a hearing later on the bills providing for abolishing the Advisory Board of Barge Canal Engineers.

"Mr. Emerick, as well as several representative business men from New York and other parts of the State, declared a fair hearing should be arranged on the bills so that the people of the State who are vitally interested could have an opportunity to be heard.

"Mr. Emerick made comments in regard to Governor Dix which surprised some present. The committee decided to hold the hearing February 21, although some of the members thought an immediate report might be made.

"'I came here,' said Mr. Emerick, 'not to argue for or against this bill for abolishing the committee. I came here in part to make a confession. I have been a lifelong Republican. With one exception I have voted the Republican ticket all my life. That exception was last fall, when I voted for John A. Dix for governor, converted by his promises of a fair, plain and businesslike administration.

"'But I must admit that the yoke is beginning to bear heavily. His action in having these bills introduced and the attempt to put through such measures as the canal bills now under discussion, it seems to me, does not bear out the campaign promises.

"'I concur in the request for an adjournment of this hearing so that all who desire to be heard in regard to this measure will have an opportunity to express their opinions.'

"Assemblyman Thaddeus C. Swee presented a request from Oswego residents for a postponement of two weeks on the discussion of the measures."

A BIG MAGAZINE CONSOLIDATION

Through an amalgamation just effected, three well established and well-known publications are hereafter to be published by one Company, although no change in the policy or personnel of editoral management is to take place.

The Crowell Publishing Company, owners of Woman's Home Companion and Farm and Fireside, takes over The American Magazine and will publish it in conjunction with its other two publications. Mr. George H. Hazen is President of The Crowell Publishing Company; Mr. H. J. Fisher is General Manager.

The editors of The American Magazine who have been with The Phillips Publishing Company will continue both as editors of and exclusive writers for The Crowell Publishing Company. This group consists of John S. Phillips, Editor-in-Chief, who now becomes an officer and director of The Crowell Publishing Company; Ida M. Tarbell; F. P. Dunne, creator of "Mr. Dooley;" Ray Stannard Baker; Albert A. Boyden, and John M. Siddall. Mr. William Allen White and other writers who have been closely allied with The American Magazine will continue as contributors.

The three publications in quite distinct fields are at the highest point of success yet attained. The Woman's Home Companion, which occupies a powerful position in the woman's field and whose growth has been phenomenal, is edited by Gertrude B. Lane and numbers on its staff Hayden Carruth, Grace M. Gould and Sophie Kerr Underwood. Farm and Fireside, edited by Herbert Quick, formerly of Sioux City, Iowa, is an agricultural paper of high quality and wide national circulation which is the leading exponent of up-to-date agricultural methods.

This amalgamation will make for increased efficiency and influence in the case of all three of these publications.

TO MOTHERS IN THIS TOWN

CAN GO TO COURT OF APPEALS

Rochester, Feb. 8.—The Court of Appeals today granted a motion permitting an appeal to the court of last resort in the case of Fred Dumas against the Oswego Falls Paper & Pulp Company. It was a negligence case in which the plaintiff obtained a verdict.

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

PROPOSED RE-APPORTIONMENT LINE-UP

Congressional District May be Made of Oswego, Jefferson, Lewis and Madison

Albany, Feb. 11.—The passage by Congress of the apportionment bill which gives New York State forty-three congressmen caused the Democratic leaders to figure out how the district lines may be drawn in such a manner as to give their party the greatest partisan advantage while at the same time complying with the requirements as to suitable population and contiguity of territory. A tentative apportionment which has been drawn convinces them that they can control a majority of the New York State congressmen for the next ten years.

While the ratio of population has not been officially complied as yet it is known that it must be in the neighborhood of 211,000, inasmuch as the population of the State as given by the last census was 9,113,279 which must be divided by 43, the number of Congressmen New York receives. As the tentative plan stands at present the districts are apportioned as follows:

Albany, Greene, population 204,000.

Schenectady, Schoharie, Otsego, Delaware, population 204,000.

Rensselaer, Washington, Columbia, population 213,000.

Sullivan, Orange, Rockland, population 195,000.

Montgomery, Saratoga, Fulton, Hamilton, Warren, population 209,000.

Ulster, Dutchess, Putnam, population 193,000.

Oneida, Herkimer, population 211,000.

Jefferson, Lewis, Oswego, Madison, population 215,000.

St. Lawrence, Franklin, Clinton, Essex, population 216,000.

Chenango, Cortland, Broome, Tompkins, Tioga, population 181,000.

Steuben, Chemung, Schuyler, Seneca, Yates, population 196,000.

Wayne, Ontario, Cayuga, Livingstone, population 208,000.

Niagara, Orleans, Genesee, Wyoming, population 183,000.

Allegany, Chautauqua, Cattaraugus, population 212,000.

Suffolk, Nassau, population 180,000.

Erie, three congressmen.

Westchester, Monroe, Onondaga and Queens, one each. New York, Queens and Richmond combined 21.

SALE OF PROPERTY

Harold Russ of Atlanta, Georgia, has sold to Hosea Russ of Palermo, 225 acres of land in Palermo, consideration $500.

John Trimble of Palermo, has sold to Edgar Munson of Mexico, property in Palermo, consideration $2,600.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor, often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

ENTERS GIANT COMBINE

The sale of the Halcomb Steel company of Syracuse to the Crucible Steel company of America, the crucible steel trust—was made. A special dispatch from Pittsburg announced the consummation of the deal, the most important affecting Syracuse industry in many years. It was announced later that the management in Syracuse would remain the same. $3,000,000 was involved with a profit to the Syracuse Company of $1,000,000.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears, and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

COMPETITIONS FOR PRIZES OF ROME ARE ANNOUNCED

Official City Paper

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1911.

With a brief three weeks of the Congressional session remaining, not some of the important measures before Congress when the session began has been disposed of. Reciprocity with Canada marked a new line of cleavage among the Republicans and Democrats in Washington. Early in the present week Senators were hopeful that they might solve the problem by letting the reciprocity agreement severely alone, but later it was brought sharply to their attention that unless there shall be a vote on this reciprocity agreement they will be called back to Washington promptly after the 4th of March and compelled to remain until there is an expression in the Senate either for or against it. And now the President is away from Washington making speeches mainly devoted to this reciprocity with Canada question and there is a strong impression that the country, except in isolated spots, is in favor of the agreement recently made between us and our northern neighbor.

The fact that the English papers and the leader of the opposition in the English Parliament are opposed to the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States will doubtless have some influence in favor of its approval by Congress in this country. It will be many years, perhaps centuries, before the United States and British America become one country, but the dividing line must some time fade just as the Mason and Dixon line has faded. There are a hundred reasons for the commercial, social and political solidarity of North America. There is but one valid reason in opposition. There is no possibility of the absorption of Canada by the United States or the absorption of the United States by Canada. Absorption is not to be thought of, but commerce between the two countries ought to be as free and unrestricted as between Ohio and Indiana.

The appropriation by the lower house of Congress for diplomatic residences in a number of European and also in some Asiatic capitals is a new but needed departure in our foreign diplomatic policy. The amount for the building of or purchase of consular ambassadorial or ministerial residences is not to exceed $150,000, but this amount will go much farther in the building of suitable residences for our representatives in foreign countries than it would in any American city. Now have appropriately prepared for the lodging of our diplomatic representatives, perhaps Congress can be persuaded to consider in an unfrenzied way a proper uniform for our ministers, consuls and ambassadors, something different from the evening dress worn by butlers and waiters all over the world. Careful analysists know that there is just as much vanity and affectation in Quakerlike plainness as there is in gorgeous attire, and since an overwhelming majority of the world at home and abroad get their first impressions from clothes, it is not improper that we give them through our foreign representatives a correct impression of the wealth and strength of the United States. Our affected plainness is not less ostentatious than it is deceiving.

There is no opposing vote in the Senate to Senator Cullom's project authorizing a Lincoln Memorial worthy of the great President and in keeping with high ideals of architectural grandeur. The form of the memorial has not been decided upon. It is left to the judgment and taste of a commission who it is hoped will make a wide and appropriate selection. There have been suggestions of a boulevard connecting Washington and Gettysburg, also a project for a triumphial arch like the Arch of Triumph in Paris or its prototype in Rome. There is also a project to have the memorial occupy the center of the great plaza stretching from the Capitol to the Union Station. The appropriation for this monument is two millions, but it is possible that this sum will be added to before the memorial is completed.

Fifty years ago the writer of a book called "Beyond the Mississippi" expressed the popular feeling in behalf of the express companies when he told how the Wells-Fargo Express Company carried over two million letters within a single year at the cost of 12½c a letter, which he said clearly "illustrates the superiority of private enterprise, and", he argued, "abolish the postoffice department, leave this like other carrying trade, to private competition, and the mail service of the United States will be performed 50 per cent. cheaper and 10 per cent. better than it is today." This is very much like the anti-parcels post argument is we are having now.

ARCHBISHOP RYAN DEAD

Archbishop Patrick John Ryan, aged 80 years, died at his home in Philadelphia, Pa., on Saturday morning from heart trouble, after several weeks of illness during which hope and dispair of his life had alternated on the part of his friends and admirers throughout the United States. He died with a blessing for all Catholics on his lips.

The beloved Archbishop was born at Turies, County Tipperary, Ireland, February 20, 1831. His family was distinguished in Irish history, being descended from the O'Ryans, princes of Irdone. His earliest schooling was under the care of the Christian Brother's in the Naughton school in Dublin. Among all the plaudits that followed his career few pleased him more than the first tribute to his boyish eloquence paid by the famous Daniel O'Connell, the Irish liberator, when the latter visited the school and Ryan then but 12 years old was chosen to make him a speech. "That lad's tongue will make him famous one of these days," the liberator said. It was not many years before the prophecy came true.

In 1847 Ryan entered the seminary at Carlow. He was graduated when 21 years old and came to this country with the Rev. Patrick Feehan to take up his work in St. Louis. Since he could not yet be ordained for the priesthood, he entered the Seminary of Carondelet as a professor. Leading citizens of St. Louis and the surrounding country went to hear the young preacher, whose eloquence, literary taste and facility for composition were attracting wide notice. As a member of the faculty he was allowed to preach—an usual privilege for a deacon.

In Sept., 1853, he entered twenty years service as a missionary. He worked as assistant in the Cathedral of St. Louis and as attending priest in the Gratiot prison. In 1863, Father Ryan was chosen to accompany Archbishop Kenrick on a tour of Europe, during which Pope Pius IX appointed him to preach the English lenten sermons in the Catholic capital.

When the failing health of Archbishop Kenrick demanded a coadjutor assistant, Ryan was appointed to that position in 1872. In January, 1884, he was appointed Archbishop of Salumis and on August 18 of the same year Archbishop of Philadelphia. He was formally installed August 20, 1884.

Archbishop Ryan's administration of the arch diocese was a brilliant success from the day of his installation. His wonderful personal magnetism, his sincerity and strength of character won him the respect and affection of Philadelphians generally, regardless of creed.

SUPREME COURT

Justice Clark granted both parties in the case of P. H. Ward vs. Pasqualina Louise et al., injunctions against the other restraining them from trespassing in an alley in Fulton dividing their property. W. S. Hillick and Claude E. Gulle were the opposing attorneys.

The application of Emma Prashaw, of Fulton, for a divorce from her husband, George J. Prashaw, was denied, but leave given to renew later, on the ground that the evidence was not conclusive. F. G. Spencer appeared for the plaintiff. Defendant was not represented.

The case of E. J. Cusack vs. J. A. Foster et al., as Commissioners of Public Works of the city of Fulton, was referred to Charles N. Bulger. Wilson & Jennings are attorneys for the plaintiff, while City Attorney Fanning represented the Board of Public Works.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

DEATHS

Ora R., wife of Mr. Herman Moody, died in Syracuse on Thursday. The remains were brought to this city and the funeral services were held from State street church on Saturday. Interment was made in Ira Cemetery.

Henry Stevens, the well known Holstein-Frisian cattle breeder of Lacona, died suddenly last week from neuralgia of the heart. Although the deceased has been blind for over twenty five years he was an expert judge of cattle. He was 71-years of age, a Mason and a Granger.

Charles L. Guile, aged 68, for over 20-years a resident of Volney, died in the Lee Memorial hospital on Thursday after a long illness. Burial was made in Mt. Adnah on Saturday.

Sunday afternoon memorial services for the deceased were held in Bristol Hill church, Rev. George Ward officiating. The services were largely attended by the friends of the deceased.

Oswego Times: Eugene Higgins, aged fifty years, died at the Hospital at seven o'clock Friday evening after an illness of two months. Mr. Higgins was born in this city, but had lived in Fulton the greater part of his life, being employed in the Fulton Dye Works. He is survived by three sisters, Mr. J. D. Martin, of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Michael Tully and Mrs. G. N. Vauvillier, both of this city.

Albert John Williams, aged 67, a former resident of this city where he at one time owned the house in Second street now owned and occupied by P. H. Ward, died at a hospital in Syracuse on Sunday morning after several years of ill health. During the past nine years he has been engaged in the real estate business in Syracuse. He was a veteran of the Civil War, fighting in the Third New York Light Infantry. The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon from the late home in Midland avenue, Syracuse. Beside the widow, one daughter, Miss Hope Williams, survives.

Brief mention was made of the death of F. T. Howard of Mt. Pleasant last week. He had suffered from blood poisoning for some time and was removed to the Lee Memorial hospital for an operation. More than one was performed in the hope of saving his life, but the advanced age of 71 years precluded the possibility of recovery. The funeral services were held from the Mt. Pleasant church on Thursday afternoon. The immediate survivors are four sons, George, John, James and Henry, all of Mount Pleasant; three daughters, Mrs. W. J. Sharp of Fulton, Mrs. Lettie Burliss of Euclid and Mrs. Grace Peckham of Mount Pleasant.

James Whitcomb, one of the most prominent of Granby's farmers, died last week at St. Cloud, Florida, where he had gone two weeks previous in quest of health. He was accompanied to the southland by his wife. The mournful privelege of bringing the body back to the desolate home was the only result of the fruitless trip. The funeral services were held from the late home on Saturday and they were attended by a large concourse of friends who gathered to pay their respects to the deceased. Beside the widow, the immediate survivors are three daughters, Ethel, Ruth and May; three brothers, Herbert of Baldwinsville, Charles of Washington, and Frank of Granby and one sister, Emma Gerl.

After several months of ill health following strokes of paralysis, Belle Tucker, aged 68, passed to rest at her apartments in the Hotel Lewis on Saturday morning. The deceased was born in this city and was educated in Falley seminary but had made her home for the past 30-years with her sister, Mrs. Switz Conde, in Oswego. For about 5—years past she had however occupied apartments at the Hotel Lewis, where for several months past she had been under the care of a physician and nurse. The body was removed to the home of a sister, Mrs. Jennie Barnes, in Second street from where the funeral was held on Monday afternoon, the Rev. G. W. Wellburn officiating. Burial was made in Mt. Adnah. The deceased is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Conde and Mrs. Barnes, and a host of friends to whom her death brings regret.

DANIEL E. SICKLES

Oldest Ex-Member Honored by the Legislature and Addresses the Assembly

Albany, Feb. 11.—That aged and maimed veteran, General Daniel E. Sickles, was accorded unusual honors by the Assembly yestreday. He was not only accorded the privileges of the Assembly floor but was asked to speak from it. He said:

"Mr. Speaker and members of the Assembly, the compliment you have paid me, standing in this presence, makes me feel young again: I feel about 21, which was my age when I was chosen a member of this House in 1847. A great many interesting events have happened since that time, in some of which I have had the opportunity of taking an humble part. I believe, and so far as I know I am the oldest living member of the Legislature of the State of New York. I had the honor to have my seat in the Assembly for two sessions, and to be a member of the co-ordinate branch of the Legislature. I was chosen a Senator in 1855, and in the following year 1856 I was chosen a member of Congress. So far as I know I am the oldest living ex-member of the two houses of this Legislature and of the American Congress. Thanking Almighty God for the blessings of a long life and a happy life, somewhat usual, I trust, in our American country, and with the further prayer that the blessing of Almighty God may rest upon you, the present members of the Assembly, I thank you most heartily for the compliment I have received."

GEORGE A. GLYNN TO LOCATE IN WATERTOWN

Watertown.—It was stated here that George A. Glynn, formerly of Oswego, had brought an interest in the Watertown Standard and that he would at once assume the duties of editor of that paper. He succeeds William H. Smith of Watertown as editor. Mr. Smith is a brother of Edgar N. Smith, one of the principal owners of the paper.

Mr. Glynn was until a short time ago connected with the Syracuse Herald and during the term of Horace White, was the Governor's Secretary. Mr. Glynn was also mentioned as minority member of the State Civil Service Commission but the appointment went to a New Yorker.

MAGAZINE POSTAGE

The Senate Committee on Post offices and Post Roads reported the postoffice appropriation bill favorably, with practically all the recommendations of the Postmaster General embodied therein. The rate of postage on periodicals is fixed at one cent a pound for the first 4,000 pounds of each issue. On all above that weight, the rate will be one cent a pound for the reading matter and 4 cents a pound for the advertising pages; but— and this is an important exception — all fraternal, scientific, patriotic and educational publications get the 1 cent a pound rate and are permitted to carry advertising, a privilege they have not hitherto enjoyed. Their support of this provision of the bill is expected to go far to offset the opposition of the popular magazines. The vote in the committee stood 8 to 2 for the amendment, its only opponents being Senators Bourne and Owen. The Postmaster General believes this amendment will be approved by the House and estimates that it will increase the postal revenues by about $5,000,000 a year, which will offset the extension of rural free delivery and the increase of compensation of rural carriers and leave a small balance on the credit side of the postoffice ledger. The weights of magazines carried in the mails last year show that their average increased postage will amount to two-fifths of a cent a copy. The Senate committee also provided $500,000 for the extension of the postal savings banks, and authorized an increased parcels post service on rural routes and extensive experiments with general parcels post service. The purpose of carrying the first 4,000 pounds of all periodicals at the old rate of 1 cent a pound is to save from any possible hardship smaller magazines, which may be struggling for existence. That this change in magazine postage will be opposed by the great popular magazines is, of course, fully expected. All dwelling houses and places of business must have suitable mail boxes after June 30 next.

QUICK WORK AT BUILDING

Sunday morning about 6 o'clock the pumping station at Mexico with boiler, engine and pumping machinery were destroyed by fire. As the station is very important on that branch of the New York Central Supervisor of Bridges and Buildings, L. W. Stone was at once notified. He has ttly secured a new boiler, a corps of men, and by special train hurried to the scene of the conflagration. At 8 o'clock on Sunday night the three buildings destroyed by fire had been replaced with new ones, the machinery was installed and everything was in working order.

So far as is known this is the quickest job ever done in this section of the State.

MATRIMONIALS MISFITS

Friday afternoon, a degree of divorce was granted Richard J. Appleton, of Fulton. Charles N. Coffin, of Constantia was granted a decree from his wife, Anna B. Coffin, and Grace Byrant, of Phoenix, was given a separation from her husband, William C. Bryant, with $4 a week alimony.

A divorce was granted to E. W. V. Schoick, Phoenix, against his wife, Rose Van Schoick.

The case of Frank H. Loyst vs. Margaret Ellen Loyst, for divorce, was referred to D. P. Morehouse.

SAWS AND SAUSAGE

Sheriff Taft and his assistants in Oswego discovered a plot on Thursday night which might have resulted in a wholesale jail delivery from the county institution but for the fact that it was discovered. The sheriff came to Fulton at once and asked the local police to find one John Cavallaro, who it was thought had secreted saws in a bundle of Italian sausage which he had a day or two previous presented his brother-in-law, Tony Lespard, who was confined in the jail for some offense. Cavallaro was found by the police and he was taken to Oswego by Sheriff Taft that night, having confessed to the charge.

A letter from Cavallaro to Lespard, which was of course opened by the jail officials, revealed the fact that saws had been smuggled into the jail in the sausage. The turnkey watched proceedings and soon discovered. Lespard industriously engaged in sawing his way to liberty through steel bars and linings to his cell.

Eugene Austin identified Cavallaro as a man to whom he had sold saw blades a few days previous to his arrest.

A Story of the Sunny South Right After the Civil War

Written For The Times

BY CAPTAIN O. J. JENNINGS.

That Fall when the corn was shucked, Epherum found himself the possessor of over six hundred bushels; from this he paid Mr. Bradway his and sold enough to pay for the pigs and gave Phillis twenty dollars to buy clothing for herself and the children. Phillis was now the possessor of the first money that in all her life she could call her own; how to invest it to the best advantage was a problem. After several days thought and discussion with Epherum she said, "I know what I'ze gwine to do, and that is take de money ober to Miss Margret and ask her to 'vest it for us." As she commenced putting on her bandanna she said to Epherum: "I wants you to catch a dozen of de bes' chickens we's got and put dem in a hamper so I can take dem to Miss Margret".

Soon after Phillis was on the way hamper in hand. Setting her basket down at the kitchen door she went in and enquired for Miss Margret, when one of the girls went into the house and said: "Aunt Phillis, don came and says she wants to see you, Miss Margret."

"Very well, tell her I will see her directly and as you go back give Aunt Phillis a cup of coffee and some bread and meat."

As Phillis finished her breakfast, Mrs. Bradway, came in greeting Phillis with the same cordiality she would one of her most distinguished guests, at the same time enquiring how all the children were.

"They's fus' rate well, Miss Margret but I'ze awful shame of them."

"Why, Aunt Phillis, how can you talk so, its not often one sees so well behaved children as yours."

"T'aint dat, it's cause they's nothin' but bunch rags and dat's what I'ze came to see you 'bout."

Mrs. Bradway in spite of her efforts to look serious and sympathetic, had to indulge in a hearty laugh in which Phillis joined, saying at the same time, "dem boys of mine am de wus critters dat eber was turned loose."

"Well, Aunt Phillis, some thing must be done to fit them out with warm comfortable clothing for the Winter. I think, Agnes has some frocks that can be made over for your little Emmagean and Mr. Bradway has a quantity of clothing he will never wear again that can be made over for the boys."

"Lor', Miss Margret, you's so good, but Epheum done give me twenty dollars to buy clothing for de children and myself and dat's what I came over here to see you 'bout, and give you 'vest it for us."

"Well, Aunt Phillis, we will first invest in hiring a seamstress to make over such clothing as we can find right here at home and that is suitable to make over; when that is done we will see about buying. I will write a note to Miss Beasley saying I want her to come and sew for a time and you please take the note over to her and then come back here and tell me what she says about coming."

As Phillis opened the door to go the hamper of chickens which had been forgotten, attracted her attention; turning back she said, "Miss Margret, I'ze done brought you does chickens what I raise for you."

"Thank you very much Aunt Phillis; how many did you bring?"

"Miss Margret, I'ze only brought fus' a dozen dis time, but."

"Stop right where you are Aunt Phillis, you are not going to bring any more, nor am I going to take all of these; I told you you might bring a half dozen this Fall to pay for the setters and the eggs, and I don't want you to leave more than the half dozen."

"Now, Miss Margret, I'ze raised these chickens 'specsley for you and done tole you when I tuck de setters dat I was gwine to bring you all de chickens I raise."

"Yes, Aunt Phillis, and I told you I did not want more than a half dozen and further that I wanted you to have a good flock of fowls to winter; so you must do as I say and take back six of these chickens."

"Miss Margret, does you want to break poor ole Phillis heart right here dis minute?"

"No, Aunt Phillis, I don't, much less hurt your feelings."

"Den don't, Miss Margret, tell me I mus' take de chickens back."

By this time Phillis was sobbing and saying, "Oh, Miss Margret, please don't say I mus'."

Mrs. Bradway was a lady of much decision of character, but here was a condition beyond her power to withstand, and Phillis carried the day and the chickens were left.

The next day Miss Beasley, the seamstress, reported at Mrs. Bradway's and the work of making clothes for the young Hardiman's commenced. Little Miss Agnes (Mrs. Bradway's daughter) was highly elated to thing she could give some of her frocks to make poor little Emmagean comfortable and happy. Mrs. Bradway brought out quite a part of Mr. Bradway's wardrobe, saying, "he will never wear these again."

Soon an immense supply of work confronted Miss Beasley, who said, in her quiet way; "I ought to have the children here to measure, them."

"Very well," said, Mrs. Bradway. "Agnes you go and say to Mary Bettie, I want her to go over to Aunt Phillis and tell her to come here with all her children."

"Mamma, can't I go with Mary Bettie, I know we will have such fun."

"My dear child what fun can there be in walking over there to say we want them to come over here?"

"Oh, lots of fun mamma, they are such queer little darkies and look so funny; then too I know Aunt Phillis will have to wash their faces and sew them up some before they start; then it will be so nice marching over with them."

"Very well, you can go."

Soon Mary Bettie and Agnes set out and in due time reached the Hardiman cabin and delivered the message. "For gracious goodness sake honey, has you ma gone 'stracted."

"No, Aunt Phillis, why do you ask such a question?"

"Cause she done let you come 'mong lot little rag muffin niggers."

"Aunt Phillis my mamma says your people are just as deserving of kind and courteous treatment as if you were white, and that it's not your fault that your children haven't better clothes."

"Honey, you dear chile, your ma knows how't we couldn't get nothin' but ole throw'd off duds to put on them. Come here little Rastus and have your face wash; you's gwine over to Miss Margret's and I want you to look clean, if you doan look 'spectable."

Mary Bettie volunteered to wash and get little Emmagean ready. After the wash rag and warm water had been thoroughly applied to all three of the children, the work of "sewing them up" as Agnes put it began; the boys had just about enough cloth on them to cover their body's when it was sewed together and the little girl's only frock was hardly an apology for a dress; but with needle and thread Aunt Phillis and Mary Bettie soon got them in shape for the march; as they got out of doors and ready for the start Agnes said, "Aunt Phillis, you and Mary Bettie go on ahead and tell mamma that a troop is coming that will someday become very nice and an important factor in doing good among their people."

"All right honey," said Phillis, and on they went. As soon as they were out of sight Agnes formed her company in single file and so marched, winding their way through the pines to the Bradway mansion, in great glee. Miss Beasley here took measurements and the work of making over clothes for the little Hardimans was under way.

That night Aunt Phillis took home a pair of knickerbocker pants for each of the boys; at the end of the week the children were all fitted out with two suits for each one. Little Emmagean's Sunday outfit was a blue dress, a wide red ribbon sash for the waist and a narrow blue ribbon for her hair. This had been under Agnes exclusive direction. Each boy had two good substantial suits one for Sunday and one to work in. Emmagean had fared better than the boys. Agnes had kept finding something that little Emmagean would look so nice in that it had to go to make up the little girls wardrobe. Mrs. Bradway had looked up a very good dress for Aunt Phillis and also a suit of Mr. Bradway's clothes which were sent over to Uncle Epherum together with an overcoat; little remained to be got beyond shoes and stockings and some warm under clothing for Uncle Epherum and Aunt Phillis, this Mrs. Bradway thought could be done with the twenty dollars after paying Miss Beasley. So as winter came on the Hardiman's were in better condition in every way than ever before in their lives; plenty of meat and corn, nearly thirty fowls and a fairly comfortable cabin to live in.

One evening as Epherum sat by the open fire smoking his pipe in a meditative mood, as was his wont, Phillis said to him: "Ephum, what you done studyin' 'bout?"

"How you know I'ze studyin'?"

"Lor', Ephum, I can tell de very minute you goes into one dem studies; what you got on your mine auyway?"

"Phillis, I was thinking how the Lord has done blest us and how we can best thank him."

"Epherum, it's come 'bout through them dear folkes, de Bradway's; the Lord am right wid them all de time. Dey's got more 'ligon dan all res' de white folks we ever see, 'taint none this Virginia. 'ligon, what doan mean nothin,' it's de real 'ligon what teaches them to do good unto other, like you wish they would to you."

"Phillis, you hain' done got that right, the Bible says; "do to others as you would that others do to you."

"Well you know's what I mean's and we mus' do something for them so they'll know we 'spreciates what they's done for we all."

"Phillis, when I thank de Lord and ask him to bless Mr. Bradway and all his family wid health, happiness and prosperity, ain't I doin' right? De Bradway's will live to be ole folks if my prayers will keep them on dis earth."

"Ephum, can't you done shoot a wild turkey to make them Christmas present?"

"Dat's jus' what I can do if I had a gun."

"Well, you can get one of Uncle Andrew."

Two days latter, Uncle Ephe came home just after sunset with one of the finest turkeys to be found in the wilds of Virginia. "For Gord, Ephum, where you done got him?"

"Oh, I shot him up in de big woods less hang him up in de corn house till morin,' den you, Phillis, take him over to de Bradway's and say it's our little Christmas present."

"Ephum, you done shoot him an you's the one to present it with jus' as gran' a speech as you can make."

"Lor', Phillis, what can I say?"

"Well, you can say, Mr. Bradway, it am Christmas day after tomorrow, de day the Saviour was born on earth and we always celebrates the day with feastin' and good time and as we wants to 'tribute some thing towards your happiness and cheer, I'ze brought you wild turkey. Then jes' step to de door an pull him out de bag and bring him in, saying as you han' it over, "A Merry Christmas to you all."

The next morning Uncle Ephe laid a bag down at the sitting room door of the Bradway mansion and rapped. Mr. Bradway opened the door and with his usual pleasant address said, "Good morning, Uncle Epherum. 'Come in', pou'r out early."

"No, not so early; I'ze come to say it's Christmas day after tomorrow and as we wants to help you have merry time I'ze brought you Christmas present," and saying "squese me," stepped out side the door but soon returned with a turkey saying as he handed it to Mr. Bradway, "A Merry Christmas to you all."

"Uncle Epherum, we thank you most heartily for this generous and timely remembrance and appreciate it more highly coming as it does from one we know gives it with a heartfelt friendship; we shall keep you and yours in kind remembrance with our best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity."

Epherum went home a happy man. The next day Aunt Phillis went home from the Bradway's carrying a large spare rib, a package of rice and a pound of raisins; such a Christmas with the Hardimans had never before been approximated, it was to them a really happy Christmas and the best of their lives. During the Winter Epherum cut wood and did such other work as he was directed to do until Mr. Bradway said, "Uncle Ephe, you have worked for us until I am in debt to you; what am I to do? I need a little more of your help."

"Doan say nothin' 'bout dat Mr. Bradway, jus' lem me do the wuck you want's done. I doan want no pay for what I do for you."

"No-no, Uncle Ephe, that won't do, you must be paid for the werk you do for us."

"Mr. Bradway, does it need bargain like it did 'bout de corn?"

"Yes, it would be well to have an understanding."

"Is dat same as bargain?"

"Yes, substantially."

"Well, dem you jus' go right long and make it for us both jus' like you did 'bout dat corn."

You need not suffer from

Rheumatism

There is a cure—a positive, permanent cure if you will only take advantage of it. You may have a most severe case of rheumatism. You may have had it for such a long time that it has become chronic. That makes no difference.

You can cure it with Wintergreen Compound

The formula of this remedy is exactly the same as that used by a noted specialist in his successful treatment of hundreds of rheumatic cases. Thousands of cures have resulted from its use, and we do not know of a singled instance where it has failed to bring relief.

Wintergreen Compound

will cure you.

C. A. Taylor, Druggist, Altoona, Pa., writes: "I have been an active druggist in Altoona almost thirty years, and have never sold anything that has given such general satisfaction as Wintergreen Compound. Customers say it is the best remedy they have ever used for rheumatism, and I know of some almost miraculous cures with only two or three bottles."

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us his name and 50c. for a regular size bottle fully prepaid. Wintergreen Compound Co., 380 Orange St., Rochester, N. Y.

The Misses Guile on Wednesday evening entertained a party of friends at cards at their home in Broadway.

Mr. J. E. Hawthorne has purchased from Meat Dealer Simpson, the latters market on the corner of Fifth street and Broadway.

Mrs. Luther Wright Mott of Oswego is a delegate from the Oswego chapter, D. A. R., to the Continental Congress to be held in Washington, D. C., on April 17.

Mrs. Robert Hunter will give another in a series of teas at which she is entertaining her friends, at her home in Fourth street this Wednesday evening.

American Express Agent N. H. Gilbert is confined to his home under the care of a trained nurse. His many friends are most hopeful for his speedy recovery.

Mrs. C. T. Bailey on Friday evening entertained at dinner in honor of her niece, Florence Holmes, who was her guest and whose natal anniversary occurred on that date.

Miss Eva Videon, who suffered an injury to her foot while engaged at her duties in the Victoria mill recently, has so far recovered from he injury as to be removed from the Lee Memoral hospital to her home.

This week Messrs. Vincent Hall, Randall Dow and Richard Carr, Jr., leave for Washington and other far western points to engage in business ventures. Their many friends in Fulton wish them good health and success.

Former Manager Robert Bell of the gas office, from his Canadian place of business, sends a friend in this city an order for a bottle of combination hair and brain restorer. If Mr. Bell expects soon to visit Fulton again he will needs have his scalp securely bolted on.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will hold the annual chicken pie supper in the church parlors on Washington's birthday, Wednesday of next week. Supper will be served from five until eight. Tickets twenty-five cents. An invitation is extended to the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stevens have returned to Fulton to make their home. Mr. Stevens will go back and forth to business. His position in the canal office is a Civil Servce one and he does not fear change from the new administration.

Twice so far this Winter Oneida street has been of necessity torn up to permit frozen water mains to be repaired. It is alleged that when the grade was established for the street improvement that the mains were not placed below the freezing line, they being but a foot and a half from the surface. It is a pity that some ones bungling has destroyed the street in some sections.

Phoenix Register: Last Sunday several Fulton youths visited this village and attempted to show their "city" smartness, while they were roaming around the streets they passed the engine house and sounded the fire alarm and attempted to send in an alarm from the box. They had invitations to appear and settle before the chief engineer and president of the village. Officer Chapin has the matter in charge. * * * Mrs. T. C. Sweet and daughters, Vera and Ruth, left Tuesday to spend the remainder of the week in Albany with Mr. Sweet. Mr. and Mrs. Sweet attended the reception given by Governor and Mrs. Dix to the members of the legislature.

THOMAS COLES WINS

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has decided the long standing case of the City of Fulton vs. Thomas Coles, as trustee of a school district, in Mr. Coles' favor.

The city sued to recover for tuition of the pupils coming from the school district in Granby to the Fulton school.

This case has been pending several years and much interest has been shown concerning its result. Mead & Stranahan represented Mr. Coles, while Giles S. Piper appeared for the city.

NEARLY FATAL EXPERIENCE

An Oswego paper of last week gives the following account of woman's thrilling ride which nearly proved fatal. It was at least an experience not likely ever again to be counted by the woman, who stubbornly refused to give her name:

A ride of nearly four miles clinging to the handle of a vestibuled car on a fast train and the temperature not many degrees above zero was the thrilling experience of a young woman whose name could not be learned, but whose home is said to be in this city. Thursday night she purchased a ticket in the New York Central passenger station with the intention of taking the Phoenix train, which leaves at 9:15, the same hour that the Lackawanna train, across the street, is scheduled to leave. The Phoenix was a little late in coming down from the shops and the young woman seeing the Lackawanna train pulling out, and being not much accustomed to traveling alone, made a race across the intervening tracks and just caught the last coach.

The train is vestibuled and the doors are all locked on the side away from the station. The train rapidly gathered motion and although Officer Czirr, who was on duty at the station, and a number of those waiting for the Phoenix train attempted to get the attention of the train crew and have it stopped, their efforts were without avail and the train was gone with the woman clinging to a handle with her feet on the narrow portion of the step outside the vestibule. Passenger Agent Henry Hill called Minetto by 'phone and told the agent there of the accident. It so happened, however, that just before the train had reached the Minetto station one of the crew saw the predicament of the woman and unlocking the door took her inside. She was nearly exhausted with her cold ride and the necessity of maintaining one position and in a few minutes more would of necessity have released her grasp on the handle and fallen to the ground and perhaps been seriously if not fatally hurt.

COMPETENT HIGHWAY APPOINTEES ARE PREFERRED

It always has been impossible and always will be impossible to secure good work in the construction and maintenance of good roads under any officer elected or appointed for the term of two years only. Each time such officer's term expires almost the entire personnel of his office is changed. In addition to the change of this personal staff, all of the district engineers in charge of the local work are also changed, as they are appointees of the Superintendent of Highways. It is true that in the Department of Highways the engineers of lower active rank are protected by civil service regulations, but it is a sad fact that has been practised before that these officials, where their capability and honest work is known, are not protected from being transferred from one place where their honesty interferes with a favored contractor to another place where there is little to do except draw their pay. Is not the wiley hand of Tammany beguiling the Governor into making a false move?

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

STORY OF A LOAN.

A Case Where the Statute of Limitations Was Not Considered.

A well known Kansas banker told a story the other day about the statute of limitations. There is a simile in it, plus some good philosophy.

One day an old southerner waited into this banker's office. The southerner was a typical gentleman of the old school suave, courteous to the point of punctilliousness and honorable to a degree of quarterdom.

"What can I do for you?" asked the banker.

"Well," replied the southerner, "about thirty-five years ago I loaned a man down south some money—not a very big sum. I told him that whenever I should need it I would let him know and he could pay me the money. I need some money now, so I shall let him know, and I would like to have you transact the business for me."

"My good friend," replied the banker, "you have no claim on that money. You can't collect it. You said that man to that loan. You say it has been thirty-five years since you loaned it to him? The statute of limitations has run against that loan years and years ago."

"Sir," replied the southerner, "the man I loaned that money is a gentleman. The statute of limitations against a gentleman." The banker sent for the money. A reasonable time thereafter came. There was a man at the other end of the line also. — Kansas City Star.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach, build their proper functions. Sample and results do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

BORN IN TOWN OF GRANBY

The congregation of the First Congregational church, Montclair, N. J., has yielded to the request of Rev. Amory H. Bradford, D. D., who on account of ill health has tendered his resignation, and has accepted the same.

About a year ago Dr. Bradford first sent his resignation to the trustees, in which he said that his health was such that he could not attend to his pastoral duties. The congregational was loath to accept the resignation of the man who had built up the church from a mere handful of members to one of the largest and most influential in this country. It was then decided to engage a new pastor, to whom the full salary of $6,000 a year would be paid but that Dr. Bradford should remain head pastor while he lived, the pastor to take complete charge of the church on the death of Dr. Bradford. Meantime Dr. Bradford was to enjoy the use of the parsonage and be paid $3,500 a year as long as he lived. In addition the church agreed to pay the yearly premium on a policy of insurance for $20,000 on the life of Dr. Bradford, which is payable to his hiers.

Dr. Bradford has been the only pastor the church has had since its organization, nearly 41 years ago, and the church has been Dr. Bradford's only pastorate. He was born at Granby, Oswego county, N. Y., in 1846, and was graduated from Hamilton College in 1867, and from the Andover Theological Seminary in 1870.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Bradford is a cousin of W. J. Bradford of 219 South Sixth street, Fulton. — Observer.

THE WOMAN AGAIN

Clarence H. New of Canastota, driver for the American Express Co., filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in United States Court in Utica last week. His liabilities are $2,242.77 and assets nothing. Mr. New was formerly engaged in farming and peddling milk and most of his liabilities were contracted while engaged in that business. He claims that all he made was applied on the purchase price of a farm held in his wife's name and that she deeded it to her mother, Mrs. Goss, leaving him and his creditors without anything.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Romance of a Shadow.

It is hard to believe that a shadow is probably the origin of all astronomical, geometrical and geographical science. The first man who fixed his staff perpendicularly in the ground and measured its shadow was the earliest computer of time, and the Arab of today who plants his spear in the sand and marks where the shadow falls is his direct descendant. It is from the shadow of a gnomon that the early Egyptians told the length of the year. It is from the shadow of a gnomon that the inhabitants of upper Egypt still measure the hours of work for a water wheel. In this case the gnomon is a lburra stalk supported on forked uprights and points north and south. East and west are pegs in the ground evenly marking the space of earth between sunrise and sunset. In a land of constant sunshine a shadow was the primitive chronometer. It was also the primitive footrule.—London T. P.'s Weekly.

ISOCHRONISM

The word Isochronism is of Greek derivation, meaning Equal Time. It designates one of the principles applied to a watch in its adjustment.

The Balance of a watch gives 18,000 vibrations every hour. Should it vary one vibration in every 20,000 it would exceed the limit placed by railway time inspection and would be rejected; hence the necessity of isochronism—equal time.

The South Bend Watch is designed mathematically correct, made of the best material possible to secure, assembled by men who have made this their life's occupation and its isochronal adjustment as near perfect as human skill can accomplish.

FALLS KILLS MOTHER

While carrying medicine to her sick son on Sunday night Mrs. Timothy Donahue of No. 26 West Eighth street, Oswego, fell down a flight of stairs at her home and sustained a severe fracture of the skull at the base of the brain. Dr. J. B. Ringland, the attending physician, says she cannot recover.

The cause of the accident is not known, Mrs. Donahue having been unconscious since the fall. The theory advanced by the physician is that she was not thoroughly awake when she went to attend her son on the second floor, having risen from her bed in answer to his call.

While in this state it is thought that she missed her footing on the landing and plunged to the bottom where she was found by her husband. All efforts to arouse her have been futile and, following a consultation with Dr. O'Brien, Dr. Ringland announced to-night that death might come at any moment.

Mrs. Donahue is about 45 years of age and the wife of Timothy Donahue, a blacksmith at the New York Central shops. She is a lifelong resident of Oswego and the mother of a family of seven children, four boys and three girls.

George, the son Mrs. Donahue was attending when injured, had been ill for some time and is now in grave condition.

LIFE IN ICELAND.

Farmhouses Are Built of Turf and Often Have Earthen Floors.

The guest room in the Iceland farmhouse contained a narrow bed, a big round table and an organ made in Brattleboro, Vt. Our host produced the usual box of snuff and with it a box of good cigars.

The host and hostess then showed us all over the house. It is a turf structure and is typical of the older farmhouses, with narrow, dark, windowless corridors winding in labyrinthian maze from room to room. One passageway leads to a large open mound where a fire is made to smoke meat and fish and incidentally the whole house and everything in it. Another passage leads to another kitchen with a modern stove. The walls are all of turf, as is the roof, with just enough driftwood in the roof to make a framework to hold it in place. Very steep stairs lead up to the badstofa, or sleeping apartment. The badstofa frequently forms the sitting and common workroom of the family, especially in winter, as well as the sleeping room of the entire household.

Bunks built into the wall extend around the room and are often filled with seaweed or feathers, over which is thrown a fold or two of wadmal and a thick coverlet of elderdown. The doors are sometimes covered with boards, but more often consist of damp earth. From the ceiling are suspended numerous articles of domestic economy, while large chests containing clothing and valuables are scattered throughout the house.—Springfield Republican.

SERUM WORK TRANSFERRED

Health Board to Distribute It for Rockefeller Institute

Announcement was made last week at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research that the general distribution of the anti-meningitis serum, which the institute has been making for several months, would be discontinued. The work of producing and distributing the serum will be taken over by the New York Board of Health, the first board of its kind in this country to undertake such a work.

The Board of Health will provide free distribution of the serum to eleven hospitals in the city and to all physicians who apply for it. Stations where serum will be kept are to be established in various parts of New York City. Since the discovery of the serum statistics show that the deaths from cerebro-spinal meningitis have been reduced to less than a third of the former rate.

HIGHLY ENJOYABLE LECTURE

The Presbyterian church was crowded to the doors on Friday evening to hear the lecture given by the Rev. George W. Wellburn, preceded by an organ recital by Mrs. Thomas Hunter. Each feature of the program was most delightful to the audience and words of highest appreciation of the efforts of the organist and lecturer have been expressed. Mrs. Hunter is truly an artist and under her fingers the organ brought forth melody.

Mr. Wellburn took a rather unusual topic for his lecture, but he presented it in a manner which carried it far away from the tedious or the uninteresting. He had watched the monster ship built; was in close friendship with the firm of builders and with the inventor of her turbine, and he had also crossed the ocean on the ship in her completed stage. He had taken photographs of the boat at different periods of her construction and he exhibited these views with stereopticon, covering the subject most completely and clearly.

OLDEST COUNTY OFFICIAL

N. L. Wilson, who attended the meeting of county highway officials in Oswego last week as a member of the Town Board of Hastings, is probably the oldest town official in the State. The fact that a man a ninety is able to transact public business besides carrying on the affairs of his own carding mill which he conducts in the town of Parish, adjoining Hastings, is another nail in the proposition that has been advanced by Doctor Osler.

As a boy, Mr. Wilson lived on the farm of his father at Bowens Corners, then went to Hastings as a man in middle life, and for forty years conducted the carding mill at what was known as Carley's Mills. There he carded tons upon tons of wool, and when the old mill was pulled down, Mr. Wilson moved the machinery from his plant over to a mill in the town of Parish.

Mr. Wilson enjoys excellent health, takes a keen interest in county affairs and is particularly alive to the needs of road improvement. For twenty-eight years Mr. Wilson has served as one of the Justices of the Peace of the town of Hastings, and his findings are seldom appealed from.

LIFE'S LADDER

(By Ella Wheeler Wilcox)

Unto each mortal who comes to earth
A ladder is given by God at birth,
And up this ladder the soul must go,
Step by step, from the valley below;
Step by step to the center of space
On this ladder of lives to the starting place.

In time departed which yet endures,
I shaped my ladder and you shaped yours.
What ever they are, they are what we made.
A ladder of light or a ladder of shade
A ladder of love or a hateful thing,
A ladder of strength or a wavering string,
A ladder of gold or a ladder of straw.
Each is the ladder of righteous law.

We flung them away at the call of death,
We took hem again with the next life breath.
For a keeper stands by the great birth gates,
And as each soul passes its ladder waits,
Though mine be narrow and yours be broad.
On my ladder alone can I climb to God.
On your ladder alone can your feet ascend,
For none may borrow and none may lend.

If toil and trouble and pain are found
Twisted and corded to form each round,
If rusted iron or moldering wood
Is the fragile frame, you must make it good
You must build it over and fashion it strong,
Though the task be as hard as your life is long;
For up this ladder the pathway leads
To earthly pleasures and spirit needs,
For all that may come in another way
Shall be bu illusion and will not stay.

In useless effort, then, waste no time;
Rebuild your ladder, and climb and climb.

JUDGE BULGER IS GRATIFIED

Judge Bulger, in discussing the efforts being put forth by his friends to land him on the Supreme Court bench, said: "I have no words that I can bring to my aid by which I may suitably express my gratitude to the men who inaugurated and carried out this movement. Being men from all walks in life I regard it as an effort on their part to have justice done to Oswego and thereby right the wrong which was done to this county five or six years ago. I much more highly prize what my neighbors have done than any position that might be conferred upon me by Governor Dix, even to the naming me for the great office to which he himself was elected, if that was possible, by the people of the Empire State."

FRIENDS VERY APPRECIATIVE

Mr. Pollard's Friends Surprise Him —Present Him With Lamp And Monster Birthday Cake

While Mr. Henry Pollard, for many years chorister in the Congregational church, was at service on Thursday evening, about fifty of his friends took possession of his home and upon his return to it he found his reading table newly decorated with a handsome electric reading lamp. Friday was Mr. Pollard's seventy-first birthday and the presentation was most timely.

Accompanying the lamp was a very clever acrostic as follows:

More than threescore and ten prolific years
Rest lightly on his sun-illumined face;
His voice and hand, still tuned with skill and grace,
Exalt and crown him king among his peers.
No marks that harm and mar with needless strife
Retract from honors which he gently bears;
Yet pains and trials, such as those he shares,
Provide a touch that beautifies his life.
Of things which we for him today would choose,
Let not long years be counted chief; instead
Life's seasons filled with happiness and peace
And all that strength may hope to gain and use;
Rewarding toil through paths of blessing led,
Delightful fruitage ere its course shall cease.

Among the refreshments served was a mammoth birthday cake decorated with flowers, candies and candles. The guests remained until the midnight hour ushered in the anniversary of their host's birth when they repaired to their homes leaving many hearty good wishes for his continued good health and activity.

"THE SPELL OF THE SPHINX"

The Rev. James' Empringham, Rector of St. Paul's church, Syracuse, will give an illustrated Lecture in Zion Church Parish House, Wednesday evening, February 22, at eight o'clock. The subject of the lecture is "The Spell of the Sphinx". It has long been suspected that in various ways, many of the large cities of the East, especially those connected with the history of the Bible, have been covered up and preserved. During the last five years, more has been done to unearth these sacred sites than in all the centuries before. At this moment, hounsands of men are being employed by the leading colleges of the various civilized countries in excavating in Egypt, the Holy Land and the East generally. When translated, the stone books that have been discovered will fill thousands of volumes; it will enlarge, correct and change many of our interpretations of Scripture. The Rev. James Empringham has made many and repeated visits to the old world. During this last summer, he visited Greece, Egypt and the Holy Land and photographed many of the buildings of the cities that have been so long buried, just as they were unearthed by the workmen. The Rev. Mr. Empringham has a National reputation as a lecturer and on Wednesday evening, he will tell the story of some of the wonders he has seen.

Tickets for this lecture are 15 cents for children under 12; 25 cents for adults.

SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army, Fulton corps, have engaged Ensign Noble and Captain Duerr from Geneva, and Captain Noble and wife from Oswego, to conduct two very special services on Monday, February 27. There will be a Stereopticon lecture entitled, "Broken Chains;" also, illustrated songs; and on Tuesday, February 28 a musical service—the Musical Bottles will be features. Ensign and Captain Noble are both Chief Bandmasters. Captain Noble at the present time is instructing some of the Fulton Corps soldiers and organizing a small band. These officers have traveled in this country and also in England in musical brigades and army bands and have a wide experience as army workers.

The lecturer by Ensign Noble has met with splendid success. Captain Duerr, better known as the Swiss Ex-Champion wrestler, is also an unusual personage to find in this work.

Tickets will be sold at 10 cents for the lecure; a special collection will be taken on Tuesday night at the musical. This effort is made to lift some of the financial burden from the shoulders of Ensign Moyer.

REV. LESTER S. KING

Venerable and Beloved Norwich Pastor Passes Away After Short Illness

Norwick, Feb. 17.—At his home on Sheldon street, Wednesday, following an illness of several weeks, occurred the death of Rev. Lester S. King, aged 77.

Deceased was born in Jefferson county, this State, January 1, 1834, and was a son of Silas B. and Mary Lee King. In 1873 he was ordained a minister of the Free Methodist church and served charges in several sections of the State, including New London, Summer Hill, Lindley, Watertown, Spencer and Norwich. He was pastor of the society in this village in 1879 and 1880 and again during the years of 1884, 1885 and 1886. It was during his latter pastorate here that the church of the society was erected on Sheldon street, and it was largely through Mr. King's efforts that the building of the church was accomplished.

Mr. King was thrice married. His first wife was Mary Elizabeth Carpenter, whom he married in 1856. She died January 28, 1876. His second wife, who was Arcella O. Pierce, died in 1886 and on September 8, 1887, he marred Mrs. Ella M. Thompson, Norwich, who survives. He also leaves two sons by his first marriage, John A., of Buffalo, and James G., of Corning, and a brother, George King, of Clinton.

The funeral was held from his late home on Sheldon street this (Friday) afternoon, Rev. O. S. Baker, of Cortland, assisted by Rev. James B. Wilson, of Norwich, officiating. The burial was made in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

[The deceased was a former pastor of the Free Methodist church in this city and an uncle of Mrs. Mary King of First street.]

BIG JUDGMENT PAID

Fulton Light, Heat and Power Company Receives $299,000 From State

The State of New York has paid $299,090, the amount of the judgment secured by the Fulton Light, Heat and Power Company for the appropriation of their lands in Fulton for barge canal purposes, to the New York Trust Company, which held a mortgage on the property, as the latter company has released its lien on the lands taken.

AN INTERPRETATIVE RECITAL

George C. Williams To Give Reading For Benefit of High School Athletic Association

Mr. George C. Williams will interpret that beautiful and uplifting story of Harold Bell Wright's, at the Universalist church, under the auspices of the High School Athletic Association, Friday evening, February 24, 1911. Reading begins at 8 o'clock. Admission 25 cents.

Mr. Williams is one of the foremost readers of the country. He is at the head of the department of Expression in the Ithaca Conservatory of Music and is now President of the New York State Association of Elocutionists. His ability as a reader and a thinker have also won for him the Second Vice Presidency of the National Speech Arts Association, an organization that includes in its membership the best artists of expression in the United States and Canada. He is a reader of rare ability. He is not only capable of appreciating the finer and more subtle phases of thought but is gifted with a marvellous voice of wonderful range and rich in emotional power, with which to express his interpretations of the master minds in literature.

An evening of rare enjoyment is promised to all who care to be lifted "Out of all meaner cares" and to "Higher levels rise."

William MacNamara, Clerk.
Fulton, N. Y., February 14, 1911.
Meeting of the Common Council.
Present — Mayor Conners, Aldermen Palmer, Malone, Johnson, Smith, Wolcott, Newton.
The following report of the bridge committee was received.
To the Common Council:
The undersigned committee appointed to obtain an estimate of the cost of the proposed bridge over the Oswego river connecting East and West Broadway in this city, respectfully report, that the matter has been taken up with different Consulting and Designing Bridge Engineers; from Charles F. Stowell, Bridge Engineer, of Albany, and who designed the lower river bridge in this city, the following estimate was received, the cost based on a 30 ft. roadway and two 7 ft. sidewalks, for Steel bridge $135,000; for Concrete bridge $204,000.
From the Concrete-Steel Engineering Company of New York City the following estimate was received, for a 48 ft. wide concrete bridge reinforced with steel, the cost would be $170,000. The cost of maintenance of a concrete bridge is practically nothing; deducting the share of the cost of such bridge as will be paid by the state, county and trolley company, it is estimated that the city's share will be $80,000.
Joseph H. Conners,
George B. Palmer,
Fred'k E. Wolcott.
Alderman Palmer introduced the following and moved its adoption:
Whereas, By reason of public necessity the extension of the water mains of the city from the pumping station south to the road known as the Salsbury road in the town of Volney, is now imperative and the interest of the public demand its immediate construction, now therefore be it
Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city to be made for the purpose of extending the water mains from the pumping station south to the Salsbury road, for the purpose of providing for the supply of water for the city.
Aye — Aldermen Palmer, Malone, Johnson, Smith, Wolcott, Newton. —Carried.
The City Engineer, estimated that the sum necessary for the purpose of extending the water mains from the pumping station south to the Salsbury road, is the sum of Twenty Five Thousand Dollars ($25,000).
Alderman Malone introduced the following and moved its adoption:
Whereas, By reason of public necessity the extension of the sewer system on the west and east sides of the river, is now imperative, and the interests of the city demand the immediate extension of said sewer system, now therefore be it
Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city to be made for the extension of the sewer system on the east and west side of the river.
Aye — Aldermen Palmer, Malone, Johnson, Smith, Wolcott, Newton. —Carried.
The City Engineer who was present, estimated that the sum necessary for the purpose of extending the sewer system on the east and west side of the river, is the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000).
Alderman Wolcott introduced the following and moved its adoption:
Whereas, Public necessity requires the erection of a bridge over the Oswego River, connecting East and West Broadway in the City of Fulton, and the extension of the sewer system on the east and west sides of the river, and the extension of the water mains from the pumping station south to the Salsbury road in the town of Volney, now therefore be it
Resolved, That a special election of the electors of said city qualified to vote for or against such appropriations as the proposed expenditures will impose, be and the same is hereby called to be held in the different wards of the city, on the second day of March, 1911, and that the following propositions be submitted to such special election:
"Shall the sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000) as the city's estimated share of the cost of the erection of the proposed bridge across the Oswego River, connecting East and West Broadway in the City of Fulton, N. Y., be appropriated and raised by taxation in thirty annual installments with interest, and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor."
"Shall the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000) be appropriated and raised by taxation in twenty annual installments, with interest, and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor, for the purpose of extending the sewer system on the east and west sides of the river."
"Shall the sum of Twenty Five Thousand Dollars ($25,000) be appropriated and raised by taxation in twenty annual installments, with interest, and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor, for the purpose of extending the water mains of the city, from the pumping station south to the Salsbury road, to provide for the water supply of the city."
And that the City Clerk be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to give notice of said special election as required by law.
Aye — Aldermen Palmer, Malone, Johnson, Smith, Wolcott.
No — Alderman Newton. —Carried.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So pills and cathartics do they all that once briefly realize that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

his Works, conditioned for the replacing of the streets and public places and the surface and pavement thereof in as good condition as before the opening of the same immediately upon the completion of the work.

5. Materials delivered on the streets and public places for use in the construction or maintenance of any structures or appliances erected or maintained hereunder, shall be neatly piled between the curb and the property line, not closer than four feet to any fire hydrant, in such manner and in such particular places as shall be designated by the Superintendent of Public Works. The use of the streets or public places shall not be obstructed needlessly nor travel thereon hindered nor impeded, and no section of street or public place shall be completely obstructed at any time without permission from the Board of Public Works.

6. The work of erection and construction of the distributing system and the structures and appliances appurtenant thereto, shall be carried on at such points and in such order as shall least interfere with the use of the streets and public places by the public.

7. The grantee of this franchise, his or its successors or assigns, shall at least ten days before any work of construction or erection of any poles, towers, wires, cables or other structures is commenced, execute and file with the Clerk of the City of Fulton, a bond to the city in the penal sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) with sufficient surety to be approved by the City Attorney or by the Common Council, conditioned that it will indemnify and save harmless the City of Fulton from all lost, damages, costs, expenses and liability which the city may in any manner incur by reason of the granting of the franchise or of the erection, construction or maintenance of any of the structures or appliances to be erected or maintained hereunder, or by reason of any work of construction or repair in connection therewith, which said bond shall be kept in force during the term for which this franchise is granted.

8. All guywires, cables, posts and deadmen shall be located at such particular points with reference to other structures in the streets and public places and adjoining properties as shall be designated by the Board of Public Works.

9 The City of Fulton shall have the right, free of charge, to use the poles and one duct in any subway or underground structure of said grantee, is successors and assigns, for the purpose of supporting or carrying its wires for its fire alarm system and its police alarm system, such wires to be so placed as to not unreasonably interfere with the efficient operation of the power and lighting circuits of said grantee, his or its successors or assigns.

10. The grantee of this franchise, his or its successors and assigns shall make such change or changes in the location and construction of any and all poles and other apparatus constructed and erected hereunder as the Board of Public Works may direct and without expense to the City of Fulton.

11. The grantee hereunder, his or its successors and assigns, as part of the consideration for the granting of this franchise, and without any further consideration therefore, shall upon demand from the city, furnish and deliver to the City of Fulton, at the buildings hereinafter designated, all electricity for lighting purposes which shall be reasonably necessary to properly light the City Hall building, the Fire Department buildings, the West Side Police station, City Hospital, the Public Library and the office of the Board of Public Works, and shall furnish at the city line all electricity which shall be reasonably necessary to properly light the city pumping station, as may be directed by the Common Council.

12. The maximum rate to be charged for electricity for lighting purposes by the owner of this franchise or anyone operating thereunder, shall be eight cents per kilowatt hour where sold on a kilowatt hour basis, with a discount of ten per cent. if paid on or before the tenth day of the month following that in which electricity is delivered, with a minimum charge of fifty cents per month, the minimum charge to be applied in payment of the bill where the bill at meter rates exceeds the minimum charge; but electricity for lighting purposes may be sold on a flat rate basis or on a combination flat rate and kilowatt hour rate, if agreed to by the consumer.

13. The grantee hereunder, his or its successors or assigns, shall, whenever requested by the city so to do, furnish to the City of Fulton all electricity which the city may require for lighting the city streets at a price of one cent per kilowatt hour for the electricity so furnished, such electricity to be delivered to the city at, and measured on, the switchboard of said grantee in the City of Fulton. Such grantee, his or its successors or assigns, hereby agree to enter into a contract or contracts with the city for such period or periods of time during the lifetime of this franchise as the city may determine, to so furnish electricity as herein in this paragraph provided.

14. The grantee hereunder, his or its successors or assigns, within eight months after the granting of permission and consent by the Public Service Commission of the Second District of the State of New York, to exercise the rights and privileges hereby granted, shall have within the city limits of the City of Fulton, a power house or substation and equipment, having a normal rated capacity of not less than 1500 ele electric horse power completely equipped and ready for continuous operation at such rating, and shall supply electricity within the city to applicants therefor for light, heat, power and other purposes within a reasonable time after application therefor shall be made, to the extent of at least 2500 horse power.

15. The grantee of this franchise, his or its successors or assigns, shall within thirty days next after the sale of this franchise by the Common Council make a bona fide application to the Public Service Commission of the Second District of the State of New York, for permission to exercise the rights and privileges hereby granted and shall in good faith and in co-operation with legal counsel to be designated by the Mayor of the city, use its utmost and best endeavors to procure from such Public Service Commission its permission and approval to exercise the rights and privileges hereby granted.

16. All persons or corporations desiring to bid or bidding upon this franchise on the sale thereof, shall before making a bid, deposit with the city clerk a certified check payable to the order of the city chamberlain of the City of Fulton, for the amount fixed by the Board of Public Works as the sum for less than which this franchise shall not be sold, and in case any bidder at the sale shall fail to complete the sale in accordance with the terms and provisions thereof, and pay the price bid therefor, as herein provided, and give the bond or make the deposit as required in paragraph 17 hereof, it is hereby agreed between the City of Fulton and such bidder that such check and the amount of money thereby represented, shall become and be the property of the city and the amount thereof shall be credited to the improvement fund of the city.

17. The person, firm or corporation purchasing this franchise at the sale thereof, shall at the time of completing the sale and making payment therefor, deliver to the City of Fulton a bond with sufficient surety to be approved by the Common Council or the city attorney, in the penal sum of $10,000.00, conditioned that such purchaser shall in all respects fulfill and comply with the provisions and conditions contained in paragraphs 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 hereof, or in lieu of such bond, shall deposit with the city chamberlain the sum of $10,000.00, accompanied by an agreement executed by such purchaser providing that such sum shall be deposited by the city chamberlain in some bank or trust company at interest, as a special account to the credit of the city, and held by the city as security for the faithful performance by the purchaser of the conditions and provisions contained in paragraphs 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 hereof, and that in case of failure to fulfill and comply with such provisions and conditions, such sum of $10,000, shall become the absolute property of the City of Fulton and shall be transferred and credited to the improvement fund of the city. In case the purchaser shall so elect, negotiable securities of the market value of $10,000, approved by the Common Council, may be deposited with the city chamberlain in lieu of such cash deposit accompanied by an agreement that the same shall be held as security as herein provided in the case of such cash deposit. Such interest as shall be received by the city on special account shall be paid over semi-annually to the purchaser, his or its successors or assigns, or such interest as shall be received by the city on such securities as the same shall become due, so long as the same shall remain a deposit and shall not have become the property of the city as herein provided.

Be it further resolved, That said franchise be delivered to the purchaser thereof and the purchase price paid, and the bond delivered or deposit in lieu thereof, made as provided for in paragraph 17 hereof, at the office of the City Clerk of the City of Fulton at the City Hall in said city within three days from the date of the sale of such franchise by the Common Council.

Moved by Alderman Johnson that franchise be laid on table until Monday, February 20, 1911.

—Carried.

CITY OF FULTON, ss:

I hereby certify that the above resolutions were duly adopted at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Fulton, held at the City Hall, on the 14th day of February, 1911.

William MacNamara, City Clerk.

Approved this 14th day of February, 1911.

Joseph H. Conners, Mayor.

Notice of Special Election

The following resolution having been adopted by the Common Council of the City of Fulton, on the 14th day of December, 1910.

"Whereas by reason of public necessity, the construction of a new bridge across the Oswego River in the city connecting East and West Broadway, is now imperative and the interests of the public demand its immediate construction, now therefore be it

Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city, to be made for the construction of a new bridge across the Oswego River, connecting East and West Broadway," and the following resolutions having been adopted by the Common Council on the 14th day of February, 1911:

"Whereas by reason of public necessity the extension of the sewer system on the west and east side of the river, and that said extension is now imperative, and the interest of the public demand the immediate extension of said sewer system, therefore be it

Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city to be made for the extension of the sewer system on the east and west side of the river."

"Whereas by reason of public necessity the extension of the water mains of the city from the pumping station south to the road known as the "Salsbury Road" in the town of Volney, is now imperative and the interest of the public demand its immediate extension, therefore be it

Resolved, That an extraordinary expenditure ought for the benefit of the city to be made for the purpose of extending the water mains from the pumping station south to the "Salsbury Road" for the purpose of providing for the supply of water for the city."

And whereas the Common Council made an estimate of the sums necessary for the purposes set forth in such resolutions, and that the sum necessary for the city's share of the cost of erecting said proposed bridge over the Oswego River connecting East and West Broadway, is the sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000), and the sum necessary for the extension of the sewer system on the east and west side of the river is the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000), and the sum necessary for the extension of the water mains from the pumping station south to the road known as the "Salsbury Road" is the sum of Twenty Five Thousand Dollars ($25,000).

Notice is hereby given that a special election of the taxpayers of the City of Fulton, N. Y., will be held in the different wards of the city, viz.: First ward, Langdon's shop; Second ward, Kowalski's Hotel; Third ward, Division street Hose House; Fourth ward, Foster's Barn, 155 S. Second street; Fifth ward, City Hall; Sixth ward, Freeman Boat Factory, 505 Seneca street; on the 2nd day of March, 1911, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., at which the following propositions will be submitted:

"Shall the sum of Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000) as the city's estimated share of the cost of the erection of the proposed bridge across the Oswego River in the City of Fulton, N. Y., connecting East and West Broadway in said city, be appropriated and raised by taxation, in thirty annual installments with interest, and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor."

"Shall the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000) be appropriated and raised by taxation in twenty annual installments with interest and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor for the purpose of extending the sewer system on the east and west side of the river."

"Shall the sum of Twenty Five Thousand Dollars be appropriated and raised by taxation in twenty annual installments with interest, and the Common Council authorized to issue bonds of the city therefor, for the purpose of extending the water mains of the city south from the pumping station to the Salsbury road to provide for the water supply of the city."

WILLIAM MacNAMARA,
City Clerk.

COWBOYS OF SPAIN.

Splendid Horsemen, but They Use Their Spurs Without Mercy.

The perfection of Spanish horsemanship is to be seen among the vaqueros, ganaderos and garrochistas, by which various names the mounted herdsmen of the Andalusian plains are known—in brief, what we should call a cowboy. Every farm seems to maintain a large number of these, for each herd, flock or drove has its own herdsman, goatherd or swineherd, as the case may be. The vaqueros are a fine looking lot of men. Tall, thin, light and loosely made, they look ideal horsemen, as, in point of fact, they are, though their mounts are poor.

The vaquero rides very high on a huge saddle, with a long stirrup and straight leg, using a single rein and a very heavy curb, but he has such beautiful hands that, although using this barbarous bit, he never cuts his horse's mouth about. It is different with the animal's sides, however, for he uses his spurs without mercy, and the white horses—of which there are a large number—all have ominous red stains behind the girths.

All the herdsmen who look after cattle carry a long lance, called a garrocha, of thick and heavy wood, which, except when standing still, they always carry "in rest" and not "at the carry," presumably on account of its great length and possibly its weight. With this weapon, in the use of which he acquires amazing dexterity, the garrochista is able to control the most unruly brutes in the herd, not excepting the savage fighting bull.—Wide World Magazine.

ATTACK LIKE TIGERS

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif., "I have ever found." They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

His Way of Getting Even.

"You know that fellow, Jim McGroarty, the lad that's always comin' up an' thumpin' ye on th' chest and yellin' 'How air ye?'"

"I know him."

"I'll bet he's smashed twinty cigars for me—some o' thim clear Havanays—but I'll get even with him now."

"How will ye do it?"

"I'll tell ye. Jim always hits me over the vest pocket where I carry me cigars. He'll hit me there jist once more. There's no cigar in me vest pocket this mornin'. Instead of it there's a stick of dynamite, d'ye mind!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

There is a real cure for

Rheumatism

No case of rheumatism is hopeless. Many rheumatic sufferers know of the curative properties of Oil of Wintergreen. WINTERGREEN COMPOUND contains this oil in scientific combination with many other ingredients of great value in the cure of rheumatism. And we can prove that it does cure. We have never heard of a case requiring over 12 bottles of Men With Green Hair.

"Copper is scarce," said a broker, "but there is still enough of it left to turn the copper worker's hair green."

"His hair green?"

"Precisely. In those copper districts where the ore is of a low grade it is roasted in open furnaces to refine it and make it more marketable. A gas emanates from the furnaces that turns the firemen's hair a bright green, this arsenic green that the firemen's hair takes on.

"So if you ever see a man with green hair you can say, a la Sherlock Holmes:

"'There, my dear Watson, is a copper furnace fender.'"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Each one of the above four lines of figures spells a word. This most interesting puzzle can be solved with a little study, as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the four words instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL OUT THESE FOUR WORDS WE WILL SEND YOU A BEAUTIFUL COLLECTION OF FIVE GOLD EMBOSSED HANDSOMELY COLORED EASTER POST-CARDS. All you have to do is to endorse with your answer 2 two-cent stamps to cover cost of packing, handling, etc. USE YOUR BRAINS. Try and make out the four words. ACT QUICKLY. Write the four words on a slip of paper, print it immediately with your name and address and 4 cents in stamps. Proposed Franchise Not Complete

Elsewhere in this issue appears the proposed franchise for the distribution of Niagara power in Fulton. In this latest franchise the non-competative feature has been eliminated, but it offers so slight protection to Fulton that the Times feels it would not be consistent if it did not sound the warning before too late.

In the franchise no provision is made for a steam reserve or water power auxiliary. No penalty is inflicted for any number of failures to supply power continuously after it gains entrance here.

It is safe to conclude that we will never have electrical competition as between two companies in Fulton. The city is not large enough. All we can finally expect is consolidation or elimination of the old company. In either event the city should be safe guarded against the admission of pow or without an auxiliary plant to insure us against danger and loss by failure of the Niagara power.

Politics should not cut into the treatment of this matter. It is too widely important to vast interests and a large number of people. The wretched condition this municipality finds itself in regarding the taking over by the trolley company of the lower bridge, the only safe means of communication between the east and west sides of the city, and without compensation to the city, is a crying shame upon former civic management. The Times believes that the electric franchise as it now stands, should it become operative at any time, would prove as serious a menace to Fulton.

We have sold many a birthright for a mess of pottage. We should know better now.

An unexpected and unprepared for amount of advertising and legal matter for the last form of this week's issue, compels us to leave out considerable news of interest, country correspondence, etc.

ASSEMBLYMAN SWEET ON COMMITTEE

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

WHERE PRICES JUMP

Large Difference Between What Farmers Get and Consumers Pay

A Chicago man found in a barrel of apples for which he paid $4 a note that read: "Dear Consumer—I was paid 75c. for this barrel. How much did you pay?"

"This," says the Long Island Agronomist, "is one of the incidents that make us feel dead sure that the city man with the business training will be the future 'high book' farmer, for farmers as a rule lack the commercial instinct.

"When the average farmer gathers his harvest he hurriedly packs it and forwards it to some unknown individual of whose standing he knows nothing, and receives with humility or mild remonstrance the returns, which some times but not always are sent to him. Very often indeed no returns are made at all, and he learns (generally by accident through the columns of one of his farm papers) that he with many others of his profession has lost all the labor and money spent in raising that particular portion of his farm's yeild, which was shipped to some one of the numerous concerns handling the city's food supply.

"When the vegetable food which the farmer has raised and for which he receives no return is sold just the same and at prices far beyond the weird figures set down as market prices, somebody gets the money, and the agricultural producer has now reached the point where he is demanding that those dealing in his products (running no risks, yet making big incomes, oftentimes without the investment of a single dollar) shall be held responsible, just the same as are others in different lines of business.

"A neighbor shipped cauliflower and followed the shipments. He saw the sales at $2.75 a barrel and he received returns of $1. His possible redress was a long and expensive litigation. This he, like other quiet, peaceful, law abiding dwellers in the open, did not hanker for and hence suffered with hundreds of thousands of others in the agricultural profession. This was a theft (for there was no other word to describe these transactions) of not only $1.75 a barrel but the 10 per cent. commission deducted from the $1 which had been grudgingly sent.

"Another neighbor received 40c. for a barrel of carrots which he saw the man who is under contract as his agent sell at $2.20. Another neighbor received 75c. for egg plants which he saw sold by his agent for $4.25. The threat of immediate prosecution to the limit was met with a laugh and an invitation to take a drink, also a check to cover the difference. The excuse given was that this represented 'accepted practice' and was in line with all 'modern business methods.'"

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor, often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

FORMER OSWEGO COUNTY MAN DEAD

Watertown, Feb. 16. — Announcement has been received here of the death at Fairmount, Nebraska, on February 2 of Fred Douglas Gillespie, a native of Oswego County and a former resident of the town of Pamelia. Mr. Gillespie had been in rather poor health for two years but his condition was not alarmingly serious until about two weeks prior to his death.

Mr. Gillespie was born in Oswego county June 30, 1885. He was married in this city Sept. 11, 1993 to Miss Ella S. Morrow. Mrs. Gillespie died March 3, 1897. On July 2, 1899, Mr. Gillespie married Miss Ella A. Brown of Pulaski.

THE WEEK

Every important development of the week has served to confirm and strengthen the recent growth in business confidence. With depleted stock, merchants, while still conservative in their operations, are displaying greater activity. The expanding reserves of the banks and the rapid recovery in the condition of the iron and steel trade are making a deep impression on business sentiment, and the general financial and mercantile position is in consequence stronger than the current statistics indicate. The further reduction in the Bank of England rate is one of the favorable developments of the week. The increase in unfilled orders and blast furnace output by the principal steel producer is another. Still another favorable development is the improved crop condition in the Southwest. The break in the prices of wheat and cotton is, moreover, important as a step toward that economic readjustment necessary to bring production and consumption closer together and restore healthy business conditions. In the dry goods trade the fact that stocks are generally low seems to be gradually having its legitimate effect in overcoming the conservatism due to high costs of production. Bank clearings outside of New York last week increased 0.3 per cent. over 1910 and 15.3 per cent. over 1909, while in New York the record shows a decline as compared with 1910 and a gain of 7.7 per cent. over 1909. Railroad earnings in the first week of February declined 0.4 per cent. The foreign trade exhibit for the month of January is notable for an increase of $52,599,122 over 1910 in exports and a decline of $5,796,749 in imports. The excess of exports for the month was $66,777,334, a gain over January 1910 of $56,986,177. At the port of New York during the latest week the exports were $13,477,536 and the imports only $13,057,187. The exports were about the same as last year, but the imports declined $4,309,248. Altogether these exhibits reveal the changing character of foreign commerce more favorable to this country.

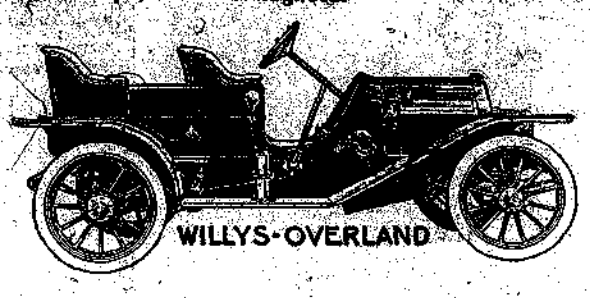
Some definite idea of the improvement that has occurred in iron and steel is furnished by current estimates indicating an expansion of nearly 15 per cent. in the blast furnace operations of the leading producer from the low point of the year and by the recent statement of the same interest showing an increase of 436,000 tons in unfilled orders on hand during the month of January.

These evidences of progress are a welcome change from the complaints of contraction in new business that were so common before the turn of the year, and it is now apparent that a readjustment of the industry is taking place that can hardly fail to create an optimistic sentiment regarding the trade outlook in general. Aside from a further broadening of activity in finished lines, it is significant that greater animation has developed in pig iron at certain leading centers, and the belief is growing that the declining tendency of prices has been permanently checked. In some instances advances of from 25c. to 50c. are being asked, and furnaces are reluctant to quote for distant delivery owing to a conviction that a substantial recovery will ultimately occur. Agricultural machinery interests have been active buyers at the West, but demand for rails has been light this month, which is not surprising in view of the large contracts recently placed. Some plate mills are reported as operating at 75 per cent. of capacity, while the volume of new structural orders is well maintained.

Purchases in both primary and secondary dry goods markets are now more frequent and comprehensive. The desire to operate conservatively is still dominant, but all goods on order are wanted and prompt shipment of orders placed is exacted. Stocks in all quarters are believed to be low, but mills find it increasingly difficult to secure producing costs that they are limiting their output to orders and increasing curtailment, especially in cotton goods lines. Fall River sold but 70,000 pieces last week, of which 40,000 pieces were for spot delivery, but at that center quotations are held higher than in trading markets, where values have declined to a basis of about 26½ cents per pound for print cloth yarn goods for converting purposes. It now seems probable that leading dress goods and men's wear mills will be able to secure a fair fall business. The break in the speculative cotton markets complicates the situation of the manufacturer for the time being, but merchants are hoping that lower cotton will stimulate a larger call for merchandise later on. Some silk mills are exceedingly busy. Jobbers report a good trade in wash fabrics, ginghams, prints and domestics.

The footwear market continues generally quiet, and as yet the expected revival of business following the departure of buyers from the Boston market has failed to develop to any great extent, the demand being irregular. Producers of specialtis, particularly cloth fabric goods, continue in receipt of steady orders, while standard lines are generally neglected. Wholesalers as a rule are operating for immediate wants and are not buying on a large scale in any quarter. Trading this week in domestics hides has been on a limited scale, but foreign hides have been more active, especially dry hides from Latin-America and particularly River plate descriptions. Domestic packer hides are unchanged, but quiet, and country hides are somewhat easier. It now appears that the recent large lots of Latin-American dry hides supposed to have been exported were in reality purchased by a large domestic tanner. The new discounts in the leather trade are the chief subject of comment and have restricted trade materially, especially in sole leather, where they have been put into operation to the greatest extent. Some estimates of the sales of belting leather, the latter half January, are now up to 3,000,000 sides, but trading since that time has been on a very limited scale.

Further sharp price recessions have occurred in wheat and cotton, spot values of the latter commodity showing a decline of about $5 per bale since the opening of the month. Anti option legislation has had a depressing effect, while the continued large movement is spreading the belief in a 12,000,000 bale crop. Additional curtailment of mill production is reported, but exports are still on a liberal scale and shipments during January were more than double those in the corresponding period last year. Constantly increasing world's supplies and generally improved crop prospects explain the rapid slump in wheat prices, although several other influences have operated to the same end. The breaking of the drought in the Southwest is a highly important development, removing the danger threatened by insufficient moisture in certain territory. Western receipts of wheat this week amounted to 2,279,335 bushels, against 3,205,472 a year ago, while exports from all ports of the United States, flour included, of 1,419,306 bushels compared with 1,739,950 in 1910. Last month's shipments abroad were well in excess of the previous year. Corn prices have receded in sympathy with wheat, although delayed country offerings, as a result of bad roads, gave some support. Arrivals of 5,954,343 bushels, however, exceeded the 5,630,274 reported last year, while Atlantic coast exports were 1,973,732 bushels as compared with 765,471 in 1910. — Dun's Review, Feb. 18, 1911.



NOW IN CALIFORNIA

Are our merchants ready for the competition of those alluring spring catalogues from the metropolitan department stores? Of course the bargains at home are better. When you consider the home merchant gives you his personal attention and the chances to return the goods that are not what he represented. But the public forgets this, the trade has to be drummed and the efficient salesman is the home newspaper.—Exchange.

Our former well-known citizen, W. J. Pentelow was for the seventh time unanimously elected President of the Corona Chamber of Commerce at the late annual banquet held at the Hotel Del Rey, a report just received gives a glowing account of the doings of the citizens for the year 1910. President Pentelow was master of ceremonies and spoke of the comparative growth of Riverside and Corona the past year, making a very favorable showing for his home city. A number of speeches were made by visiting Mayors and representatives from surrounding towns. One hundred and fifty representative citizens sat at the table in social chat and listening to speeches lasting until the clock struck 2, after which the banquet closed, having been the most successful of any yet held.

A Story of the Sunny South Right After the Civil War

Written For The Times

BY CAPTAIN O. J. JENNINGS

Towards Spring, Mr. Bradway said to Uncle Ephe; "How's Molly mule?"

"Well, sah, She's fus' rate, good and fat."

"You remember I said to you last season that I would sell you the mul when you could see your way to pay for it?"

"Yes, I 'members it an I done tole Phillis several times how we can pay for it jus' as easy from this year's crop, and Mr. Bradway we can let you have some corn now if you need any; we's got more 'nough to carry us ti new crop."

"Uncle Ephe, I have been thinking you could spare some corn and I thought you better sell or trade it for a cow. You ought to have one."

"Dat's what Phillis say, we ought to have cow."

"Well then, look about and see where you can find one for sale; but about the mule; if you want to buy it we can as well make a bargain today as at any time. I will sell it to you for forty dollars and ef this amount I will credit you fifteen dollars for the work you have done this winter in addition to paying for the plow and use of mule; so you will owe me twenty five dollars, to be paid in corn next fall, or if you do any work for us that can be applied on the twenty-five."

"For gord, Mr. Bradway, is dat mule gwin' to be mine for good and sure when I pay you twenty-five dollars."

"Yes, Uncle Ephe, if it's satisfactory and you say so."

"Look a here, Mr. Bradway, hain't dat cheatin' you, dat mule's worth more twice dat price and you's lettin' me have it for twenty-five dollars."

"No, Uncle Ephe, I am charging you forty dollars; you have already paid me fifteen in work. I am willing to let you have the mule for that amount."

"Mr. Bradway, I doan think you knows dat mule as well as we all do. She sutterin' am one of de bes' mules in all de lan', an its 'flectin' on her character to put such little price on her."

"As we don't want to hurt Molly's reputation we will have it understood between us that it shall not be known what price you paid for her."

"Dat's good and when I gets dat mule paid for no one need come projectin' roun' me to get dat mule what hain't got eighty dollars."

Uncle Ephe soon found a cow he could trade corn for and so brought additional joy to his family. That Spring he said to Mr. Bradway:

"Can't I have more lan' to wuck than what I had las' year; dat olest boy of mine (Robert Lewis) can chop corn an do quite little other wuck."

"How much land do you think you can manage to work this season, Uncle Ephe?"

"Well, sah, dat 'pends some on what I puts in de lan' an I'd like you to 'vise me in dis matter."

"Well, I would advise that you put your ten acres into peas and also the ten acres of mine you had in corn last season, and take say twenty acres adjoining it and put it into corn; will that be enough for you?"

"Yes, sah, I think so, but I was thinking 'bout could we pick all dem peas?"

"No, Uncle Ephe, you can't, but put them in and when the time comes to pick have Phillis take the children and pick all they can, then I will send over the mower and have that cut over the fields. In this way we will save all the peas."

"Dat's de way and I'll go right at plowin' de lan'."

"Well you must have another mule to put with Molly to plow your corn land so when you are ready come and get a mule; get your corn land ready first."

As Mr. Bradway rose to go it occured to him that they had not made a bargain and said: "Uncle Ephe, we haven't made a bargain as to how we should divide this crop."

"Well, sah, de bargain mus' be made in jus' de same way they was las' year an dat is you make de bargain for we all and yourself too and dat will be jus' de way we both want it."

"Very well, Uncle Ephe, if satisfactory to you we will divide the corn the same as last season and as I furnish the peas for seed, mow them, do the threshing with your help, I think it about a fair division for me to have one third of the peas; now what do you think?"

Mr. Bradway, you's a man of 'sperience but I sutterin' do think you's making kindy poor bargain for your sef', you furnish de seed, one of de mules to plow all de lan', corn an all, and mow de peas, (what we doan pick) do de threshing machine wuck and den doan take but third. I sutterin' doan think dat's quite de fair thing."

"Well, then, what in your opinion is a fair division?"

"Mr. Bradway, jus' wait an let me an Phillis study wid dem peas. I want to go at grubbin' to morrow and fore I start plowing we'll divide dat crop peas again."

"Very well."

That evening Uncle Ephe lit his pipe and took his accustomed seat on the bench at the cabin door, Phillis and the children soon joining him. When Uncle Ephe said: "Phillis, what you think, I 'aint gwine to let Mr. Bradway make all de bargain for we all 'bout raisin' crop peas."

"For gord Amighty, Epherum Hardiman, you hain't goin' let dat good man say how de crop shall be 'vided: you's done loosin' all your 'ligon and goin' 'stracted, you ought to be shame yourself an dis 'aint de fus' time you's kindy sornt yourself up since you got a mule an bought dis lan'; never mine, you better be careful yousef."

"Phillis, you done say all you want to, if you listen I tell you 'bout dem peas. Mr. Bradway say how he'de turnish de seed peas, mow dem what we doan pick, put them through the threshin' 'sheene and let us take mule to plow de lan' an take one third de peas; I doan think dat's fair thing to Mr. Bradway and I tole him how we's goin' to talk it over and 'vide de peas again fore we plant."

"Uncle Epherum, I'ze sorry 'bout what I said, jus' now."

"Never mine, Phillis, I know'd you didn't understan' what I meant; doan you think Mr. Bradway ought to have as much of de crop peas as we all?"

"I sutterry do; how could we raise crop peas if it wasent for dem blessed good folks. You couldn't buy no seed or get 'nother mule to plow corn lan' if t'want for Mr. Bradway, you jus' go back an tell him he's gwine to have half de pea crop, caze dat's de fair thing and we want to do right, jus' same as they all do; Epherum de Lord 'hab done blessed us in des good fren's and we must not let dat blessin' get away from us by not doin' de right thing all de way long in dis worle."

"Phillis, you's got de right kind 'ligon, the kind dat lights up de way for us to go when we's kindy lost an don't know jus' what is de right thing to do. I know'd you'd know jus' how dem peas ought to be 'vided."

Mr. Bradway consented in a measur to taking one half the pea crop by saying; "go ahead and put them in we won't have any trouble in dividing the peas."

That season Uncle Ephe had phenomonal good crops especially his peas, by the first of September Phillis and the children were busy early and late, picking peas; when the crop was finally harvested and threshed it was found they had 440 bushels from the twenty acres. From this amount Mr. Bradway took about one hundred and fifty bushels which he told Epherum was near enough to half and in every way satisfactory to him. Epherum sold two hundred and twenty bushels at the price of two dollars and ten cents a bushel, realizing 462 dollars; with this he paid for his ten acres of land; bought and paid for twenty acres more adjoining them. With the money left they built a frame addition to their house and were happily occupying it the day before Christmas. While Phillis was putting the new house (as she called it) to rights, Uncle Ephe was out, gun in hand, looking for a Christmas turkey. Christmas Eve he came home with a bag containing two. "Lor', Epherum, what we gwine do with two turkey's?"

"I specks you know what we's gwine do with one. Dat big gobler for Christmas present for de bes' fren's we's got in dis worle."

"What you say 'bout 'toder one; Epherum haint you kindy turkey hungrey yousef?"

"Phillis, de children done so well pickin' peas dis fall dey ought to have feast and dis turkey jus' do de business; what you say?"

"Dat's jus' what we'll do and have de dinner in our new house which we'll call Christmas present. When you goin' over with your Christmas to de Bradway's? It ought to be there to night."

"Phillis, doan you want to go over with it and make Christmas speech, you know what's de bes' thin to say?"

"Well, Epherum, I can go but I shan' say much, jus' kindy say it was de Christmas day dat brought blessin's to all de people and brought de merry times we all so much enjoy and say I jus' came over to bring turkey what Epherum sent you with bes' wishes for a Merry Christmas."

"Phillis dat will be jus' de proper thing to say an you better go right long an so get home fore it gets very dark."

As Phillis was about to start it was decided to let Robert Lewis accompany his mother; soon they were on the way and in due time reached the Bradway mansion. As Phillis entered the kitchen she found all the help in excitement; it was Christmas Eve and the preparation for a real "tearin' down" Christmas for the colored help was in full blast. Mr. Bradway had consented to their having a fiddler come and play for them to dance in the dining room. Aunt Phillis was of course invited to stay and join in the dance but she declared it was "wholly against her principles and 'ligon to dance," then too she was to ole to be swishin' 'bout in dat kine way.

"No you'r not, Aunt Phillis, and you must stay and dance; we's hearen tell all 'bout how you used to dance de Pigan Wing in de bread tray and we wants to see you dance it to night."

"Lor' gals, dat was when I was young; I jus' came over to see Miss Margret for few minutes an den I'ze goin' right home."

"Aunt Phillis don't you go away without coming back in here again; we all wants to see you spresly for something."

Phillis stepped out and with bag in hand went around to the sitting room door and knocked, a servant opened it and announced Aunt Phillis who was invited to come in; after receiving cordial greetings by both Mr. and Mrs. Bradway she said: "Epherum, ben out tramping all day an he's kindy tired dis 'ebening and asked me would I come over and bring you his Christmas present which am a wild gobler."

"Oh, Aunt Phillis, how good and thoughtful you and Uncle Epherum are of our needs and happiness."

Aunt Phillis here delivered her Christmas speech and received hearty thanks from Mr. Bradway, after which Mrs. Bradway said: "our girls and boys are going to have a Christmas Eve party and I think intend to dance; won't you remain and enjoy the evening with them? Then too they are going to have a supper and we certainly would like to have you and the little boy sit down to that."

"I thanks you ever so much Miss Margret, I'll jus' stay little while and look on."

"Aunt Phillis, you must enter into the pleasure of the evening and have a merry time."

A little later in the evening Mrs. Bradway and Agnes went into the dining room with a basket for Aunt Phillis to take home; what it contained was to be a profound secret until early the next morning. The dance had commenced and the tearin' down Christmas fairly begun, yellow waists and red ribbons were in a whirl. Mrs. Bradway and Agnes took seats beside Aunt Phillis, as the quadrille was ended, Mary Bettie and one of the visiting girls came to Mrs. Bradway and said: "we want Aunt Phillis to dance, she can beat us all and we want you to help us get her started."

"Aunt Phillis, do you hear what the girls say? They want you to dance."

"Lor', Miss Margret, I'ze too ole to dance, but dat fiddle kindly wockin' in my feet an I reckon Robert Lewis and I better be goin' home."

"No-no, Aunt Phillis," said Agnes, "we want to see you dance."

"Lor', Honey, you 'squis me."

"No, Aunt Phillis, you must dance."

Mary Bettie had stepped over and said something to the fiddler who just then struck up a favorite old time jig; it was too much for Aunt Phillis and she sailed out into the middle of the floor and danced a pigeon wing in thhe most artistic style; when she stopped all hands were clapping, Agnes almost screaming "go on, Aunt Phillis, go on."

"Lor', Honey, I haint danced dat pigeon wing in de bread tray fore in year, not since I was a gal; now I guess Robert Lewis and me better go home."

"No, Aunt Phillis, you must stay to the supper."

"Lor', Miss Margret, I'd like to stay to de supper but I can't trus' myself when dat fiddle jucks dem jigs de ole feet of mine jus' run away an commence dancin' in spite of all de 'ligon I'ze got; dares evil spirits in fiddles an dis is one de wus ones I ever had 'sperience with; I think we better go long."

"No-no, Aunt Phillis, you must have supper before you go."

When they reached home that night it was quite late, Uncle Ephe was uneasy and wanted to know the cause of so much delay in getting home. Phillis was at a loss for an answer that would seem plausible and not tell the real cause; finally she said: "They done have a big supper and me an Robert Lewis was 'vited to say and so we did."

"Yes," piped in Robert Lewis, "An Mammy done dance de greatest jig you ever did see."

Poor Phillis, with the cry; "Good Lord, have mercy on me a poor sinner," collapsed.

Uncle Ephe sat in silence for a time and then said: "evil be to him who thinks he's done evil; but Phillis I doan know you's done any such thing."

"Lor', Epherum, de evil spirits jus' took 'session of me when I hear dat fiddle I couldn't help dancin'."

"Well de Lord will forgive you I reckon if we done pray hard."

"Epherum, if you forgive me dat will be great help an I 'aint gwine dance no moa."

At about 4 o'clock the next morning Aunt Phillis was up filling the children's stockings with candy, oranges and nuts from the basket sent by Mrs. Bradway, and a mouth organ for each of the boys; little Emmagean's stocking was filled to the very top with sweets, a nice little pair of shoes and a new frock pattern; for Uncle Ephe was a silver watch and for Aunt Phillis a set of tea spoons and a set of knives and forks all covered with silver. Betimes the children were up having the merriest time of their lives. Such a Christmas had never before came to these faithful people; the Christmas dinner was eaten and enjoyed in the new house as they called it, with greater happiness than had ever seemed possible in the days of their servitude as slaves. The changed conditions had naturally brought comfort and happiness but a feeling that they had a mission in life and that was to so bring up their children that they would be worthy of the respect of the community or people they might come in contact with. That winter the two boys were sent to school and little Emmagean, through the interest taken in her by Miss Agnes, was learning her letters.

PERMANENT INJUNCTION

Niagara power, over which much hard feeling has been engendered and many political fights waged, received a solar plexus in Supreme court last week when Justice Clarke made permanent the injunction secured by Mr. F. A. Gage, restraining the Common Council from offering for sale a Niagara power franchise which was so constructed as to make it non-competative and in opposition to the provisions of the charter.

Attorney White, for the Niagara power company, applied last week to the Common Council for a franchise from which all objectionable clauses should be eliminated.

It is not thought that the foreign company will gain entrance into Fulton if the local company carries out its intention of immediately constructing a large power house, equipped to furnish 2,000 horse power of electricity.

CLAYTON L. MILLER.

"DIXIE" AT HOME AND ABROAD

By Curtis B. Haley, Nashville, Tenn.

In this liberal age it is more or less amusing to every true American whether born North or South before or since the war, to hear anybody rail at the playing of "Dixie." The recent order of Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, to stop the bands from playing "Dixie" sounds like a wail from the dead past. It appears that Senator Heyburn was born in Pennsylvania just nine years before the war and removed to Idaho when he was thirty; and if we are to judge from his utterances on the subject of placing the statue of General Lee in the United States Capitol and from his order about "Dixie," we are prone to conclude that he has never emigrated far enough from his two homes to broaden his mind and his heart sufficiently to make him an efficient representative of a sovereign people in our national Congress.

Let those who will rail at "Dixie," it will long continue to arouse the blood of patriotism wherever it is heard. It has been my pleasure to hear its rousing strains played under three flags—the Stars and Stripes the Union Jack, and the Green, White and Red (Mexico's emblem)—and I almost regret that I did not come into this world early enough to hear it played in its natural setting under the Stars and Bars.

I recall with pleasure and amusement an occurrence at the Exhibition Grounds at Toronto, Canada, during the great International Epworth League Convention in 1897. The grand stand was filled with a multitude of more than twenty-five thousand souls who had gathered to hear noted speakers and to witness a game of lacrosse. Two or three bands were playing simultaneously; and after some of the Convention songs, they gave us "God Save the Queen," which elicited considerable applause. They then played "Yankee Doodle" as a compliment to the delegates from just across the border, and this brought forth a little applause here and there throughout the throng. Next came "La Marseillaise" and a little more clapping of hands; whereupon the thought passed through my mind: "I hope they won't play 'Dixie,' for if they do, I'll certainly make a fool of myself." Other national airs were played; and when I was least expecting it, the bands started up with "Dixie." They had no more than played the first strain than there was throughout the grandstand such a round of tremendous applause as I have not heard elsewhere from that day to this, not even in the South. And that was in a foreign land, mind you! Since that time I have never again been afraid of "making a fool of myself" anywhere when the band played "Dixie," knowing full well that where musicians play the soul-stirring air there will be responsive hearts to render a plause.

THIRTY YEARS TOGETHER

Thirty years of association — think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time —or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it's the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy.

Cockney Chivalry.

There was a crush in the pit, and the anaemic looking girl stood with the late comers behind the last bench. The young man in front of her, comfortably seated, was not too absorbed in the musical comedy to note that the girl looked tired as she doggedly stood out the first act. He rose when the curtain fell. "Would you," he asked, pushing past her, "like to mind my seat while I go out for a drink?" The age of chivalry is not past.—London Chronicle.

COLOR BLINDNESS.

The Incident That Opened John Dalton's Eyes to His Affliction.

John Dalton, the famous English chemist and natural philosopher, without whose discovery of the laws of chemical combination chemistry as an exact science could hardly exist, was wholly color blind. His knowledge of the fact came about by a happening of the sort which we call chance. On his mother's birthday, when he was a man of twenty-six, he took her a pair of stockings which he had seen in a shop window, labeled "Silk, the newest fashion."

"Thee has bought me a pair of grand hose, John," said the mother, "but what made thee fancy such a bright color? Why, I can never show myself at meeting in them."

John was much disconcerted, but he told her that he considered the stockings to be of a very proper go to meeting color, as they were a dark bluish drab.

"Why, they're as red as a cherry, John," was her astonished reply.

Neither he nor his brother Jonathan could see anything but drab in the stockings, and they rested in the belief that the good wife's eyes were out of order until she, having consulted various neighbors, returned with the verdict, "Verra fine stuff, but uncommon scarlety."

The consequence was that John Dalton became the first to direct the attention of the scientific world to the subject of color blindness.

THE DRINK CALLED COFFEE.

Here Is the Way They Made It in the Seventeenth Century.

There are in existence in Great Britain a few copies of an ancient cookbook, published in 1682, that gives what is perhaps the first English recipe for coffee. The recipe reads:

"To make the drink that is now much used, called coffee.

"The coffee berries are to be bought at any Druggist, about seven shillings the pound. Take what quantity you please, and over a charcoal fire, in an old frying pan, keep them always stirring until they be quite black, and when you crack one with your teeth that it is black within as it is without, yet if you exceed, then do you waste the Oyl, and if less, then will it not deliver its Oyl, and if you should continue fire till it be white it will then make no coffee, but only give you its salt. Beat and force through a lawn sieve.

"Take clear water and boil one-third of it away, and it is fit for use. Take one quart of this prepared water, put in it one ounce of your prepared coffee and boil it gently one hour, and it is fit for your use; drink one-quarter of a pint as hot as you can sip it. It doth abate the fury and sharpness of the Acrimony, which is the gender of the Diseases called Cronical."

Beat the Bank's System.

The boy entered the Cleveland bank and laid a half dollar with his bank book on the receiving teller's window. "We don't receive deposits of less than a dollar," said the teller. The boy yielded reluctantly to the system and drew back. But he did not leave the bank. He crossed the corridor and seated himself on a settee. The teller noticed him sitting there and also noticed the reflective look on his face. The boy waited for some time, thinking it over. Finally he arose and went to the paying teller's window. A moment later he confronted the receiving teller. "I want to deposit this dollar and a half," he said. The teller grinned. The boy had just drawn a dollar from his little balance and was using it as an entering wedge for the rejected half dollar. And so the system was beaten by the boy, and a considerable accession of bookkeeping labor was the price of defeat.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

History Made Palatable.

Joseph Salvador, the French historian, and Jules Sandeau, a novelist, made their meeting at a public reception the occasion for a dispute as to the respective places which they occupied in the world of letters.

"The reading of history is like a pill—it needs the sugar coating to make it palatable," argued the novelist.

"Ah, but it is the ingredient which cures, not the coating," remarked the historian.

"Then let us divide honors," said Sandeau, "for if it were not for my sugar coating your historical facts would dry on the shelves."

Tolstoy's Intensity.

Everything in Tolstoy's character, says a Russian writer, attains titanic proportions. "As a drinker he absorbed fantastic quantities of liquor. As a gambler he terrified his partners by the boldness of his play. As a soldier he advanced gayly to bastion four, the bastion of death at Sevastopol, and there he made dying men laugh at his witty sayings. He surpassed every one by his prodigious activity in sport as well as in literature."

Agriculture.

No other human occupation opens so wide a field for the profitable and agreeable combination of labor with cultivated thought as agriculture. Ere long the most valuable of all arts will be the art of deriving a comfortable subsistence from the smallest area of land.—Abraham Lincoln.

A Strike.

"Why don't you go to the dance tonight, Harold? Haven't you any flame?"

"Yes, dad," said the Harvard student, "a flame, but no fuel."—Life.

A grateful dog is better than an ungrateful man.—Saadi.

HE WON THE HOUSE.

And Harrigan's Plea at a Critical Point in a Play.

Edward Harrigan once said that the most trying moment in his theatrical career occurred in New Orleans soon after the civil war. He had gone south with his company and, yielding somewhat to popular request, put on "The Blue and the Gray." The play had been a success up north, but down south, with the air still full of the bitterness of the war, it was a dangerous experiment. Tony Hart was to represent the Confederate gray, so he bunted up a uniform of the Louisiana Tigers, and when he came marching on, young, stalwart, handsome, the typical soldier boy in the beloved uniform, the house, men and women, cheered and shouted and cried for all their heroes embodied in this boy. Harrigan, standing in the wings in his northern blue, waiting to go on, had just one thought —"They'll kill me!" Then he stepped out, the embodiment of the enemy, and a cold, dead silence fell upon the house. Not a hand moved for him. The audience was tense with emotion, and there was only an instant to act if the play was to be saved. Harrigan, big, kindly, good looking, came swiftly down to the front and stepped over the footlight gutter, leaning down to them. "For the love of heaven, won't you give the Yankee a hand?" he exclaimed. At once the house was caught and all the pentup feeling turned the right way. There was a yell of applause.

taining any subway, conduit or other underground structure, or for any other purpose, shall have the surface thereof and the pavement thereon, if any, immediately restored to as good condition as the same was in before such excavation or opening was made immediately upon the completion of the work; and in case of the construction of any subway, conduit or underground structure, the Board of Public Works may require from the owner of this franchise a bond with sufficient surety to be approved by the city Attorney and Board of Public Works, conditioned for the replacing of the streets and public places and the surface and pavement there of in as good condition as before the opening of the same immediately upon the completion of the work.

5. Materials delivered on the streets and public places for use in the construction or maintenance of any structures or appliances erected or maintained hereunder, shall be neatly piled between the curb and the property line, not closer than four feet to any fire hydrant, in such manner and in such particular places as shall be designated by the Superintendent of Public Works. The use of the streets or public places shall not be obstructed needlessly nor travel thereon hindered nor impeded, and no section of street or public place shall be completely obstructed at any time without permission from the Board of Public Works.

6. The work of erection and construction of the distributing system and the structures and appliances appurtenant thereto, shall be carried on at such points and in such order as shall least interfere with the use of the streets and public places by the public.

7. The grantee of this franchise, his or its successors or assigns, shall at least ten days before any work of construction or erection of any poles, towers, wires, cables or other structures is commenced, execute and file with the Clerk of the City of Fulton, a bond to the city in the penal sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) with sufficient surety to be approved by the City Attorney or by the Common Council, conditioned that it will indemnify and save harmless the City of Fulton from all lost, damages, costs, expenses and liability which the city may in any manner incur by reason of the granting of the franchise or of the erection, construction or maintenance of any of the structures or appliances to be erected or maintained hereunder, or by reason of any work of construction or repair in connection therewith, which said bond shall be kept in force during the term for which this franchise is granted.

8. All guy wires, cables, posts and deadmen shall be located at such particular points with reference to other structures in the streets and public places and adjoining properties as shall be designated by the Board of Public Works.

9 The City of Fulton shall have the right, free of charge, to use the poles and one duct in any subway or underground structure of said grantee, is successors and assigns, for the purpose of supporting or carrying its wires for its fire alarm system and its police alarm system, such wires to be so placed as to not unreasonably interfere with the efficient operation of the power and lighting circuits of said grantee, his or its successors or assigns.

10. The grantee of this franchise, his or its successors and assigns shall make such change or changes in the location and construction of any and all poles and other apparatus constructed and erected hereunder as the Board of Public Works may direct and without expense to the City of Fulton.

11. The grantee hereunder, his or its successors and assigns, as part of the consideration for the granting of this franchise, and without any further consideration therefore, shall upon demand from the city, furnish and deliver to the City of Fulton, at the buildings hereinafter designated, all electricity for lighting purposes which shall be reasonably necessary to properly light the City Hall building, the Fire Department buildings, the West Side Police station, City Hospital, the Public Library and the office of the Board of Public Works, and shall furnish at the city line all electricity which shall be reasonably necessary to properly light the city pumping station, as may be directed by the Common Council.

12. The maximum rate to be charged for electricity for lighting purposes by the owner of this franchise, or anyone operating thereunder, shall be eight cents per Kilowatt hour where sold on a kilowatt hour basis, with a discount of ten per cent. if paid on or before the tenth day of the month following that in which electricity is delivered, with a minimum charge of fifty cents per month the minimum charge to be applied in payment of the bill where the bill at meter rates exceeds the minimum charge; but electricity for lighting purposes may be sold on a flat rate basis or on a combination flat rate and kilowatt hour rate, if agreed to by the consumer.

13. The grantee hereunder, his or its successors or assigns, shall, whenever requested by the city so to do, furnish to the City of Fulton all electricity which the city may require for lighting the city streets at a price of one cent per kilowatt hour for the electricity so furnished, such electricity to be delivered to the city at, and measured on, the switchboard of said grantee in the City of Fulton. Such grantee, his or its successors or assigns, hereby agree to enter into a contract or contracts with the city for such period or periods of time during the lifetime of this franchise as the city may determine, to so furnish electricity as herein in this paragraph provided.

14. The grantee hereunder, his or its successors or assigns, within eight months after the granting of permission and consent by the Public Service Commission of the Second District of the State of New York, to exercise the rights and privileges hereby granted, shall have within the city limits of the City of Fulton, a power house or substation and equipment, having a normal rated capacity of not less than 1500 ele electric horse power completely equipped and ready for continuous operation at such rating, and shall supply electricity within the city to applicants therefor for light, heat, power and other purposes within a reasonable time after application therefor shall be made, to the extent of at least 2500 horse power.

15. The grantee of this franchise, his or its successors or assigns, shall within thirty days next after the sale of this franchise by the Common Council make a bona fide application to the Public Service Commission of the Second District of the State of New York, for permission to exercise the rights and privileges hereby granted and shall in good faith and in co-operation with legal counsel to be designated by the Mayor of the city, use its utmost and best endeavors to procure from such Public Service Commission its permission and approval to exercise the rights and privileges hereby granted.

16. All persons or corporations desiring to bid or bidding upon this franchise on the sale thereof, shall before making a bid, deposit with the city clerk a certified check payable to the order of the city chamberlain of the City of Fulton, for the amount fixed by the Board of Public Works as the sum for less than which this franchise shall not be sold, and in case any bidder at the sale shall fail to complete the sale in accordance with the terms and provisions thereof, and pay the price bid therefor, as herein provided, and give the bond or make the deposit as required in paragraph 17 hereof, it is hereby agreed between the City of Fulton and such bidder that such check and the amount of money thereby represented, shall become and be the property of the city and the amount thereof shall be credited to the improvement fund of the city.

17. The person, firm or corporation purchasing this franchise at the sale thereof, shall at the time of completing the sale and making payment therefor, deliver to the City of Fulton a bond with sufficient surety to be approved by the Common Council or the city attorney, in the penal sum of $10,000.00, conditioned that such purchaser shall in all respects fulfill and comply with the provisions and conditions contained in paragraphs 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 hereof, or in lieu of such bond, shall deposit with the city chamberlain the sum of $10,000.00, accompanied by an agreement executed by such purchaser providing that such sum shall be deposited by the city chamberlain in some bank or trust company at interest, as a special account to the credit of the city, and held by the city as security for the faithful performance by the purchaser of the conditions and provisions contained in paragraphs 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 hereof, and that in case of failure to fulfill and comply with such provisions and conditions, such sum of $10,000, shall become the absolute property of the City of Fulton and shall be transferred and credited to the Improvement fund of the city. In case the purchaser shall so elect, negotiable securities of the market value of $10,000, approved by the Common Council, may be deposited with the city chamberlain in lieu of such cash deposit accompanied by an agreement that the same shall be held as security as herein provided in the case of such cash deposit. Such interest as shall be received by the city on special account shall be paid over semi-annually to the purchaser, his or its successors or assigns, or such interest as shall be received by the city on such securities as the same shall become due, so long as the same shall remain a deposit and shall not have become the property of the city as herein provided.

Be it further resolved, That said franchise be delivered to the purchaser thereof and the purchase price paid, and the bond delivered or deposit in lieu thereof, made as provided for in paragraph 17 hereof, at the office of the City Clerk of the City of Fulton at the City Hall in said city within three days from the date of the sale of such franchise by the Common Council.

Treasurer.

Superintendents Report

Fulton, N. Y., Jan. 23, 1911.
Board of Governors,
Albert Lindley Lee Memorial Hospital,
Fulton, N. Y.,

Gentlemen: The annual report of the statistics of the Albert Lindley Lee Memorial Hospital for the year ending January 1, 1911, are as follows:

Number of patients in hospital Jan. 1, 1910	7
Admitted during year	159
Discharged during year	130
Died during year	24
Remaining Jan. 1, 1911	12
Surgical cases	101
Medical	58
Operations	68
Days treatment, city, town and county patients	148
Paid patients	3022
Total days treatment	3170
Patients treated, city, town and county	9
Paid patients treated	157
Total number of patients	166

Respectfully submitted,
Georgianna B. Kinyon, R. N.
Superintendent.

The following officers were elected for the year 1911, the Mayor being ex-officio member of the Board and President thereof; H. L. Paddock, vice president; T. H. Marvin, secretary; Thomas Hunter, treasurer.

The vice president announced the following Committees for the year; all of which were approved by the Board:

Finance — C. R. Lee, J. C. O'Brien, Thomas Hunter.

Supply — T. H. Marvin, Dr. W. M. Wells, A. L. Warner.

Service — Dr. L. F. Joy, G. C. Webb, O. Bogardus.

Building and Grounds—J. A. Morrill, G. S. Piper, F. A. Gage.

Furniture and Equipment — J. W. Rigley, Dr. N. H. Haviland, H. L. Paddock.

The vice president announced that the new dormitory for nurses on the third floor had been finished and equipped so that now there was additional room for six nurses.

Dr. Wells reported the floors of the operating room in an unsanitary condition and urged the importance of getting estimates for a new tile floor at once.

The first year in the Albert Lindley Lee Memorial hospital has been most successful. Many changes in the house management have been inaugurated and conditions have been bettered in many lines. The Board of Governors have labored without compensation and with great diligence for the common good of the institution and its inmates. The Woman's Auxiliary has been most beneful and full measure of praise should be given them for their invaluable assistance. The local physicians have done all within their power for the assistance and advancement of the institution and their skill has been largely responsible for the low death rate reported.

Some comment has been heard relative to the number of deaths in the hospital since its dedication. When one compares the number of deaths with the number of patients treated during the year, bearing in mind all the time that where a hospital is a new departure in a community it is turned to by the residents as a court of last resort, the mortality is slight beyond belief.

The public has generously responded to every call to help in whatsoever form, with the result that much has been done for and by the magnificent memorial to a deceased citizen, that would otherwise have been impossible. The second year of its existence starts under most auspicious conditions.

INFORMATION FOR TAXPAYERS

In the official call for a special election, it was not specifically stated as to the character of construction of the proposed bridge, whether of steel or concrete.

That there be no misunderstanding I beg to say that the Board of Public Works, who have full control, have decided and will build of concrete construction, if built at all by them.

J. A. Foster,
President Board of Public Works.

CHARTER REVISION NEARING COMPLETION

The Charter Revision Committee are doing conscientious work on the proposed revision of the present inadequate and unsatisfactory city charter, and they hope on Wednesday evening to have the matter so well in hand as to be able within a short time to submit the amendments to the legislature, hoping to have them approved by the electors and enacted into law this Winter.

The amendments as proposed will undoubtedly meet with the hearty approval and support of our citizens. Among those suggested are that one member of the Board of Public Works and the Board of Fire and Police shall go out each year, his successor to be appointed by the then Mayor. The Board of Governors shall become the sole custodian of hospital fund and property. Any member of the police and fire departments injured while on duty, shall be cared for at the hospital free of expense, so long as the sum shall not exceed $5 per week. A City Marshall shall be appointed to serve all processes from City Court, his compensation to be the fees paid for the service. This will give the patrolmen more time to attend to the duties for which they are engaged by the city. The taxes are to be paid in installments as at present but the failure to pay up by a certain time shall not entail so severe a penalty as at present. Fulton shall have four instead of five supervisors, divided as follows: First and Sixth wards, one; Second ward, one; Third and Fourth wards, one; and the Fifth ward, one.

The committee decided that the fire department as at present constituted, with Chief Waugh in charge and Assistant Chief Rude constantly on duty, was well enough, and they decided not to make the proposed change of paying one man to serve in both capacities and to be constantly on duty at the engine house.

PORK FOUND UNHEALTHY.

Last week a farmer residing near the city brought 16 pigs to Fulton and disposed of them to the local meat dealers. One dealer, in cutting up an animal, found the glands in the neck greatly enlarged and he immediately called in Meat Inspector Kennedy. The tuberculin test was applied with the result that tuberculosis was found to exist in eight of the sixteen hogs divided among the retailers. The carcasses were condemned by Dr. Kennedy.

BRIDGE QUESTION DISCUSSED AT PUBLIC MEETING OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Business Men Endorse Bridge, Water and Sewer Appropriations at Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night—Special Election Tomorrow

The public meeting held in the City Hall on Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the $125,000 appropriation for bridge, sewer and water purposes, was largely attended and the propositions were fully discussed. The consensus of opinion was that the expenditure was an absolute necessity for the protection of life and limb, and the belief was expressed that the taxpayers would so vote on Tuesday.

Mr. T. M. Ripley, secretary of the Chamber's Municipal Committee, read the following report on the findings of the committee which fully covers all of the debated points in the controversy, it positively strips the opposition, which has never seemed formidable in proportions, of its fighting force. Not an answer is guess work. The statements therein contained are the result of rigid investigation and exhaustive research, and are as follow:

To The Chamber of Commerce of the City of Fulton.

Report by the Municipal Committee upon the proposition to bond the city for the rebuilding of the Broadway bridge and the appropriations for sewer and water purposes.

Mr. President and Gentlemen:

Believing that the proposition of bonding the city of Fulton for about $125,000.00 for public improvement was a matter of vital importance to the business men of this city, your Municipal Committee deemed it within their province to go before the proper city authorities and get from them, their reason for calling an election to vote upon such bond issue, in order that said reasons might be presented to this Chamber and the voters of the city, that said vote might be taken with a full knowledge of the existing conditions and the necessity for their change. We acted in this matter disinterestedly so far as taking issue one way or the other on the question. We simply desire to present this matter to you for your information and that of the taxpayers and not from any partisan view.

This matter was presented to the members of the Board of Public Works and they concurred in what we were trying to do and on Friday, February 24th, called a special meeting of their Board to meet with your committee at 7:00 p. m. of that date. They also secured the attendance of the city's member of the Board of Supervisors who is Chairman of the Supervisors Committee having this matter in charge; also the attendance of the committee of the Common Council consisting of Mayor Joseph Conners and Aldermen Wolcott and Palmer; there were also present by request of the Board the City Attorney, Mr. Fanning, the City Clerk, Mr. MacNamara, and the City Engineer, Mr. Hackett.

After the meeting was called to order by the President of the Board of Public Works, Mr. J. A. Foster, the object of the meeting was stated by one of your committee and the following facts were brought out:

The Bridge

Unofficial reports were made to the Board of Public Works that the bridge at Broadway was becoming unsafe for travel. These became so persistent that the Board of Public Works authorized an inspection of this bridge to be made and on August 12th, 1910, Mr. Stowell, Civil Engineer and Expert in Bridge Design, submitted a report to the Mayor, which reads in part as follows:

"TRUSSES. The short span of this bridge appears to have been designed for a load of about 80 pounds per square foot and the longer span for about 60 pounds. These loads would be suitable for common highway travel but would be very light for a city bridge in the location and liable to traffic which this one is, even though all parts of the bridge were in good condition and every piece fulfilling its proper function. But the condition of the trusses is such that its actual strength is much below these figures."

This report then goes into detail in regard to the faults of the trusses and then further reads:

"I should say that 25 to 30 pounds per square foot would probably cover their safe capacity. In the winter when the bridge is loaded with snow and ice the trusses are probably strained pretty closely to their safe capacity with no moving load on the bridge."

Joists and Floor Beams

After discussing the joists in the floor he says:

"The safe carrying capacity of a joist of this size and length, allowing for the weight of the joist itself and planking, is about 1200 pounds at the middle of the joists, or about the load of one wheel of a wagon carrying two tons.

"The floor beams on the older span are 10-inch I-beams, the trusses being spaced 18 inches apart on centers. The safe capacity of one of these beams, allowing for the weight of the floor itself, is about 3200 pounds at the middle of the beam. A single two ton wagon load would strain the beam about up to its safe capacity."

Lateral System

"The provision against lateral motion in this bridge is poor and, such as it is, its condition is such that it is little better than worthless * * * The entire latral system is very poor * * * This cannot be remedied though it might be mitigated by adjusting the lateral rods but the remedy would only be temporary and the bridge would soon relapse into its present condition without constant attention and adjustment."

Masonry

"Though the superstructure of the bridge is poor, the feature which seems to be the most indicative of approaching dissolution is the masonry under it, particularly at the extreme ends * * * After going into considerable detail in regard to the masonry the report finds that but one pier "looks as if it would last indefinite, though it needs pointing."

Recommendations

"The condition of this bridge, and part of the masonry supports under it, is such that it seems liable to fall at any time under a sudden jar or a little extra strain and in the event of such an occurrence your city could offer no good defense against claims for damages. I think the bridge is in such a state that it should be immediately closed to wagon travel and kept closed at least until the dangerous masonry conditions are remedied. After that it would be safe in my judgment for single wagon loads not exceeding two tons each. * * * Any local excitement such as a fire or accident in the neighborhood might be the means of drawing a crowd on some part of the bridge which would cause it to fall and special precautions ought to be taken to prevent any such gathering.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Chas. F. Stowell,
Civil Engineer.

In view of the above report the upper bridge was closed to wagon traffic during fair week in August and has been closed since that time. It is understood, to the use of the horse car; moreover this restriction as to loading began to work hardship upon manufacturers and merchants and in fact all persons using this bridge for heavy loads. In view of danger to life, with its consequential large damage suits against the city, and the restriction of the mercantile industries, there was presented to the Board of Public Works of the city of Fulton the following petition:

"Whereas by reason of public necessity, the construction of a new bridge across the Oswego River in this city connecting East and West Broadway, is now imperative and the interest of the public demands its immediate construction, now, therefore,

We, the undersigned residents and taxpayers of the city of Fulton respectfully petition your honorable body to take such proceeding as is necessary to insure the construction of a new bridge across the Oswego River in this city connecting East and West Broadway."

The foregoing seemed to your committee to be ample reason for the Board of Public Works taking definite action upon this project. They therefore adopted a resolution calling upon the Board of Supervisors to

CULLEN STRIDES AHEAD.

It appears from the appointment of Attorney Purcell to the Supreme Justiceship to succeed the late Justic Rogers, that the double pass has been given Judge Bulger and his friends in Oswego county, and that Attorney F. E. Cullen is the power behind the present governorship throne.

Judge Purcell is the senior member of the firm of Purcell, Cullen & Purcell, of Watertown, attorneys for the New York Central. Judge Purcell will retire from the firm before he assumes the duties of his new office, and Attorney Cullen, who has many relatives and friends in Fulton, will become the real head of the firm.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Fulton, N. Y., Feb. 27, 1911.

Adjourned meeting of the Common Council, to give public hearing on franchise for the distribution of electricity.

Present — Mayor Conners, Aldermen Palmer, Johnson, Smith, Newton.

Absent — Aldermen Malone, Wolcott.

Among those who attended the hearing were, Claude Guile, L. W. Emerick, F. A. Gage, Edward Quirk, J. H. Howe, E. J. Schem, Attorney White of Phoenix, representatives of the press and City Attorney Fanning.

Attorney Guile representing the Fulton Light, Heat & Power Company protested against granting the proposed franchise.

L. W. Emerick filed the following letter:

Fulton, February 27, 1911.

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Fulton:

Gentlemen: We protest against your action in the granting and sale of a franchise in this city for supplying electricity for light, power, etc., on the ground that this company desires and is able to supply all requirements for service of this nature, and no reasons exist to justify or make necessary the granting of a franchise to others for such service in the city of Fulton.

Very truly yours,
Fulton Light Heat & Power Co.
By L. W. Emerick

Attorney White representing the Oswego River Power Transmission Co addressed the council in behalf of the applicants for a franchise.

City Attorney Fanning stated the position of the council and replied to Attorney Guile's criticism of certain provisions of the proposed franchise.

Alderman Smith introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That the Mayor be, and he is hereby authorized to execute and deliver to Monroe Skeel, a certificate of indebtedness of the City of Fulton, in the sum of $66.26, and interest from the 27th day of February, 1911, payable on or before the 15th day of April, 1912, in payment of the amount agreed upon by said Monroe Skeel and the Board of Public Works of the city of Fulton, to be paid in settlement according to the terms of a certain agreement made and executed by said Monroe Skeel, provided that said Monroe Skeel shall first execute and file with the city clerk the release provided for by said agreement, such release to be approved by the city attorney.

Aye — Aldermen Palmer, Johnson, Smith, Newton.

Absent—Aldermen Malone, Wolcott.

Alderman Smith introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That the following bills be paid from the proper funds:

General City Fund
J. B. Buell	$25.00
D. C. Draper	2.55
Poor Fund
D. C. Draper	$4.37
Frank Zala	4.59

Aye — Aldermen Palmer, Johnson, Smith, Newton.

Absent—Aldermen Malone, Wolcott.

CITY OF FULTON, ss:

I hereby certify that the above resolutions were duly adopted at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Fulton, held at the City Hall, on the 27th day of February, 1911.

William MacNamara, City Clerk.

Approved this 27th day of February, 1911.

Joseph H. Conners, Mayor.

FALSE RUMOR DENIED

An absolutely false rumor has gained circulation in Fulton to the effect that cost attends the use of he Case memorial mortuary chapel in Mt. Adnah cemetery. This rumor is absolutely without foundation in fact and the Mt. Adnah Cemetery Association wish the fact laid before the public most emphatically.

When Mrs. Charles R. Lee gave this memorial to the city, she did it without reservation or restriction. Her sole ambition being to perpetuate the memory of her parents and to give to Fulton a greatly needed and deeply appreciated boon. That such a rumor should be circulated regarding the use of the chapel is most unkind and unjust.

THE WEEK

Though progress toward normal condition of business activity is slow, it is steady. In this progress the iron and steel trade is taking the lead, and its gain is so notable as to promise well for the other branches of industry. The percentage of production to capacity is continually increasing and the evidences of expansion, not only in finished products but in pig iron, multiply in such a way as to have a favorable effect on business sentiment. The important rate decisions bring to an end a period of uncertainty that has prevailed since the Spring of 1910. While these favor manufacturers and merchants in all sections of the country, except the Southwest, and may result in a temporary curtailment of railroad improvement and extension, their final outcome should be an expansion of industrial and mercantile activity beneficial to carriers and shipped alike. The conditions for both cotton and winter wheat crops are favorable, especially since the heavy rainfall in the South and Southwest. The recent readjustments in prices of important food products, the change for the better in the foreign trade, the easier conditions in the money market, and the active outlook for building operations serve also to increase the more optimistic feeling which prevails in spite of the fact that some of the factors that have retarded business have not yet been removed. In the dry goods trade, while the expansion is not so pronounced as in iron and steel, and while conservatism as the result of the high costs of production continues, yet there is an increase in transactions, and there is no heavy surplus stock to cause prolonged depression. Worsteds and woolens are doing well; silk is quite active and there is a growing demand for cotton goods, although curtailment of production continues. Bank clearings during the past week outside New York decreased 6.6 per cent. compared with 1910 and increased 5.9 per cent. compared with 1909. In New York there was a loss of 3.0 per cent. and 1.3 per cent., respectively. Railroad earnings in the latest week reported a decline of 0.2 per cent. At the port of New York exports were $13,110,471, a gain of $3,053,686 over 1910, and of $2,201,592 over 1909. Imports were $20,326,934, a gain of $3,138,995 over 1910, and of $2,655,996 over 1909.

Reports from leading iron and steel centers continue of a highly encouraging character, and it is evident from the rate at which new business is developing that the current month will make a very satisfactory showing. The improvement that has occurred is more general in its scope, embracing as it does definite signs of expansion in the pig iron division, where producers are asking advances over recent quotations. This firmness is especially pronounced in the Central West, notwithstanding that large stocks of steel making iron are held there, and substantial sales of basic have been noted in the Pittsburg district at $13.75. Buyers of foundry iron are covering their requirements for the second half of the year more freely, and for these deliveries furnaces have raised prices 50c. a ton. The railroads continue to purchase equipment on a liberal scale, the largest domestic rail order being for 40,000 tons, while the demand for export has not diminished, a 15,000 ton contract having just been closed for shipment to Argentina. In other directions a broader buying movement is in evidence and wire and tin plate mills are now operating at 90 per cent. of capacity. Exceptionally heavy specifications have been made against contracts for wire products, while the semi-finished steel market is very firm.

The volume of wholsale and retail dry goods business increases slowly. Conservatism is so general that manufacturers who are hampered by high costs of production are being forced to curtail and limit their output carefully. The absence of accumulated stocks is still a prominent feature in the trade, and the constant demands for prompt shipments of goods due bespeak an underlying strength. Staple prints and ginghams are selling well and there is a moderate call for certain brands of domestic brown cottons, but bleached cottons are dull and the market on denims is easy. Fall River sold 80,000 pieces of print cloth last week, of which 45,000 pieces were for spot delivery. Accompanying the decline in raw cotton there has been some unsettlement of cotton goods values and the impetus to curtail production has been increased. The large corporations handling worsteds and woolens are making steady headway in getting business for fall, and some of the largest silk mills are very busy.

The footwear market continues quiet and featureless. Saple lines are generally slow, buyers not anticipating their requirements. Specialty goods continue to sell well and the producers of these are generally busy, but comparatively few of the plants are working under full headway. The amicable settlement of the discount question is a favorable development. There is some improvement in the demand for domestic hides, including both packer and country stock, and sales of both kinds are larger, with prices steady to firm. Sales of packer hides for a week are estimated between 40,000 and 50,000 hides. The question of terms of discounts in the leather trade now bids fair to be finally steeled, as at a recent meeting between the shoe manufacturers and tanners a compromise was made on the question, and it is expected that this decision will be adopted generally thoughout the trade. Business in leather has been practically at a standstill of late on account of the uncertainty regarding these discounts.

Sentiment is still very strongly bearish in the markets for the leading farm products and the tendency of prices is toward lower levels, although profit-taking gives support at times. Developments in connection with the anti-option legislation have restricted trading in cotton, and this feature is expected to be a disturbing influence until entirely disposed of. New crop prospects are improved by recent rains in Texas and advices from the South indicate that every effort will be made to plant a large acreage. Holders of the actual cotton are reluctant to meet the rapid decline in the future markets, and spot business is checked as a result, although exports are quite well maintained. Practically every legitimate factor is against any permanent recovery in wheat values; but the shore account has become so extended that a natural rebound from low levels is expected by many traders. Sentiment, however, has been visibly impressed by the recent heavy rainfall in winter wheat territory, while the general statistical position encourages further attempts to depress quotations. Western receipts of wheat this week amounted to 2,063,162 bushels, against 3,470,871 last year, and exports from all ports of the United States, flour included, of 1,467,515 bushels, compared with 1,382,031 in 1910. A liberal export business gives support to corn, although prices move irregularly. Arrivals at primary points of 3,687,816 bushels were smaller than the 6,- while the semi-finished steel market tic coast shipments of 1,940,203 bushels exceeded the 578,006 bushels sent abroad a year ago.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for February amounted to $12,384,627 of which $4,652,161 were in manufacturing, $7,697,620 in trading and $684,846 in other commercial lines. Failures this week numbered 263 in the United States against 221 last year, and 30 in Canada compared with 36 a year ago. —Dun's Review, Feb. 25, 1911.

HITCHCOCK IS FIRM

Sticks To His Stand For Higher Postage

Washington.—Despite the storm of protest that has fallen on the head from the magazines, that officer has flatly absolutely refused to recede from his demand for increased postage on the advertising pages of magazines and is using every influence possible with members of Congress to see that the amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill posses both houses.

Practically every magazine publisher in the country is here, and their senators and representatives are given no rest from the protests and arguments of the visitors.

Arthur C. Hastings of New York president of the American Paper and Pulp association, in protesting against the proposed increases in periodical rates, gives figures on the annual product of magazine and catalogue paper.

Mr. Hastings says the volume of this important branch of the paper industry exceeded $40,000,000 during 1910, and declares a radical change in the second class postal rates would mean the curtailment of demand and production at more than 40 per cent of last year's output. This restriction of the paper industry will be duplicated, he said, in the manufacture of typesetting machines, both the linotype and monotype manufacturers having contracts for delivery which are certain of cancellation should the increase in distribution expense be enforced.

The magazine men, through their congressmen, are getting the ear of President Taft.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

CAWDOR'S NEW THANE

Cawdor's new Thane, who through the death of his father succeeds, as 33rd earl of that ilk, to his honors and estates, has hitherto been known as Viscount Emlyn. He ran for Parliament three years ago without success, and as captain of the Carmarthen military artillery saw some service during the Boer War. He is married to Joan Thynne, a daughter of the receiver general to the dean and chapter of Westminster, and a member of that historic house of which the Marquis of Bath is the chief.

He becomes, through his father's death, the owner of Cawdor Castle, at Nairn, in Scotland, where Macbeth is supposed to have murdered King Duncan, while the memorable meeting of the Thane of Cawdor with the three witches took place on the "blasted heath" in the close vicinity of the castle. The latter is a gloomy pile, the grim and massive fortress strongly suggesting by its gaunt and menacing aspect the fierce and troublous times which Shakespeare has pictured in his most famous tragedy, and in an old chamber of the castle tower visitors are still shown the spit where the "silver skin" of King Duncan was "laced with his golden blood." It may be added, by way of explanation, that Macbeth, Thane of Cawdor, on becoming King of Scotland through the murder of Duncan, resigned the thaneship of Cawdor to the Calders.

In the fifteenth century the "wild Campbells of Argyll" carried off Muriel Calder, the infant heiress of Cawdor Castle, and when she grew up they married her to John Campbell, the fourth son of that chieftain, the MacCallum More. When Muriel Calder was carried off by the Campbells as a child a piece of her finger was bitten off by her nurse in order to insure her indentification. Curiously enough, there are still a very large number of peasants employed and residing on the Cawdor Castle estate bearing the name of Calder, and this is ascribed to the fact after the abduction of Muriel the Campbells reduced the members of the clan to the position of serfs. Since Muriel's abduction there has always been a Muriel in the family of the Campbell Lords of Cawdor, the Campbells constituting a branch of that historic house of which the Duke of Argyll is the chief.

A feature of Cawdor Castle is the historic hawthorn. It seems that the original Thane of Cawdor was directed in a dream to load an ass with gold, turn it loose, and build the castle where it stopped to rest. The donkey halted beneath a hawthorn tree, around which the castle tower was accordingly erected, and the venerable trunk is still to be seen in the dungeon tower, its roots spreading out beneath the floor and its trunk penetrating through the stone vaulting above. Against the wall in this same dungeon is the ancient iron bound oak chest which contained the gold loaded on the donkey's back and which was used to build the castle. Each year the Earl of Cawdor of his day assembles his guests around the old tree in the tower dungeon to drink to the "health of the hawthorn"—in other words, prosperity to the Thane of Cawdor.

FORCED TO LEAVE HOME

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Salamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It's surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup—all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

CIRCUMSTANCES

Perhaps five years ago some mice attended church at the First M. E. one Thursday evening. Last Thursday evening a large bat attended church at the same place and seemed to enjoy the services and electric light as he kept swiftly sailing and hovering around some of the time just above the tall ministers head. When bipeds come to church some humans ought to profit by their example. Perhaps it may be another indication of an early Spring. I have never known them to appear before in the Winter time and in a light

A NEW JOAN OF ARC

West Hammond, Ind.—The Searchlight, a semi-weekly newspaper, published by Miss Virginia Brooks, yesterday made its initial appearance and declared editorially that the editor will continue the publication regardless of expense till corruption is driven out of this city.

Miss Brooks, who is known as the Joan of Arc of West Hammond, has been making a campaign against graft and other phases of official corruption in this city for two years and at the last election was the most potent factor in changing conditions by driving out some officials and voting in others. She is 22 years of age, a property owner and thoroughly imbued with the spirit of reform.

When Miss Brooks began her campaign two years ago her first assaults were made upon gambling and she forced the local officers to make raids on gambling houses and arrest gamblers until she had rid the town of them. She has been greatly instrumental in ridding the town of other criminals and she now proposes to proceed against delinquent officials and expose graft in taxes and to expose those who have gained control of property by questionable means.

The new paper started with a large subscription list and with good advertising patronage.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of George L. Hydorn, of Lacona, was probated in Surrogate's Court. He left an estate of $9,000 real and $3,000 personal property, the house and lot to be given to his wife, Dollie, $500 to each of the three daughters, Mary Mellen, of Minneapolis, Minn., Martha Clayton, of Buffalo, and Nora, of Lacona, the rest of the property to be divided among the six children, share and share alike.

The will of Osgood Ross, who died in Schroeppel, was filed in Surrogate's Court last week. The property consists of $2,000 real and $600 personal and the will provides that all the household property shall be left to his wife, Elnora, and the remainder shall be equally divided between Mrs. Ross and his brother, J. F. Ross, after a monument to cost not less than three hundred dollars has been erected on the deceased's lot in Roosevelt cemetery.

PROGRESS IN BRIDGE BUILDING

New Broadway Bridge To Be a Modern Structure

The old Broadway Bridge across the Oswego River and canal is rapidly approaching its natural end. It has served as many years as a bridge of its class can reasonably be expected to survive the ravaging attacks of Winter's ice and snow and Summer's rain and shine. Getting weaker and feebler, the old bridge has patiently carried the ever increasing loads, the ever growing traffic; but now its usefulness is gone, and a new bridge has to be built.

Conforming to the material development and growth of the city of Fulton, and in accordance with the progressive spirit of its citizenship, it is proposed to build the new bridge along modern lines. The illustration here with presented for the first time, gives an excellent idea of the new Broadway bridge as contemplated a series of magnificent arches of reinforced concrete construction.

It almost seems like going back for ideas to the days of the old Roman aqueducts, built two thousand years ago, when we see modern bridge engineering abandon the ugly iron truss and the dull steel girder, to employ, for our municipal bridges, the attractive and graceful curves of the beautiful arch of the Romans, as well as the building material used by them in those ancient structures, now generally known as concrete.

While it is true that the Roman concrete, which consisted of cement-mortar and stone of rather larger sizes, was not as perfect or uniform as our modern Portland cement concrete, due to the fact that our cement is better and our stone aggregate more carefully selected and more thoroughly incorporated in the mass, yet it has stood through the ages, as is testified to by the many structures still in existence and doing service. However, the Romans built their arches of great massiveness, without regard to economy in material or labor, since the labor of the captured slave was cheap, the food supplied him being the only reward for his exertions, and material was plentifully supplied by nature.

Only a decade or two ago, it seemed improbable that we would ever again be able to build and enjoy, at a reasonable amount of expenditure in labor and materials, structures of the permanence, beauty and utility along the lines first started by the Romans. When in the early days the pioneers in this country required the services of bridges, they went into the woods where they found all the material they needed, practically without cost. They learned to build wooden bridges, and continued to use them until the forests became smaller and farther between, and until timber grew higher in price, but smaller in size. Then came the day of combination and iron bridges, in which much or all of the wood was replaced by cast and wrought iron. About thirty-five years ago the steel bridge, with which we are all familiar made its appearance, and seemed destined to supplant all bridge structures of other types.

The steel bridge, in many ways, seemed to be the ideal bridge structure. Made of non-burnable material of great strength, easily manufactured and assembled into trusses and girders and transported to distant points for erection, it seemed to represent the maximum of economy. Soon, however, Father Time began to show that steel, while apparently strong, was perishable material. Changes of temperature and the dampness of the air, ever present to attack it at such places where it was not being guarded or could not be reached by protective paint, caused a constant, ever increasing deterioration. The rivets began to corrode, got loose, and dropped their heads. Joints not readily accessible to the cleaner's broom or the painter's brush began to get clogged with dirt, rust and scale, growing at the very points and weakening the steel where he greatest strength of the structure was most vitally required. The average life of a steel bridge turned out to be only about twenty years. The watchfulness of ambitious engineers and of other officials interested in economical municipal government notwithstanding, the bills for maintaining and repairing steel bridges grew larger from year to year, and all such efforts resulted only in slightly lengthening the life of these structures.

Quite naturally, therefore, while shifting about for a better solution of the problem, many engineers felt inclined to go to another extreme, the building of stone bridges. Though the first cost of permanent stone bridges might be excessive, it seemed preferable to the endless drainage of the public funds for the maintenance and repairs of short-lived, temporary bridges. These considerations led to the building of a number of stone arch bridges by wealthy communities and railroad corporations.

In the meantime the lost art of making concrete had been rediscovered. The manufacture of Portland cement developed rapidly, and the product quickly attained a high degree of uniformity and excellence, far superior to the Roman cement. Gravel and sand were found to be fully as satisfactory for use in concrete as the larger size stones used by the Romans. These latter materials were to be found almost everywhere, and if not, good broken stone of small size ecould generally be had at a reasonable cost. Thus Portland cement concrete soon found its way into all classes of structures. In ten years the production of Portland cement in the United States increased from 600,000 barrels to 60,000,000 barrels.

Here then, was a permanent building material, economically produced, most everywhere, and readily applied. It presented itself as the ideal material for arch bridges, and proved to be thhe means for combining the economy in first cost of steel bridges with the permanence and architectural beauty of the old Roman arch construction.

A peculiarity of concrete is its faculty to protect steel, that may be embedded in it, from corroding. Not only has it been proven during the last twenty years that a concrete covering only an inch thick will permanently prevent steel bars from rusting, but in breaking down some of the old Roman structures, iron hammers and other iron tools were found embedded in the concrete, into which they had doubtless dropped accidentally two thousand years before when these structures were built; and all these metal tools were fully preserved and showed no signs of rust.

These facts are of great importance as they permit the engineer to introduce steel bars into the concrete of the arches, and to make use of the great strength of steel, and yet preserve the steel permanently by so embedding it into the concrete.

In concrete-steel bridges, or reinforced concrete bridges as they are called by some, this possibility is fully utilized, in the interests of true economy, with the result that even the first cost of a properly designed concrete-steel bridge is little, if any more than that of a good steel bridge, while in reality, all things considered, concrete steel structudes are by far the better investment of the two for any community. They are built by home labor with home materials. They employ home industries; are manufactured on the spot and not at the shops in some distant city or foreign state.

Consequently the greatest part of the money spent for building a concrete-steel bridge stays in the community which is making the improvement; directly and indirectly it goes right back to the pockets of the taxpayer.

It is, therefore, not to be wondered that concrete-steel bridges quickly became popular, and the art of planning and building them has rapidly developed. Today many such structures can be found in every state of the United States ranging in cost from a few hundred dollars into millions.

As an instance demonstrating how quickly the public has understood the economic value of concrete-steel bridges after getting acquainted with such structures in their own community, may be cited, that the city of Dayton, Ohio, after building its first concrete-steel bridge, costing about $150,000.00 in 1902, has since built four similar bridges, ranging in cost from $150,000.00 to $200,000.00, the plans for all five structures having been prepared by the Concrete-Steel Engineering Company of New York, who have also furnished the sketch for Fulton's new Broadway bridge.

The plan provides for five main arches of reinforced concrete, each having a clear span of 146 feet, and one 60 foot span to give proper access to the American Woolen Company's plant. All piers and abutments will be of massive concrete, and the approaches will be filled with earth between concrete walls. The grade of the roadway oved the entire bridge will be along a straight line, connecting East and West First streets, so as to reduce it to a minimum. The pavements will be he same as on any other street, as there will be no vibration. If the bridge is to be built with a 34 foot roadway and two 7 foot sidewalks, making a clear width of 48 feet between railings; it is estimated to cost $170,000.00. This figure would include all approaches and pavements from East to West First street, a total length of about 1200 feet. The bridge would be designed to carry safely the heaviest possible loads.

Concrete grows stronger with age. Therefore, if the new Broadway bridge is built of reinforced concrete construction as contemplated, it will be a monument set to itself by the enlightened and far-sighted citizenship of the city of Fulton of the present day, to last for many generations to come.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW

To Be Held in Syracuse March 14-18

All Central New York is interested in the announcement of the dates of the Third Annual Automobile show, which will be held in the State Armory, Syracuse, March 14 to 18 inclusive.

The automobile show has come to be the chief social and commercial event of the year. From the attendance reports of the early shows, this year has broken all previous records. In a single day there were over 36,000 paid admissions to the Eleventh annual show in Madison Square Garden, New York city and similar reports of unprecedented attendance comes from Chicago, Detroit and Buffalo. This form of entertainment, combining the artistic, musical, social and commercial elements has proven to be the most popular and at the same time profitable to the visitor, of any provided within recent years.

At the Syracuse show next month the visitors will witness the most artistic decorative effect of any show in the country, not excepting New York. One of the most elaborate decorative schemes in gold and white, that has ever been produced is now being prepared and will be shown for the first time in the Syracuse armory.

Nearly a million dollars worth of the finest automobiles in the country will be exhibited on the two floors in addition to many thousands of dollars worth of accessories and supplies.

"Patsy" Conway's famous military band will play every afternoon and evening in addition to a noted orchestra. There will be high class soloists and a fine musical program each day.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggists.

Congress expects to finish its business, affirm President Taft's reciprocity agreement with Canada, and adjourn on March 4. Just to think the country can have nearly a whole year's rest, and thus get down to business and prosperity again.

We are not prepared to say that the Baltimore celebration accomplished very much, but it greatly increased the consumption of licker and vittels.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Silver and gold trophies aggregating over $100,000 in value will be exhibited in the New York State Armory at Syracuse during the third annual automobile show to be held there March 14 to 18 inclusive.

These trophies all of which are elaborate examples of the silversmith's art, were won in the leading speed and endurance contests of the past year and represent the highest attainments to date in the motor world.

The famous Glidden trophy which is contested for each year under the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association will be perhaps the most interesting among the big prizes. It was won last year by a Chalmers car in a gruelling grind of over 3,000 miles. Then there is the Atlanta Speedway trophy, valued at $10,000 which was carried off by a National. Both of these stand about six feet in height and make a most attractive exhibit.

In addition to these there are scores of prizes of varying value won at hill climbs, road contests and speed events which will make the interior of the big armory glitter like a metropolitan jewelry shop. The Pullman company has a fine collection which is coming on for the show.

Every dealer in Central New York who has secured space for the show is having some specially finished car or chassis sent on from his factory and this promises to be one of the most complete exhibitions in the country.

Official City Paper

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1911.

Special Election Tomorrow

The special election called for Thursday, March 2, will be a test of the civic pride and progressiveness of our tax paying residents. None but tax payers can vote at this election so the decision really rests with a very small percentage of our population. The small taxpayer has as many votes each as the large taxpayer so that the burden of decision as to whether or not a new upper bridge comes to take the place of the condemned structure now connecting the two sides of the city; whether or not our water supply is properly cared for and the sewer system extended, rests with them.

The Times has heard but two arguments advanced against the proposed bridge; none at all against the other two propositions. Those against the building of the bridge were so trivial as to be altogether unworthy the attention of men at all interested in the welfare of this city. One negligence case, should the present bridge fall after it has been so roundly scored and condemned by experts for the past ten years, would cost the city as much as its share in the cost of constructing the bridge. It is a lamentable fact that the bridge is not strong; that the necessity for the appropriation has arisen. But it is a serious matter and should not be settled in the negative without the very best of reasons for the decision.

Certain it is that not a shadow of suspicion of graft can rest upon the Board of to do with the bridge matter. Equally certain it is that this Board is composed of large taxpayers and their very earnestness should carry much weight. The American Woolen company, The Oswego Falls Pulp & Paper company, all large taxpayers, are eager for the structure. If the Times did not feel heavily the responsibility that rests upon the taxpayer in his decision on Thursday, it would as earnestly beseech him to vote no on the proposition. The very conservative Chamber of Commerce, after weighing well all the facts, counsels that this matter be taken seriously and settled wisely and in the affirmative.

Taxpayers, the decision rests with you, and yours must be the full responsibility of an adverse majority. Think well before you place the ballot in the box tomorrow.

President Taft has issued a proclamation, not as President of the United States, but as President of the Red Cross Society, asking contributions for the relief of the famine stricken region in China. John D. Rockefeller has contributed $5000 and there have been many contributions from other sources and charitable people are also contributing food stuff and clothing which will be sent by a U. S. transport to Shanghai and thence up the Yangtsekiang River where millions of Chinese inhabitants are in dire distress. It is said they are selling their children for food. This, however, is no particular measure of their suffering, because it is common with the Chinese in that part of the world to kill or sell their daughters. The selling of daughters, however, is not confined to the Chinese. It goes on with more or less obscuration in all the hot beds of Christian civilization. We are spending millions annually in China for the conversion of those people while our exclusion laws keep them from the United States. That is practically telling them that they are good enough for Heaven, but not good enough for this country. They are an amiable, temperate, industrious people. Their country is greatly overpopulated and it is not their fault that they are not able to get enough to eat.

There is much unfavorable comment from all parties in reference to what is called the "blundering blatherskite diplomacy" or rather the lack of it, of the Democratic heir-apparent to the speakership of the House of Representatives. Nothing could have been more inopportune than the statement that reciprocal trade relations were preliminary to the annexation of British America, and a foolish remark may be the ruin of what promised to be a most beneficent trade arrangement. It is yet time for the Democratic majority to pause and reconsider the propriety of electing a political marplot to a high office. A hundred or more years ago there was a ducking stool in England for silencing old women who talked too much. An appropriation for such an instrument and a water tank would not be bad for the National Capitol.

The week in Congress has been of great interest and importance in legislative matters. The House has passed the Canadian Reciprocity Bill by a large majority and it is predicted that the bill will pass the Senate. It will not, however, have smooth sailing and if it were not for the impression that the President will call an extra session of Congress almost immediately after the 4th of March, provided the Senate does not vote on the reciprocity bill, it is doubtful if a vote could be had before the 4th of March. If the bill comes to a vote, there is but little doubt that it will be passed, because a majority in favor of the bill in the Senate is conceded, but owing to parliamentary usage, in the Senate, there can be limitless debate, and the upper house has some limitless debaters who are quite capable of talking the bill into the next session.

It is something more than opportune that the exposure of the great lumber trust comes fast upon the heels of reciprocity with Canada and the proposed free importation of lumber from the country. The Bureau of Corporations has just furnished the information that forty years ago 75 per cent. of the timber of the country was owned by the government, but at present 80 per cent. of it is ofwned by private persons. It is apparent that the United States must conserve with greatest care the small remaining supply of timber, and, further, it must, if possible, scotch the trust that is monopolizing with a view to increasing still further the exorbitant cost of such timber as is not at present under their control.

The opinion in regard to President Taft as a politician and a statesman has risen considerably since the beginning of the present session. It is conceded that he is in the main master of the situation and when reciprocity with Canada is established, as the better minds of the country think it will be, there is prospect of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Mexico and with the Central and South American republics. With these ends accomplished close on to the completion of the Panama Canal, the administration is sure to finish with eclat, if not with another term for President Taft.

TUBERCULOSIS MOVEMENT INDORSED BY GRANGE

State Organization Calls Attention To Failure of Country Districts to Keep Pace With City in White Plague Warfare

The New York State Grange, in session in Troy last week, adopted resolutions endorsing the State campaign against tuberculosis. The resolutions declare that the grangers believe in the conservation of natural resources but that the conservation of human life, the most valuable of those resources has not, heretofore, been given the consideration it deserves, especially in the country. A committee of three is provided to cooperate with the State Charities Aid Association in spreading among the farmers of the State the anti-tuberculosis propaganda, especially in relation to county hospitals.

"Twenty years ago," says the preamble, "tuberculosis was predominantly an urban problem. Statistics show, however, that in the last four years there has been in the cities a decrease of 23.9 deaths from the disease per 100,000 population, while in the country districts there has been a decrease of only 5.8 per 100,000." This situation is attributed to the fact that the cities have a greater amount of hospital provision. All public officials in the rural districts are urged to adopt all reasonable measures to bring the standard of health in the country up to the point made possible by its natural advantages.

DEATHS

Lena Marion, aged 15, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Phelps, died at the home in Broadway on Monday night. The mother and two brothers survive.

The remains of Frank S. Dunham, aged 15, were brought to this city from Utica on Monday and taken to the home of James Prentice in Fifth street from where the funeral will be held this Wednesday afternoon.

At her home in Utica on Feb. 26, occurred the death from pneumonia of Mrs. Carrie Stryker, daughter of the late Ziba and Sophronia Kendall and sister of Mrs. M. H. Brando and Mr. Henry Kendall of this city. The body was brought to Fulton on Monday morning for interment in Mt. Adnah, Rev. C. L. Peck conducting the services at the grave. The deceased was a former resident of this city.

George Frederick Savage, one of Warrensburg's old citizens, a man of standing in the community and esteemed for his high character as a Christian citizen, died of a complication of diseases, Tuesday, February 21, at about half past ten o'clock, at his home on East Market street. Mr. Savage has lived in Warrensburg for about forty-two years, coming here soon after the close of the Civil War in which he wore the blue and made a most acceptable record. He was born in Kentucky, April 5, 1838, and was married to Miss Ella Gilbert of New York, in 1875. They had no children. His life was such as to commend itself to God and man. Funeral Thursday at half-past two o'clock from the family residence, under the auspices of Col. Grover Post, G. A. R., and the Maccabees.—Warrensburg (Mo.,) Star, Feb. 22, 1911.

The death of Mrs. F. E. Simons occurred at her home in Canajoharie on Tuesday morning. The body will be brought to this city on the 11:45 New York Central train on Friday and taken immediately to the Case mortuary chapel where Rev. W. H. Wellburn will conduct the burial services. Interment will be in Mt. Adnah. The deceased was formerly Miss Minnie Nelson of this city, and she is survived by her husband, Dr. F. E. Simons; one son, Dr. Willis Simons of St. Johnsville, and one brother, Willis Nelson, who resides in the west.

The funeral of Edward Cavanaugh, aged 72, whose death occurred last week, was held from the Catholic church on Thursday morning. The deceased is survived by his widow; two brothers, Thomas of New York city and John of Fulton, and one sister, Mrs Bridget Kernan of Fulton. Interment was made in St. Mary's.

A quiet, useful and well rounded life ended on Thursday night when Charles H. David, aged 82, passed away at his home in Buffalo street after a stroke of paralysis sustained on Monday. The deceased had been a resident of this city for 60 years and he held the respect and confidence of the community in which he engaged in the practice of law. During the past two years he had been in feeble health but kept very vigorous his interest in all that pertained to current events and to his friends. The funeral services were held from the late home on Saturday afternoon, the Rev. C. G. Wadsworth officiating and burial was made in the family lot in Mt. Adnah. The immediate survivors are the widow, one daughter, Mrs. A. H. Grant of Richfield Springs, and one brother, Attorney Francis David of Phoenix. The members of the local Bar met and drafted resolutions on the death of one of their members and they also attended the funeral in a body.

Suddenly and without warning, the death angel called Mrs. Harriet E. Pratt, aged 86, widow of the late John Pratt, as she slept at her home in First street on Thursday morning. During the past few years she had failed in bodily health and strength but her mental faculties were as keen as ever. When she retired to her room on Wednesday night she was in her usual health, but heart disease from which she had long suffered caused her demise. The deceased was born in Lysander. When she was quite young her parents removed to Cold Water and it was at this place that she married Mr. Pratt on March 3, 1847, they coming to Fulton to make their home. The deceased was an active and prominent member of the Universalist church in this city and was also one of the longest time members of the Fortnightly Shakespears club. The funeral services were held from the late home on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Rev. F. W. Betts of Syracuse officiating. A male quartette composed of Messrs. Allen, Bennett, McFarland and Crouse sang "Gathering them in," and "Somewhere." The casket was surrounded by floral tributes of love and sorrow from many friends and relatives. A brief burial service was conducted in the Case mortuary chapel after which the body was placed in the Pratt mausoleum. The immediate survivors are one son, George, of Buffalo; one brother, William Slauson of Kansas City, Mo., three grandchildren, Dr. Guy Pratt and John Pratt of Buffalo; and Mrs. H. W. Post of New York; a sister-in-law, and niece, Mrs. Malisia Pratt and Miss Lillian Pratt of this city. The relatives unable to reach here were Mr. Slauson of Kansas, a brother, and Mrs. A. J. Loomis of Vancouver, B. C., a granddaughter.

Catherine Butler, born at South Hill, Onondaga county, N. Y., Nov. 5, 1820, and died in her son's home in Riverside, Feb. 13, 1911, aged 90 years, three months and eight days. In 1838 she was married to Jack Walker, who died in 1846. Two children had been born to them, a daughter leaving them in infancy and a son, who lived to mature manhood, was a soldier in the Civil war, but died many years ago. In 1850 Mrs. Walker was married at Gilbert's Mills, N. Y., to G. W. Turner, who departed this life in 1886, leaving his wife after years of married life to a second widowhood, which lasted for nearly a quarter of a century. One son, Rock Emmett, was born to them, and his home his mother has found a haven during all these years. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Turner there are two step-daughters, to whom she was also a true mother, Mrs. Debia Hatley of Waterloo, Ia., and Mrs. A. E. Newton of Fulton, N. Y. There are 11 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren upon whom she has bestowed a wealth of love. One sister, Hes Alexander, resides in Fort Collins, Colo. Mrs. Turner was converted in her youth and joined the Free Will Baptist church in 1850, remaining a member of that church till her death, a period of more than 60 years. Her home was at Gilberts' Mills, N. Y., until six years ago, when she came with her son and his family to Riverside. For some years she had gradually grown more feeble until apparently without any special disease the wheels of life refused longer to respond to the demand made upon them, and last Monday morning she was not, for God had taken her. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Turner and their family, Mrs. Halley and her husband and daughter, Mrs. Milliner, were permitted to be with her at the last. Sunday morning as she saw the bright sunshine she exclaimed: "How beautiful it is and how happy I am." Her life was complete and beautiful as she is resting.—Riverside, Calif., Press.

In Memory of Mrs. Pratt

The summons of death, issued so suddenly and quietly last Thursday morning, called Mrs. Harriet E. Pratt away from the experiences of a long earthly life.

In the death of Mrs. Pratt, the Fortnightly Shakespeare Club realizes the loss of an honored member. For many years, or until failing physical powers made regular attendance impossible, she was rarely absent from our meetings. We desire to express our appreciation of the unusual interest she constantly manifested in the work of the club, even when unable to actively participate therein.

We shall miss her gracious presence and remember with gratitude that so recently as January twenty-fourth she was present with us when the then unrealized opportunity was given for the exchange of happy greeting and the last goodbye.

Mrs. Edna A. Moore,
Mrs. Helen B. Emens.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Friday afternoon at 3, Dr. L. F. Joy gives another of his talks to the Boy Scouts on First Aid.

At the monthly Brotherhood class rally Friday evening at 8 o'clock, another of our "good friends" has some interesting things to demonstrate concerning matters mathematical and relative to the well known saying that "figures won't lie." The Brotherhood Orchestra is expected to assist in the program, and the Feed committee may be depended upon to supply their part of the evening's enjoyment.

Next Sunday morning the public service includes a sermon by the pastor on "The Other Side of the Road." The evening, beginning at 7, will be given to the monthly Brotherhood Class Special. Orchestral as well as vocal music will be rendered, and the address by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Peck, will be on the theme, "What Christianity Does for the Laboring Man." Workingmen of the city who are not otherwise interested are cordially invited.

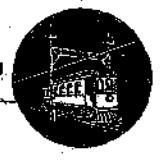
MARRIED

Mr. George M. Ives and Miss Gertrude M. Kelly, both of Volney, were united in marriage in Syracuse on Tuesday afternoon, February 21, by Rev. J. B. Knappenberger. After an extended southern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ives will be at home to their friends in Volney after May 1.



The marriage of Mr. Emory Wells to Miss Viola Duboise was solemnized at the Catholic church on Monday morning. The bride was attended by Miss Alberta Allen and the best man was Mr. Harvey Duboise. After a bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Wells will make their home in Fulton.

Mr. Harvey Ingamells and Miss Mora Hall were united in marriage on February 21, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Hall of Erie street, the Rev. J. G. York officiating. The event was kept most secret but in some way it became known to a girl friend of the bride, and many friends witnessed the ceremony, unknown to the contracting couple. Rice, confetti, old shoes and many placards accompanied the young couple upon their bridal trip. Mr. and Mrs. Ingamells will make their home in West Broadway with Mr. Ingamell's mother, Mrs. ida Ingamells.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Howard, on the Whitaker Road, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Monday when their daughter, Evelyn Electa, was united in marriage with Mr. Gurdon LeRoy Pitcher of Tioga county, an employe at the milk station. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. E. Jones of Mt. Pleasant and the bride was attended by her sister, Elizabeth. Mr. Frank Roberts was the best man. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present at the ceremony. After a brief bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Pitcher will make their home here.

The marriage of Mr. Arthur Truman Grant to Miss Nellie Louisa Arnold was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Arnold, at Bowens Corners, the Rev. C. J. Taft of Corning speaking the sacred words that linked the young lives. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Ruth Arnold and the ceremony was witnessed by about fifty relatives and friends. The color scheme throughout was green and white. The bride looked very sweet and girlish in her gown of white Tussah silk and she carried a shower of roses, sweet peas and maiden hair ferns. Congratulations and luncheon followed the ceremony and then Mr. and Mrs. Grant left for a honeymoon trip to Central New York. After April 1, they will be at home to their many friends on the Gilmour farm in Volney. The young couple are exceedingly popular with their large circle of associates and they are being showered with good wishes.

The Trustful Ten of the Baptist church and their husbands on Tuesday evening of last week enjoyed a social at the home of Mr. A. L. Vant and Miss Mattie Vant, in Oneida street. Tea was served by the men and the entertainment was provided by the sterner sex, in recognition of the many enjoyable socials that had been arranged by the ladies for their benefit. Games and music were enjoyed.

It is a matter of gratification to Fultonians who know Resident Engineer T. M. Ripley best, that he has not and probably will not be removed by the change in political complexion of the State government. Mr. Ripley has been a competent, painstaking official, holding the balance even in his relationship as between residents and State, and his advice is frequently sought and freely given on many points connected with his position.

Hon. N. N. Stranahan will speak on "Points of interest in the British Isles" in the Congregational church on Wednesday evening, March 8, at 8:15 o'clock. The lecture has been arranged for the benefit of the many who could not attend the lecture in the Library several weeks ago and it will without doubt be largely attended. Mr. Daniel Roach of the "Way Down East" theatrical company is spending a weeks vacation at his home in this city. Last week the company celebrated its 800th presentation of the play at the Majestic theatre, New York city, where they closed an engagement, to reopen at the West End theatre, New York city, on Monday. It speaks well for the play that it is now in its fifteenth year of success. Mr. Roach plays a very important role in the presentation.

Herald: Morton Adkins, who is devoting his time to concert work, left his home in this city for New York, where he will be heard in a song recital. On March 14 Mr. Adkins will apear as the soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at a concert to be given in Fall River, Mass. On this occasion the Fall River Choral Society of 250 voices will furnish several numbers. This is the first time Mr. Adkins has sung with the Boston orchestra, and it is a compliment that does not come to many musicians. Mr. Adkins has engagements with the Scranton Symphony Orchestra, Louis Baker Phillips, conductor, in May and June.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis LeMay on Wednesday evening celebrated in a fitting manner the fifty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, at their home in Volney. The seven children of the couple were present, death never having visited their fireside. The home was decorated with red, white and blue in recognition of the birthday of the "father of his country" and an elaborate supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. LeMay have been life long residents of Oswego county.

Mrs. David L. Lipsky entertained at bridge whist on Friday afternoon at her home on Cayuga street. Spring flowers filled the vases in the reception rooms. In the dining room yellow was the color scheme. Daffodils centered the daintily appointed table. Brass candle sticks holding yellow candles hooded with shades of the same color were at either end of the table. The candies, cakes and ices were also of yellow. This was the third of a series of parties which Mrs. Lipsky has given. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of the hostess were: Mrs. Max Katz, Gloversville; Mrs. Abram Emerick, Mrs. S. B. GIRLS SENT BACK TO FULTON

Edith Sanders and Cora Brown, two young women about twenty-one years of age, who claim Fulton as their home, were taken from a building in East First street yesterday by the police and brought to the police station. The young women had engaged a room in a flat, in which several colored families lived. The police heard of the matter and persuaded the women to leave there. They left for their home in Fulton yesterday noon.—Oswego Times.

A Story of the Sunny South Right After the Civil War

Written For The Times

BY CAPTAIN O. J. JENNINGS

The next Spring found the Hardiman's with more to do with than they had ever expected to possess; yet they were in need of another mule and several farm implements in order to put in a crop to the best advantage. How to get these things was a question that Uncle Ephe had been studing about for many days; all the crop that could be spared had been sold and the money for it used. As Uncle Ephe came up from the field one evening, in March, Aunt Phillis said: "Epheum, how's you got long today? Is you 'bout through grubbin'?"

"Yes, I'ze mity near done, 'bout two days more wock an I'll be done."

"What you gwine put in dat lan?"

"Specks to put corn on it."

Lor', Epheum, you can't plow dat lan' good enough for corn with jus' the one mule you's got."

"Phillis, dat's jus' as sure as a coon is to get fat jus' fore corn shuckin' time."

"Then what's you gwine to do?"

"For past week I'ze laid wake mose every night thinkin' how to get 'nother mule, new double plow and harrow?"

"Epheum, you's ben studyin' when you ought to ben prayin' Has you forgot how your prayers ben heard, an how we's ben blest in every thing we's tried to do? Has you thought 'bout de way that blessin' done came?

"Phillis, you's got the 'ligon dat will show us de way in dis 'mergency."

"Epheum, de way are for you to go straight to Mr. Bradway and tell him what you need an he'll tell you jus' what to do. He knows de bes' part for we all to follow if any one in this world do."

The next morning, Uncle Epherum went to Mr. Bradway and said: "I'ze came over to see you on special 'portant business. I'ze done got dat new lan' we bought 'bout ready to plow, an Phillis said I better come an tell you how we need 'nother mule, new plow and harrow. I done tell her we have got no money to pay for mule an she say go straight long an tell Mr. Bradway what we need; so I'ze came."

"Well, Uncle Ephe, if you need another mule I think it can be arranged so you can buy it. You look about and find one for sale that suits you and then come to me; I will give you an order that you can get a plow and harrow on and pay for them this fall."

With many thanks Epherum took the order and went home and told Phillis he done got order and wos goin' right off to buy mule in de mornin'."

"For de goodness sakes, Epherum, what you got to buy mule with?"

"Well, Phillis, I ain't got de money but I got 'structions from Mr. Bradway an dat's jus' as good as de money. When he tell me to go an look up mule what I can buy dat's 'structions what means we's gwine to have 'nother mule."

"Epherum, that 'structions you's go sutterin' does looks like a mule."

Early the next morning Uncle Ephe was off looking for a mule he could buy which he found during the day. He reported to Mr. Bradway that he could buy a mule of Mr. Carter for eighty dollars and have all the time he wanted in which to pay for it if he would get Mr. Bradway to endorse his note.

"When do you think you can pay for the mule, Uncle Ephe?"

"Well sah, I can pay this fall when the crop gets ripe. I'ze gwine to raise good lot peas an corn an some tobacco."

"I suppose you want me to write the note for you?"

"'Zactly so, Mr. Bradway, you know de ole man doan know nothin' 'bout how to fix nothin' like dat."

The following day Uncle Ephe had his new mule and the work of preparing the land for a crop was under way. Every member of the family, even to little Emmagean, was a factor in the prosperity of the Hardiman family, for she could mind the chickens and do a little of the work indoors; thereby giving Aunt Phillis more time to help in the field work; in this way the Hardiman's went on to success. From year to year they added something in the way of buildings and betterments until a good dwelling adorned their farm, which had grown in twenty years to over two hundred acres. The boys had become men, Robert Lewis had graduated from the best industrial school then existing in Virginia. Rastus would soon come home from Hampton Industrial school a graduate in a mechanical branch and with a thorough knowledge of agriculture. Emmagean's time for several years past has been spent mostly at the Bradway's, where she has been educated under the refining influence of Mrs. Bradway and her daughter, until she is now a young lady of pleasing address and most charming manners.

On one of Aunt Phillis visits to the Bradway's, and while sitting on the front piazza steps alone with Miss Agnes, she said: "Honey, I'ze kindy skeered."

"Why, Aunt Phillis, what has happened to frighten you?"

"Lor', Honey, 'haint you done hear 'bout dat 'feller 'comin' to our house pretenin' he's interested in the education of the young folks?"

"You mean Professor."

"Of course I speeks so, you knows what I mean, Honey." (All little girls with the old colored Aunties are called Honey and as young ladies it is rarely they address them otherwise).

"Well, dat audashious nigger is jus' projectin' 'bout interest in education. He's jus' shinin' up to Emmagean an fus' we know they'll be married if we doan stop it fore it gets any worse."

"Goodness, Aunt Phillis, you surprise me. It had not entered my mind that Emmagean would take notice or interest in any young man."

"Honey, you doan know 'bout de 'swasian these larn't young coons have half as well as I do; we's got to stop this cuttin' up right now or dat gal gwine to get away from us."

"Well, Aunt Phillis, what can I do to stop it? We can't spare Emmagean; hadn't we better tell mamma about it? You know Emmagean always heeds what mamma says."

"Honey, I don't know 'bout dat. I'ze kindy 'fraid Miss Margret may think it's all right for Emmagean to have been he's such a larn't, kind gentleman. If you and I can jus' bus' the whole business up fore she knows anything 'bout it dat will be the bes' way."

"Aunt Phillis, I incline to the opinion that the best way is to go right to mamma and tell her all about this young professor and what your feelings in the premises are; and whatever mamma's advise may be it will be safe to follow."

"Lor', Honey, I know jus' how good you ma is, an dat what she say will be jus' right but I'ze so 'fraid she may side with that spruced-up nigger and say it's all right for him to be payin' 'tentions to Emmagean dat I'ze kindy skerrey 'bout her knowing anything 'bout it till we done drive him away. Coren you say something to Emmagean dat will jus' turn her head gin him?"

"Aunt Phillis, what would you have me say?"

"Oh, say something 'bout his being nothin' but a forest coon an no count anyways an that she better not be studyin' over de foolishness what he tell her."

"Aunt Phillis, you are so good and devoted to us and our every interest that I want to do every thing for you that I can and still feel that I am not doing a wrong; under the circumstances I think we better go to mamma and tell her all about this young professor and that you don't want Emmagean to marry him or any other man."

"Lor', Honey, I specks what you say is all right but if you'd jus' take hole dis job with me we'd soon drive dat audashious nigger out dis community."

"Aunt Phillis, you and I want to do right in all things and I am not sure it would be doing right towards Emmagean or the Professor to break up any friendship that may exist between them, but if mamma says he ought to be driven away then I will help you to the best of my ability."

"Lor', Honey, I feels if I could take stick an beat him right off de place. I 'aint gwine let him have my gal anyways."

With this she broke down and sobbed out the grief she could no longer surpress. Agnes waited until Aunt Phillis recovered from her grief and then said: "Dear Aunt Phillis, I am so sorry for you, but take my advice and go to mamma and tell her all about it."

"Lor', Honey, you dear chile I corean do it. You go an tell her jus' what you think bes'; I'll go home an some time tomorrow I'll see you when we'll know jus' what to do."

"Very well, Aunt Phillis, keep in mind that I want to do whatever is for the best in this matter."

Aunt Phillis started for home and Agnes went to her mother and related the facts of Professor Lindsey visits to the Hardimans and Aunt Phillis' fears of what his intentions were. Mrs. Bradway listened attentively to the very last work and then said: "Agnes, I hope you have not encouraged Aunt Phillis in opposing the attentions or courtesy this young man is paying Emmagean."

"Well, Mamma, I don't know as I have quite done that but I'ze told her I would help her to stop him coming there if you said he ought not to pay attention to Emmagean; dear old Aunt Phillis, I love her if she is black and I want to do anything I can to make her happy."

"My dear child, that is all very nice of you but I fear you have encouraged the poor old woman in nursing a prejudice that seemingly has no foundation, in fact; Emmagean is now an attractive young girl and I see no good reason why she should not receive attentions from a worthy young man."

"Well, mamma, I didn't mean anything wrong I only wanted to please dear Aunt Phillis. She is such a good old soul and felt so bad about it."

"Yes, but I fear your sympathy or taking sides with her will foster more grief than joy; but as you persuaded her to refer the matter to me I must say you have not erred to the extent of censure. I will give the matter careful consideration and I presume talk with Emmagean about it before I meet her mother."

"Why, mamma, you will scare poor Emmagean almost to death."

"No, my dear child, Emmagean has the most practical mind of any young lady I know."

"Mamma, you know the old saying about present company being excepted."

"Yes, my dear child, and I beg your pardon. Come here and let me kiss you."

The next morning Mrs. Bradway sent for Emmagean to come to her room; after kindly saying, "Emmagean, I have sent for you to talk over a matter I feel a very deep interest in and I trust you will not feel that I am interesting myself unfairly in your affairs, when I say that I have heard you have a beau. That is to say, a young man paying attention to you and that I want you to tell may ve some advice to give you."

"Mi Margret, I am glad you have seen to send for me and ask to know bout this affair. I have wanted to talk it over with you but it is such delicate matter I have hesitated and defered it from time to time. ow I can tell you and be happy wh the advice that shall guide me garding it. As perhaps you have eard Professor Lindsey has been omiug to our house for some time nd as mother supposed as a frien to the boys, but in truth to see e. As I knew she would not const to my receiving attentions from my young man we managed so as to have her think the professor's visit were to see the boys; but a week or so ago she saw something that convinced her the real cause was not altogether the interest felt in hi boys. Mother was much excited oer it and I fear will never consento my marrying him or any other man'

"hen, I infer, you have not talked wh her about your engagement?"

"ss Margret, I am not engaged and never shall be without your approval and the consent of my father and mother."

"hu dear good girl to respect the wishes and be guided in all fairness by your parents is not only right but a duty you owe them; as for me I have only the right of a friend taking a deep interest in your future welfare and happiness to advise."

"Iss Margret, how much I appreciate what you have done for me and what you have made me. I cannot command words to express. I am not unmindful of my origin and what I would have been if left to come up as the large majority of my race and sex are obliged to. It is to you I owe my education, it is to you I am indebted for the moral character I possess; it is to your Christian influence that I owe all that has made me a true woman and I can not will not, knowingly do anything that would not meet your approval."

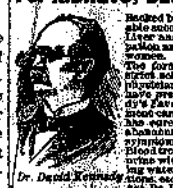
You dear girl, what I have done for you is but little, the noble character you possess is Gods gift. I have only aided a little in developing it; but tell me Emmagean do you love this Professor Lindsey and does he want to marry you?"

"Yes, Miss Margret, he does want to marry me and I feel it is my duty to devote my life to helping him in this great work he is carrying on, that of educating my people."

"Emmagean unless you have objection I shall send for your mother and carefully explain to her that it is not only right but her duty to consent to your becoming the wife of Professor Lindsey; would you like to have me?"

"Yes, Miss Margret, I suppose it's as well to have it settled now as ever; but dear Miss Margret you will I hope be considerate with dear old mother; you know how much she loves me and what a life of hardship and privations she has gone through; and now to have me leave her I know seems an additional hardship that ought not to be placed upon her."

"Emmagean, I will hope to show her the advantage it will be to you in such a light that she will not only be willing but happy to consent to your marriage."



"How about your father, would you like to have me talk with him on the subject?"

"Dear old father, no I will go straight to him myself and if I cannot convince him it is best for me to marry Professor Lindsey then I will give it up. No his care and devotion to me shall never be forgotten or a wish disregarded."

"Very well, then I will send for your mother and talk the matter over with her."

TUBERCULOSIS

The Fight Against Consumption All Around the World.

Associations for the prevention of tuberculosis have been formed in Cuba, Porto Rico and Trinidad. In Cuba there are over 40,000 deaths from tuberculosis every year, and the death rate from this disease is nearly three times as high as in the United States. In Porto Rico there are over 6,000 deaths every year out of 1,000,000 inhabitants, in Trindad, the death rate from tuberculosis in Port-of-Spain, the only place where figures are available, was 47.5 per 1000 in 1909, nearly three times the rate in New York city. Conditions in the other islands of the West Indies, where no active campaign against tuberculosis has been undertaken, are even worse. The chief reason for this high mortality is found in the unsanitary, dark and poorly ventilated houses of the natives of the islands.

In Denmark, the campaign against tuberculosis has been carried on systematically since 1895. The reporting of living cases of tuberculosis in Denmark has been more successful than in almost any other country of the world. The death rate from pulmonary tuberculosis has fallen from 19.32 to 13.33 per 10,000 from 1895 to 1908. There is now one sanitarium for every 1244 inhabitants and every tuberculosis patient is assured of treatment at a cost within reach of anyone. The State pays three-fourths of the expense of treatment and the patient or his community the remaining fourth.

The Italian government, on account of the number of tuberculosis cases among the Italian emigrants sent back from America, has appointed boards of examiners in the seaports, whose duty it is to report the arrival of tuberculous persons. These are then kept under observation in those places where they settle, to prevent further spread of the disease. The erection of new sanatoria and other tuberculosis institutions is being urged in Italy, and the number of beds for consumptives has been considerably increased in different places.

Consumptives in Syria are treated today much in the same way as the lepers have been for the last 200 years. Tuberculosis is a comparatively recent disease among the Arabs and Syrians, but so rapidly has it spread that the natives are in great fear of it. Consequently when a member of a family is known to have the disease, he is frequently cast out and compelled to die of exposure and want. A small hospital for consumptives has been opened at Beyrout under the direction of Dr. Mary E. Eddy.

The Anti-Tuberculosis movement was started in Hungary in 1894, and in 1898 there were five institutions for the treatment of consumption. Today the campaign is encouraged and financed by the government, and over 200 different agencies are engaged in the fight. A permanent tuberculosis museum has been established at Budapest and a carefully conducted campaign of education is being carried on.

According to a recent report by Dr. Conrad Biesalski, of Berlin, there are 75,000 cripples in the German Empire out of a population of 60,500,000 Over 50,000 of the cripples are in need of proper treatment. Dr. Biesalski states that in 15 per cent. of the cripples examined their deformity was due to tuberculosis of the bones and joints, and that there was 10,000 such children in great need of medical treatment. He advocates he establishment of seaside sanatoria for the latter class of cripples.

Japan is not lagging behind in the fight against tuberculosis. The Japan Health Association has over 200,000 local members and carries on a campaign of lectures in the cities and towns of the country. Tuberculosis is increasing in Japan, due chiefly, Prof. S. Kitasato of Tokyo says, to the rapid development of the factory system of industry, the introduction o modern methods and manners of civilization, and the increasing acuteness of the struggle for existence.

When the International Congress on Tuberculosis meets at Rome next September, representatives of over thirty National and provincial associations organized to fight tuberculosis will be present. Among the associations which will be represented are The United States, Canada, Cuba, Trinidad, England, Wales, Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Russia, Germany, Belgium, Holland, France, Switzerland, Portugal, Italy, Greece, Bulgaria, Hungary, Austria, New Zealand, Japan, Cape Colony, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Newfoundland, Roumania, Uruguay and Venzuela.

Tuberculosis is being fought even in Northern Korea, according to a recent report from Dr. Edwin M. Kan received by the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions. Dr. Kent, who is a medical missionary stationed at Haiju, says that since he established a dispensary at the little hospital in that city, people of the entire community are leaving their doors open at night, for few of the houses have windows. The native attendants at the hospital are now so accustomed to the regular instructions about fresh air that they call this sort of advice "veggy," and at a sign from the doctor will dispense volumes of it to the unsuspecting sufferer. Such has become the hospital's reputation for fresh air advice that a native living in Haiju expressed himself as only waiting for warm weather before going to the hospital. "for," said he, "the doctor will urge me to leave the door open and that is very hard in cold weather."

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS: — STATE OF NEW YORK, Office of the State Commission of Highways, Albany, N. Y.—Pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 30, Laws of 1909, sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at their office, No. 55 Lancaster street, Albany, N. Y., at one o'clock p. m., on Wednesday, the 22nd day of March, 1911, for the improvement of the following highways:

Oswego County

Road No.	Name of Road	Approx. Length
772	Fulton-Hannibal, Part 1	3.67 mi.
825	Fulton-Oswego	4.51 mi.
826	Pulaski-Orwell	5.94 mi.
5082	Mexico-Union Square Part 2	2.92 mi.
5083	Union Square-Pulaski, Part 1	2.61 mi.

Maps, plans, specifications and estimates may be seen and proposal forms obtained at the office of the Commission in Albany, N. Y., and also at the office of Division Engineer, Fred W. Sarr, So. Clinton and West Jefferson streets, Syracuse, N. Y.

The especial attention of bidders is called to "Information for Proposers" on pages 6 and 7 of the specifications.

Proposals for each road must be presented in a separate sealed envelope endorsed on the outside with the name and number of the road for which the proposal is made. Each proposal must be accompanied by a New York draft or certified check payable to the order of the State Commission of Highways for an amount equal to at least five per cent. of the amount of the proposal which such draft or check accompanies.

This draft or check will be held by the Commission until the contract and bond are duly executed.

The successful bidder will be required to give a bond for fifty per cent. of the amount of the contract; such bond to be executed by a Surety Company to be approved by the Commission, or a bond secured by the deposit of collateral securities to be approved by the Commission.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Five Years

of Heart Trouble Cured by Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had pains in my left side, and under my shoulder blade, could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath the least exertion would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. When I had taken six bottles I was cured."

MRS. C. C. GORKEY, Northfield, Va.

If there is fluttering or palpitation it is an indication of a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the heart. It is not necessarily diseased—just weak from over-work. The heart may be weak just the same as the eyes, stomach or other organs. You can make a weak heart strong by taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy. Get a bottle from your druggist, take it according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

PUBLIC MEETING

appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the city authorities and on motion of Supervisor Gayer the Board of Supervisors appointed a committee. This committee consists of Supervisors Hartnett of Fulton, Jackson of Palermo, and Thompson of Redfield. This committee was given power to represent the county in the construction of the bridge.

The question was then asked the Board why it was necessary to push this matter with so seeming great haste. To this their replies were as follows:

Prior to the last assessment and the retiring of certain municipal bonds a few months ago the city could not possibly have raised the money to build the new bridge without violating the State and City Laws, but owing to the increase in the assessments and the retiring of said bonds it was now possible for the city to raise the money under the law; further, a portion of this bridge crosses the State canal and is therefore a just charge against the State and the necessary guarantee had to be secured from the State that it would cooperate with the city or else that portion built by the city would be only an incomplete structure. This matter has been taken up with different State officials, both under the administration prior to January 1st, and the present administration, but only very recently was it possible to take it up with the representatives of the latter.

Mr. John A. Bensel, present State Engineer, and Mr. Chas. E. Treman, Superintendent of Public Works, were in Fulton a short time ago at which time the Board of Public Works met them and were given to understand that they would lay no obstacle in the way of the State's providing a bridge across the new canal which would be in harmony with the remainder of the bridge constructed by the City and County. To have the State build this portion the matter must go before the Legislature and unless rapid action was taken by the Board and the matter voted upon by the citizens there would be no possibility of getting a bill through the Legislature during this session and the work would be delayed at least one year; further, it will take between three and four months from the time the money is authorized before the work could be actually started on the bridge as these months would be necessary for the designer's work, letting the contract and getting the contractors plant in operation; further, the Board stated that it was in sympathy with the citizens of the city in opposing, so far as they could, the crossing of the lower bridge by the trolley company as they believed it would practically ruin this bridge for animal traffic. They had conferred with the City Attorney in regard to the matter and learned that the franchise held by the said trolley company makes it obligatory by this company to maintain transporting facilities between the D. L. & W. depot and the east side, and further, that this company shall bear its share in the necessary repairs or expense incidental to keeping the Broadway bridge in such condition that they can operate over it.

The City Attorney gives it as his opinion that this completely covers the building of the new bridge as well as the repairs of the old, provided the new bridge is found to be a necessity. If the trolley company refuses to pay their portion of any such just expenditure, they forfeit their franchise rights within the city. As your Chamber is aware, the situation of the lower bridge is critical and it would be a deplorable situation to have the lower bridge cut up with a trolley track with no other bridge across our river excepting the one now at Broadway. The Board therefore felt that this matter should be pushed forward at once, that the trolley company should be compelled to pay its share of the upper bridge and that this bridge should be made wide enough to properly accommodate both car and animal haulage, and they further believed that this matter had a bearing upon the lower bridge and required immediate action.

Your committee then inquired as to the seeming secrecy in regard to the negotiations pending for this new bridge and what, if anything definite, had been done in regard to securing estimates and plans. They were told by the Board that it, The Board, did not consider it wise to have publicly discussed all of the reasons which are given above until such time as they were able to act and your committee concurs with them on this point. They further stated that they had received estimates upon a steel structure and also upon a concrete-steel structure. The former to be a steel truss bridge and the latter a re-inforced concrete arch bridge. The estimate for the former was made by Mr. Stowell, who had formerly reported upon the safety of the present bridge, and the latter was made by the Concrete Steel Engineering Company of New York city, a firm which makes a specialty of building this kind of work and one which has built many important re-inforced concrete structures similar in type to a bridge across the Oswego River.

Mr. Stowell also made a estimate on a concrete bridge but as it was so much in excess of that of the firm which makes a specialty of this class of work your committee did not consider it necessary to go into it. The estimate made by Mr. Stowell for the steel bridge was as follows:

A 20 foot roadway and two 7-foot sidewalks $130,000.00
A 30 foot roadway and two 7-foot sidewalks 176,000.00

Neither of these estimates includes the span to be built by the State.

The Concrete Steel Company's estimate for a re-inforced concrete bridge was as follows:

A 24 foot roadway and two 7-foot sidewalks $137,000.00
A 34 foot roadway and two 7-foot sidewalks 170,000.00

This estimate for both widths includes the span to be built by the State.

You will notice, gentlemen, that the estimate for the concrete bridge is $6,000.00 less than that for the steel bridge; that the concrete bridge is 4 feet wider than the steel bridge and also that there should be deducted from this price for the concrete bridge an amount proportional to that part of the bridge which will be built by the State. From the best information obtainable at the present time, this amount will not be less than $20,000.00, nor more than $34,000.00. Assuming that the State should have to pay only the smaller amount, the concrete steel bridge would cost $26,000.00 less to the city, county and the trolley company than would the steel structure.

You must bear in mind also, that these two estimates were made by men expert in their particular lines and it may be well to add here that the estimates made by the steel expert for the concrete bridge was about $30,000.00 more than that for the steel bridge, and further, that the concrete people are on record that their services will not cost the city a penny unless the bridge is let within the estimated price given above.

Your committee then called the Board's attention to the fact that many people were asking what amount of damage would be asked by the American Woolen Company and the Oswego Falls Pulp & Paper Company because of the construction of this bridge as contemplated.

In reply to this the Board had the City Clerk read the following letters:

American Woolen Company,
Boston, Mass.,
January 10, 1911.

William MacNamara, Esq., City Clerk,
Fulton, N. Y.,

Dear Sir: Replying to your letter of December 20th in regard to the probable construction of a new bridge over the Oswego River, we have given our Mr. John W. Stevenson, Agent of the Fulton Mills, authority to speak for the Company in regard to the elevation of the west end of the proposed bridge and anything he may do in regard to this will be satisfactory to us.

Very truly yours,
Wm. Wood,
President.

American Woolen Company,
Fulton, N. Y.,
February 23, 1911.

Hon. Joseph Conners,
Fulton, N. Y.,

Dear Sir: Replying to your letter of recent date in the matter of construction of proposed bridge across the Oswego River at Broadway, and adjacent to our plant and the necessity of a change of grade in the construction of the bridge, I beg to advise you that the American Woolen Company in the event of change of grade being necessary will make no claims for damage thereof. I am writing this letter in accordance with the authority conferred upon me under recent date, and in accord with the advice that you had from the President (Mr. William Wood) of the American Woolen Company.

Very truly yours,
American Woolen Company,
John W. Stevenson, Agent.

February 25, 1911.

Jos. H. Conners, Mayor,
Fulton, N. Y.,

Dear Sir: Replying to your inquiry would say that in case the tax payers at the election held next Thursday authorize the building of a new river bridge at Broadway, we shall make no claim on account of the change of grade on proposed bridge and street.

Yours truly,
Oswego Falls Pulp & Paper Co.,
H. L. Paddock, Pres.

The Board further stated that they had made a demand upon the Syracuse, Lake Shore & Northern Railroad to the effect that they pay $33,000.00 toward the expense of a new bridge at Broadway, and their reply is as follows:

Syracuse Lake Shore & Northern Railroad, Syracuse, N. Y.,
February 22, 1911.

G. M. Fanning, Esq.,
Fulton, N. Y.,

Dear Sir: Your recent favor without date at hand and the contents noted. In the matter of the proposed bridge at Broadway we of course would be glad to see it built of sufficient strength to carry our road, provided it is desired to operate on the west side of the river. That line, however, has always been operated at a loss and the company could not consider a subscription towards the cost of a new bridge anywhere near the amount which your letter suggests. As a matter of fact, in the city of Oswego where the present bridge on the principal street is about to be reconstructed, our company was asked to contribute a sum less than $12,000.00 for the purpose of strengthening that bridge to carry our cars on a double track road, the $12,000.00 including all the cost of the new track, laid and paved. As certainly that bridge is a much longer one than the one to be built in Fulton, you can see how out of proportion to any proposition which we could consider your estimate is.

Yours very truly,
C. D. Beebe.

Sewer Construction and Water Main Reconstruction

The Board of Public Works was further questioned in regard to the necessity at this time for money for sewer and water main construction. Their replies embodied the following:

The watermain construction is a reconstruction of the pipe line carrying water from the two springs on the old Keller farm, now the Elmer E. Taylor farm, to a spring a short distance from the pump house; this latter spring being connected to the pump house by an extension of this main. The part to be constructed is that portion which extends from a point opposite Limbeck's house to the spring near Taylor's barn. The present pipe line at this point is constructed of vitrified pipe, which even now receives a small amount of contamination from the river.

When the Barge Canal in Fulton is completed the upper dam will be raised five (5) feet and this has made it necessary for the State to raise the tow-path from the gas plant to Limbeck's house at which point this raised tow-path will join the raised highway from Limbeck's to Taylor's. The highway is not to be moved from its present location between Limbeck's and Taylor's house but is to be raised from two to seven (2 to 7) feet. The present pipe line in the locality spoken of now crosses the highway twice; several hundred feet of it is west of the highway and close to the river. When the dam is raised this portion will be under a greater hydraulic pressure than it now is and consequently there will be a greater leakage of river water into the pipe line; also, there are several hundred feet of this pipe line which will be covered about six (6) feet deeper with earth in the highway.

If the city of Fulton is to retain its pure water supply which is not only of vital importance to the city, but it is also the city's pride, this pipe line must be moved east of the road, and although the State will be liable for part of all of the expense of this removal and rebuilding, nevertheless, the money cannot be secured from the State at this time, owing to the laws governing the expenditure of State monies, but the work should be done and this Board believes that it is absolutely necessary that this pipe line be relaid this coming Summer.

The sewers needed are on both the west and east side of the river; that on the westerly side, it is estimated, will cost somewhat more than that needed on the easterly. The work on the west side is really only a continuation of previous work and although the law demands that the money for this work be budgetted as a new appropriation, nevertheless it is a continuing appropriation. The sewers to be built on the west side are laterals needed for connecting the houses to the trunk sewer which was built there last summer. The work on the east side is, first, the sewer which formerly existed along the old tow-path, a portion of which has been destroyed in the Barge Canal construction.

This sewer takes all the sewage from that portion of the city south of State street and is now being discharged into the canal. This discharge into the public waters must be stopped at the earliest time or the city will be liable under the present laws.

2nd. There is also a small amount of sewer necessary to connect the Fay street district with the present sewer in order that this district, which has been one of the most rapidly growing portions of the city, might be properly cared for.

3rd. There is also a small amount to be built in the sixth ward for furnishing house connections to the present system in that district.

After months of careful study on this sewer question and the rebuilding of the water main, this Board can see no alternative but to ask the taxpayers to provide the money at once for this work. From every point of view the work is necessary and of immediate want.

In view of the foregoing facts your committee respectfully submits this report with the recommendation that the Chamber indorse the proposition, that the work contemplated is necessary and should be done at the earliest possible time.

Signed,
Geo. E. True, Chairman.
William Hunter,
Thos. H. Marvin,
N. H. Haviland,
F. J. Switzer,
Theron M. Ripley, Sec'y.

N. L. Whitaker of the Board of Works suggested that the president appoint a committee from the Chamtees in reference to the letting of ber to act with the bridge committee on the bridge contract, providing that on Thursday the taxpayers decided to have the bridge built. S. B. Mead, T. M. Ripley and F. J. Switzer were named.

Mr. Meuser of the Steel Concrete Engineering Company of New York, the company making the plans for the proposed bridge, answered many questions in regard to bridges of this type and gave a brief discourse on the subject.

The discussion was entered into by a large number of those present, the sentiment being largely favorable to authorizing the expenditure and a resolution to this effect was adopted.

Among those who participated in the discussion were President Penfield, of the Chamber of Commerce; Resident Engineer Ripley, N. L. Whitaker, G. B. Fairman, E. P. Cole, Edward Waugh, Charles Case, F. E. Bache, G. B. Denel, F. A. Emerick, City Engineer Hackett, City Attorney Fanning, Wm. Meuser of Albany; H. D. Hubbard, T. H. Webb, and others.

Agent John W. Stevenson of the American Woolen company, made the generous offer to illuminate the proposed new bridge, if a reality, with electricity generated by the company's private plant and without expense to the city, providing the city would place lamps upon the structure for the purpose. This would make the structure more than ever a matter of pride to the city and a delightful thoroughfare.

The new bridge, as proposed, would bring into closer touch the two sides of the river and thus make more nearly identical their several interests.

An Old Story?

It is getting to be an old story to tell you that there is no interest due and unpaid on any mortgage held by this bank, but some old stories are good stories.

This shows the healthy condition of our principal asset.

OSWEGO'S NEW BANK BUILDING OPENED SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon the magnificent new First National Bank in Oswego was thrown open to the public for inspection and it is estimated that over 8,000 people from all sections of Oswego county passed through the doors and inspected the most perfect bank building in Oswego county. In fact several bank officials from nearby cities were among the admiring spectators of the newest to be found in modern banking.

The safe, which is a monster, was installed by the Remington-Sherman Company of New York. The doors and casings alone weigh 21 1-2 tons.

The office of the President on the right on entering is large, open and attractive. The furnishings of the bank are handsome and every provision has been made for the comfort of patrons. The officers are accessible to the customers and everything is complete even to a special room and other conveniences for woman patrons. The building is absolutely fire-proof in every particular.

The building fronts on West First street and covers thirty two feet and extends along West Bridge street sixty-six feet.

Architecturally the building has few equals anywhere. Its style is of the classic Renaissance and its two stories coalesce so perfectly that it stands out prominently. Polished granite and white marble form the facings of the front and side walls. An elaborate massive cornice and balustrade surmounts the front and north side of the building, and handsomely wrought metal panels are used in the front and side window arches.

On the first floor is the spacious home of the bank and on the same floor is the entrance to the offices above.

The banking room, including the president's room, cashier's office, etc., is 29 x 60 feet and in that space are worked out strikingly beautiful effects.

The room is finished in San Domingo mahogany, plain, carved and embellished, a marvel of the cabinet maker's art. Sienna marble forms the wainscotting and counters, Italia and Tennessee marbles the floor, and, to crown the effect of the harmonious settings, is a cast bronze screen was especially designed for this bank.

NEW BRIDGE AND OTHER PROPOSITIONS CARRIED

Taxpayers Vote Liberal Appropriations For Public Improvements---Most Gratifying to Present City Governors

The size of the majority in favor of an appropriation of $125,000 for public improvements as recorded at the special election held on Thursday last, was a surprise to even the most optimistic believer in the ultimate triumph of progressiveness at the polls that day. A vote of practically five to one in favor of the expenditure was a majority to exceed their wildest hopes.

As a result of the affirmative decision of the tax payers Fulton will become the possessor of a magnificent new, street wide, steel reinforced concrete bridge; the elimination of factory hill; the power to compel the trolley company to harken to reason and to perhaps gain for the west side some local service and prevent the taking over of the lower bridge for trolley purposes. The sewer systems on both sides of the river will be completed and the repiping of the water system where the river water might otherwise cause contamination, will be carried forth.

The vote upon the different propositions in the different wards was as follows:

	Bridge		Sewer		Water
	Yes	No.	Yes	No	Yes	No
First	114	23	115	21	89	43
Second	132	4	166	13	124	33
Third	92	23	73	37	68	42
Fourth	91	12	78	20	73	25
Fifth	113	28	94	45	86	49
Sixth	73	36	61	34	53	48
Totals	665	126	587	178	503	245

The offer of Agent John W. Stevenson of the American Woolen company to light the bridge when completed, was most generous and has been highly commended by the people. It will make the bridge one of the beauty spots of Fulton and available and secure at all hours of the day and night without expense to the municipality.

Assemblyman T. C. Sweet was in Fulton on Saturday conferring with the Board of Public Works relative to the bill providing for an appropriation from the State for the construction of a bridge over the canal to connect with the new bridge, which Mr. Sweet will introduce into the assembly at once and use his best endeavor to have speedily enacted into law.

FRANCHISE SELLS THURSDAY NIGHT

The Common Council will meet on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, to receive bids on the electric franchise recently granted by them. It is not at all likely that there will be the slightest opposition to the sale of the franchise on the part of the local company, nor is it expected that there will be more than one bid offered, that of the Niagara company.

Neither does the Times believe that when the matter is laid before the Public Service Commission that the foreign company will be permitted to do business in Fulton.

MUST SPEAK STANDING ON ONE LEG

Jefferson County Society Adopts Novel Plan

New York, March 2.—No more does "we have with us tonight" strike terror to Gotham banqueter's heart, for the Jefferson County Society has evolved a device preventative of long or serious dinner speeches. A speaker may talk only so long as he can stand on one leg.

The Jeffersonians worked the plan at their annual dinner last night with great success.

COMPANY FORMED TO DEVELOP THE SALMON RIVER

Pulaski, March 6.—It was learned here today that a new corporation known as the Salmon River Land company has been formed to harness the power of the Salmon River. This company is said to be a rival of the Oswego County Light and Power company promoted by Charles A. Lux and Attorney W. P. Gannon.

The new company is said to be projected by Ferdinand C. Schaefer of Rochester, of Schaefer Brothers, real estate agents and manufacturers of concrete blocks. Charles A. Lux, it is said, is not behind this new scheme nor is the Beebe Syndicate.

Options have been secured along the Salmon river between Pulaski and Pineville, it is said. George W. Gibbs has sold his farm on the Centerville road about five miles from Pulaski to the Salmon River company for $6,000. The company plans, it is said, to proceed with the development work at once. Power will be provided for a proposed new trolley line and for manufacturing purposes.

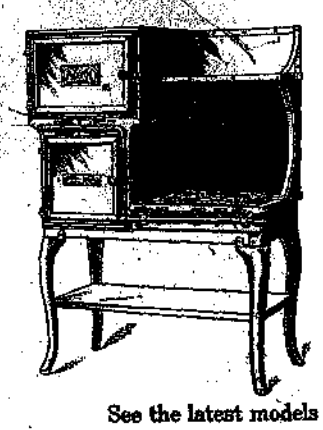
in that ever popular corset==W. B.

In these days of keen competition, in which the proud American woman's highest ambitions are realized through absolutely faultless dress, there constantly arises that ever perplexing problem of choosing the proper CORSET to mould her figure into one of beauty and distinction. Statistics carefully compiled, after years of study prove absolutely and with indisputable accuracy that there is at the present time, MORE FREEDOM, MORE HEALTH-GIVING ADVANTAGES, more stability and easy grace, (thus giving a model figure with the least amount of sacrifice to ones health) in W. B. CORSETS than can possibly be derived from other sources.



THE MERE FACT that the endorsers and advocates of these splendid CORSETS are the Leading Professors of our universities, and the Prominent Designers of Fashion is conclusive evidence of their ability to hold as they do today, the pinnacle of fame throughout this and foreign countries. THE POLICY OF THIS PROGRESSIVE STORE is to supply its patrons with a Corset that has behind it true merit, true worth, exclusiveness in style combined with the greatest amount of durability. We find in referring to our records of the past year that not only have our customers for W. B. CORSETS shown an increase of 65 per cent. over the previous year, but that the demand is steadily increasing, thus giving you conclusive proof of the POPULARITY OF W. B. CORSETS IN FULTON. Our Spring shipment is now in, showing all the newest 1911 models in Coutil and Batiste, in all sizes designed for the slender, medium and well developed figure. To those who are not so well acquainted with W. B. CORSETS we cannot too strongly impress upon you their merits, perfect-fitting and durability. To you, madam, who are having trouble in finding a corset to give you the satisfaction you so earnestly desire, we would urge you to give us the opportunity of fitting you.

THE WEEK

The general trend during the week has been toward improvement. The railway rate finding and the prospect of an extra session of Congress have not prevented further progress toward the re-establishment of business confidence and activity. This progressive movement is most conspicuous in the iron and steel trade, which has experienced no setback by reason of any cancellations of orders on account of the rate decision, while the outlook continues favorable. In the dry goods trade the movement is less pronounced owing to the indisposition to anticipate future needs largely. The shoe trade is dull, but hides are more active. Striking evidence of financial confidence is given in the marketing of important loans both abroad and at home. More attention is now being paid to the unparalleled acreage devoted to standard crops, which is the first requisite for large yields. Although the January statements of some of the railroad systems were less favorable than was expected, railroad gross earnings as a whole durig three weeks of February increased 1.4 per cent. Bank clearings for the entire month of February were 6.9 per cent. less than in 1910, but 8.5 per cent. better than in 1909. The best gains were in the South Atlantic and Southern States. The February failure exhibit shows improvement, especially in the manufacturing and financial classes, with aggregate defaulted liabilities much less than a year ago. During the past week bank clearings decreased 2.9 per cent. compared with 1910 and gained 3.5 pre cent. over 1909, outside of New York, although in New York there were declines of 8.5 and 6.8 per cent., respectively. Foreign commerce at New York during the latest week aggregated $30,738,045 as against $36,522,608 a year ago, the excess of imports being, however, only $4,453,975, as compared with $11,703,978 in 1910 and $10,602,833 in 1909.

Unchecked progress appears in the iron and steel trade, with no cancellations of railroad orders resulting from the recent decision regarding freight rates. The leading producer is steadily expanding its blast furnace operations, now having fully 65 per cent. of capacity active, and the desired reduction in pig iron stocks is being accomplished although on a moderate scale. The same interest did an excellent export business last month and the record of new orders exceeded the January rate, while shipments likewise increased. A broader buying movement has developed in Bessemer iron at Pittsburg and part of the 20,000 tons reported sold are for delivery in the third quarter, on which as high as $15.25 was paid. The outlook in the rail division continues promising, with a contract for 150,000 tons expected in the near future, and foreign interests are also negotiating for a considerable tonnage. Activity in wire products is sustained, and it is believed that an advance of $1 per ton will shortly be announced, while higher prices are also looked for on merchant pipe.

Operations in the primary cotton goods markets and in the jobbing houses are still of a very conservative character and a short house season is foreshadowed by the falling off in the attendance of buyers. But with this conservatism the small orders given, and frequently repeated, are wanted for prompt shipment, which indicates that stocks on merchants' shelves are low. Fall River sold 90,000 pieces of print cloths last week. The export shipments of cotton goods to date are substantially ahead of a year ago. Mills are curtailing in cotton and woolen and worsted sections, but ginghams mills continue in full operation, and printers of staple and fine fancy wash fabrics are quite busy. There was little or no response to higher cotton in the piece goods markets, while cotton yarn prices actually fell off in the face of advancing raw material.

Business in shoes continues below normal for this season of the year and many factories are only partially employed. Buyers are holding off for lower prices, as a rule, although some of them are beginning to display more interest and might operate quite liberally on slight concessions in prices Domestic hides are again active, especially packer stock, and sales have been made of about 100,000 at full prices, considering the quality of the takeoff, and advances of 1-2c. have been secured in some instances for April salting hides ahead. Country hides are firm, but less active than packers, and all varieties of foreign hides are steady to strong. The leather market is still disturbed by the discount terms which were believed to hav been settled, and many entertain the opinion that the trade will finally go back to the old terms.

Purely speculative influences have controlled the cotton market, prices recovering sharply from the recent decline on aggressive short covering and renewed activity by bullish interests. General supply and demand conditions show no material change and the new crop months were practically neglected, as everything points to a record-breaking planting this Spring. New low levels for wheat were established almost daily, although the customary profit taking caused irregular fluctuations. Both the domestic and foreign crop outlook continues highly encouraging, while world's visible stocks are accumulating at a steady pace. Western receipts of 1,861,981 bushels compared with 4,396,783 in the same week last year, and exports from all ports of the United States, flour included, were 2,370,996 bushels, against only 637,873 in 1910. Corn follows much the smaller than the 4,211,059 reported a year ago, but Atlantic coast exports of 2,021,093 bushels again exceeded the 799,323 sent abroad in 1910.—Dun's Review, March 4, 1911.

SOUTH GRANBY

(Too late for last week.)

The dressmaking class at Fulton, with Mrs. Mitchell, the teacher, were guests at the home of Miss Lottie Hannum last Thursday evening. She had been one of the class, and with her father met them at the train taking them to their home nearly three miles distant. They were accompanied by Mr. Hannum's sister, Mrs. Ina Thomson. They took the 9:45 train back and were a merry company, Miss Lottie going back to Fulton with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Paine and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stebbins, who went to Ithaca to Farmer's week, returned home last Friday.

Mr. Earnest Luke will move into the town of Van Buren.

Mr. Harry Covill has moved into the Powers house and will work for Mrs. Whitcomb.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. H. Covill, a daughter, on Saturday.

Mr. Dan Stewart will move into the Charles Whitcomb house and will work Mrs. Whitcomb's farm the coming year.

Fred Andrews will move into Earl Whipple's house and work his place the coming year.

Mrs. Roma Degroff is ill. Dr. Schlappi attends her.

Mrs. John Dickenson is ill and Dr. Hamel attends her.

Mrs. Alice Cook is ill and Dr. Youngs attends her.

Mr. Elmer Fisher came home Friday night ill, but is better.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher visited Warren Clough Sunday; he is in poor health.

Mr. Charles Cook took a load of 21, besides a good many of the neighbors, to make a visit to Frank Cook, who is keeping bachelors hall near Jacksonville; they carried their supper and had a jolly time, the young people dancing and the older ones visiting.

Mr. Verner Shattuck and family visited at Fred Paines' Sunday.

IMPROVEMENTS AT JAIL FARM

The farm connected with the county jail at Oswego contains over 100 acres and with the coming of Spring it is to be put in excellent shape to produce crops during the Summer months. Last week Supervisors Potter and Crimmins inspected the property and they have decided that from a practical standpoint less stone breaking and more farming will be as beneficial to the prisoners and more profitable to the county. Supervisor Potter said in part after his visit:

"There is a large amount of brush on the back end of the farm that we are now clearing up. There is very little wood in it, but it will make good pasture land, and Superintendent Chiler believes that he can fence off and plow three or four acres of the same. The soil is heavy and black, and should make an excellent truck farm. The members of the committee thought that it would be better to cut off the brush now while the ice is on the ground, and thus give the sun and wind an opportunity to dry the land up early.

"We discovered a spring of fine water in the heart of this tract, which should become very valuable. We don't know how much there is of it, but it looks to me as if it would be valuable for supplying the jail with a potable water supply. It is soft and clear and pure for the reason that there is nothing to pollute the source of supply. By the expending of a very little money the spring could be developed and piped to the jail, where the pumps could lift it to the tanks in the building. The overflow, it is thought, would be sufficient for the cattle.

"We are not going to give as much attention to the work of stone breaking as has been given in the past. The work accomplished in this line is without commercial value and is simply a means to keep the men at work. The giving of more attention to the improving of the farm and developing the resources of the same will be the policy of the present committee. We recognize that the quicker the farm is developed and under a high state of cultivation that the quicker it will be at least self-sustaining and possibly return a revenue to the public. I think this can be done and so does Mr. Chiler, the superintendent, who has the farm in excellent shape. We can find nothing to complain of in that respect."

ANNUAL MEETING

Notice is hereby given that the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of the Volney Paper Company of Fulton, N. Y., will be held at the office of the company on Monday, March 13, 1911, at 11 o'clock a. m., for the election of directors and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

Dated Fulton, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1911.

TAKES A SHOT AT PITTS

Fred W. Barnado, of Oneida County, Wants to do His Own Collecting

Fred W. Barnado, Chairman of the Oneida County Prohibition Committee has oiled his guns and is training them on State Chairman Pitts again. Some time ago he shot a few hot ones about Mr. Pitts giving him the "double cross" in refusing to move State headquarters from Oswego to Utica. Mr. Barnado says that State Treasurer Hartman is now "butting into" Oneida county making another appeal for funds. Accompanying the letter is a circular entitled: "The Golden opportunity for the Prohibition Party in the Empire State." Mr. Barnado thinks there ought to be less of this "golden" stuff, and he doesn't like the way the circular covers State Chairman Pitts with a halo of glory. He says he has no objection to the State Committee getting funds, but he thinks they ought to be secured by assessing the County Committees rather than have both go at the people and beg. He has so notified Mr. Pitts.—Palladium.

LIMOGES CHINA TO BE ASSESSED

Washington.—The agreement which the Treasury Department has had since 1908 with the Limoges, France, Chamber of Commerce, providing the basis for customs duties on imports of chinaware from Limoges, will be abrogated on May 1. After that date duties on Limoges china will be assessed by appraisers at ports of the United States in the same manner as other imports are.

LARGE ORDER FOR BIBLES

One hundred thousand Bibles have just been ordered from publishers by the Gideons, the Christian Commercial Travellers' Association, to be placed in the guest rooms of hotels all over the country. Already there are some towns in the Middle West where each hotel room in town has it Gideon Bible. The biggest shipment will be 25,000 to San Francisco, where they will be distributed with parades and singing.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by all druggists.

BUNDYS CROSSING

(Too late for last week.)

Mrs. Viola Brown, who has been confined to her room for the past six months, is improving so rapidly as to be out again.

Maxon, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Wray Frost, has been quite ill, but is reported better.

A "sewing bee" was held for Libbie Dodge last Thursday at her home; she has been very ill for two months but is convalescent.

Mrs. Jesse Allouse, who is ill at A. M. Althouse's, improves so slowly that it is scarcely noticable.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Coe visited at Scriba Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Stewart entertained guests from Richland last week.

Mrs. Claude Eckard and little daughter Frances, spent the afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. B. Grommon on Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Grommon is still caring for Mary Coe, who broke her arm five weeks ago.

Miss Eddy spent last week in Syracuse.

Mrs. Jennie Burchin has returned from Moravia, where she has been visiting relatives for the past ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Wales Briggs visited Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Grommon Sunday afternoon.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

PARCELS POST'S GROWTH BIG

Volume of Business in 1911 So Far Is Unprecedented

The growth of the foreign parcels post mail received at New York is set forth in statistics made public by George W. Wanamaker, Appraiser of the Port, showing that during the five calendar years from 1906 to 1910, the number of packages rose from 90,297 in 1906 to 199,410 in 1910.

The present year, it is stated, has begun with an unprecedented volume of business. The January importations aggregated 31,622. Should the same rate of increase be maintained throughout the remainder of the year, the total of 1911 would approximate 270,464. Last month's importations, compared with those of the corresponding month in 1906, show a gain of 315 per cent.

The first parcels post convention was negotiated with Germany about ten years ago. Since that time postal arrangements of this character have been entered into with England, Italy, France and other countries, until at the present time the United States has parcels post agreements with thirty-eight countries. It was believed originally that the foreign parcels post would be utilized almost entirely by individuals, but this has not proved to be the case. Mercantile houses were quick to avail themselves of the low rates provided under the postal treaties, and have been shipping thousands of packages annually which formerly were handled by the express companies doing an international business.

The weight of the package is limited to eleven pounds, except from France, in which case the limit is four pounds six ounces. The value of the contents of a package may not exceed $80, except packages from France, which are restricted to a value of $50. Germany and England lead in the number of packages sent to this country.

DEY BROS. & CO. INCREASE CAPITAL

Certificate Altered So Holders of Common Stock Will Control Directors

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Dey Brothers & Company held Tuesday afternoon it was voted to increase the capital stock from $700,000 consisting of 7,000 shares at the par value of $100 a share, to $1,000,000, consisting of 10,000 shares at the par value of $100 a share.

At a special meeting held in the morning an affirmative vote was taken upon the proposition to alter the company's certificate of incorporation The changes which will be made with the sanction of the Board of Directors include a clause stating that the preferred stock of the company shall be entitled to dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, prior to the payment of any dividends on the common stock, but holders of the preferred stock will not be entitled to a vote at any meeting of the stockholders except as required statue, and shall not be entitled to participate in the management of the corporation.

This will give the holders of the common stock the exclusive right to vote at any meeting for the election of directors or when any action is taken concerning the management of the company in addition to the rights now exercised under the certificate of incorporation.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. UNALLOYED CHEEK

Washington, D. C.—First honors for brazenness were awarded to a citizen of Denver by Postmaster General Hitchcock, who declared in conferring the title, that "for unalloyed gall this person is in a class by himself." The title was won by the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Postmaster General—I live in Denver and I am informed that the only postal savings bank in Colorado is in Leadville. Knowing that you want to make a go of these banks I make the following proposition: I will deposit $500 in your bank at Leadville if you will pay my expenses to and from that city."

The proposition was rejected and the writers's name withheld.

NOT A WORD OF SCANDAL

marred the call of a neighbor on Mrs. W. P. Spangh, of Manville, Wyo. who said: "she told me Dr. King's New Life Pills had cured her of obstinate kidney trouble, and made her feel like a new woman." Easy, but sure remedy for stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Only 25c. at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

MAY DIVIDE THE DISTRICT

A rumor is in circulation that the present Northern district of New York of the Federal Government is to be divided into two districts.

It is proposed to divide the district and create a new one, centrally located, with chambers at Norwich, clerk's office at Utica, and stated trials at Syracuse, comprising the following counties: Cayuga, Tompkins, Tioga, Broome, Cortland, Onondaga, Oswego, Jefferson, St. Lawrence, Herkimer, Lewis, Madison, Delaware, Chenango and Oneida. The other district would consist of those counties in the extreme northern and eastern part of the State.—Palladium.

A DREADFUL SIGHT

to H. J. Barnum, of Freeville, N. Y., was the fever-sore that had plagued his life for years in spite of many remedies he tried. At last he used Bucklen's Arnica Salve and wrote: "it has entirely healed with scarcely a scar left." Heals burns, boils, eczema, cuts, bruises, swellings, corns and piles like magic. Only 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

MUST COOK PORK WELL

Warning was sent out by the Department of Agriculture urging the people of the United States not to eat pork whether it has been inspected by Federal, State or municipal authorities until after it had been properly cooked, as "an average of one or two per cent. of the hogs slaughtered in the United States are inflicted with parasite or flesh worms."

MR. MOTT IN WATERTOWN

The Watertown Standard Tells Him What is Expected of Him.

The Watertown Standard editorially says:

"Congressman-elect Luther W. Mott will visit Watertown tomorrow to get in touch with his constituents. He plans to make a visit once a month that he may learn the needs of his district. The citizens of Jefferson and Lewis counties will welcome Mr. Mott. They will point out to him the success of his friend and predecessor Congressman Charles L. Knapp and will advise him to emulate in loyalty to his constituents and in activity for the interests of his district the career of the present Congressman.

"Mr. Mott will discover, if he examines the situation, that agriculture is the dominant industry in his district—Jefferson, Lewis and Oswego. The farmers will expect him to champion their cause. In volume of business, expressed in dollars and cents, the new Congressman will readily discover that the paper industry leads all manufacturing lines in his district. The manufacturers and employes of this enterprise will expect the Congressman to fight for their interests.

"Mr. Mott will receive solid information tomorrow, sound advice and Watertown hospitality."

SOME SAMPLES OF SPELLING

A Jersey City druggist is making a collection of queer orders he receives from people who send children to the store for things. Here are a few samples of them:

"This child is my little girl. I sent you five cents to buy some sitless powders for a groan up adult who is sike."

Another read:

"Dear Doctor, ples give barer five sense worse of Auntie Toxyne for to gargle babi's throte and obleage."

An anxious mother writes:

"You will pleas give the leetle boi five centt worth of epcap for to throw up in a five months old babe. N. B.—The babe has sore stummick."

This one puzzled the druggist:

"I have a cute pain in my child's diagram. Please give my son something to release it."

Another anxious mother wrote:

"My little babey has eat up its father's parish plaather. Send an antedote quick as possible by the enclosed little girl."

This writer was evidently in pain:

"I haf a hot time in my insides and wish I wood like it to be extinguished. What is good for to extinguish it? The enclosed quarter is for the price of the extinguisher. Hurry pleas."

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

DR. MARY WALKER'S BILL

Albany, N. Y.—With the gallantry towards the weaker sex for which Assemblyman Sweet is celebrated, he has introduced, at the special request of Dr. Mary Walker, a bill inserting a new section in the General Construction law providing that any statute which discriminates against women and denies them the privileges accorded to men shall be deemed in conflict with the United States Constitution and shall be construed to confer equal privileges.

FOR DISEASES OF THE SKIN

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barber's itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the aching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

STATE VITAL STATISTICS

During December there were forty deaths in Oswego, seventeen in Fulton, four in th etown of Richland and forty-four in the other towns of the county. There were forty-nine births recorded in Oswego, two in Richland and twenty-six in Fulton. There were four deaths from typhoid reported and one from scarlet fever in Oswego. There were no deaths from epidemic diseases in the other parts of the county.

SALMON RIVER TABLE COMPANY

The Salmon River Table Company, of Pulaski, has just certified to the Secretary of State that its common stock has been changed so that it shall consist of 400 shares, and that 100 shares shall consist of seven per cent, cumulative preferred stock.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all druggists.

Former County Treasurer in a Dispute as to Who Should Pay Bills of Experts

From a note of issue filed with Court Clerk Louis Coulter, placing the case on the calendar for the March term of Supreme Court, it was learned that Fred M. Moore, former County Treasurer, had started an action against former County Treasurer Thomas Moore, who he succeeded in office and with whom he had a break, politically, during the last campaign.

Charles Bulger is attorney for the plaintiff and King & Bentley for the defendant.

The action is said to be for $300.

It is alleged that Thomas Moore requested F. M. Moore to have the books in the office of the County Treasurer examined by local experts. A controversy arose as to who should pay the bill.—Palladium.

FORCED TO LEAVE HOME

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Salamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It's surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup—all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

Each one of the above four lines of figures spells a word. This most interesting puzzle can be solved with a little study, as follows: There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, and we have used figures in spelling the four words instead of letters. Letter A is number 1, B number 2, C number 3, etc., throughout the alphabet. IF YOU CAN SPELL ONE OF THESE FOUR WORDS WE WILL SEND YOU A BEAUTIFUL COLLECTION OF FIVE GOLD EMBOSSED HANDSOMELY COLORED EASTER POST-CARDS. All you have to do is to send with your answer 2 two-cent stamps to cover cost of packing, handling, etc. USE YOUR BRAINS. Try and make out the four words. ACT QUICKLY. Write the four words on a slip of paper, mail it immediately with your name and address and 4 cents in stamps. And you will promptly receive as your reward this EASTER SURPRISE PACKET, which is a handsome assortment of five beautifully colored, embossed Easter post-cards. Act Promptly. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1911.

Our New Congressman

With the closing of the Sixty-first Congress on Saturday noon Hon. Luther Wright Mott of Oswego became the representative of one of the most important congressional districts in the State. While he was still Congressman-elect Mott he had been summoned by President Taft into the public arena as a member of a minority party in the House, to participate in perhaps one of the most important sessions to be held under Mr. Taft's present tenure of office, and to convene on April 4. Of this situation, the Watertown Times of Saturday says in part:

"Mr. Mott begins his career in the minority of congress. We congratulate him that it comes that way; it gives him freedom, relieves him of the responsibilities, and gives him a chance to perfect himself in congressional methods and time to study the policies of government. In the majority they sit down hard on new members and do not allow them to show themselves, and it takes some time to work up to a position of influence. In the minority there is no such restriction; they are glad to have him and will give him full chance to show his ability, so that, when the tide turns, as it probably will two years from now, a man who stands well in the minority of today will be among the leaders of the majority of tomorrow."

One of the first matters that will be brought to Mr. Mott's attention by his constituents in Fulton will be the matter of the proposed new Federal building for this city. While Fulton dallied with her interests, other far-sighted municipalities had forged ahead with their plans until when Fulton was ready to accept an $80,000 building from the government she found herself holding No. 106 in the architects office. In the natural course of events the building will materialize but with Mr. Mott strenuously urging haste, it will materialize earlier, and this Fulton truly believes he may be depended upon to do.

Faithful Service Given

Hon. C. L. Knapp stepped back into private life when Congress closed on Saturday but he is surround where ever he may look throughout his district, by grateful hearts and enduring monuments to his faithful service and his single mindedness only and for his constituency. During his term of office Mr. Knapp has secured appropriations aggregating millions of dollars for his district and every section of the district has been dealt with fairly and without discrimination, the only requisite with Congressman Knapp was that the cause be just, to engage his co-operation.

All that is worth while in political life has come to Mr. Knapp, confidence, respect and honors. In all the attacks made upon men in public life during the past few years he has been very conspicuous in that not one breath of suspicion has ever fallen upon him as a man, a citizen or a legislator. His district has been enriched by his efforts and by his record.

Progressiveness Triumphant at Polls

The carrying of the propositions for which the special election was held on Thursday reflected great credit upon the tax paying part of our population and the Times takes a modest pride in the fact that it was the only local paper outspoken in its advocacy of the project. Numerically the small taxpayers far out numbered the large taxpayers and their public spirited effort for their city should not go unnoticed. The nearly five to one vote in favor of the expenditure was splendid.

The vote too, was one of confidence in the present Board of Public Works, Messrs. J. A. Foster, N. L. Whitaker and John Frawley. No hesitancy was felt at placing the appropriation in their hands. It was certainly a glorious victory.

DEATHS

The death of May, the 2-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Annis of Cincinnatus occurred on Monday at the home of Mrs. Crysler in Fourth Street.

The death of William B. Persse, aged 39, one of the most popular and successful members of the Bacon, Chappel Company, Syracuse, dropped dead as he stepped from the elevator in the store on Wednesday morning. The deceased was one of the chief buyers for the firm and was a cousin of Manager B .D. Persse of the Western Union office, this city.

The death of Cora Stewart, aged 50, occurred on Saturday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Palmer of the west side, after a long period of ill health. The deceased is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Lily Sylvester and Miss Annette Stewart, all of Fulton, and two brothers, Elmer E. Stewart of Fulton and Chester Stewart of Jersey City.

Milo A., aged 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beals of Palermo, died at the Lee Memorial hospital on Friday after a brief illness with spinal meningitis. The remains were taken to the family home from where the funeral services were held on Sunday. Burial was made at North Volney. Beside the parents, a sister, Lillian and a brother, Harrison, all of Palermo, survive.

Mrs. Mabel Clark Jones, aged 35, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Clark of Pulaski, and wife of Prof. C. Edward Jones, prominent in State educational circles, died at the family home in Albany last week after a three days illness with pneumonia. The body was taken to Pulaski for burial in the family plot. The deceased was a friend of Mrs. May Willard of this city and had frequently visited here before her marriage. She leaves three small children.

WANT CHARTED AMENDED

Mayor Conners has received the following self explanatory letter which will be taken under advisement by the charter revision committee and it is expected that it will be favorably reported upon:

The Women's auxiliary has been Memorial hospital ask that the city charter be so amended that women will be eligible to office upon the hospital board. Signed—Mrs. Charles Olmstead, president; Mrs. George C. Webb, vice president; Mrs. D. L. Lipsky, vice president; Eva D. Joy, vice president; Mrs. E. E. Morrill, recording secretary; S. Elizabeth Lee, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George E. True, treasurer."

The Women's auxiliary has been instrumental in raising large sums of money for the hospital; they have taken the keenest interest in all that pertains to its welfare and conduct and it is very safe to say that not a fair minded person in the city would have them denied the privilege they ask.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

The following deeds have been filed in the County Clerk's Office:

Apama I. Conde, Harry L. Conde, and John H. Walrath, as directors of the dissolved "Switz Conde Wool company" to Apama I. Conde, property in the Eighth ward on the river bank, between the river and the canal, Oswego, consideration private.

Milton Switts has sold to W. J. Campbell, 87 acres of land in Palermo consideration private.

Phoebe Betts of Phoenix has sold to Walter M. Dix of Volney, 83 acres of land in Volney, consideration $3,800.

SURROGATE'S COURT

The will of the late James G. Wilson of Hannibal was filed this morning. The estate is valued at $900 real and $200 personal. With the exception of bequests of $5 each to 5 grandchildren, the estate goes to James E. Wilson.

Former Supervisor Horace D. Scoville, of Constantia, candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff, receives $16,750 from the estate of his mother, Amelia D. Robertson, who died in Constantia February 23. Letters of administration on the estate were issued to Mr. Scoville upon his filing a bond of $65,000.

The estimated value of the property is $1,500 real and $32,000 personal. Mr. Scoville receives half the estate and the other half goes to his sister, Elizabeth B. Whiting, of Constantia.

On petition of Eliphalet Gile, administrator of the estate of Frank Gile, filed through Reilly & Sullivan, of Phoenix, Surrogate Miller signed an order permitting the compromise and settlement of an action against the Fulton Light, Heat and Power company for $175. The boy was killed on July 12, 1910.

FUTURE HOME TO BE IN ENGLAND

Hon. N. N. Stranahan and Family To make Home Abroad — Leave Early in April To Regret Of Many Friends

For some time it has been known among the more intimate friends of Hon. and Mrs. N. N. Stranahan that the condition of their health made imperative a removal to a more genial clime than that of northern New York State. Last week it was announced that they had decided to remove to southern England and that they would leave early in April for their new home accompanied by their daughter, Louise. The news, although expected, was received with regret by their large circle of friends throughout this section of the country, but particularly in this city where most of their married life has been spent and where Mr. Stranahan's political triumphs have been matters of personal gratification to practically every resident.

Mr. Stranahan fully intends to retain his citizenship here and may eventually return to Fulton, although his residence abroad will be for several years, or until his own and his wife's health will permit them to reside in this climate without incurring risk.

The strenuous demands of public service, especially the years in which he was Collector of the Port of New York, broke down a constitution never very robust and for several years Mr. Stranahan has fought a weary battle to regain the priceless boon of health. It has been accomplished to a large degree and his friends were urging his return to the political arena, only to find that the price he must pay for the preservation of his own health and that of his wife, was a sojourn in another clime. Following them to their new home and remaining with them while there, will be the hearty good wishes of a large circle of friends for their health and comfort and a safe return to the county of their nativity with years of usefulness and activity still their portion.

STEPHEN BALDWIN SURPRISED

Friday was the 88th natal anniversary of Mr. Stephen R. Baldwin, the oldest member of Hiram Lodge, F. & A. M., ad the members of the lodge and the members of Elizabeth Chapter, O. E. S., planned to give him a little surprise reception and leave with him a token of their good will toward him. A purse containing $35 in gold was made up and the ladies arranged a program and refreshments for the occasion.

Druggist E. A. Putnam was detailed to see to it that the venerable guest of honor did not fail to appear at the Masonic club rooms on the occasion and it was made quite imperative to him that he should be present and assist Mrs. Bellows, Messrs E. T. Jones, C. A. Gilkey, F. W. Snyder and E. A. Putnam to receive upon this informal occasion, Mr. Baldwin never suspecting that the affair was in his honor.

At the conclusion of a musical program luncheon was served, and as the guests were seated Mr. J. C. Murray, as spokesman, presented Mr. Baldwin with the purse. The recipient was so overcome that words failed him for a time, after which he regained his composure and earnestly thanked his friends for their generosity and thoughtfulness. Mr. Baldwin has been a member of the masonic fraternity since 1866.

APPROVE CONGRESSMAN'S METHOD

The Rome Sentinel—Congressman-elect Luther W. Mott of Oswego-Jefferson-Lewis district, is receiving merited commendation for inaugurating a plan whereby he will ascertain the wants of his constituents by going to them, instead of making it necessary of them to seek personal interviews at his home in Oswego or in Washington. He will visit Watertown about once in four weeks to meet people who have suggestions or requests to make, and will also make regular visits to Lowville for the convenience of Lewis county folks. And of course at Oswego he will be accessible to the people of his own county. He put the excellent innovation into effect by going to Watertown on Tuesday and receiving visitors at the Woodruff House. Apparently Mr. Mott intends to keep in touch with his constituents, and his efforts to do so will be appreciated.

The average candidate for office always is anxious to meet, shake hands and talk with most everybody. It is a good thing for him and the people he serves if he has the time and inclination to continue doing so, in the interest of public business, after his election. There are many public official who are always accessible to their constituents but there are few who make stated pilgrimages to different places for the distinct purpose of hearing what their constituents have to say.

MARRIED

The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawton Beardsley of Bowens Corners was beautifully decorated on Wednesday and a large number of guests gathered to witness the marriage vows taken by Mr. Neil D. Arnold of Ira and Miss Belle Beardsley. The Rev. Charles Olmstead of the Congregational church was the officiating clergyman. The bridal march from Lohengrin was played as the bridal party entered the parlors; the bride wearing a becoming gown of white silk and carrying a boquet of bride's roses. She was attended by Miss Blanche E. Ware who also wore white and carried roses. The groom was attend by Mr. Ward Gillespie as best man. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held and congratulations were showered upon the young couple by their many friends. A bridal dinner was served the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold left on a late train for a bridal trip, after which they will be "at home" to their friends in Ira.

CITIZENS BANK WILL EXPAND

Monday morning the Board of Directors of the Citizens National bank met and decided to take advantage of an option they held on the store at the corner of First and Cayuga streets now occupied by M. Katz. The detail cannot be worked out until the Hon. T. D. Lewis, who owns the block, comes to Fulton, but when Mr. Katz's lease expires in August, 1912, or sooner, the store will be remodelled into a modern and ornamental banking house with plate glass on two streets.

The plans for the bank will be designed by a specialist in his line of work and when completed the street will be vastly improved in appearance by the arrangement.

The present bank and other stores on First street in the Lewis block will be remodelled as soon as the bank removes to the corner.

In Old Virginia

A Story of the Sunny South Right After the Civil War

Written For The Times

BY CAPTAIN O. J. JENNINGS

The next day Aunt Phillis in response to Mrs. Bradway's request came over. When Mrs. Bradway said "Aunt Phillis, I have sent for you on what may be considered an important matter and that is to discuss the advisability of your daughter marrying."

"Miss Margret, I don't want Emmageau to get married."

"I have some idea of how you feel about it, but Aunt Phillis, you must have due consideration for her interests and happiness; then too she has great ambition to become a teacher and do what she can to educate and uplift her race of people."

"Does she need to marry dat upstart of a nigger what's hangin' round our house to do that? My gals too good for any such kind trash as he is an I wants him to jus' keep away an not be tryin' to swade Emmageau to leave her Pa and Ma; We's gettin' ole and wants her to stay home."

"I know it, Aunt Phillis, but you must be just. Emmageau has reached an age of discretion and her talents fit her for doing great good in the world."

"Well, can't she do good in de worl' without marryin' dat stuck up 'fessor?"

"Aunt Phillis, you must not allow your prejudice to influence you so strongly; from what I can learn Professor Lindsey is a highly educated young man and of unimpeachable character; then to, he has a good position, earning a good salary and is a true Christian. In the natural course of events Emmageau will sooner or latter marry and why not let it be while you are alive; dont you want to see your children all settled in life if possible while you are still here to comfort them with a mother's love?"

"Miss Margret, does you want I should let her go; you knows 'I'ze ben doin' jus' what you thought was bes' for more than twenty years an I'ze gwine to leave this for you to 'side."

"No, Aunt Phillis, I want you to give this matter much thought, talk it over with Uncle Epherum and then decide for yourselves. Emmageau tells me your oldest son is soon going to marry and bring his wife home to help you."

"Yes, dat's de plan."

"I am really glad to hear it, as you are getting too old to work as you have any longer."

"Miss Margret, I hanit so ole I can't wock for you any time you needs me, an if ever you's sick I can wock night an day."

"Our gratitude for what you have and would do for us Aunt Phillis, shall never be forgotten. When you reach home remember me most kindly to Uncle Epherum and tell him in a quiet way what we have said about Emmageau and the professor."

That evening after the boys had retired she said: "Ephum, I'ze been over to Miss Margret's today and what you thinks we's talked 'bout?"

"It's more I can tell, but I specks its somethin' 'bout bein' good an doin' right."

"Ephum, you's a losifer for Phillis."

"Dat's too much for Epherum understandin'; what's losifer anyways?"

"Ephum, you shouldn' be so 'tickler 'bout words."

"Um—um—I 'aint gwine to say no moa, jus' you go on."

"Well, Epherum, I never was so 'sprised in my born days as I was when Miss Margret say I sent for you to have talk 'bout Emmageau's geetin married to 'fessor Lindsey whats ben comin' here so much lately; she say it seems de right thing for us to want see our children married and settle in life while we's here in dis worle to bless them and 'fessor Lindsey is a good Christian young man and is doin' a great good work for our race people and needs Emmageau's help to carry on de good wock; now Ephum what you think 'bout lettin' our gal go?"

"Phillis, has Emmageau said anything to you 'bout gettin' married?"

"No."

"Den less wait. I carent today say what I does think."

"Well, Ephum, you knows we don't want Emmageau to get married, cause she's too good to marry anyone."

"Phillis, whatever Mr. Bradway and Miss Margret thinks is best for Emmageau to do is sure to be de right thing; deys ben de making of dis whole family; deys took us in charge more than twenty years ago when we was without clothes and de chilren cryin' with hunger; deys showed us de way to be 'spectable people and put us an de road of prosperity that has led up to our having a good home and our chilren bein' educated an as good citizens as any to be found in Virginia 'nicate and if Miss Margret thinks it's right an best for dat dear chile of ours to marry den I specks we'll have to think so to."

"Ephum, you's de bes' man in dis worle."

"Phillis, you forgot to say 'ceptin' Mr. Bradway."

"I knows 'bout dat but some how my heart kindy sorat on you, Ephum.

A few days latter Emmageau came over home and as a favorable opportunity presented itself said: "father I want to have a talk with you; can you spare a little time to listen to what I wish to say?"

"Yes, my dear chile, I shall all the rest of my life have time to listen or do anything to make you happy."

"Well then, let us walk out and sit on the stile."

After getting nicely seated Emmageau said: "father, you may have heard through Mrs. Bradway that I have a proposal of marriage."

"Yes, I has; you Ma's ben over there an deys had great talk 'bout it."

"I am glad to hear that; it's a matter I want talked over by all my friends and particularly by you and mother. You understand that Professor Lindsey wants to marry me and have me join him as a teacher in the Industrial School he is principal of?"

"Emmageau, can I light my pipe an smoke little, seems likes I could understand what you's tellin' me better?"

"Oh yes, father, if the pipe will help you the least bit to more fully understand my motive I want you to smoke all the time I am talking."

As Uncle Ephe got his pipe well a going Emmageau resumed by saying: 'father, the condition of our race of people is such that I feel it my duty to make it a life work to help educate and uplift them in morality and integrity; they are not up to a standard that commands the respect of good citizenship and I want to devote my best energies and even my life to the work of making them worthy to occupy a position that God in his mercy intended for them; how you and mother have suffered under the chains of slavery is a sin resting upon those who held you in bondage that time cannot efface; it is not alone the harsh unkind treatment meeted out to our race but the moral degradation under which they were obliged to live that makes me feel it my duty to them and to God to engage in the work of educating and uplifting them. I have become to know the importance of education for a better life; of being honest and industrious and above all of being morally right. Our people today do not know the importance of such an education, they do not know that moral equality will bring social equality. They do not know that honesty is the foundation of success; these things must be taught them. Under the curse of slavery they had hardly the chance to discriminate between right and wrong; but under the banner of freedom and the Christian influence of good people they can and will become a worthy and respected people. Can you, my dear father, say no to my wish to marry Professor Lindsey and engage in the work of educating and help make better a people that by the curse of slavery have been so wronged?"

"Emmageau, this is the happiest hour of my life; you have shown me more of what life should be than I have ever known before; no, my dear chile, I cannot say no. If Mrs. Bradway says it's best for you to marry the professor and it's your wishes then I say so to."

"Bless you, my dear father, but your consent may be subject to reversal; for a week you and mother talk it all over and if you and she see any good reason why I better not marry Professor Lindsey then I will give it up."

"No. We 'aint got the unerstanin' to see any good reason an I don't believe there is any. You's a dear chile and de blessin' of God hisself is restin' right on you. Your poor ole father knows somethin' 'bout what wes had to endure in de way back times; you ma an I never had much chance to be anybody. It's only since the emancipation of slavrey that wes had any chance to come up an if we hadn't met de Bradway's I don't knows we'd ben anything more dan de commonest niggers in de lan'.

"Why, father, you must not repeat that to any one."

"Lor', Honey, I keant help it I'ze proud of my chilren."

The next day the boys were informed of Emmageau's wish which met their hearty approval. In due course of time the professor was accepted as one of the family but Emmageau still remained at the Bradway's, it was her home. Mrs. Bradway's interest in fitting her for the important position she was to assume in the school could scarcely have been greater in her own child. Then, too, Emmageau must have a trousseau equal to any young lady in the land. Her wedding gown must be of the best material and of the most approved style so that finally when the wedding day came Emmageau was sent out into her new field of work a woman of charming personality, education, refinement and a moral character rarely surpassed. (What such noble characters are doing in our industrial schools is evidenced in every one of them today.) Instead of shadows folding over the home of the Hardman's this marriage brought sunshine and happiness. Uncle Ephe and Aunt Phillis were happy in the thought that they had a daughter occupying so important a position. The oldest boy that season brought home a wife that seemingly entered into Aunt Phillis affections equal to an extent with one of her own children; thus things moved along in the most harmonious manner. The boys had now come to be managers and carried on their broad acres with marked success. Uncle Ephe did little beyond chorcing about the house and occasionally making himself a new came to walk over and see his friend Mr. Bradway, who alway found time to sit down and have a chat with the old man. On one of these occasions he said: "Mr. Bradway, I'se ben thinkin' what a great country des is an what de people would be if dey had de unerstanin' and disposition to do for der fellow man what you's done for we all."

"Uncle Ephe, we have only done what we ought to. Nothing beyond a Christian duty and what every good citizen should do for his neighbor. Well den it seems to me that the white people what's always lived about us don't seem to unerstan' us. We doan all de time seem to have that good unerstandin' between us that makes better citizens of both we all and them to."

"Well, Uncle Ephe, that's a condition that confronts us, but time will I hope make us all see more clearly our duty towards one another."

"Well den, Mr. Bradway, does you think dey'l ever see it clear enough to give us the right what de fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States says we's entitled to. We pays more taxes den any one 'bout here 'ceptin' you and yet we can't have nothin' to say about makin' de laws. What our tax money goes to pay for? Is taxation in dat way right?"

"No, Uncle Ephe, it's not, when the intent of the constitution of the United States is carried out you and your sons will be allowed to vote."

"Well den, I caren understan' how it is dat dey don't respect de laws of a country that has brought more prosperity, edução and morality to its people than any other nation on earth enjoys."

"Uncle Ephe, you are quite right in what you say, but the conditions existing here in Virginia are peculiar. You live among a sensitive people and they see I sometimes think too much of your short comings and do not at all times give you credit for your good intentions. As time rolls on and your people become to know better what uplifts and makes you better citizens your white neighbors will become to respect your rights and be more considerate of your feelings. On your part you must never forget that honesty and a good moral life will advance you in the estimation of all good people."

"Mr. Bradway, you's ben to me and my family de great guide thats led us along to know the duty we owed to everybody and we's trying to carry out that duty. The lessons Miss Margret has taught Emmageau and Phillis in being morally right has jus' made us know it's possible for the colored race to be somebody in dis worl. All dey need is such kind friens' as you all have ben to us to become good 'spectable people. De colored folks I doan think mean to do wrong; it's more the 'swayson they meets up with from the white folks than any disposition they has to do wrong. Jus' do right by the colored race and show them as you all has done by us and they will soon become a good Christian and industrious people and do their part to improve the condition of poor ole Virginia.

(The End.)

The "pure food law" is designed by the Government to protect the public from injurious ingredients in both foods and drugs. It is beneficial both to the public and to the conscientious manufacturer. Ely's Cream Balm, a sucessful remedy for cold in the head, nasal catarrh, hay fever, etc., containing no injurious drugs, meets fully the requirements of the new law, and that fact is prominently stated on every package. It contains none of the injurious drugs which are required by the law to be mentioned on the label. Hence you can use it safely.

HIGH LIVING COST RECOGNIZED

Holy See Allows Working Men and Women Meat on Certain Days in Lent

In the March issue of "The Nativity Mentor," a paper issued by the Rev. John L. Bedford, rector of the Roman Catholic church of the Nativity, in Brooklyn, reference is made to the recognition of the high cost of living in the United States by the Holy See at Rome by the granting of a special indult to American bishops. The indult permits the eating of meat on certain Lenten days, because of the increased price of other foods.

"The indult", it is explained in the paper, 'which permits working people and their families to eat meat on the days of Lent was granted for two reasons: The need of nourishing food for those who have to work and the difficulty of procuring for a reasonable price the food prescribed in the Lenten regulations. From this one may know whom the Church means by working people. It certainly does not mean those who do clerical work unless their hours are unusually long."

PROPERTY SOLD

Oswego, March 2.—In the deed, filed at the County Clerk's office this morning was one from Nevada N. Stranahan to Manton Hall of Fulton. This conveys one of Mr. Stranahan's houses for a consideration of $3,000. Possession is to be given on the 1st of April. This sale is in accordance with the decision of Mr. Stranahan to dispose of all his holdings in Fulton real estate and move to England where he will make his future home.

"FREEZE" AND "BURN."

These Two Words Had a Common Parent in One Aryan Root

We are likely to consider "freeze" and "burn" as two distinctly opposite effects, but if, for a simple experiment, you will touch your tongue to a bit of heated iron and to a bit of iron that is extremely cold the effects, as shown in the blisters produced and in the sensation of the contacts, will be found to be surprisingly alike.

It is doubtful if our Aryan ancestors when they were planting the seed of the English and its sister languages thought of the scientific relations of what we call heat and cold, but they gave to us the root "prus," which they got out of the sensations produced by burning and freezing. As usual, Aryan roots beginning with the "p" sound change it to "f" on the tongues of the Teuton; so with these our more modern ancestors "prus" became "frus," and from it came our "freese" and "frost." Again, as is usual, our Hindu brother in his Sanskrit usually preserves the Aryan "p" sound, so he has from this root "prush," meaning to burn.

This root of freeze became "freosan" in Anglo-Saxon, which is our "frozen." In Icelandic it became "frjosa," in Swedish "frysa" and in Danish "fryse." In the Latin the original "p" sound is retained in "prulna," meaning hoarfrost, and in "prona," signifying a burning coat. Here we see united two apparently opposite meanings growing out of the old root "prus."—New York Herald.

AFRICAN LIONS.

They Often Hunt in Couples to Start and Capture Their Prey.

Lions in Africa go hunting often in couples and then rather systematically. When, for instance, a couple of lions have traced out a kraal—that is to say, a place fenced by small cut thorn trees, where flocks of asses or oxen, goats or sheep are shut up for the night—the lioness approaches cautiously, profiting by every tree or bush to hide herself. At the same time the lion himself lies watching on the opposite in the distance.

Now the lioness exerts herself to arouse the cattle—which is not difficult, as they become excited merely by smelling a beast of prey—till the cattle are tormented to the utmost by fear and horror, break through the kraal on the side opposite to the lioness and thus fall an easy prey to the lion.

The lion chases his victim and throttles it by springing on its neck or breast and biting his teeth into this part. The hunted animal falls, and the lion now tears open the flanks. The lioness appears and has her share of the meal. Very often they cannot devour their victim in one night; then they come back to the place where the remains are on the following or the second night.

The lion's favorite food is zebra, quagga (of which there are few left in Africa) and wild ass. The meat of these three kind of animals is something alike in taste.

English Clay Pipes.

The clay pipe, which is vanishing from the Fleet street chophouse, was the only variety smoked in this country until quite recent times. The clay pipe made its appearance in England in the later years of the sixteenth century. Writing about a century later, a French author remarks that the English "invented the pipes of baked clay which are now used everywhere."

"Broseley, in Staffordshire, has been famous for its pipes and clay from the days of Elizabeth," writes W. A. Penn in "The Soverane Herb." "Now all the clay of which white pipes are manufactured comes from Newton Abbot and Kingsteignton, in Devonshire. It is sent to all parts of England and the world in rough lumps about the size of quarters loaves, weighing some twenty-eight pounds each."—London Spectator.

A Heartless Interruption.

A young Parisian, noted for his grace and readiness as a second in many duels, was asked by a friend to accompany him to the mayor's office to affix his signature as a witness to the matrimonial registry. He consented, but when the scene was reached forgot himself. Just as the mayor was ready for the last formalities he broke out: "Gentlemen, cannot this affair be arranged? Is there no way of preventing this sad occurrence?"

Plain Hunger.

"Doctor, what disease is the most prevalent among the poor?"

"An alarming condition in which the nerve terminations in the stomach stimulated by accumulated secretions of the gastric glands send irritations to the spinal cord by way of the pneumogastric nerve."

"Goodness! How awful! And to think that we rich people can do nothing for those unfortunate sufferers!"—Cleveland Leader.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Thursday evening at 7:30 Rev. C. L. Peck will give an address in the church on "Lenten-tide, its purpose, practice, power." A general invitation is extended.

The Sunday morning service is especially prepared for the boys and girls of the Sunday school and the Junior society. The sermon which will be illustrated, will be entitled, "making marks and records," and the front seats of the auditorium will be reserved for the younger boys and girls.

For the evening another special Young People's service is arranged at which the pastor will give the first of two sermons on "The Amusement Question," his theme being, "The laugh cure, or the Gospel of the merry heart." Young people not interested elsewhere are especially invited.

Major R. H. Hendershot, original "Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock" and his son, H. B. Hendershot, characterized as among the most wonderful drummers and fifers in the world, will give a grand Camp Fire Entertainment assisted by local talent in the First Methodist church Friday evening, April 7, under the auspices of the First Fulton Troop of Boy Scouts. The proceeds are for the benefit of the Scouts to finish payment for their uniforms.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. STATE HIGHWAY

Experience and Permanency in Office Necessary to Build the Supremacy of New York State.

One of the speakers at the highway hearing expressed his views in the following language:

"You cannot build the state of New York as she ought to be built unless in the construction and maintenance of her highways you have a permanent policy, in which the policy protects the men in charge of the operation and construction of those roads, and the upbuilding of the Department. The heads, and the subordinates under them, must become in love and fairly imbued with their work, in order to give to the state and the people just what each locality requires. Road work is a specialty; it is not something that men can pick up particularly easily. It is something that must be acquired, and the men who are to get their livelihood in that business must be certain of the continuity of their jobs, without any of the passing back and forth which our political parties are prone to do when they take possession of the legislature and the funds of the state. The strength of the judiciary is on account of its permanency in office; the strength of the Department of Education is on account of its permanency in office; the strength of the Lunacy Commission is on account of its permanency in office.

Now, I ask you, gentlemen, in the name of common sense and for the betterment of the government of the state, to make no change in the present highway department."

VALUABLE OPTIONS FILED

For twenty five parcels of land in the towns of Orwell and Redfield, Charles A. Lux, of Syracuse, has agreed to pay approximately $80,000, upon which to build a large reservoir for the proposed scheme of harnessing the Salmon river for power purposes. Options on these properties were originally given about two years ago, but were recently renewed until January, 1912, and with the renewals they have just been filed in the County Clerk's Offices.

The owners of the lands, the location to be taken and the prices agreed upon follow:

Charles A. Cooper, Redfield, $6,000; Mary A. Comiskey, Redfield, $1,000; Edward Darling, Redfield, $1,100 Eve Fox, Redfield, $1,200; E. J. Greenfield, Orwell, $1,000; J. F. E. Hagadon, Redfield, $10 an acre for that taken with an agreement that trolley line shall run not more than a mile from his farm; Julia Roser, Orwell, $125; William Sheldon, Redfield, $8,000; W. Caroline Johnson, Orwell, $1,500; Ellen Wilson, Redfield, $1,000; George Day, Redfield, $2,500; William Kitts, Redfield $300; Edgar Greenfield, Orwell, $25 an acre; William Petrie, Redfield, $8,500; George G. Simons, Redfield, $8,000; Samuel Stewart, Redfield, $1,800; C. A. Thompson, Redfield, $1,600; Samuel Warren, Redfield, $800; J. Warren, Jr., Redfield, $800; Evan Balcom, Redfield, $9,000; Estelle S. Crow, Redfield, $2,000; Charles Hall, Orwell, $4,120 and $30 an acre for all over a certain amount; James Warren, Redfield, $2,000; Edward Lyone, Redfield, $8,000; Hugh White, Orwell, $325, and Henry Pennock, Orwell, $3,000.

All of this land to be taken will, if the scheme goes through, be covered by a lake six miles long, 3 1-2 miles wide and forty feet deep. Between 50,000 and 75,000 horse-power of electric energy will be developed every day. The fall from the lake, where the water will be impounded, will give a head of 250 feet.

This power will be used throughout Oswego county for light, heat and power purposes and will prove a valuable acquisition when a reality.

Headache For Years

"I keep Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills on hand all the time, and would not think of taking a journey without them, no matter how short a distance I am going. I have a sister that has had terrible headaches for years, and I coaxed her to try them and they helped her so much, she now keeps them by her all the time. From my own experience I cannot praise them enough."

MRS. LOU M. CHURCHILL, 63 High st., Penacook, N. H.

Many persons have headache after any little excitement or exertion. They cannot attend church, lectures, entertainments, or ride on trains without suffering. Those who suffer in this way should try Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They give almost instant relief without leaving any disagreeable after-effects, as they do not derange the stomach or bowels; just a pleasurable sense of relief follows their use. Get a package from your druggist. Take it according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

BANKING ROOM FIRST NATIONAL BANK OSWEGO

OSWEGO'S MAGNIFICENT NEW BAKN

surmounting the counters, which

The room is not only beautiful, but it is also well arranged for the convenience of customers, and includes a cashier's office, a ladies' room, and ample space for the tellers, bookkeepers and other clerks.

The directors' room is on the mezzanine floor and is perfect in all of its appointments.

The large vault is built of reinforced concrete and chrome steel and weighs 125,000 pounds. The inside door is three inches in thickness. The outside door is ten inches thick and has two time locks.

The vault contains the strong boxes or safes of the bank. The one in which the reserve and securities are kept has an inner door two and one-half inches thick and outer doors three and one-half inches thick and has two time locks. The vault has electrical protection which communicates with an alarm at the police station.

There is also a book vault in the banking room and two vaults in the basement, which later may be used for safe deposit boxes.

The offices on the upper floor of the building are finished in quartered oak, and are light and cheerful an afford just such service and convenience as progressive business men require.

Altogether, the First National Bank, with its ample capital and surplus, together with its strong directorate, is in a position to give the public a thoroughly efficient banking service in its beautiful new home. It is the depository of the City of Oswego, County of Oswego, State of New York and of the United States.

A happy coincidence in connection with the opening of the new bank is the fact that Luther Wright Mott, vice president and cashier of the bank and grandson of Luther Wright and Thomas S. Mott, entered upon his duties at noon as the representative in Congress of the Twenty-eighth Congressional district.

The organization of the First National Bank took place on January 23, 1864, and it was the first bank in Oswego County to begin business under the National Banking Act of the United States.

Ground was broken for the new structure on May 16 last and great care was exercised in the construction of the building to make it one of the finest of the kind to be found anywhere. Its foundations are of such solid dimensions as to allow for the addition of four more floors.

The present officers of the bank are: John T. Mott, president; L. W. Mott, vice president and cashier; T. P. Kingsford, vice president; E. B. Mott, vice president; C. J. McDowell, assistant cashier; F. S. Thrall, assistant cashier; John T. Mott, E. B. Mott, T. P. Kingsford, C. A. Tanner, L. W. Mott, C. C Place, D. D. Long, directors.

The Times congratulates Oswego upon its splendid new banking house and the evidence of the prosperity of the neighboring city.

TROLLEY WORK HASTENED

Rush Orders Are Issued—Contractors Instructed to Hasten Operations—Fast Limited Cars Will Be Operated from This City

The extension of the Syracuse Lake Shore and Northern Railroad from Fulton to Oswego will probably be opened for traffic before June 1, the date decided upon by the Beebe interests.

The engineering department of the road issued orders yesterday to all contractors having uncompleted jobs on the extension, to resume operations at the earliest possible moment and to rush the work in an effort to open the road before June 1.

The I. S. Luddington Company which has the grading and track laying contract is already making preparations for the resumption of work at an early date.

The grading between Fulton and Oswego is complete and the ties are laid for a part of the distance. Delivery of rails is now in progress.

Practically all of the work within the city limits of Oswego is done and the overhead work for the extension is finished.

It is figured that the roadbed will be completed and the tracks laid before the work of strengthening the bridge over which the line will cross the Oswego river at Fulton is finished. Efforts to have this job rushed are now being made. Orders have been sent to the American Bridge Company to have the work of fabricating the steel for the bridge advanced as rapidly as possible.

The operating department of the Syracuse, Lake Shore and Northern has already taken up the discussion of a schedule between Syracuse and Oswego. The service will include a number of fast limited cars which will duplicate the fast running time in effect on the R. S. & E. Railroad.

Just what the running time will be for the limited cars has not been figured out, but it is expected that it will bring Syracuse and Oswego near together by several minutes.—Post-Standard Monday.

BALDWINSVILLE

PRINCIPAL RESIGNS

Following the admission to the State Board of Education of his having tampered with a regents' examination paper so that a student would pass, Prof. Frederick V. Webster, principal of the Baldwinsville High school, has sent his resignation to the Baldwinsville school board as requested. It was accepted at the regular meeting on Monday night of last week. Nothing in years has so stirred the town as this sensational admission, as the Professor was exceedingly popular.

It appears that two of the teachers in the same school found torn sections of a Regents examination paper in the principals waste paper basket, pasted the pieces together and sent them to the department at Albany, with a statement as to their surmises. An investigation followed with the result that the young man resigned, having acknowledged his guilt. The students practically all line up with the principal and against the two female teachers who unearthed his misdoing, and many mad scene have been enacted by the students since. The resignation of the teachers has been demanded by the students and many demonstrations against them have been publicly made. Unless a strong hand grasps the situation soon it is probable that the State monies will be withheld and serious disaster result to the educational interests of the neighboring village.

When all is said and done, Gov. Woodrow Wilson cast the vote of the New Jersey legislature for Senator Martine.

REVERSED IN THE COURT OF APPEALS

Position of O. M. Reilly Sustained In Wiggins Case

The Court of Appeals has just handed down a decision unanimously reversing the judgment of the trial court before Justice Scripture and of the Appellate Division in the above case.

This action was brought to recover a statutory penalty under the Agricultural law for delivering to the Phoenix Cheese Factory milk below the required standard. The milk was in the name of Mrs. Wiggins and the action was brought against her. She defended on the ground that she was not the owner of the milk nor the farm occupied by Nicholas Frawley. At the trial the plaintiff was allowed to show, over the objection of defendant's counsel, a conversation between the milk inspector and Frawley the tenant in which it was claimed that Frawley told the milk inspector that Mrs. Wiggins owned the cows.

This was held to be error by the Court of Appeals and also it was held error for the witness Peacock, the cheese factory man, to testify that Mrs. Wiggins endorsed the checks, Peacock having admitted that he had never seen Mrs. Wiggins.

The Court of Appeals hold that there is absolutely no evidence to show that Mrs. Wiggins delivered any milk or that she was the owner of any cows and the Court says, "That aside from the incompetent testimony, which was of itself a ground for reversal, that there was no evidence to sustain the cause of action and that plaintiff's complaint should have been dismissed when defendant's counsel moved for a non-suit."

CORPORATION TAX LAW CONSTITUTIONAL

The constitutionality of the corporation tax provision of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, one of President Taft's pet measures was unanimously upheld by the United States Supreme court in a decision in fifteen cases arising in various parts of the United States. The law brought in $20,959,783.74 last year.

The cases came to the Supreme Court from the federal courts of Vermont, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Massachusetts and Minnesota and included corporations engaged in real estate business, mining, manufacturing, transportation, life insurance and merchandise.

In each case stockholders applied for an injunction to restrain the officers of the corporation from paying the tax on the ground that it was unconstitutional.

SHELDON LOSES SUIT

After all the evidence was in and after hearing argument by Giles S. Piper, for the plaintiff, and Francis E. Cullen, for the defendant, Justice DeAngelis in Supreme Court Friday morning granted a nonsuit to the defendant in the case of Curtis M. Sheldon vs. the New York Central railroad.

Mr. Sheldon who resides in Volney, sued for $10,000 damages for injuries in a runaway accident in Fulton. He had a team standing on Broadway, Fulton, when a train in charge of Engineer Cronin and Fireman Jay Feeley came along, the horses were frightened and Mr. Sheldon was dragged some distance.

DREDGE LAUNCHED

Fulton Company Builds Immense Dredge—May Remove to Maryland.

Dawson, Pyles & Putschky, of this city, have just finished a mammoth dredge which they have been building for the American Pipe and Construction Company and have launched the craft preparatory to the installation of the dredging machinery. The new dredge is 100 feet long with a 33-foot beam. It will have a 17-ton boom and a 3½ yard dipper. To run the machinery there will be a 250 horse power engine and boiler. A complete electric lighting system will be placed on this dredge so that the work can be carried on day and night.

The Fulton builders, beside the nearly completed dredge, are building three dump scows, a derrick scow and a coal scow for the American Pipe and Construction company. This fleet of working boats will be used in the construction of the barge canal between Fulton and Oswego.

According to all reports it is expected that the contracting company will get to work on the 1st of April and will start the dredging work near Battle Island. A force of men have been in this vicinity all winter getting the preliminery work done and the contracting company has now everything in readiness for the early start of the actual work.

The firm of young men have been asked to locate permanently at Harve de Grace, Maryland, but the Chamber of Commerce of Fulton has also made them a proposition to remain here.

SYRACUSE MEN INVEST IN CLEVELAND REALTY

C. A. Lux Closes Deal for 1,400 Building Lots in Ohio City

A special to The Post-Standard from Cleveland, Ohio, says:

"Charles A. Lux and other Syracuse men have purchased 1,400 large building lots on the South Side of this city, more than half a million dollars being involved in the transaction.

"The deal just closed with the Society for the Savings of Cleveland is said to be one of the largest real estate transactions ever completed in Northern Ohio.

"The tract of land is to be used solely for building purposes. Mr. Lux announced that he would make his home in Cleveland six months in each year until the property is developed.

"A new company is to be formed, with Syracuse capitalists as officers. Offices are to be opened in this city.

"The purchase gives the Syracuse men possession of the Loraine Avenue and Denison Land Company's allotment of 235 acres. The property lies south of Loraine avenue, a residential section, and extends to the corporation line of Linwood."

Mr. Lux is the promoter for the Beebe syndicate.

ELECTRIC FRANCHISE SOLD

Not a ripple stirred the meeting of the Common Council on Thursday evening when the Oswego River Power Transmission Company purchased the Niagara Power franchise which was accepted by the Council several weeks ago. The minimum price as fixed by the Board of Public Works was $2,000 and it was acceptable to Attorney E. M. White of the company which furnished the only bid. The franchise was delivered on Monday.

CELEBRATES HER 80th BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Mary E. Connell Receives Many Postal Cards and Enjoys Dinner Served in Her Honor.

Mrs. Mary E. Connell, widow of N. D. Connell, a veteran of the Civil war and for a number of years previous to his death a resident of this city, celebrated her 80th birthday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. H. Graves, No. 310 Arlington St., yesterday.

Scores of postals and messages of congratulation and numerous gifts from far and near were received, and a dinner was given in honor of Mrs. Connell. Among the guests present were Mrs. W. J. Mooney of Felts Mills and a daughter, Mrs. J. W. Rice of Fulton, N. Y.

Mrs. Connell has two other daughters, Mrs. J. D. Chalmers of Buffalo and Mrs. George Van Arnam of Des Moines, and two sons, Mr. F. P. Connell of Syracuse and Mr. J. B. Connell of Dayton, O., all of whom sent gifts and messages.

Despite her age, Mrs. Connell has been in good health this winter and her mental faculties are unimpaired.—Watertown Standard, March 8.

POLICE STOP WORKMEN

Acting upon the request of the Board of Public Works, Chief of Police Ross last week stopped workmen claiming to be in the employ of the Williams Bridge company of Syracuse, from cutting bolts from the lower bridge. The workmen claimed that they were not injuring or weakening the bridge in any way but were preparing to test its strength for trolley purposes. None of the city officials seemed to be able to figure out how cutting away hundreds of bolts from a structure could well be accomplished without weakening it, hence the step taken.

The Syracuse, Lakeshore & Northern railroad company who are desirous of exercising their franchise to cross the lower bridge, did not give the Board of Public Works any formal notification that they were about to commence work on the bridge, the charter providing that a ten days notice must be given the Board, nor did the company ask the approval of the Board for its plans. Under these several conditions it has been reported that the trolley company may have laid themselves liable to serious penalty under the Penal code for tampering with the bridge.

Work was resumed on the bridge after Chief of Police Ross issued his order, but the workmen were soon stopped for the second time, and thus far nothing more has transpired.

PLANS FOR MISSIONARY JUBILEE

Sunday, March 19, preceding the Jubilee, the pastors of the various churches will speak upon the subject of women's work in the foreign field.

A union prayer service will be held at the Baptist church Wednesday, March 22, at 2:30 p. m., to which all ladies interested in Missions are urged to attend.

Two meetings will take place Friday, March 24. The afternoon meeting being held in the Presbyterian church, where each lady is requested to bring her lunch that all may join together in an informal picnic luncheon; informal talks, toasts and social intercourse will be enjoyed at this time, and fruit and coffee will be provided.

The closing union meeting will be held Friday night at 6 o'clock in the First M. E. church. Miss Helen B. Calder of Boston, Mass., being the speaker. Music will be furnished by a chorus of young people under the direction of Miss Alta Thompson.

SAVINGS BANK WILL MOVE

The Fulton Savings bank will this week remove from its present quarters into its new and commodious building on the corner of First and Rochester streets.

Mr. A. DeBarber will at once commence the work of remodelling the old savings bank building into a ground floor theatre with three office suites above. A 25-foot addition in the rear of the building will be completed, the building brought forward to the street and the floor now occupied by the bank will be dropped to the street level. When completed the building will readily rent at a good figure.

WILL FULTON SELL?

A sale involving five million of dollars was last week consummated between the Bell Telephone company and the Independent telephone companies covering the territory between Batavia and Schenectady.

DOING SUPERB WORK

F. A. Emerick, Oswego, Strong For Reforestation Work in Oswego County—Has Set Out Nearly Four Hundred Thousand Trees.

Oswego county was once covered with magnificent forests which have since been almost totally destroyed by the home and the money makers within her borders and the question here, as throughout the United States, is a serious one unless the work of reforestation can be carried forth uninterruptedly and intelligently. There is a large amount of land throughout the county wholly unsuited to any but forestry purposes and it could be made to yield good returns upon the investment within a few years if entered upon in a large scale.

Mr. F. A. Emerick of Oswego, president of the Great Bear Spring Water Company, is a very strong advocate for reforestation of Oswego county and he recently said:

"The Great Bear Spring Company on their farm south of Fulton have already planted upwards to 400,000 trees in their plan of reforestation and to this number will be added 32,000 thousand trees the present Spring. The larger number of these trees now growing are of the variety known as Scotch pine, while a lesser quantity of white pine, bull pine, Norway pine, European, Japanese and Siberian larch, tulip, ash and other varieties have been planted.

"The Scotch pine seems to thrive upon soil of any quality, is a vigorous and rapid grower and produces a wood valuable for many purposes. This variety of tree has been planted by the French Government extensively in the sand dunes along its coast and serves the double purpose of arresting the shifting of these sands and at the same time producing a profitable crop upon an otherwise valueless area. While the process for raising timber for the market is a slow one, it should not be forgotten that a planted partially grown crop has a value proportionate to its marketable age, say thirty-five or forty years. Where the planting is done upon land of little value it is estimated that a return as high as four per cent. upon the investment may be derived. It is the policy of both National and State Governments to encourage the planting of trees and to this end the State of New York has established nurseries at several points and is now supplying trees practically at cost to applicants who agree to use them for reforestation and not for ornamental purposes.

"The price upon these trees is based upon the age, size and variety of plants furnished and at the present time ranges from $2 to $5 per thousand. While the cost of setting to a land owner would be about the same, the State Forest, Fish and Game Commission at Albany in addition to furnishing trees, as above, courteously and gratuitously gives advice as to the variety of trees best adapted to any described land and if the number of trees to be set out be great and the land large enough, the commission will send an expert forester to make a personal investigation and make recommendations. Trees may be transplanted with good results, either in the Fall or in the Spring, and with ordinary care surprisingly few of the plants fail to grow. There are few farms which do not include a percentage of unprofitable acreage and both pleasure and moderate profit can no doubt be derived from reforesting such otherwise unprofitable acres."

At the Great Bear farm the trees are planted about five feet apart. The reason for this close growth is that they develop straighter and better. It is figured that in about ten years many of these trees will be fit to cut for railroad ties. Then they can be trimmed out with benefit to the others. Passengers on the trolley line pass right through the Great Bear Spring farm and those going up on the Phoenix line ride through the edge of the growing forest of pines.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Chamber of Commerce will hold an open meeting for all members and their friends, in the City Hall, Friday evening, March 7, 1911, at 8 o'clock. A speaker from out-of-town who is well posted on the commission government for cities has been secured to speak. Everyone interested in the good of Fulton is asked to be present.

MARRIED

Mrs. Jane Stillman Clarke, of this city, aged 61, and Mr. Almon Sikes, of Volney, aged 63, were united in marriage on March 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Wood in Fifth street. Mr. and Mrs. Sikes will make their future home on the groom's large farm in Volney.

Sunday at their newly furnished home in Second street, Mr. Fred H. Burroughs and Miss Eva Beebe were united in marriage by the Rev. C. L. Peck. The groom is a well known paper maker of this city and the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Beebe of Dexterville. After a bridal trip the young couple will reside in Fulton.

Mr Clarence Althouse of Hannibal, formedly in the local American express office, and Miss Grace Mills, formerly of this city, were united in marriage in New York city on Saturday. After a bridal dinner Mr. and Mrs. Althouse left for a honeymoon at Atlantic city. They will reside at No. 151 West Twelfth street, New York city. Their friends extend congratulations.

Sunday at high noon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Darling, occurred the marriage of Mr. Ralph Brown, son of Mrs. J. M. Brown of Park street, and Miss Hazel Darling, a recent graduate from the local High school. The bride was becomingly gowned in white silk and she carried bride's roses. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. L. Peck and there were no attendants, only the immediate members of the two families being present. Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for a bridal trip to Utica and other nearby cities. It is expected that they will make their future home in Milwaukee, where Mr. Brown is in the employ of the American Appraisal company of Milwaukee.

COBB FOR COUNTY JUDGE

Watertown Politicians Wondering if He Will Succeed Emerson

Politicians in Watertown are speculating as to whether or not Senator George H. Cobb will become a candidate next Fall for the office of County Judge, now held by E. C. Emerson, who in turn announced his aspirations for a seat upon the Supreme Court bench. There are some who are declaring that Senator Cobb will become a candidate, believing that the office would unquestionably lead to some thing higher, while others claim that after returning from Albany Mr. Cobb will devote himself to his large law interests. If Senator Cobb decides to enter the fight and become a candidate against former District Attorney Fred Pitcher, John Muzzey and L. R. Breen, all of whom are mentioned, the county will witness an interesting contest.

ITALIAN ATTACKED AND ROBBED

Saturday evening early an Italian named Joseph Zigo was knocked down near the Nestle plant and robbed of $40. Within two hours from the time the assault was committed two of the three assailants were languishing in the local lockup, having been identified by Zigo. The third has not yet been apprehended.

As soon as the local police department was informed of the outrage the Syracuse police department was communicated with and a patrolman boarded the trolley leaving Fulton at 6:38 and took the two suspicious looking characters into custody, loudly protesting their innocence. Chief Ross and Patrolman Bray went to Syracuse after the suspects.

HITCHCOCK ENDS LONG FIGHT

Awards Contract for Envelopes with Printed Return Addresses

Washington, D. C.—By signing the contract for the manufacture and printing of stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers, Postmaster General Hitchcock put an end, for at least four years from July 1 next, to a contest that has lasted more than a quarter of a century.

The contract is with Myron C. Taylor, president of the Mercantile Corporation, of New York city, the present contractor. The prices to be paid for the next four years will effect a saving of $297,880, based on the number of envelopes and wrappers used in 1910.

The manufacturer is required to print on the envelopes, in orders of 500 or more, the return address of the sender, at no additional cost.

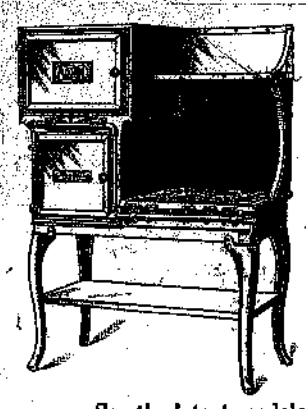
In a statement issued Mr. Hitchcock says that in this instance the department does not enter into competition with private enterprise. In his opinion the benefits to local printers, if the government did not have this work done under its supervision would be disproportionate to the embarrassment to the postal service and business interests.

HUGHES ON POSTAL BOARD

Heads Commission to Investigate Second Class Rates

Washington, D. C.—It was announced at the White House that associate Justice Charles E. Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court, has been designated as head of the commission to investigate second class postage rates, especially with reference to magazines. Lawrence Maxwell, of Cincinnati, formerly Solicitor General, has been appointed one of the members of the commission. Justice Hughes and Mr. Maxwell accepted the places.

The American members of the international joint commission to define and regulate boundary waters between the United States and Canada, it was announced informally at the White House, will be Representative James A. Tawney, of Minnesota, chairman; ex-Senator Thomas H. Carter, of Montana, and Frank S. Streeter, Republican National Committeeman from New Hampshire. The commission is to exist under a treaty of May 13, 1910. The Canadian members have not been named.



OSWEGO ATHLETIC CLUB

The Fulton members of the Oswego Athletic club are looking forward with a whole lot of enthusiasm to the club session to be held at the Richardson theatre in Oswego next Monday evening, March 20, when Packey McFarland of Chicago and Billy Ryan of Syracuse will meet at one hundred and thirty-three pounds. A special train will be run from Syracuse for the members from that city and the train will stop at Fulton both coming and going.

This is one of the biggest exhibitions ever held in this part of the state and is expected that the attendance will be large. A strong program has been arranged. McFarland met Owen Moran in New York on Tuesday evening and he is expected in Oswego late in the week to finish up training for Monday night. Membership cards may be secured at the Hotel Danio in Oswego.

Hugh Ross who has a large following in Fulton is to meet Jimmy Conners of Scranton and this is sure to be a classy bout. Tony Guzzo is scheduled to meet a Fulton boy and Eddie Smith who recently made Al. Rogers feel tired will meet a fast one from New York.

THE WEEK

The moderate improvement in industrial and trade conditions since the beginning of the year continues. This is most noticeable in iron and steel, in which an increase in pig iron production was made in February, and in which the aggregate of unfilled orders reported by the leading producer has expanded. It is less evident in the dry goods trade, in which curtailment of production is maintained and price reductions is being made. Yet January and February sales in many cases showed gain over preceding months. Some growth in activity in the boot and shoe market is reported. Two important elements of strength in the situation are the existing low stocks of merchandise and the unusually larg supplies of money. Other favorable factors are the increasing reserves of the great banks; the decline in the Bank of England rate of discount to 3 per cent.; the gratifying change for the better in our foreign trade; the signs of large accumulating credits abroad and the generally excellant outlook for crops, so far as they can now be forecasted. Current statistics by which the volume and trend of trade are usually tested are not altogether satisfactory. Railroad earnings in four weeks of February increased 0.3 per cent. Bank clearings in the last week outside New York declined 2.6 per cent. as compared with 1910 and increased 15.2 per cent. as compared with 1909. In New York there was a decrease of 14.2 per cent. from 1910 and a gain of 3.5 over 1909. The foreign commerce exhibit at New York during the latest week recorded exports of $18,282,480, a remarkable gain of $5,678,163 over 1910 and an excess of $2,603,678 over the imports. As compared with 1909 exports increased $4,578,209 and imports decreased $3,2949,99.

Certain developments not directly associated with the trade itself have caused a more conservative feeling in iron and steel, although evidences of improvement continue to multiply. The signs of progress include a further substantial increase in unfilled orders on hand by the leading producer and an expansion of 35,000 tons in the output of pig iron during February—the first gain reported in nearly a year. According to the Iron Age the total production amounted to 1,794,509 tons last month against 1,759,326 tons in Jandary, while the daily capacity of the 222 furnaces in blast March 1 was 66,562 tons as compared with 59,568 tons a day for the 206 furnaces in operation a month earlier. Current advices from leading pig iron centers indicates somewhat quieter conditions at Chicago and Pittsburg, but more activity in other directions, and some price advances are noted on deliveries extending beyond the first half of the year. In the rail division recent contracts have aggregated close to 40,000 tons, with 10,000 tons for export to manila, and it is expected that considerable business will be received from Canada owing to the sold-up condition of the mills in that country. As anticipated, an advance of $1 per ton has been made on wire products, wire nails now being quoted at $1.80 and plain wire $1.60, Pittsburg.

Business in the primary dry goods markets continues generally in restricted volume and curtailment of operations in mill centers is still large. In spots trade is good and distributers are able to move merchandize in small lots, although price concessions are common in cotton goods. Some comment was caused by a revision of price in one line of staple prints, but other printers didn't follow and the printed goods division of the industry is relatively better than trade with bleachers, dyers or finishers. Export trade is fair, shipments during January amounting to 26,000,000 yards against 6,000,000 yards the same month a year ago.

The leading producer of men's wear has secured a liberal volume of future business at very close prices, and there is a marked tendency among users of dress materials to purchase the better qualities. Some lines of silks are also in steady demand. Yarn markets continue unsatisfactory.

Boot and shoe conditions show an improvement. Jobbers are placing large orders, and while the demand is still chiefly for odd styles and specialties, staple lines are now receiving more attention. Most of the contract now placed are for quick delivery and wholesalers, as a rule, throughout the country are credited with carrying limited assortments. Prices rule steady to firm, and owing to the scarcity of Russia calf leathers, shoes cut from this material are about 10 per cent. higher than a short while ago. Hides are in steady demand, but no further large sales have been effected. Prices are generally firm and the packers are in an especially strong position owing to the fact that they are more closely sold up on their present poor quality hides than is usually the case at this season. The foreign markets are also firm, especially in Europe. All of the upper leather tanners have now returned to the old discounts on the basis of 5 per cent. off ten days, and shoe manufacturers are endeavoring to accomplish the same insole leather. Already most of the sole leather tanners have returned to the 5 per cent. basis, and the only ones holding out for the new terms are the hemlock and union sole tanners. In consequence of these conditions more business is being effected in upper and oak sole leather, as well as oak belting butts, while trade continues very dull in hemlock and union soles.

Further evidence of the bearishness of the wheat situation was furnished by the government report showing farm reserves well in excess of last year's, which had a depressing effect on prices. Irregular fluctuations are now to be expected, however, as the usual complaints are beginning to appear regarding winter wheat, Hessian fly being noted in western Illinois. The movement to primary points continues on a reduced scale, receipts of 3,091,396 bushels comparing adversely with the 5,280,036 reported in the same week last year, but exports from all ports of the United States, flour included, were 1,756,480 bushels against 1,459,240 in 1910. Early firmness in corn was well maintained, although the official statement on farm reserves showed a much larger total than a year ago. Arrivals of 4,171,923 bushels compared with 4,379,172 last year, and Atlantic coast exports were 2,288,248 bushels against only 707,612 in 1910. Speculative operations in cotton are on a reduced scale, with little participation by outside interests. Sentiment is generally bearish and prices again fell to the 1-4cent level for the old crop months, although frequent rallies occurred.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for March amount to $2,533,243, of which $1,067,477 were in manufacturing, $1,365,569 in trading and $100,197 in other commercial lines. Failures this week number 252 in the United States against 239 last year, and 34 in Canada compared with 39 a year ago.—Dun's Review, March 11, 1911.

DEMOCRATS PAD STATE PAYROLLS

How Tammany Regime at Albany Is Swelling Expenses.

DIX BOWS BEFORE TAMMANY.

Friends of the Governor Chagrined at His Subserviency to the Discredited Boss of the New York City Machine. Tammany's Barefaced Attempt to Grab the State Roads Work and What It Means.

Albany, N. Y., March 15.—Surface indications are that the Democratic managers are chiefly concerned over two things—how to provide jobs for hundreds of expectant Democratic workers and where to find money to swing this patronage and still keep inside the state's revenues.

It will be recalled that the great cry of the Democratic spellbinders last fall was "economy and retrenchment." Without regard for possibilities or facts, without knowing or caring that the state's population, wealth and responsibilities had doubled and tripled since 1891, the Democrats promised the people that if put in power at Albany they would reduce expenses to the level of the days of Hill, Flower and Edward Murphy, when the state government cost about $13,000,000, all raised by direct state tax, and when the state did not support the insane, did not have its state system of charitable institutions and normal schools to maintain had not started to build a barge canal or a $50,000,000 system of state roads.

"In an Unenviable Position."

Now that they are called upon to "make good" the Democrats find themselves in an unenviable position. At first they thought to make a showing by abolishing a few state jobs, but that idea has been abandoned because the "boys" demand the jobs and also because it has been found that it takes two and three of the new men to do the work formerly performed by one trained and experienced official.

The senatorial deadlock is piling up a bill of something like $10,000 a week for the taxpayers. It can be seen that the Democrats must do some "retrenching" to even up this item alone, let alone a net saving to the taxpayers even by the doubtful expedient of "phony balances."

Wholesale Raid For Spoils.

Finding that the civil service laws first inaugurated by that idolized Democratic statesman, Grover Cleveland) operated to make it practically impossible to fire out men who had won their positions in competitive examination, the Democratic bosses have begun a raid to break down the "merit system."

Upon the suggestion of Charles F. Murphy Governor Dix appointed a new state civil service commission, none of whom has ever been devoted to civil service reform. The law provides for one commissioner of the minority political party. Governor Dix or Mr. Murphy did not consult the Republican state organization in regard to the Republican member, and when he came up for confirmation Senator Brackett, Republican leader in the senate, denied all responsibility on behalf of the Republican party. It is understood, however, that the commissioner credited to the Republican party voted for Governor Dix and the Tammany ticket.

At the first meeting of the new state civil service commission Democratic state officers demanded that about 300 places be taken from the classified service where tenure of office is deemed secure except charges are preferred and sustained and placed in the exempt class so that Tammany men might be put in their stead right off. It is expected and believed that this is but the beginning of a wholesale attempt to break down the civil service laws and safeguards and return to the good old days of the spoils system.

Governor Dix's Friends Chagrined.

Governor Dix has proved a disappointment even to his most ardent admirers. Nobody conversant with practical politics expected that John A. Dix would ignore Charles F. Murphy or any other of the Democratic state leaders especially since he had served as chairman of the Democratic state committee and owed his nomination and election as governor to these leaders, but not even Murphy expected such complete subserviency as he found at first by the new governor. Mr. Dix's first act of submission to the Tammany boss was when he appointed as state superintendent of elections the man Murphy had recommended as one of the four commissioners of election in New York city and whom Mayor Gaynor refused to appoint because he was too old to perform the duties of the position.

The governor also announced to the newspaper correspondents his semi-daily conferences with Murphy, likewise that he discussed with the Tammany boss the details of his legislative and administrative program. Never did Richard Croker or Thomas C. Platt establish headquarters in Albany and pay semi-daily visits to the executive chamber, and never before is it recalled that a governor seemed proud of close personal relations with the boss of Tammany Hall.

Public Is Suspicious.

Possibly this is why the public seems to take with a grain of suspicion the report that strained relations now exist between Governor Dix and Mr. Murphy. To speak frankly, they seem to doubt the governor's sincerity in his latest attitude.

While they will not admit it publicly, in private the anti-Murphy men, like Thomas M. Osborne, are chagrined that Dix will not come out boldly and espouse their plan to drive Murphy out of politics as they tried to do to William J. Conners. Incidentally one of the humorous features of Democratic alignments at present is to see Conners and Osborne close allies in the anti-Murphy-Sheehan corner. Osborne and Conners have tried their best to induce Dix to throw down Sheehan, but the best they got were three Dix statements so ambiguously worded that no one knew just what he was driving at. These statements did not help Sheehan or hurt Murphy, but they did serve to indict Dix of doing what he maintained he never would do, interfere in the senatorial contest.

Naturally neither legislators nor state officials seem to take Governor Dix seriously, and the general public seems to be fast reaching a similar conclusion.

Tammany to Grab the Roads.

Wirespread and vigorous opposition to the Democratic plan to grab the state roads work does not seem to have any effect upon Governor Dix and Mr. Murphy, as it is announced that the bill to Tammanyize the good roads is to be jammed through the legislature willy-nilly.

True, the bill is to be amended, but the grab feature has been retained. The present commissioners, appointed by Governor Hughes for fixed terms, are to be ousted, and road work is to be turned over to the Tammany state engineer, the state superintendent of public works and a state superintendent of highways to be appointed by the governor and removable at his pleasure. The superintendent must submit all his appointment to the full commission so that the state engineer may approve the engineers who make the road plans. Inasmuch as the governor has summary power to remove at any time the superintendents of public works and highways, a fine opportunity is afforded by this arrangement for "trade offs" in appointments and contracts.

Another Objection.

Another serious objection, not from the Tammany but from the public viewpoint, is that the amended plan makes the entire commission go out of office with the governor. This destroys continuity of the commission; also delays road work. At present the whole commission does not cease at any one time. Under the Dix-Murphy plans until the new governor appoints his new superintendents of public works and highways road work is without a directing head, and it would take several months then before the new commissioners could familiarize themselves with their duties. All this time road work would lag and the state's interests would suffer.

But Tammany must have control of those road contracts.

What the Editors Say.

Richard Croker, down in Florida, has permitted an interruption of the pleasure of the sun bath and the contemplation of the palms long enough to give expression to his opinion on the New York state senatorial wrangle. Mr. Croker believes that Murphy is wrong in pushing Sheehan for the senatorship when he finds that his total strength is not sufficient to elect and that the welfare of the party, the state and the nation demands his withdrawal. This from Croker will probably have more influence with Tammany men outside of the obstinate Murphy than all the letters that E. M. Shepard and M. W. Littleton could write in a twelvemonth.—Brooklyn Times.

The bitter fact is that Sheehan is fairly representative of the Democratic party in the Empire State. He is neither above nor below the average public opinion of the party that as a majority in this city has bent all its energies to the mismanagement of the metropolis and as a minority in the state legislature has for sixteen years been voted almost solidly against every big piece of legislation in the public interest. He did the dirty work of his party at its lowest estate, and because of him and men like him his party was cast out of power for half a generation. Unrepentant, his party comes back and in the moment of victory turns, with gratitude or with expectation, to its old agent, likewise unrepentant, so far as the record goes. With useless endeavor
Forever, forever.
Is Sisyphus rolling his stone up the mountain.

Mr. Shepard and the Democratic "insurgents" and independents do well and creditably in trying to get a senator better than the party wants. But this unavailing effort is small compensation to the injury they have done in persuading the state by their own good repute to choose as its ruler a party with the record and purposes of the Empire State Democracy. — New York Mail.

Turn About.

At a Christmas dinner in Washington a statesman who had been much in the public eye was called upon after the meal to make a little speech. He arose and began: "You have been giving your attention so far to a turkey stuffed with sage. You are now about to give your attention to a sage stuffed with turkey!"

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

No Rest
Day or Night

"I would lay awake for hours without any apparent cause, or dream terrible dreams which would bring on extreme spells of nervousness. After taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and Tonic for awhile I could sleep well, and the nervous spells have left me." MISS ALMA HUG, R. R, No. 4, Canal Dover, Ohio.

Without sleep the nervous system soon becomes a wreck, and the healthful activity of all the organs obstructed. Restful, body-building sleep accompanies the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine because it soothes the irritable nerves, and restores nervous energy. When taken a few days according to directions, the most restless sufferer will find sleep natural and healthful. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

Politics Becoming Active

The political situation has become very active very early this year and there are at least half a dozen avowed candidates and dark horses for every office to be filled by the electors this Fall. Fulton herself is in a peculiar position at present in that she has candidates for two important county offices on the Republican ticket already announced. Shoe Dealer M. A. Stranahan is an avowed candidate for the office of Sheriff and is putting up his fences as rapidly as possible. Attorney G. M. Fanning is a candidate on the same ticket for the nomination for district attorney and there is already an alignment for or against either candidate, as it is of course impossible for both nominations to come to Fulton. Fulton stands a good chance this Fall to secure a county office if the electors can only agree upon a candidate and present an unbroken front to the opposition. Unless this is done her chances will be slim to secure recognition in the county convention as a divided delegation would reveal a split in the party here.

Oswego county finds herself in a position favorable to her securing a Supreme Court resident justice if she can harmonize on a Republican candidate. Already three contestants have announced themselves—Attorneys E. B. Powell, I. G. Hubbs and Udelle Bartlette. Mr. Hubbs has been a long time candidate for the office; Mr. Bartlette is to have, it is rumored, the endorsement of the Oswego County Bar for the office and Mr. Powell is a new comer into the fight. Good political sense and public spiritedness should show the necessity for a getting together at once on the candidates and an all-together movement to secure a resident justice for Oswego county. Many conferences are being held daily throughout the county and harmony may be wrested from what looks like a serious proposition at present.

The prevailing opinion at present is that the military demonstration of the Rio Grande is for a purpose somewhat similar that which precipitated the war with Spain. We can no more tolerate the perpetuation of guerilla war in one Spanish country than in another on our borders. The benign despotism that has for twenty-five years or more masqueraded as a republic in Mexico and which has depended on one man cannot in the natural order much longer depend. Diaz's strong hand has plainly lost its grip. The central government is nerveless. Mexico is nearer to us than Cuba, as near to us, in fact, as Canada. We have interests in t hat country amounting to nearly two billions of dollars. T he Rio Grande is a good place strategically for the army. The time must come when we will be able to send an army from Laredo, Eagle's Pass or El Paso by train direct to the ribbon strip that we own at Panama. Call it "manifest destiny or what you will, there is no getting around the fact that North America, including Canada with Great Britain behind her, must protect for her own safety and for the benefit of each and all, the Western Hemisphere.

Congress barely adjourned when an army of twenty thousand men was assembled on the Mexican border for what exact purpose the administration has not said. During the session representative orators were slurring the army and magnifying our defenseless condition. It was given out that Japan could land a quarter of a million of soldiers on the Pacific coast before we could get ten thousand there. In less than a week we assembled a completely equipped army of thirty-five thousand men more than half way on its journey to the Pacific slope, and there is no doubt that with the lines of railroad at our disposal we can in two weeks or less time place forty thousand men in a position to defend the three or four sensitive points of attack on our western litoral.

During the session of Congress which has just closed, there was incessant oratorical strife between the jingoists who sighted or imagined war's horrid front across the Pacific, and the peace prophets who predicted an era of calm with such sponsors as the Hague Tribunal and the Carnegie Peace Fund. The war heralds, of whom Congressman Hobson is the arch type, believe that we are on the verge of war with Japan, and Hon. Hobson even predicts that it will be precipitated before another year. Those who pipe the time of peace insist that this arranged for scare is mainly in the interest of contractors, the builders of warships and fortifications, and the purveyors of munitions of war.

The day before President Taft left for the South he had a long conference with the ex-Senator who before the 4th of March was known by the journalistic profession as the manager of the United States. Senator Aldrich came up from the southern resort where he has been for nearly two months and had a long conference at the White House. It cannot be doubted that the Aldrich financial bill was the subject of conversation. The enactment of this bill will revolutionize the banking system of the United States and it is thought by sound financiers establish the American babking industry on a high plane and solid foundation, making it the leading financial country of the world.

The traveling expenses of government officers and employes last year amounted to twelve millions of dollars, and President Taft has just sent a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury asking him to send to the economy commission all travel records for the last fiscal year for the purpose of tabulation and revision with a view to reduction and economy.

GRANGE AGAINST RECIPROCITY

The quarterly session of the Oswego County Pomona Grange was held in the State Armory in Oswego on Tuesday, and over two hundred delegates from the various Granges in the county were present. The morning session consisted principally of a business session followed by installation of officers elected at the annual meeting held in this city last December. Dinner was served in the mess hall at noon, after which the afternoon session convened. Music was rendered by the choir, followed by an address of welcome by Mrs. W. Wilber of the Hannibal Grange, to which F. E. Alexander, Master of Pomona, made a response.

State Lecturer S. J. Lowell was also present and delivered an address. Reports from the County Deputy W. H. Pollard, delegates to the State Grange and from officers of the Granges of the county were read. The meeting was concluded by the singing of the "Closing Song" by the choir. The new officers installed were: Master, F. E. Alexander, Pulaski; Overseer, Willard Wilbur, Hannibal; Lecturer, Mrs. Rosamond Hopper, Hannibal; Steward, F. D. Burgess, Phoenix; Assistant Steward, Haynes Snyder, Fulton, 3; Chaplain, Mrs. F. H. Stone, Sandy Creek; Treasurer, E. H. Benedict, Phoenix; Secretary, Mrs. Anna B. Weed, Orwell; Gatekeeper, Herman W. Kandt, Altmar; Ceres, Mrs. Jennie E. Jackson, Fulton, 4; Pomona, Mrs. F. E. Alexander, Pulaski; Flora, Mrs. Fannie Post, Fulton; L. A. S., Mrs. Anna Widric, Sandy Creek; County Deputy, W. J. Bradt, Hannibal.

The Grange adopted resolutions asking Congressman Mott to vote against reciprocity.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

Appraisal of the estate of Hiram Norton, Schroeppel, shows its net value to be $8,836.55, of which Gilbert Brundage, of Pennellville, a brother-in-law, gets $50, and Irving S. Norton, a son, of Pennellville, the rest.

The appraisal of the estate of Orin Wallace, Schroeppel, shows its net value to be $13,148.80. It all goes to members of his family.

FORCED TO LEAVE HOME

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Salamina, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It's surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup—all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

CORRESPONDENCE

Our former citizen W. J. Pentelow at Corona, Cal., is keeping very busy, he writes:

"I am gathering in the matter necessary to take to San Bernardino to advertise our city; have a car load of fruit, 375 boxes to arrange for exhibition. I have had painted two dozen cards, 20 x 30 in colors to show the advantages of Corona with none of the disadvantages. Also am having a few thousand folders for distribution. Will take three helpers with me to handle the boxes of fruit and help arrange them. I expect to remain during the entire week looking after the exhibit and advertising our little city. On of my cards says, 'Corona is the largest shipping point for lemons in the United States. Another, 'Corona has one of the finest water systems in Southern California, there are but two known springs in the United States that equals it in purity." (One of these is the Great Bear Spring at Fulton, N. Y.) Another reads, "seeing that man must live somewhere and can't live everywhere, why not be wise and select the place where he can live longest and happiest with the best possible conditions surrounding him." And so on with two dozen just such truthful sayings whereby we are striving to convince the thousands of tourists that our city is one of the very best on earth.

The almond trees have been in blossom for two weeks. My trees are nearly leaved out and very soon the peach and plum will be in blossom and then will follow the orange keeping the air constantly filled with their sweet perfume and giving life, pleasure and contentment to our people. The roses are now sending out new shoots which will soon contain the millions of buds and later beautiful blossoms. The glorious spring time which you will get small taste of several months later.

WARM IN FLORIDA

Dr. I C. Curtis, who with Mrs. Curtis, is spending until warm weather at their Winter home in Orange City, Fla., writes a friend in this city in part as follows:

"Your card came in due season and found us all pretty well, in fact, all well save myself and I am getting there as fast as is consistent with the trouble. I have had several dates with the alligators and moccasins that I have had to cancel, but hope that I may be able to make new ones with them in a short time. I just had to go out one day recently and guess I am no worse for the going, for the darkey came with an easy carriage and rowed me on the St. Johns river for several hours and I had the pleasure of shooting six moccasins and an alligator, the latter I have the skin of and when tanned will exhibit it to you when you call to see some of the hangings of my den. The weather here is delightful with the mercury ranging from eighty and a little more in the middle of the day and between fifty and sixty at night, and quite a breeze blowing from either the Gulf or the Ocean almost all of the time. A cloudless sky with no rain but three times since November makes it safe to plan picnics days in advance and not have to take into account what the weather may be. That which interests me most is the fact that the birds and squirrels that are quite in evidence in the town, are so tame that one feels that they know that no one has the heart to harm them, and one squirrel in particular seems to feel that I am his property, for he just keeps out of my reach so many times and then will scamper up some nearby tree and sit up and gnaw an acorn he has found on the ground."

Dr. Curtis has been in poor health all Winter and his many friends will be pleased to learn from his own pen of his improved health.

CAPT. JENNINGS STORY APPRECIATED

The following letter from Mr. R. B. McCully of New York City, a well known and popular former resident of Fulton, will be read with interest by his many friends who are subscribers to the Times. That Mr. McCully enjoyed Capt. O. J. Jennings story which ended with last week's issue of the Times, and which was written especially for the Times, is evidenced by his letter:

New York, March 11, 1911

Editor Times: I enclose herewith check in payment for subscription to March 11, 1912. Thanks for your very nice compliment as to my "youth, activity, and ability."

I did not know (till I read it in the Times) that I had been elected Colonel of Encampment No. 38 of the U. V. L. I was not present when the important honor was conferred. Did you get the information from a New York paper? Can you give me the address of Capt. O. J. Jennings? I want to give him a word of compliment for his very interesting story which has a good moral. Booker T. Washington would take time to read that story. R. B. McCully.

ATTORNEY BAKER POPULAR

The Hon. William B. Baker, ex-District Attorney of Oswego County, was the guest of the Eccentric Club of Gloversville, at their annual dinner at their clubhouse last week. Covers were laid for 150 and the Gloversville Morning Herald contains an account of Mr. Baker's address.

"The first speaker," says the Herald, "was William B. Baker, who responded to the toast 'Eccentricity.' In introducing the speaker, the toastmaster referred to his having formerly been the District Attorney of Oswego county and of the fact that all were glad that he had come to Gloversville to make his home."

Mr. Baker's remarks were of a very humorous nature and included roasts on various members. The speaker said that it was sometimes hard to see the dividing line between eccentricity and insanity, but that he thought that he had successfully figured the matter out in regard to those of whom he would speak. Mr. Baker's remarks greatly pleased the assemblage and were heartily applauded.

A Useful Coffin.

A writer in an English church magazine once found in a collier's cottage in Staffordshire a coffin used as a bread and cheese cupboard. Notwithstanding his wife's remonstrance, he told the story of the coffin as follows: "Eighteen years ago I ordered that coffin. The wife and me used to have a good many words. One day she said, 'I'll never be content till I see thee in thy coffin.' 'Well, lass,' I said, 'if that'll content thee it'll soon be done.'

"Next day I gave directions to have the thing made. In a few days it came home, to the wife's horror. I got into it and said, 'Now, lass, are thee content?' She began to cry and wanted the 'beerid thing' taken away. But that I wouldn't allow. In the end she got accustomed to seeing it, and as we wanted to turn it to some use we had some shelves put in and made it into a bread and cheese cupboard. We have never quarreled since it came."

Circulating Libraries.

Long before the Revolution a young printer in Philadelphia when he had taken off his working apron at night used to sit poring over his dozen of old volumes by firelight. He soon knew them by heart and hungered for more. But books were costly, and he had but little money. He had eight or ten cronies, young men who, like himself, were eager for knowledge. Hugging his books on a shelf, he invited his friends to do the same, that each of them might have the benefit of them all. Ben Franklin thus laid the foundation of the first circulating library in this country.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Their Effect In the First Theaters In Which They Were Used.

The first theater in the world to use incandescent lamps was the Academy of Music on Halstead street, Chicago, the plant being installed by the Western Edison Light company. The theater was wired for 150 sixteen candle power lamps. The lighting was confined to the auditorium. No electric lights were used on the stage, as dimmers had not been thought of at that time. On the opening night, after the new lights were installed, the actors struck, claiming that it was impossible to make up by gaslight and play their parts under the glare of the electric lights. It was with difficulty that they were persuaded to proceed with the second act.

The first theater to be completely lighted with incandescent lamps was the old Haverly theater, then located on Monroe street, where the Inter Ocean building now stands. This plant consisted of two dynamos with a capacity of 637 lamps. On the opening night only sufficient lights were started at first to enable the ushers to seat the audience. When the curtain rose every light was turned on, causing a tremendous sensation among the audience and eliciting applause that continued for fifteen minutes. The innovation was so successful that McVicker's theater and the Chicago Opera House immediately installed similar plants.—W. C. Jenkins in National Magazine.

BIRTH OF A WING.

Evolution of the Aquatic Pupa Into the Dragon Fly.

Says a writer in the Scientific American: "A wonderful spectacle is presented by the sudden apparition of an insect's wing at the completion of its metamorphosis. The transformation of the grub into the butterfly, though familiar, is none the less amazing, but the evolution of the active and gossamer winged dragon fly from its ugly and sluggish aquatic pupa is still more impressive. Early on a May morning the pupa emerges from its cocoon at the bottom of a ditch, swims on its back by paddling with its long haired paws to the stem of an aquatic plant and climbs up out of the water. Then, after a momentary pause, the skin suddenly bursts open and the perfect insect appears, with closely folded wings, which soon unfold and assume their final form.

"The older naturalists thought that the insect swallowed air, with which the wings were inflated. In reality the air is absorbed in the digestive organs, causing an increased blood pressure, which mechanically expands the wings. The presence of dew is also necessary; hence the first flight is always made at dawn.

"This spectacle of the birth of a wing may be observed in dragon flies reared in an aquarium, the atmosphere of which should be moistened with an atomizer when the pupa rises to the surface."

A Request.

"I shall never forget," says the eminent man of wealth during the course of his little speech on "How to Become as I Am," "I shall never forget how I saved my first hundred dollars."

At this juncture a weary individual in the audience, who has heard this story many times and has read it many times more, interrupts:

"Well, if you can't forget it, for heaven's sake give the rest of us a chance to."—Chicago Post.

A DENTAL CURIOSITY.

The Set of Artificial Teeth That Washington Endured.

It may not be generally known that the Father of His Country was one of the first Americans to wear artificial teeth. By the time the war of the Revolution had ended he had parted company with most of the outfit which nature had given him. An ingenious physician and dentist of New York city undertook the then unusual task of re-equipment and produced at length a full set of artificial teeth. These are now, of course, a dental curiosity and offer an additional proof of the heroism of our first president, for it is a matter of fact that General Washington wore those teeth for many years and, so far as we know, never complained of them.

The teeth were carved from ivory and riveted, wired and clamped to a somewhat ponderous gold plate. Three large clamps in particular figure conspicuously in the roof of the mouth and must have caused difficulty, if not anguish. There were an upper and an under set, and the two were connected and held in position relatively by a long spiral spring on each side, says Harper's Weekly.

Nevertheless Washington wore them long and well, a fact sufficiently attested by the worn and dilated condition of both teeth and plate.

At the last account these teeth were the property of a dental institution in Baltimore.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

about wiring are not generally understood. Many people, comfortably settled in their homes, want electricity but do without it because they dread "tearing the house to pieces." This notion is altogether a mistake. Houses that are occupied are being wired every day with so litile disturbance to the family that the work is done before they know it. Modern methods have displaced the old bungling way, and any house can readily be wired. Now is the time to arrange for it. Let us furnish you an estimate for the work.

Mrs. O. C. Breed has invited about thirty ladies to take tea with her this Wednesday evening at her home in First street. The out-of-town guests who will be present are Mesdames David Page, Belle Post, D. D. Long, Charles Lindsay, O. S. Osterhout and A. F. McCarthy of Oswego.

The work of cleaning the Winters accumulation of frozen filth from First street was commenced on Monday and will be prosecuted until we once more see the paved streets in the business section. The work is heartily approved by all who have occasion to traverse the streets in question.

The Misses Barbara Gilbert and Emma Crockett will give a farewell dinner party on March 25, to Miss Louise Stranahan, who leaves with her parents early in April to make her home abroad. There will be ten young ladies at the dinner which will be served at Miss Gilbert's home in Academy street.

Elizabeth Chapter, O. E. S., will give a dancing party in Church's Hall on Thursday evening, March 23. The entertainment committee is composed of Mrs. George Gardner, Mrs. C. A. Gilkey, Miss Hazel Guile, Messrs. Ber VanBuren, J. W. Murray, C. A. Gilkey and George Gardner. Music will be furnished by the Webb orchestra. Tickets, $1; extra ladies, 15c each. A very delightful time is anticipated and the event will undoubtedly be liberally patronized.

The February meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held Monday, the 13th, at the home of Mrs. McKinstry. After the opening exercises and business hour Mrs. Harvie gave her topic: English, Hawkins and Drake, which was very interesting. Mrs. Goodjon followed, her subject being American, Lewis and Clark, and was listened to with marked attention. Delicious refreshments were served and they adjourned to meet with Mrs. Harvie on April tenth.

Mr. Clyde Fenn, the young vocalist from Syracuse, who delighted the audiences at both services on a recent Sunday, at the Baptist church, will again be heard in baritone solos, at the Home Talent Entertainment to be given at the Baptist church on Wednesday evening of this week.

Dr. F. Ross Haviland, son of Dr. N. H. Haviland of this city, was on Wednesday last promoted to Second Assistant Physician at the Manhattan State Hospital of New York The position is the same as second superintendent. This is very gratifying to the many friends of Dr. Haviland in this city

Major Hendershot, the famous "Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock" and his son assisted by first class local talent will appear in the grand Camp Fire Entertainment in charge of the Bay Scouts at the First Methodist church April 7. One number, in which the Major uses the Horace Greely Drum, is the imitation of a battle, the picket firing, the attack, the rattle of the musketry, roar of cannon, bursting of a shell, and the charge.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c., including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

INTERNATIONAL TUBERCULOSIS CONGRESS

Committee of 100 United States Representatives Named—Special Exhibit at Rome in September

Word was received today from the headquarters of the Seventh Triennial International Congress on Tuberculosis at Rome that an American Committee of one hundred members of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis has been appointed, and that preparations have been made for the special participation of the United States in the exhibition of Social Hygiene which will be held under the auspices of the Congress. The dates of the Congress are from September 24th to 30th, but the Exhibition will probably open on June 1st and will continue until February 28, 1912.

The American Committee of One Hundred has been selected from practically every state in the United States. In addition to this commitee it is expected that the Federal Government will also send official representatives to the Congress and probably several of the states will take similar action. The headquarters of the American Committee are in the office of the National Association, New York City.

The Exhibition of Social Hygiene will be the greatest of its kind that has ever been assembled. Among the different sections of the Exhibition are those on tuberculosis, general prophylaxis, history of the hygienic movement, and the prevention of disease in general. The Exhibition will cover a large area fronting Piazza Cavour. The authorities in charge of the exhibition are planning to set aside a separate pavilion for the United States exhibits provided these are numerous enough. All of the 500 state and local anti-tuberculosis committees allied with the National Association will be asked to contribute to this exhibition. Other bodies engaged in the campaign against preventable disease and for the betterment of public health will also be asked to contribute. The committee in charge of the exhibition has extended the time for the reservation of space until March 31st and the time for the receipt of material to June 30th.

Committees similar to the one appointed in the United States have been designated in over thirty different countries and representatives at the Congress will be present from every civilized section of the world. The exhibition and Congress will be part of a general celebration extending over several months, to commemorate the founding of Italian liberty. The entire movement will be held under the patronage of the King and Queen of Italy.

Any inquiries concerning application for membership in the Congress and space in the exhibition should be addressed to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East 22d street, New York city.

WOMEN HELPED

By Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for Kidneys and Liver.

Disorders of women are the result of general bodily weakness. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a strength builder and for women it has proved of great value. Thousands testify to this. A sick woman almost always has kidney trouble, which causes pain in the back, headache, nervousness and other distressing symptoms. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy helps the Kidneys and Liver to act properly, purifies the blood and gently moves the bowels, striking at the cause of Kidney, Liver, Blood and Bladder troubles.

For over 35 years it has enjoyed steady and merited success, for it is an honest remedy and has stood the test of time. Write Dr. David Kennedy Co., Rondout, N. Y. for a free sample bottle and valuable medical booklet. Large bottle $1.00 at all druggists.

A PLEASANT PHYSIC

When you want a pleasant physic give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial. They are mild and gentle in their action and always produce a pleasant cathartic effect. Call at any drug store for a free sample.

TROUBLE BREWING

Three instead of two Democratic Inspectors met on Thursday morning at the Division street hose house ready for the days work. F. J. Costello, Fred Garrett and John Reavy had been notified to appear and they did so. Chairman of the election board, C. H. Hulett, ruled that Garrett and Reavy were eligible to serve and so instructed them.

Just here the rumpus started which will be rather far reaching in the Third ward it is rumored. Last Fall Reavy and Costello were the regularly appointed inspectors but Costello was called out of town and could not serve, although he did not resign, and Garrett was substituted. Now Costello claims that he has a prior right to the job and he shall file a bill for services with the City Clerk. If the city does not pay the bill he will sue in City Court for the amount.

ELKS ELECT OFFICERS

Fulton Lodge, B. P. O. of Elks held their annual meeting recently and elected the following officers:

Exalted ruler, L. A. Richardson; leading knight, E. P. Cole; loyal knight, Ray Pollard; lecturing knight, John Painter; trustee for 3 years, M. A. Stranahan; secretary, William P. Hillick; treasurer, George Johnston; delegate to national convention, G. M. Fanning; alternate delegate, Fred G. Spencer.

Following the election a social session was held at which a Dutch lunch was served by Mayor J. H. Conners, William Moon and J. M. Caffrey.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggists.

That Mexican revolution is becoming almost as "amposing" as a French duel.

CERTIFIED MILK

Hon. N. N. Stranahan was the pioneer in this section of the State in the matter of supplying certified milk to consumers. The fact that he charged a few cents per quart more for the commodity than did the milk vendors for theirs, prevented the project becoming a success and the cause practically died a'borning. Within a few brief months after Fulton lost the splendid opportunity to secure the very best milk for infants and invalids, it would seem, that every city in the United States took up the cry for certified milk and an agitation was started that will not down.

The following editorial from the New York Tribune of recent date is very apt at this time:

The problem of a pure milk supply is a growing one in the United States. Like many other problems, it arises from the increase in number and sizes of our centers of population. A fresh evidence of this fact is indicated by what Philadelphia is doing to improve the quality of its milk. New York city has long been studying how to insure an ample supply of good quality of that perishable article of food. Last summer our Pennsylvania neighbor recognized the importance of raising the standard. Following a meeting in his office, the Mayor appointed a commission to study the subject, naming experts in hygiene, sanitation, dietetics, chemistry, bacteriology and the diseases of cattle. Serving without financial recompense, they have recently finished their investigation, which is expected to have two results. Indifferent dairymen who desire to continue to sell milk in Philadelphia will be obliged to raise their standard of production. The consumer will have to pay more for the improved product and better service.

Probably these results will be secured no more easily in Philadelphia than in New York, for the careless dairyman finds it difficult to understand why he should change his methods, and the consumer, ignorant of the peculiar problems involved in supplying him with wholesome milk every day, too often objects to paying a higher price. Without attempting to settle the question as to the reasonableness of any particular price, it is to be said, commonplace as the remark may be, that the producer ought to recognize the right of the public to a pure article and the consumer ought to concede the producer's right to a fair profit. Few persons stop to consider what is involved in the delivery every morning of an ample supply of fresh milk in the metropolitan district of New York, to take an illustration, more than five million persons expect to be served daily with an article of food which is so perishable that it must be produced within a certain radius of its market and delivered by a highly organized system of transportation. Weather conditions affect not only the supply but also the demand. The dealer must be prepared to meet the daily fluctuations at a few hours' notice. Such a service is costly.

No community can afford to neglect a proper supervision of the production and distribution of milk, for perhaps there is no other article of food which so closely concerns the public health. It is well that more consideration is everywhere being given to the question of quality. It is unfortunate, however, that it sometimes requires an epidemic to arouse a community to action.

Fulton's milk supply has been for a few years past considered second to none in this section of the State but the same care cannot be exercised in its handling at 7c per quart as could be exercised if the price was higher. It is reported that in the county of Onondaga that no more than 5 per cent. of the cows supplying milk to the consumers have even been tuberculin tested. In this city practically all milk vendors supply milk from tuberculin tested cattle and great care is exercised by Milk Inspector Kennedy that the fluid be safeguarded in every way from contamination.

The day of certified milk is surely coming and Fulton will yet fall into line in a demand for it.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A BRIEF SYNOPSIS

The legislation that might have been is as usual the swelling theme of the Congress which expired on the 4th of March. All Congresses open with thrilling programs. Legislation is needed. "The world moves," as Galileo said, but Congress does not move with it. The parcels post bill has not been passed. The big Texas Senator objected to it about midnight in the midst of a filibuster, and that killed it. Many other urgent measures have failed even to receive attention. Public interests pine. The lobby is as ever active and insistent, making theirs appear the people's fight. It is a rude awakening to our national egotism to learn that the countries that we have so long referred to as effete despotisms are most pliable through their sensitive governments to the interests of the people than is our own complicated and clumsy legislative incumberance. For the last week in Congress there had been almost continuous night and day sessions with sleepy legislators pulling and scrapping at cross purposes in an endeavor to make political and personal capital. Few of them are representatives in any large sense of the whole people. Most of them represent first themselves, their private fortunes and ambitions, or at most provincial rather than national interests. There are, of course some Senators and Members of larger mold and completer preparation for legislative work, but they are without sufficient influence on the legislative mass and, unfortunately, some of those who ar best equipped with intellect and experience, as, for example, the big Texas Senator, have influence in national affairs that is retrogressive and malign.

During the past session President Taft has risen in public estimation. His promptness and his good-humored intention to carry out reforms and confirm broad national policies have impressed the country. His Cabinet is one of the strongset and most efficient in national history. The accomplishment of the young Postmaster General in saving eleven millions of dollars in postal expenses is solid and brilliant, and if Congress were responsible to the efforts of the Postmaster General, this savnig could easily be doubled, but there it is again—the Texas obstacle. The Postmaster General is in a fight to a finish with the magazines in a determination to increase postage rates on advertising matter. He is supported by the President, who told the magazine men in a recent interview that his contention for an increased rate on second class postage had only begun, and that they must expect to face the issue in the next Congress. The President said further that the United States had spent a quarter of a million of dollars investigating the subject, and that in view of this fact the demand of the magazine men for an investigation was unnecessary; a very thorough investigation had been made by the men who know most about the postoffice department, and that he, the President, would follow their recommendation. "The question we have to decide," said the President, "is whether there is a burden growing out of second class mail, and then who increases that burden beyond the government receipts. There has been a suggestion in those friendly advertisements I have seen covering whole pages, that the motive of Mr. Hitchcock and myself is to get even with somebody. Well, a man who has ordinary common sense does not seek the continued hostility of an interest as powerful as the magazines. He only goes into a fight of this kind from a sense of duty."

"I am going ahead with it as long as I am in office. You may be able to defeat the present proposal. These things are frequently capable of defeat for a time. But as long as I have the power, I am going to recommend the consideration of this question until it is settled. It is not in the slightest spirit of hostility to the magazines that I have made this recommendation."

Like some eminent gentlemen in Congress, the prophetic ground hog is more or less liable to get his dates mixed.

February 25, 1911.

Mr. Joseph H. Conners,
Mayor of City of Fulton,
Fulton, N. Y.,

Dear Sir: The Fulton Savings Bank would like to sell to the City of Fulton the screen and desk connected with the same now in its office at 59 S. First street, and proposes to make such sale for the sum of Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00), you to take possession of the property on March 20th.

However, we would like to have your acceptance of this offer not later than March 4th and will give you an option on it at that price until that date, but not wish to hold the offer open longer than that as we wish to look for another customer if you do not accept the offer.

Very truly yours,
Wm. J. Lovejoy,
Treasurer.

Referred to office committee.

Alderman Palmer introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized to execute and deliver to George J. Foster a certificate of indebtedness of the city of Fulton in the sum of $39.80 and interest from the 7th day of March, 1911, payable on or before March 1st, 1912, in payment of the amount agreed upon between the said George J. Foster and the Board of Public Works of the City of Fulton to be paid in settlement according to the terms and provisions of a certain agreement made and executed by said George J. FOR DISEASES OF THE SKIN

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barber's itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the aching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

Trees and Wind.

The effect of wind upon trees is powerful. Even the presence or absence of forests may be determined by the character of the prevailing wind or the conditions that modify it. The wind acts as a drying agent, giving a special aspect to many plants. When it is almost always from the same quarter the plants show greater development upon one side. Trees are smaller on the windward edges of forests, and trunks and branches are bent to leeward. The deformations are most marked near the sea or in dat regions. The cherry, plum, walnut, black poplar, ash and certain pines are very sensitive to the wind, but mountain pines and certain firs offer great powers of resistance, and these are recommended for reforesting wind swept lands.

Small Eyes.

In China small eyes are liked, and the girls are continually plucking their eyebrows to get them small and long.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Fulton, N. Y., March 9, 1911.

Meeting of the Common Council to sell franchise for the distribution of electricity.

Present — Mayor Conners, Aldermen Palmer, Johnson, Smith, Wolcott and Newton.

Absent—Alderman Malone.

The clerk read the notice of sale of franchise.

City Attorney Fanning read the franchise and bids were called for.

Attorney White representing the Oswego River Power Transmission Company bid Two Thousand Dollars for the franchise, no other bids were offered.

Alderman Wolcott introduced the following and moved its adoption:

Whereas, The Common Council did on the 20th day of February pass a resolution granting a franchise for the distribution of electricity within the City of Fulton, providing that said franchise be sold at public sale to the highest bidder on the 9th day of March at 8 o'clock p. m., and

Whereas, The Board of Public Works by resolution duly adopted on the 20th day of February, 1911, fixed the sum which in its judgment would be a fair compensation to the city for such franchise, viz., the sum of $2,000. The sale of said franchise having been duly advertised as required by the Charter of the City of Fulton, be it

Resolved, That the said franchise be, and the same is hereby sold to Oswego River Power Transmission Company for the sum $2,000 that being the highest sum bid therefor and that the Mayor be, and he is hereby authorized to execute such franchise in the form provided by such resolution, for and on behalf of the City of Fulton, and to affix the seal of said city thereto, to be attested by the City Clerk, and to deliver the same to the said Oswego River Power Transmission Company upon payment of the said sum of $2,000 and filing with the City Clerk the bond provided for in paragraph 17 within 3 days from the date of such sale as provided for in said resolution.

Ego.

An ego is a Latinized I. All men are created egos and endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable somethings of which neither statute, ukase, edict, injunction, beggar, magnate, book agent nor promoter can deprive them. He who steals my purse steals trash, but he who filches from me my ego takes that of which he already has enough and makes me not at all.

Women without votes have egos and, strangely enough, would still have them if they secured the votes; hence egos are not a political issue.

An ego is what a man is when he has nothing and is nothing else; that is to say, he is then first person singular and no particular gender.

An ego is neither soul, body, spirit, family, country nor race. It is neither moral nor pathological. A criminal has just as much ego as a parson and no more. Some egos are better than others, chiefly our own.—Life.

HE FINALLY GOT WARM.

A Writer's Indoor Experience on a Cold Night in Bordeaux.

What beautiful sunshine we had at Bordeaux, and how nice and warm it was in the daytime! As long as the sun kept out it was lovely; but, oh, when the sun went down!

They gave gave me a beautiful, large, lofty room at the hotel with doors and windows all over it. After dinner I went up to try to write, and then I found that Siberia had come again. I put great logs of wood upon the fire and blew them with the bellows till the flames roared up the chimney, but still I shivered in the icy blasts that blew through every crevice. I put on my ulster, I dragged the blankets from the bed. I ran races around the room and practiced the Indian clubs with a heavy portmanteau in each hand, but still I felt my blood congealing, and the horrors of the early morning came back again.

In this dilemma my companion's Sudan experiences stood us in good stead. He was with Gordon in the expedition of 1876-7. He took our walking sticks and umbrellas, and with these and the blankets and the rugs he rigged up a nice, comfortable tent in front of the fire.

Sitting in this tent in our big room we at last got warm, and my fingers were able to hold a pen.—George R. Sims in "Dagonet Abroad."

A Disguised Toast.

At one time the officers under Lord Howe refused to drink his health at their mess, for, though a splendid admiral, he was not popular in the navy on account of a certain shyness and what of fact with those about him. The chaplain, who was a protege of his lordship, was mortified at this and determined that the officers should drink to Lord Howe. When called upon for a toast one day he said, "Well, gentlemen, I can think of nothing better at this moment than to ask you to drink the first two words of the Third Psalm, for a Scriptural toast for once may be taken from one of my cloth." The toast was drunk. Not one of the officers indicated by word or look that he was ignorant of the words alluded to. On referring to the Bible it was found that the Third Psalm begins, "Lord, how are they increased?"

He Was Not Laconic.

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells the story of the statesman's examination for admission to Oxford university when he was a youth. The examiner, having utterly failed to floor the candidate on some point of theology, said, "We will now leave that part of the subject." "No, sir," replied the candidate; "if you please, we will not leave it yet," and proceeded to pour forth a fresh stream. The dean in Mr. Gladstone's day was Gaisford, famous among other things for his trenchant brevity. "This laconic gift," observes Mr. Morley slyly, "the dean evidently had not time to transmit to all of his flock."

On Pa.

"My son," said Harkaway, as he pointed to the ivy in front of the cottage, "always be like the vine—climb."

The little boy was thoughtful.

"I don't think I'd want to be like that vine," he responded seriously.

"And why not, Tommy?"

"'Cause if I was I'd be a porch climber."—Chicago News.

He Got the Raise.

"You want more money? Why, my boy, I worked three years for $11 a month right in this establishment and now I'm owner of it."

"Well, you see what happened to your boss. No man who treats his help that way can hang on to his business."—Chicago Record-Herald.

DEATHS

The death of Mary, aged 44, wife of Mr. Jacob O'Brien, occurred on Thursday night at the home in West Fourth street. The funeral services were held from the Catholic church and interment was made in St. Mary's. The members of Kiowa Council attended the funeral in a body.

Word was received in Fulton last week of the death of Mrs. Azariah Sawyer, widow of the late Judge Sawyer, which occurred at the home in Chatham, N. J. The deceased was a daughter of the late Edward Fox of this city and is well known to many of our residents. The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. F. C. Pichborne of Chatham.

Arthur M. Bidwell, aged 61, and for 25 years a resident of this vicinity, died on Friday at the Lee Memorial hospital where he was taken on the Monday previous, following a stroke of paralysis sustained at his room in the Lewis House. The funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Tibbitts, the Rev. J. G. York officiating, and burial was made in Mt. Adnah. One son, Howard Bidwell of Syracuse survives.

The death of Libbie, aged 59, wife of Mr. Lincoln C. Battles, occurred on Monday at the home in Third street. The funeral services will be held this Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock and burial will be made in Mt. Adnah. The immediate survivors are the husband, one daughter, Mrs. Minnie Thompson of Clay; five sons, George of North Volney, Thomas, Fred, Lloyd and Howard of this city; also by two sisters, Mrs. Letty Wright of this city and Mrs. Fred Thompson of Volney, and one brother, George Bracy of New Haven.

AN ARCTIC DELICACY.

Eskimo Soup Would Hardly Tickle Refined Palates.

Kane and Dr. Hayes, the first white men—apart from an occasional whaler—to visit the Eskimos, found some difficulty in accommodating themselves to local customs. In "The Toll of the Arctic Seas" D. M. Edwards quotes Hayes' account of his first visit to a native hut. After a cordial welcome he was pressed to eat.

"This," says Hayes, "was an invitation which I feared, but now that it had come I knew that it would be unwise to decline it. The expression of thanks was one of the few in their language that I knew, and I made the most of this. They laughed heartily when I said koyeunk in reply to their invitation, and immediately a not very beautiful young damsel poured some of the contents of the pots into a skin dish, and, after sipping it to make sure, as I supposed, that it was not too hot, passed it to me over a group of heads. At first my courage forsook me, but all eyes were fixed upon me, and it would have been highly impolite to shrink. I therefore shut my eyes, held my nose, swallowed the dose and retired. I was told afterward that it was their greatest delicacy—a soup made by boiling together blood, oil and seal intestines."

"Three Sheets in the Wind."

"What was the origin of the phrase for drunkenness, 'three sheets in the wind?'" a landsman asked a sailor the other day. "Well," said the sailor, "I'll explain that matter to you. The two lower corners of a ship's sail are held taut by two ropes, one called a tack and another called a sheet. The tack is always kept very tight, but the sheet is loosened according to the wind, and the looser the sheet is the more freely the sail swings. If the sail is quite free its sheet is said to be 'in the wind.' Now, suppose that all three of a ship's sails were quite free. They would then fly about very crazily, and the ship would wabble. The course of the ship would be a zigzag one, and the reason for this would be that she had 'three sheets in the wind.' That, I guess, is why a man when he zigzags in his course is said to be 'three sheets in the wind' also."

Worse Than Hard Words.

"Why did you kill your parrot? The poor bird meant nothing by its profanity."

"I could stand its profanity, but it learned to imitate the lawn mower last summer."—Washington Herald.

Prayer carries us halfway to God, fasting brings us to the door of his palace, and almsgiving procures us admission.—Koran.

The Beginning.

"How many stars can you see?" she asked.

"Two more than you," he said.

"How do you make that out?" she asked.

"I can see your eyes," he said.

And that was the beginning of it all.

RULE OF THE ROAD.

Decided Abroad by the Sword and Here by the Gun.

Several travelers were seated in the hotel lobby discussing the difference in customs of the various countries they had visited. "What struck me as most peculiar abroad," said one, "is the custom of keeping to the left instead of the right, as we do here. Why is the rule reversed?"

"I think I can explain that," said a reserved looking man in the corner. "In medieval and later periods abroad men were in the custom of wearing swords. The sword was worn, as it is now, on the left side. Consequently in drawing their weapon it was done with the right hand, and to get quickly upon guard a man had to have his right side to his opponent; hence the custom of keeping to the left.

"In America when every man carried his life in his hand on account of savage Indians all men carried guns. The easiest and most natural way to carry a gun, either afoot or mounted, is over the left arm with the muzzle pointed outward, and it takes but a very slight movement to throw the butt against the right shoulder. For that reason the early settlers kept to the right of the road so their weapon could in readily be brought to bear on any mark that was necessary."—Philadelphia Times.

Worth Her Weight in Butter.

Curious customs still prevail with regard to marriage. In some parts of Uganda the custom is to offer six needles and a pack of India rubber for a wife. Some of the Kaffirs sacrifice oxen. The Tartars of Turkestan give the weight of the prospective wife in butter. In Kamchatka the price varies from one to ten reindeer. Some savages require a certain amount of labor. Among the aborigines it is said the current rate for a wife is a box of matches, which prompted a Paris contemporary to speculate whether one of the French government boxes would be accepted.

Genius and Goodness.

I have had sometimes to mine the gloved and white palm of the upper class and the heavy black hand of the lower class and have recognized that both are but of men. After all these have passed before me I say that humanity has a synonym equality and that under heaven there is but one thing we ought to bow to, genius, and the only thing before which we ought to kneel, goodness.—Victor Hugo.

Swell Set Credentials.

Mrs. De Butt (making out a list of invited guests for dinner)—Can you think of any others?

Mrs. Von Setter—There is Mrs. Kumbac.

Fulton Savings Bank

FULTON'S PROGRESSIVE BANK AT HOME IN NEW BUILDING SATURDAY

This bank was incorporated by special act of the State Legislature passed March 29, 1871, naming Messrs. Sands N. Kenyon, George M. Cass, John W. Pratt, Willis S. Nelson, Charles G. Bacon, William D. Pattison, John Harroun, Calvin Osgood, Morris S. Kimball, Willard Johnson, Benjamin J. Dwyer, Stephen Parker, John C. Wells, Amos Dean, H. B. Merriam, Ira Carrier, Henry N. Somers, Hiram Bradway, William Dexter, Abraham Howe and James H. Town-send as its first trustees, of whom the only one living at the present time is Mr. Willis S. Nelson, who is still an active member of its board.

Messrs. Emery S. Pardee, Abram Emerick, James Morrow, Reuben Bradshaw, Ezra S. Hogeland, Francis Stiles, Henry E. Nichols and Fred A. Emerick have also served as trustees, but all are deceased except Mr. Fred A. Emerick, who on moving to Oswego, resigned.

The bank was opened for business on September 25, 1871, in the building at the northeast corner of Oneida and Second streets (now occupied by The Fulton Patriot), where it continued to do business for seventeen years. A building was then erected at No. 59 South First street, which the bank has occupied over twenty-two years, but the business having now outgrown these accommodations the handsome and commodious structure at the northeast corner of First and Rochester streets has been built.

The new building is of "tapestry" brick with granite stucco base and with stucco ornaments on front and sides. The style of architecture is Classic Greek.

It is designed as an individual bank building and the banking office is lighted from the sides by six large windows, each seven feet wide by thirteen feet high, the room being thirty-four feet square and sixteen feet high, making a very light, roomy office on the ground floor and much easier of access than the former office. In the front corner toward Rochester street is a room designed exclusively for the use of our customers. Those who wish to write a letter, to have a business consultation, and especially those from out of the city who wish to rest or wait for friends, particularly women with children, will find it very convenient.

With the exception of one room reserved by the bank for the meeting of its trustees, the second floor will be occupied by the law firm of Piper, Rice & Pendergast.

The security vault is built of granite concrete with heavy five-ply laminated steel bars, only three inches apart, bedded in the center of the concrete on all six sides. In addition to this, the vault is protected by Electro-Thermostatic Vault Protection installed by the Electric Bank Protection Company of New York. The electric burglar-alarm makes the vault absolutely burglar-proof. The moment an attempt is made to drill, cut or burn an opening at any point in the vault, a large eighteen-inch gong on the outside of the building is rung and all on the electric lights are turned on. The entire vault is lined with double steel plates and between these plates is the electro-thermostatic lining. It is operated with both open and closed circuit and will also sound the alarm in case of heat of a fire coming in contact with the wires. This is the most modern and effective vault and safe protection and is absolutely indefeasible, no vault or safe protected by this system ever having been successfully burglarized. This protection is far ahead of the old style steel lining as there is nothing a burglar so much fears as of making noise that will alarm the neighborhood.

In addition to a first-class vault, with the most modern protection, this bank carries burglar insurance to protect it against any possible loss, either by burglars or a daylight holdup.

This bank is a member of the American Bankers Association that employs the most skillful detectives in the country to protect its members.

The building is next door to the police station and a person standing in the station can overlook the banking office.

Since its organization, the bank has credited its depositors with dividends amounting to the handsome sum of $733,108.32.

It has been conservatively managed and has always aimed to pay the best possible dividend to depositors, consistent with perfect safety. The rate has been four per cent. on all deposits since October 1, 1907. At the same time a good increase of surplus has been made. The law requires New York State Savings Banks to invest their money in first real estate mortgages in this state and in the highest grade of bonds. They cannot loan money on notes, chattel mortgages or personal security.

New York State Savings Banks have no stock and the profits all belong to the depositors, but the trustees may set aside "a surplus fund for the security of the depositors, which to the amount of fifteen per cent. of its deposits, the trustees of any such corporation may gradually accumulate and hold."

The law says that no trustee of a New York State Savings Bank "shall have any interest, direct or indirect, in the gains or profits thereof or receive any pay or emolument for his services." Except to "trustees acting as officers of the same whose duties require and receive their regular and faithful attendance at the institution" and for some special service allowed by law they "may receive such compensation as in the opinion of a majority of the Board of Trustees shall be just and reasonable; but such majority shall be exclusive of any trustee to whom such compensation shall be voted."

The following table shows the growth of deposits for about ten year periods from January 1, 1872, three months after the bank opened for business to the present time:

January 1, 1872	$ 27,739.07
January 1, 1881	121,326.78
January 1, 1891	312,781.60
January 1, 1901	877,983.66
January 1, 1911	1,750,008.48

The bank has done much to encourage the building of dwellings in Fulton, and has helped many a family to own their own home.

It has loaned $2,443,110.88 on eighteen hundred and fifty-two mortgages since it commenced business, almost all of which has been loaned on property within a radius of twenty-five miles of its office.

On January 1, 1911, it held eight hundred and fifty-six mortgages, amounting to $1,149,902.29.

The present officers are: Arvin Rice, president; George G. Chauncey, vice president; Joshua W. Rigley, second vice president; William J. Loveloy, treasurer; H. Putnam Allen, secretary; Giles S. Piper, attorney; Harry L. Stout, teller.

FOREIGN MISSIONARY JUBILEE

Woman's National Foreign Missionary Jubilee to be Fittingly Observed in Fulton—Earnest Women Interested in Programme.

All evangelical churches will join in a celebration of organized foreign missionary work, it being the fiftieth anniversary of woman's work in the foreign field. The public are cordially invited to attend all these services on Friday, March 29, and it is hoped that the men will lend encouragement in these meetings, especially by participating in the evening service. At this time, Miss Helen B. Calder of Boston, Associate Secretary of the Woman's Board of Missions of the Congregational church who is one of the platform speakers of the Jubilee movement, will speak. She cannot fail to arouse and enkindle enthusiasm and interest.

The programme follows:

Afternoon session, Mrs. Charles Olmstead, presiding.
Opening hymn.
Scripture reading.
Prayer.
Hymn.
"Story of the Jubilee", Mrs. Charles L. Peck.
Five minute reports of the work of women under Denominational Boards from representatives of the following churches: Baptist, Mrs. C. W. Streeter; Congregational, Mrs. F. J. Switzer; Episcopalian, Mrs. W. H. Cushman; First Methodist, Mrs. V. W. Shattuck; State Street Methodist, Mrs. J. Mahlerwein; Free Methodist, Mrs. W. E. Sitzer; Presbyterian, Mrs. G. C. Webb.
Hymn.
Service of intercession led by Mrs. Theressa A. Brown.
Jubilee Offering.
Hymn.
5:30 Luncheon followed by toasts. Miss Alice M. Gardner presiding.
Evening session 8 o'clock, First Methodist church, Mrs. Charles Olmstead presiding.
Praise service.
Responsive reading.
Prayer.
Solo, Mrs. J. G. York.
Address, Miss Helen B. Calder.
Closing Hymn.
Benediction.
Miss Blanche Hall, organist.
Miss Alta Thompson, director.

NEW SHOE FIRM.

The shoe firm of Wells & Beckwith has gone out of existence and in its stead is the new firm of Livingston & Beckwith. The business is to be conducted in the store in the Bradshaw block formerly occupied by the old firm. An entirely new stock of boots, shoes, rubbers and hosiery has been purchased and the formal opening will take place on Saturday, Mar. 25, at which time they make a most liberal offer to customers as will be noted in their display advertisement appearing in another page.

Mr. Livingston, the senior member, is a Fulton man, having resided here all his life up to twenty years ago. He has interests in the Cobalt district which he will retain, although he will give his personal attention to his shoe business, in which he is not a novice.

Mr. Beckwith, the junior member, has been a resident of Fulton for three years. He has proven himself careful, practical man; a careful and conservative buyer and an honest salesman. He has made for himself many friends throughout this section who will learn with pleasure that he is to remain in Fulton and continue in the shoe business. The new firm starts off under most auspicious circumstances and with the very best wishes of a large circle of friends.

BENEFIT FOR GIRLS' HOME.

Ladies of the W. C. T. U. Plan Delightful Evening of Reading and Song for Fulton Residents—Prof. Tilroe Will Give Paul Laurence Dunbar's Best Efforts.

This Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian church Prof. Tilroe of Syracuse University will give a Dunbar recital in his inimitable manner. Prof. Tilroe is one of the finest readers of the day and Fulton is indeed fortunate that she can hear him as his time is very full with his University work and his platform work is simply a recreation. He is at his best in his reading of the works of Paul Laurence Dunbar, whose untimely death was deplored by all who were at all familiar with his writings, and it is because Prof. Tilroe best likes this program that he decided to give it in Fulton. Beside the readings Prof. Tilroe will sing several selections, Mrs. Tilroe, who is a very talented musician, will accompany him on the pipe organ.

The proceeds from this evening's entertainment will be applied toward the W. C. T. U. Girls' Home fund and it should substantially augment the same. The cause is a most worthy one; it is to be non-sectarian and only for the benefit of poor or homeless girls in this city. Certain it is that none who read this article are so poor that they may not spare 25c at least to aid such a cause. It is to be hoped that a crowded house may greet Prof. Tilroe tonight.

HIGH SCHOOL RHETORICALS

PIETRO MASSARO'S FACTORY.

The new macaroni factory being erected by Pietro Massaro and representing an investment of $15,000 for him, will be completed early in April. The building is in readiness for its machinery and the work of installing it will be rapidly pushed as soon as it is all on the ground. The first floor will be given up to the manufacturing of the commodity and the two upper floors will be used for drying, packing and shipping. A number of skilled workmen and women will be employed when the factory is ready for business.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. PASTOR VERY POPULAR

Rev. F. A. Miller's Return to Pastorate of State Street Church Unanimously Desired—Committees for Year Appointed.

The return of the Rev. F. A. Miller to the pastorate of State Street Methodist church was unanimously desired as expressed by the vote taken at the quarterly conference held in the church last week. Mr. Miller has made a popular and successful pastor and his work has given the best of satisfaction to his congregation and to his friends outside of the church.

The election of the following officers was confirmed and they were designated as members of the quarterly conference:

Superintendent of Sunday school, E. R. Redhead.
President Epworth league, Wendell Knowlton.
President Methodist brotherhood, W. H. Klein.
President Ladies' Aid society, Mrs. Wendell Knowlton.
Superintendent Junior league, Mrs. F. A. Miller.

The following were nominated by the pastor as stewards and members of the various committees, the pastor's recommendations being accepted:

Stewards—M. T. Brackett, R. B. Crockett, George Flint, Paul Greenwood, C. W. Knight, W. H. Klein, N. Harding, Seymour Halstead, W. F. Haskins, W. Knowlton, Frank Palmerton, E. R. Redhead, T. J. Redhead, F. W. Snyder, S. D. Wells, C. E. Wilson, Mrs. Mary Osborne and Mrs. J. Mahlerwein.

Church committees:

Benevolences—C. E. Wilson, E. R. Redhead, W. H. Klein, George Flint, C. R. Bennett, R. B. Crockett, Frank Palmerton, Wendell Knowlton.

Sunday schools — W. H. Klein, Frank Palmerton and George Flint.

Tracts—Mercy and help department of Epworth league.

Temperance—M. T. Brackett, Fred Vogelgsang and C. W. Knight.

Education—S. D. Wells, Norman Harding and Mrs. J. Mahlerwein.

Church records—Egbert Carver.

Auditing accounts—C. E. Wilson.

Parsonage and furniture—Mrs. T. J. Redhead, Mrs. Wendell Knowlton, Mrs. W. F. Haskins and Mrs. Irving Keller.

Church music—Paul Greenwood, T. J. Redhead, C. E. Wilson, Mrs. E. R. Redhead and Mrs. R. B. Crockett.

Estimating pastor's salary—E. R. Redhead, T. J. Halstead and G. J. Emeny.

Paul Greenwood was elected as recording steward and E. R. Redhead was named as district steward.

G. J. Emeny, T. J. Redhead and E. J. Carver were named as a committee to obtain estimates upon the work of redecorating the church interior in preparation for the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the building of the church.

FAREWELL BANQUET PLANNED

The Current Events club will tender a farewell banquet to Hon. and Mrs. N. N. Stranahan next Wednesday evening, March 29, in the parlors of the Presbyterian church, the arrangements having been completed this morning. A toast list and program will be enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Stranahan and daughter, Miss Louise, leave early in April to make their future home in England.

FULTON POSTAL CARRIERS BUSY

Test Week Shows Amount of Work Done at Local Post Office. Not so easy to be Postman.

The postal department decreed that the week, March 6 to 11, inclusive, should be a test period throughout the United States, of the speed, accuracy and efficiency of the carriers from all offices having delivery service. It was a stupendous undertaking but it is probable that the immense volume of statistics now in the hands of the postmaster general will form a basis upon which to form estimates for future improvement of the service.

A few figures compiled from a mass collected at the local office may show our readers how busy a place is the unadequate and poorly equipped office on Oneida street.

Weight of first class mail delivered daily by carriers, 56 1-2 lbs., total for week, 338 lbs.

Weight of all classes of mail delivered daily by carriers, 448 lbs, making a total of 2704 lbs. for the week.

Total number of pieces of first class mail delivered by carriers for the week, 15,955.

Total number of pieces of all classes of mail, delivered by carriers for week, 25,825.

Average number of persons served per carrier, 1329.

Average number of stops per day, per carrier, 345.

Average number of miles per carrier, per day, 14 1-2.

Number of places of delivery per carrier, 356.

Estimated population served by all carriers, 9240.

Number of pieces of mail of all classes routed per carrier, per minute, 11.

Number of pieces of first class mail routed per carrier, per minute, 13.

Only 18 per cent. of the residences have provided receptacles, and only 10 per cent. of the business houses have provided receptacles for mail. This condition entails a hardship upon the carrier, interfers with the best service being given in the least space of time and is in defiance of the law. It is expected that after June 1, an order will be issued by the department that mail must not be delivered at a place not equipped with a proper receptacle.

STRANAHAN CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF

Mr. Myron Stranahan, the shoe merchant, this week announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Oswego county and he solicits the support of the electors at the coming caucuses. He is a cousin of the Hon. N. N. Stranahan.

THE WEEK

Recent improvement in trade conditions is very slow, irregular and conservative, and is chiefly in evidence in iron and steel, in which there is a larger demand for structural materials; a more cheerful sentiment as regards pig iron and better mill conditions in finished materials. The volume of transactions as measured by the usual statistical tests is somewhat under that of last year, but it is generally larger than in the preceding quarter, while business sentiment is helped by the hopeful outlook for the crops which, in spite of the complaints, common at this season, promise another year of sustaining and profitable production. Among the distinguished features of the business situation are the growing ease of money at home and abroad; the enormous accumulation of American credits in Europe, estimated as high as $200,000,000 and due to American loans abroad and to foreign purchases of American securities and products, chiefly the latter; the expansion in our export commerce and in our balance of trade, and the low stocks that are as a rule carried by the distributers of merchandise to consumers. These conditions, while evidences of past depression, which always results in reduced buying of new supplies and in increased stocks of idle money, are also elements of great strength because it is out of such conditions that preparation is made for future activity. Overproduction depresses copper. The dry goods markets suffer from the curtailment in cotton, but are fairly active in woolens, linens and other lines, and the demands of an immense population for immediate necessities make a large total. The shoe trade maintains its recent improvement, but hides and leather are very quiet. Railway earnings in the first week of March declined 2.1 per cent. Bank clearings as compared with last year declined 8.4 per cent. outside New York and 19.2 per cent. in New York, while as compared with 1909 there were gains respectively of 11.5 and 12.2 per cent. In the latest week exports from New York were $15,-9096,2, a gain of $5,441,323 over 1910 and of $2,279,599 over 1909, while the imports were $17,174,911, being $5,-748,191 less than in 1910 and $1,0198,-433 under 1909. The gain in exports and the decline in imports is in line with the recent and favorable change in the foreign commerce situation.

Encouraging reports predominate in iron and steel, notwithstanding that buying of finished materials is on a slightly reduced scale. New bookings are scarcely up to the mark established in February, but the mills are more actively engaged than at any time since last fall, and it is evident that business during the current month will make a very satisfactory showing. From present indications it seems likely that some good-sized rail contracts will be received from Canadian railroads owing to the sold up condition of the mills in that country, inquiries for 25,000 tons from one system alone being noted in domestic markets. Structural steel is in greater demand, although the transporting companies are not buying on a particularly active scale, while construction work on a new battleship will require between 6,000 and 7,000 tons of bull plates. Sentiment in the pig iron division has been improved by the favorable statistics issued at the opening of the current month and by the fact that stocks are now being reduced. Foundry iron is not in keen request, but producers are receiving an advance of 50 cents over the low point touched in February, especially for deliveries extending beyond the middle of the year.

Very conservative trading is reported in the primary and secandar dry goods markets, yet some mills are busy, while others, notably cotton mills, are being forced to curtail production in a large way. Merchants are not apprehensive as to the outlook for future business, early crop reports being favorable and money abundant for legitimate purposes. Nor does it appear from reports received that less than 75 per cent. of an average volume of business is being transacted by the jobbing houses as a whole, although the larger centers are less active than country sections. Silks, woolens and worsteds, linens and some other special lines show business enough to offset the depression manifested in cotton circles.

The improvement in the shoe trade noted last week still continues and further good-sized orders have been placed by jobbers who were previously holding out of the market in the hope of securing concessions. The tone of prices now is steady to firm. Some local factories are nearing the end of their runs, and though there is an absence of fall orders booked up to the present, some Lynn shops are working nights on women's oxfords and similar goods. There is little if any improvement in the demand for leather, and sole is especially quiet owing to buyers having previously stocked up so heavily in advance of their needs on this variety. Many shoe factories are nearing the end of their spring runs and are buying little leather of consequence. In upper leather the best seller of late have been colored stock for tan and russet shoes. The hide markets are generally quiet, but prices are well maintained on all varieties. Packer hides are especially dull, but the stocks of these are so well sold up for this season of the year that prices are easily maintained. Country hides are relatively stronger than packer hides, however, and there is a firm market in Europe on all descriptions and a steady market on Latin-American dry hides.

Generally [illegible]

a lead of wheat. Arrivals of 2,085,645 bushels compared with 3,431,-539 last year, while Atlantic coast shipments were 1,259,049 bushels, against 847,261 in 1910. Net changes were slight in cotton, with a continued absence of participation by outside interests. Attention has turned to the final report of the Census Bureau on ginning, to be issued on Monday, which is expected to show a total of about 12,000,000 bales.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for March amount to $6,841,433, of which $2,715,533 were in manufacturing, $3,700,900 in trading and $435,000 in other commercial lines. Failures this week number 278 in the United States against 247 last year, and 30 in Canada compared with 28 a year ago.—Dun's Review, Saturday, March 18, 1911.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

MEXICO'S NEW GARAGE

A Place Where Autoists Can Be Assured of Finding Supplies When Needed

Mexico, March 15.—The Mexico Motor Car and Supply Company has just completed its new garage, which is one of the finest in the State. The building is of concrete blocks construction and fitted with the latest machinery. Architect J. H. Seeber of Oswego, drew the plans, and another Oswego contractor John W. Schaffer, did the electrical work. The officers of the company are George D. Babcock, President; Dr. C. W. Radway, Vice President; John C. Taylor, Secretary and Treasurer and Manager. These officers, with W. W. Kingsley and C. I. Miller, constitute the Board of Directors.

ELISHA B. POWELL ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

[Oswego Times]

Oswego, N. Y., March 17, 1913.

To the Electors of Oswego County:

Two years ago the Republicans of this County, regardless of factional feeling, honored me by selecting me as the Oswego County candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court. It seemed them, as it does now, that there should be a resident Justice in this County.

At that time Justice Scripture's term was about to expire, and he was a candidate for re-nomination. The sentiment for this was so strong throughout the district that we could not overcome it, but now there are two vacancies to be filled, and Oswego County, if united, should succeed in securing one of them.

I am again a candidate for that office and ask that the generous support accorded by the electors of this County two years ago be extended to me again. Yours sincerely,

E. B. Powell.

Elisha B. Powell, one of the leading members of the Bar of Oswego County and well known throughout the Fifth Judicial District, announces his candidacy for Justice of the Supreme Court, as above.

Mr. Powell, like so many who have made their way to success, was born on a farm sixty-two years ago, but the great portion of his life has been passed in Oswego where his estimable father, the late E. B. Powell, for many years was largely engaged in the wholesale lumber business.

Mr. Powell was graduated from the Oswego High School and, later, from Williams College, taking the highest class honor as valedictorian. He holds the degrees of B. A. and M. A. from that institution and is a member the Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Phi. For ten years subsequently he was associated with his father in the lumber business, in charge of the office and bookkeeping.

Turning to the law as a more desirable vocation, Mr. Powell read law with the late Hon. John C. Churchill, was duly admitted to the Bar, and for thirty years has practiced with success, covering it in all of its various branches. His name appears with regularity on the calendars of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and of the Court of Appeals. Mr. Powell has held but two offices—that of Chief Assessor and that of City Attorney, twice.

Mr. Powell's candidacy again brings to the front the injustice done to Oswego County in not according to her one of the eight Justices of the Supreme Court in the Judicial District. With two vacancies occurring to be filled at the next election, this County should surely be given one. It would be the height of hardihood to aver that the Bar of this County lacks the material from which the best judicial timber may be chosen.

DOGS MUST BE LICENSED

Albany, March 17. — A bill has been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Fappert of Monroe, amending the General City Law by inserting a new article providing that in cities of the third class dogs must be licensed. The license is to be granted by the city clerk upon payment of a fee of one dollar. The bill makes full provision for the regulation of the keeping of dogs in such cities, and the killing or otherwise disposing of unlicensed dogs running at large. The Mayor may prohibit any dogs from running at large whenever he deems it necessary for the protection of the public.

NEW POSTAL CARD

The postoffice department will soon issue a new postal card. It is a small size white card, 3 by 5 inches, printed in red ink. A profile head of Lincoln, with a curved ribbon below bearing his name, will be the subject of the stamp. Its border will be elliptical and will show the words, "U. S. Postal Card." This will rest upon a base containing the denomination. "1 Cent." A spray of laurel will extend from the base two-thirds up, and outside of the border on either side of the stamp.

WANT HIGHWAY ROUTE LEFT ALONE

Action Taken by Highway Committee at Meeting Last Week

At a meeting of the Highway Committee of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Oswego, N. Y., held in Oswego last week the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this committee that all such special legislation as is recommended by Senate Bill No. 877, known as the Walters Bill which seeks to improve certain roads in the Counties of Onondaga, Oswego and Jefferson is an unjust interference with the rights of the County of Oswego, and it is further

Resolved, That it is the sense of said committee that all such special legislation should be opposed and defeated and that the plan heretofore adopted by the said Highway Commission should be allowed to be proceeded with without preference to one County route over the other; and it is further

Resolved, That this committee request the Hon. T. C. Sweet, Assemblyman from the county of Oswego, and George G. Cobb, from the thirty-seventh Senatorial district of the State of [illegible]

MERRITT OBJECTS TO SWEET'S BILL

Albany, March 15.—Shortly after the session opened this morning Assemblyman Sweet asked the unanimous consent of the Assembly to introduce a bill of purely local interest and importance. At the conclusion of Mr. Sweet's request Assembly Minority Leader Merritt raised an unexpected objection so Mr. Sweet placed the measure in the bill box and it will be taken up tomorrow.

The objection coming from the Republican leader, as it did, roused considerable comment, whereas if there had been Democratic objection it would have been taken as a matter of course.

The measure in question called for the appropriation of $40,000 for the cost of the State's share in the construction of the Broadway bridge at Fulton to take the place of the present condemned structure.

Official City Paper

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1911.

New Savings Bank Building.

Saturday of this week the public is invited to inspect the handsome new building just completed by local contractors Wadsworth & Carver, for the Fulton Savings Bank. The building is well worth a visit, all that is new and modern in banking arrangement and for the convenience of the patrons, having been installed.

In this bank building, perhaps more than in any other building in the city, everyone feels a common interest, as it was made possible by the confidence of the small depositors in its business solidity and the conservatism of its management. It would seem upon reading of the growth of the bank that every resident must have contributed to the growth and expansion of this banking house and that gives each and every one a sort of a partnership enjoyment in it and its new home.

There is much interest in diplomatic and political circles in Wahington concerning a possible peace treaty between United States and Great Britain, a treaty which will have the potential effect of an alliance, although it will not be known by that name. President Taft in a recent speech on the subject of peace, said that he thought all questions, even including questions of honor, might be left to an international arbitration court, and Earl Gray, minister of foreign affairs for Great Britain, in a recent speech referred to President Taft's speech and spoke earnestly in favor of a peace treaty between the two great English-speaking nations. Those who have kept abreast with current history will remember that there have been two recent efforts to secure a ratification of peace treatise between Great Britain and this country, but inasmuch as the final ratification must depend upon the Senate, these treaties struck snags in that body. Some of those snags were removed on the 4th of March last, and it is believed now that the treaty will meet the approval of the Senate and that Secretary Knox and Ambassador Bryce are at work in preparation of an agreement to be submitted to Congress, though perhaps not earlier than the regular session which will assemble next December. There will doubtless be more or less opposition in the Senate to friendly proposals between this and the mother country, but, as remarked, some of the snags have been removed. Senator Root of New York, who is Chairman of the the Carnegie Peace Foundation for which ten millions of dollars were recently donated by Mr. Carnegie, will doubtless do everything in his power in the Senate to promote this peace entente. He was Secretary of State during the second Roosevelt administration, and he is closely in touch with pacific and philanthropic endeavor. Mr. Carnegie has said that if two great nations like this country and England could reach an agreement to submit all questions, even those involving honor, to an arbitration court, it would not be long before the other powerful nations would fall into line.

Congress will reassemble in two weeks, and there is of course much interest and speculation with reference to what it will do. It is assumed that the Canadian reciprocity treaty will be approved by the Senate and there is expectation that some of the important tariff schedules will be lowered, or that an effort will at least be made to lower them. It is deplorable that politics must enter so largely into questions that should be purely economical and that both parties have heart and eyes askance on the presidency in every question that comes up for legislation. There is much speculation with reference to political divisions and combinations of insurgents and stand-patters, progressive and retrogressive Democrats. The sensational retirement of Senator Bailey of Texas on the last day of the last session and his precipitate jump back into the Senate it is thought has considerably weakened such influence as he may have had with the Democratic minority. He was one of the "snags" that did not go on the 4th of March.

CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

The following announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for district attorney, was issued by Attorney George M. Fanning on Tuesday

To the Electors of the County of Oswego:

I beg to announce myself to the electors of this county as a candidate for the office of district attorney, and to ask their support in the coming primaries at which the candidate for this office will be nominted.

I am seeking this office for two reasons, primarily because I wish to become your candidate, and to be elected to this important office. Second, because of the general feeling in the city of Fulton that, being the second largest city in the county in population, and paying a great percentage of the taxes of the county, it is not asking too much to ask that one of the citizens of Fulton administer one of the most important offices in the gift of the people of this county.

There have been many requests made of me not only from the city, but throughout the county, that I allow my name to be used as a candidate for this office.

No office of importance has been held by a resident of this city since Hon. Thomas D. Lewis so ably represented the county at Albany as its assemblyman.

I am therefore urging not only whatever qualifications that I may possess to administer this office, but also the equitable right of the city, in asking for the support of the people of the county in nominating and electing one of its citizens as a public officer of the county.

I beg to remain your most humble servant.

(Signed) George M. Fanning.

District Attorney F. J. Davis of Pulaski and Attorney F. D. Culkin of Oswego are also avowed candidates for the same office.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB

On Monday evening, March 13, the Current Events Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arvin Rice. The President appointed A. L. Rice secretary pro tem in the absence of the secretary.

The question "Resolved, That the right of suffrage be extended to women" was before the Club for discussion, and Mr. VanWagenen opened for the affirmative, stating, as he put it, a few self evident truths relative to the question, such as, "Man by nature is base, woman an angel." Mr. VanWagenen then called upon Miss Lounsberry to continue the debate, but she could not be persuaded to take the floor, although she claimed that her refusal was not because she did not favor the affirmative side of the proposition. Rev. C. L. Peck was the next speaker for the affirmative, and argued with considerable spirit that the present purely arbitrary basis of the franchise should be done away with, and that "Woman should be counted for her full face value." Dr. Doane also refusing to take any extended part in the discussion, the affirmative was closed by Rev. G. W. Wellburn.

The negative side of the proposition was supported by Rev. Charles Olmstead in such a tactful manner as to win the approval of the majority of the members of the club. Although the speakers had agreed that no vote be taken on the debate, the club exercised its right to vote on the matter and it was found that the negative had won by a good majority.

Th next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. F. D. VanWagenen, in Fourth street on March 27. Leaders, Attorneys S. R. Mead and G. S. Piper.

WILL TRY TO COLLECT

Manager L. W. Emerick of the Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co., has commenced four actions in the Municipal Court of Syracuse against the Seneca River Power Company to recover something over $6,000. The actions are commenced to make good notes, which are a year past due, and to recover on interest coupons, which have been due for four years. Mr. Emerick is one of the stockholders in the company and was at one time an officers. The company is a sister company of the Oswego River Power Transmission Company.

Although called the Seneca River Power Company, it is no less than a Niagara power concern and is now furnishing power in Baldwinsville.

Because of this condition of affairs in the company Mr. Emerick was opposed to the city granting a franchise to the company. The payment of this indebtedness will draw heavily on the finances of the concern.

Can anyone beat it?

Postmaster Hughes has received notification from Hon. C. L. Knapp that a quantity of vegetable seed and agricultural bulletins will soon reach the local post office for distribution among farmers and gardeners who would appreciate them. Mr. Knapp's effort for his friends in this section will be appreciated. The seeds will undoubtedly arrive within the next fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. Newell will in the near future remove to a recently purchased farm. The Congregational society, mindful of this fact, decided on Thursday evening to attest their appreciation of Mr. Newell's service as chorister in the church for over twenty-five years and they made him a surprise visit, taking possession of his home while he was attending choir rehearsal. Supper was served, an appropriate descriptive poem touching upon Mr. Newells' efforts for his church, was read, and then Messrs. James Stevens and William Russell in original manner presented the surprised host with a handsome new plush lap robe as a gift from his co-workers in the church. Mr. Newell's surprise was genuine but he managed to express his appreciation.

The Elks of Oswego tendered a farewell banquet on Friday evening to City Editor F. J. Meagher of the Oswego Times, who leaves within a few days for Washington to take up his duties as private secretary to Congressman L. W. Mott. A buffet luncheon was served, the decorations were all fittingly in honor of St. Patrick's day, and the evening of song and story was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The Fortnightly Shakespeare club held its last meeting for the season at the home of Mrs. Mary Emerick in First street last evening. There were fifty guests present and a most delectable dinner was served at six o'clock by the hostess. At the close of the dinner entertainment was afforded by the presentation of Shakespearian plays. When the club meets in the Fall the study of Henry VIII will be taken up.

The Anchor Sunday School class of State street church will hold a "rubber social" in the church chapel on Wednesday evening, March 29, at 8 o'clock. A very choice musical and literary program will be rendered and a splendid social time is anticipated. The admission fee has been fixed at 10c or one or more pair of old rubbers. It is hoped that every one coming will bring as many old rubbers as they can find.

Miss Cassie Marsh, daughter of Undertaker and Mrs. Ernest Marsh, who is a senior in Cornell University has accepted a responsible and lucrative position as critic teacher in the Geneseo Normal School for the next school year. Miss Marsh is the first member of her class to have secured a position. Her many friends in this city extend hearty congratulations as she has been so earnest and faithful in all work and so zealous to succeed in her life work. She secured a scholarship in Cornell by merit and has done conscientious work throughout the course.

APPROVES HAREM SKIRT

Dr. Mary Walker is much encouraged because the harem skirt is coming in.

"It is a sign that women are becoming sensible, and that they realize the convenience of men's attire," she said.

"Women have been unhappy with skirts. They have afforded no protection. Women have legs as well as men, and they ought to be protected.

"You know how it feels to lose your suspender buttons, don't you?" "Well, that's the way a women feels all the time with a skirt dragging on her hips.

"Just as soon as women adopt men's costumes, they will invent so many little devices and comforts that men will be glad when discarded skirts."

"I was the one who noticed that a man's collar button stuck in the back of his neck. So I went into a haberdashery and told the men to put a strip of cloth between the button and the skin. I invented the longwaisted trousers, too.

"My advice to women is put on pants and wear 'em without paying any attention to what the men say."

SURROGATE'S COURT

Surrogate Miller, in assessing the transfer tax on the estate of Dan Shattuck, Fulton, has held that an item of $3,000 charged by the executor as a debt against the estate, must be assessed. The item in question was the amount of an ante-nuptial agreement, and the executor charged it up as a debt. With it taken out the estate was not assessable.

The will of the late William, D. Allen was filed in Surrogate's Court last week. The estate is valued at $3,000 real and $1,600 personal property. The entire estate is bequeathed to Mrs. Allen during her life time, and at her death it is to be divided between the two children, Albert and Grace A. Allen. Mrs. Allen as executrix is empowered to carry on any buiness or co-partnership in which Mr. Allen was engaged in at the time of his death.

The will of Alice R. McCarthy was probated, the estate consisting of $2,000 real and $500 personal was left to her son, Harry E. McCarthy of Fulton, who is named as administrator. Attorney H. L. Gilman represented the estate.

BOAT CLUB OFFICERS.

THE WEEK

Recent improvement in trade conditions is very slow, irregular and conservative, and is chiefly in evidence in iron and steel, in which there is a larger demand for structural materials; a more cheerful sentiment as regards pig iron and better mill conditions in finished materials. The volume of transactions as measured by the usual statistical tests is somewhat under that of last year, but it is generally larger than in the preceding quarter, while business sentiment is helped by the hopeful outlook for the crops which, in spite of the complaints, common at this season, promise another year of sustaining and profitable production. Among the distinguished features of the business situation are the growing ease of money at home and abroad; the enormous accumulation of American credits in Europe, estimated as high as $200,000,000 and due to American loans abroad and to foreign purchases of American securities and products, chiefly the latter; the expansion in our export commerce and in our balance of trade, and the low stocks that are as a rule carried by the distributers of merchandise to consumers. These conditions, while evidences of past depression, which always results in reduced buying of new supplies and in increased stocks of idle money, are also elements of great strength because it is out of such conditions that preparation is made for future activity. Overproduction depresses copper. The dry goods markets suffer from the curtailment in cotton, but are fairly active in woolens, linens and other lines, and the demands of an immense population for immediate necessities make a large total. The shoe trade maintains its recent improvement, but hides and leather are very quiet. Railway earnings in the first week of March declined 2.1 per cent. Bank clearings as compared with last year declined 8.4 per cent. outside New York and 19.2 per cent. in New York, while as compared with 1909 there were gains respectively of 11.5 and 12.2 per cent. In the latest week exports from New York were $15,-9096,2, a gain of $5,441,322 over 1910 and of $2,279,599 over 1909, while the imports were $17,174,911, being $5,-748,191 less than in 1910 and $1,0198,-433 under 1909. The gain in exports and the decline in imports is in line with the recent and favorable change in the foreign commerce situation.

Encouraging reports predominate in iron and steel, notwithstanding that buying of finished materials is on a slightly reduced scale. New bookings are scarcely up to the mark established in February, but the mills are more actively engaged than at any time since last fall, and it is evident that business during the current month will make a very satisfactory showing. From present indications it seems likely that some good-sized rail contracts will be received from Canadian railroads owing to the sold up condition of the mills in that country, inquiries for 25,000 tons from one system alone being noted in domestic markets. Structural steel is in greater demand, although the transporting companies are not buying on a particularly active scale, while construction work on a new battleship will require between 6,000 and 7,000 tons of hull plates. Sentiment in the pig iron division has been improved by the favorable statistics issued at the opening of the current month and by the fact that stocks are now being reduced. Foundry iron is not in keen request, but producers are receiving an advance of 50 cents over the low point touched in February, especially for deliveries extending beyond the middle of the year.

Very conservative trading is reported in the primary and secondar dry goods markets, yet some mills are busy, while others, notably cotton mills, are being forced to curtail production in a large way. Merchants are not apprehensive as to the outlook for future business, early crop reports being favorable and money abundant for legitimate purposes. Nor does it appear from reports received that less than 75 per cent. of an average volume of business is being transacted by the jobbing houses as a whole, although the larger centers are less active than country sections. Silks, woolens and worsteds, linens and some other special lines show business enough to offset the depression manifested in cotton circles.

The improvement in the shoe trade noted last week still continues and further good-sized orders have been placed by jobbers who were previously holding out of the market in the hope of securing concessions. The tone of prices now is steady to firm. Some local factories are nearing the end of their runs, and though there is an absence of fall orders booked up to the present, some Lynn shops are working nights on women's oxfords and similar goods. There is little if any improvement in the demand for leather, and sole is especially quiet owing to buyers having previously stocked up so heavily in advance of their needs on this variety. Many shoe factories are nearing the end of their spring runs and are buying little leather of consequence. In upper leather the best seller of late have been colored stock for tan and russet shoes. The hide markets are generally quiet, but prices are well maintained on all varieties. Packer hides are especially dull, but the stocks of these are so well sold up for this season of the year that prices are easily maintained. Country hides are relatively stronger than packer hides, however, and there is a firm market in Europe on all descriptions and a steady market on Latin-American dry hides.

a lead of wheat. Arrivals of 2,-085,645 bushels compared with 3,431,-539 last year, while Atlantic coast shipments were 1,250,049 bushels, against 847,261 in 1910. Net changes were slight in cotton, with a continued absence of participation by outside interests. Attention has turned to the final report of the Census Bureau on ginning, to be issued on Monday, which is expected to show a total of about 12,000,000 bales.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for March amount to $6,841,423, of which $2,715,533 were in manufacturing, $3,700,900 in trading and $435,000 in other commercial lines. Failures this week number 278 in the United States against 247 last year, and 30 in Canada compared with 28 a year ago.—Dun's Review, Saturday, March 18, 1911.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

MEXICO'S NEW GARAGE

A Place Where Autoists Can Be Assured of Finding Supplies When Needed

Mexico, March 15.—The Mexico Motor Car and Supply Company has just completed its new garage, which is one of the finest in the State. The building is of concrete blocks construction and fitted with the latest machinery. Architect J. H. Seeber of Oswego, drew the plans, and another Oswego contractor John W. Schaffer, did the electrical work. The officers of the company are George D. Bobobek, President; Dr. C. W. Radway, Vice President; John C. Taylor, Secretary and Treasurer and Manager. These officers, with W. W. Kingsley and C. I. Miller, constitute the Board of Directors.

ELISHA B. POWELL ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

[Oswego Times]

Oswego, N. Y., March 17, 1911.

To the Electors of Oswego County:

Two years ago the Republicans of this County, regardless of factional feeling, honored me by selecting me as the Oswego County candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court. It seemed then, as it does now, that there should be a resident Justice in this County.

At that time Justice Scripture's term was about to expire, and he was a candidate for re-nomination. The sentiment for this was so strong throughout the district that we could not overcome it, but now there are two vacancies to be filled, and Oswego County, if united, should succeed in securing one of them.

I am again a candidate for that office and ask that the generous support accorded by the electors of this County two years ago be extended to me again. Yours sincerely,

E. B. Powell.

Elisha B. Powell, one of the leading members of the Bar of Oswego County and well known throughout the Fifth Judicial District, announces his candidacy for Justice of the Supreme Court, as above.

Mr. Powell, like so many who have made their way to success, was born on a farm sixty-two years ago, but the great portion of his life has been passed in Oswego where his estimable father, the late E. B. Powell, for many years was largely engaged in the wholesale lumber business.

Mr. Powell was graduated from the Oswego High School and, later, from Williams College, taking the highest class honor as valedictorian. He holds the degrees of B. A. and M. A. from that institution and is a member the Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Phi. For ten years subsequently he was associated with his father in the lumber business, in charge of the office and bookkeeping.

Turning to the law as a more desirable vocation, Mr. Powell read law with the late Hon. John C. Churchill, was duly admitted to the Bar, and for thirty years has practiced with success, covering it in all of its various branches. His name appears with regularity on the calendars of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and of the Court of Appeals. Mr. Powell has held but two offices—that of Chief Assessor and that of City Attorney, twice.

Mr. Powell's candidacy again brings to the front the injustice done to Oswego County in not according to her one of the eight Justices of the Supreme Court in the Judicial District. With two vacancies occurring to be filled at the next election, this County should surely be given one. It would be the height of hardihood to aver that the Bar of this County lacks the material from which the best judicial timber may be chosen.

DOGS MUST BE LICENSED

Albany, March 17.—A bill has been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Pappert of Monroe, amending the General City Law by inserting a new article providing that in cities of the third class dogs must be licensed. The license is to be granted by the city clerk upon payment of a fee of one dollar. The bill makes full provision for the regulation of the keeping of dogs in such cities, and the killing or otherwise disposing of unlicensed dogs running at large. The Mayor may prohibit any dogs from running at large whenever he deems it necessary for the protection of the public.

NEW POSTAL CARD

The postoffice department will soon issue a new postal card. It is a small size white card, 3 by 5 inches, printed in red ink. A profile head of Lincoln, with a curved ribbon below bearing his name, will be the subject of the stamp. Its border will be elliptical and will show the words, "U. S. Postal Card." This will rest upon a base containing the denomination, "1 Cent." A spray of laurel will extend from the base two-thirds up, and outside of the border on either side of the stamp.

NO NEED TO STOP WORK

WANT HIGHWAY ROUTE LEFT ALONE

Action Taken by Highway Committee at Meeting Last Week.

At a meeting of the Highway Committee of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Oswego, N. Y., held in Oswego last week the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this committee that all such special legislation as is recommended by Senate Bill No. 377, known as the Walters Bill which seeks to improve certain roads in the Counties of Onondaga, Oswego and Jefferson is an unjust interference with the rights of the County of Oswego, and it is further

Resolved, That it is the sense of said committee that all such special legislation should be opposed and defeated and that the plan heretofore adopted by the said Highway Commission should be allowed to be proceeded with without preference to one County route over the other; and it is further

Resolved, That this committee request the Hon. T. C. Sweet, Assemblyman from the county of Oswego, and George G. Cobb, from the thirty-seventh Senatorial district of the State of New York be requested to use their utmost efforts to defeat such legislation as is proposed by the bills heretofore mentioned; and it is further

Resolved, That the secretary of this committee, Mr. Z. D. Stanton, be directed to certify to such persons and officials as in his judgment might aid in the defeat of this resolution, a copy of this resolution as secretary of this committee.

MOTOR MAXIMS

Still motors run ahead.

It's a short lane knows no scorching.

It's a wise chauffeur that knows his own speed.

A garage is known by the cars it keeps for hire.

A motor in hand is worth two in the ditch.

It requires little learning to be the tooter of a horn.

A good road is rather to be chosen than great ditches.

A spark plug that can spark and won't spark ought to be plugged.

He who speeds and runs away may live to be nabbed some other day.

A rut in the road may prove the power behind the thrown.

Little motors have big gears.

Never look a gift taxi in the meter.

A scorched chauffeur dreads the tire.

A good car needs no push.

It's a poor clutch that won't work in a tight squeeze.

Too many tinkers spoil the car.

Never judge a motor by the mortgage on the roof.

A car in time saves sole leather.

Satan finds work for idle cars to do.

A green chauffeur maketh a fat undertaker.

All cars are gray in the dark.

Do cotorists nil nisi finem.

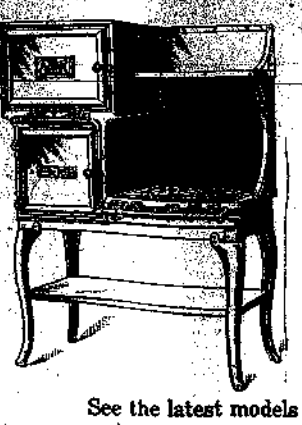
Dum speedimus, speedamus!

Of two constables, choose the smallest.

What can't be cured should be endured.

Collisions never come singly.

A rolling car gathers no dross.



It is better to turn back than to turn turtle.—Harper's Weekly.

MERRITT OBJECTS TO SWEET'S BILL

Albany, March 15.—Shortly after the session opened this morning Assemblyman Sweet asked the unanimous consent of the Assembly to introduce a bill of purely local interest and importance. At the conclusion of Mr. Sweet's request Assembly Minority Leader Merritt raised an unexpected objection so Mr. Sweet placed the measure in the bill box and it will be taken up tomorrow.

The objection coming from the Republican leader, as it did, roused considerable comment, whereas if there had been Democratic objection it would have been taken as a matter of course.

The measure in question called for the appropriation of $40,000 for the cost of the State's share in the construction of the Broadway bridge at Fulton to take the place of the present condemned structure.

Official City Paper

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1911.

New Savings Bank Building.

Saturday of this week the public is invited to inspect the handsome new building just completed by local contractors Wadsworth & Carver, for the Fulton Savings Bank. The building is well worth a visit, all that is new and modern in banking arrangement and for the convenience of the patrons, having been installed.

In this bank building, perhaps more than in any other building in the city, everyone feels a common interest, as it was made possible by the confidence of the small depositors in its business solidity and the conservatism of its management. It would seem upon reading of the growth of the bank that every resident must have contributed to the growth and expansion of this banking house and that gives each and every one a sort of a partnership enjoyment in it and its new home.

There is much interest in diplomatic and political circles in Washington concerning a possible peace treaty between United States and Great Britain, a treaty which will have the potential effect of an alliance, although it will not be known by that name. President Taft in a recent speech on the subject of peace, said that he thought all questions, even including questions of honor, might be left to an international arbitration court, and Earl Gray, minister of foreign affairs for Great Britain, in a recent speech referred to President Taft's speech and spoke earnestly in favor of a peace treaty between the two great English-speaking nations. Those who have kept abreast with current history will remember that there have been two recent efforts to secure a ratification of peace treatise between Great Britain and this country, but inasmuch as the final ratification must depend upon the Senate, these treaties struck snags in that body. Some of those snags were removed on the 4th of March last, and it is believed now that the treaty will meet the approval of the Senate and that Secretary Knox and Ambassador Bryce are at work in preparation of an agreement to be submitted to Congress, though perhaps not earlier than the regular session which will assemble next December. There will doubtless be more or less opposition in the Senate to friendly proposals between this and the mother country, but, as remarked, some of the snags have been removed. Senator Root of New York, who is Chairman of the the Carnegie Peace Foundation for which ten millions of dollars were recently donated by Mr. Carnegie, will doubtless do everything in his power in the Senate to promote this peace entente. He was Secretary of State during the second Roosevelt administration, and he is closely in touch with pacific and philanthropic endeavor. Mr. Carnegie has said that if two great nations like this country and England could reach an agreement to submit all questions, even those involving honor, to an arbitration court, it would not be long before the other powerful nations would fall into line.

Congress will reassemble in two weeks, and there is of course much interest and speculation with reference to what it will do. It is assumed that the Canadian reciprocity treaty will be approved by the Senate and there is expectation that some of the important tariff schedules will be lowered, or that an effort will at least be made to lower them. It is deplorable that politics must enter so largely into questions that should be purely economical and that both parties have heart and eyes askance on the presidency in every question that comes up for legislation. There is much speculation with reference to political divisions and combinations of insurgents and stand-patters, progressive and retrogressive Democrats. The sensational retirement of Senator Bailey of Texas on the last day of the last session and his precipitate jump back into the Senate it is thought has considerably weakened such influence as he may have had with the Democratic minority. He was one of the "snags" that did not go on the 4th of March.

MARRIED

Robert Cooter and Cora Marshall were united in marriage last week.

At the residence of the officiating clergyman, Saturday evening, March 11, Roody Lelich and Jelina Rojlic were united in marriage by the Rev. W. G. Bassett. The groom is a graduate of a college of topography in Austria and is engaged here in connection with the barge canal.

On Wednesday, March 15, the Rev. Wayland G. Bassett united in marriage Mr. Peter F. Boigeol of Central Square and Miss Etta M. McKoon, who is well known in this city. The ceremony was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Henry L. Crane in Fifth street. It was very quiet. Mr. and Mrs. Boigeol, after enjoying an eastern bridal trip, will be "at home" to their friends in Central Square where the groom is a well known resident.

CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

The following announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for district attorney, was issued by Attorney George M. Fanning on Tuesday:

To the Electors of the County of Oswego:

I beg to announce myself to the electors of this county as a candidate for the office of district attorney, and to ask their support in the coming primaries at which the candidate for this office will be nominted.

I am seeking this office for two reasons, primarily because I wish to become your candidate, and to be elected to this important office. Second, because of the general feeling in the city of Fulton that, being the second largest city in the county in population, and paying a great percentage of the taxes of the county, it is not asking too much to ask that one of the citizens of Fulton administer one of the most important offices in the gift of the people of this county.

There have been many requests made of me not only from the city, but throughout the county, that I allow my name to be used as a candidate for this office.

No office of importance has been held by a resident of this city since Hon. Thomas D. Lewis so ably represented the county at Albany as its assemblyman.

I am therefore urging not only whatever qualifications that I may possess to administer this office, but also the equitable right of the city, in asking for the support of the people of the county in nominating and electing one of its citizens as a public officer of the county.

I beg to remain your most humble servant.

(Signed) George M. Fanning.

District Attorney F. J. Davis of Pulaski and Attorney F. D. Culkin of Oswego are also avowed candidates for the same office.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB

On Monday evening, March 13, the Current Events Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arvin Rice. The President appointed A. L. Rice secretary pro tem in the absence of the secretary.

The question "Resolved, That the right of suffrage be extended to women" was before the Club for discussion, and Mr. VanWagenen opened for the affirmative, stating, as he put it, a few self evident truths relative to the question, such as, "Man by nature is base, woman an angel." Mr VanWagenen then called upon Miss Lounsberry to continue the debate, but she could not be persuaded to take the floor, although she claimed that her refusal was not because she did not favor the affirmative side of the proposition. Rev. C. L. Peck was the next speaker for the affirmative, and argued with considerable spirit that the present purely arbitrary basis of the franchise should be done away with, and that "Woman should be counted for her full face value." Dr. Doane also refusing to take any extended part in the discussion, the affirmative was closed by Rev. G. W. Wellburn.

The negative side of the proposition was supported by Rev. Charles Olmstead in such a tactful manner as to win the approval of the majority of the members of the club. Although the speakers had agreed that no vote be taken on the debate, the club exercised its right to vote on the matter and it was found that the negative had won by a good majority.

Th next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. F. D. VanWagenen, in Fourth street on March 27. Leaders, Attorneys G. E. Read and G. S. Piper.

WILL TRY TO COLLECT

Manager L. W. Emerick of the Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co., has commenced four actions in the Municipal Court of Syracuse against the Seneca River Power Company to recover something over $6,000. The actions are commenced to make good notes, which are a year past due, and to recover on interest coupons, which have been due for four years. Mr. Emerick is one of the stockholders in the company and was at one time an officers. The company is a sister company of the Oswego River Power Transmission Company.

Although called the Seneca River Power Company, it is no less than a Niagara power concern and is now furnishing power in Baldwinsville.

Because of this condition of affairs in the company Mr. Emerick was opposed to the city granting a franchise to the company. The payment of this indebtedness will draw heavily on the finances of the concern.

Mr. Knapp's effort for his friends in this section will be appreciated. The seeds will undoubtedly arrive within the next fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. Newell will in the near future remove to a recently purchased farm. The Congregational society, mindful of this fact, decided on Thursday evening to attest their appreciation of Mr. Newell's service as chorister in the church for over twenty-five years and they made him a surprise visit, taking possession of his home while he was attending choir rehearsal. Supper was served, an appropriate descriptive poem touching upon Mr. Newells' efforts for his church, was read, and then Messrs. James Stevens and William Russell in original manner presented the surprised host with a handsome new plush lap robe as a gift from his co-workers in the church. Mr. Newell's surprise was genuine but he managed to express his appreciation.

The Elks of Oswego tendered a farewell banquet on Friday evening to City Editor, F. T. She secured a scholarship in Cornell by merit and has done conscientious wor throughout the course.

APPROVES HAREM SKIRT

Dr. Mary Walker is much encouraged because the harem skirt is coming in.

"It is a sign that women are becoming sensible, and that they realize the convenience of men's attire," she said.

"Women have been unhappy with skirts. They have afforded no protection. Women have legs as well as men, and they ought to be protected. You know how it feels to lose your suspender buttons, don't you?" "Well, that's the way a women feels all the time with a skirt dragging on her hips.

"Just as soon as women adopt men's costumes, they will invent so many little devices and comforts that men will be glad women discarded skirts."

"I was the one who noticed that a man's collar button stuck in the back of his neck. So I went into a haberdashery and told the men to put a strip of cloth between the button and the skin. I invented the longwaisted trousers, too.

"My advice to women is put on pants and wear 'em without paying any attention to what the men say."

SURROGATE'S COURT

Surrogate Miller, in assessing the transfer tax on the estate of Dan Shattuck, Fulton, has held that an item of $3,000 charged by the executor as a debt against the estate, must be assessed. The item in question was the amount of an ante-nuptial agreement, and the executor charged it up as a debt. With it taken out the estate was not assessable.

The will of the late William D. Allen was filed in Surrogate's Court last week. The estate is valued at $3,000 real and $1,660 personal property. The entire estate is bequeathed to Mrs. Allen during her life time, and at her death it is to be divided between the two children, Albert and Grace A. Allen. Mrs. Allen as executrix is empowered to carry on any buiness or co-partnership in which Mr. Allen was engaged in at the time of his death.

The will of Alice R. McCarthy was probated, the estate consisting of $2,000 real and $500 personal was left to her son, Harry E. McCarthy of Fulton, who is named as administrator. Attorney H. L. Gilman represented the estate.

BOAT CLUB OFFICERS.

ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR SUPREME COURT JUSTICE

(Oswego Times, March 16, 1911)

Udelle Bartlette, of this city, makes open announcement today that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Justice of the Supreme Court for this, the Fifth Judicial District. Other announcements of candidates from the Bar of this county may follow.

Mr. Bartlette's formal declaration is a matter of prime interest to the County of Oswego which has been without a Justice of the Supreme Court for the past five years and more, what had not been the case before in a life time. Of the six counties comprising the district, with its eight Justices, Oswego County is the only one without a representative on the Supreme Court Bench. This, although Oswego has given to that Bench in times past such honored names as the late William F. Allen, the late John C. Churchill and M. L. Wright.

Two vacancies are to be filled at the coming November election, one, through the death of Justice Rogers, and the other through the expiration of Justice Williams' term. Can any good reason be assigned why one of these choices should not be cordially and unanimously offered to Oswego County which never yet has presented an unfit name for so distinguished an honor?

Mr. Bartlett, whose candidacy is now announced, is among the acknowledged able practitioners of the Bar of this county and of the District. He was born on a farm and lived a farm life in his early years. With excellent mental endowments and, withal, ambitious, he worked hard for an educational equipment and at the age of twenty-five was graduated with credit from the classical course of Hamilton College.

His tastes inclining him strongly to the legal profession, in January, 1886, he first entered the law office of the Hon. N. E. Smith of Pulaski, completing his apprenticeship with a two years' course prior to his admission to the Bar in April, 1888, in the law office of the Hon. Danforth E. Ainsworth at Sandy Creek. Subsequently Messrs. Ainsworth and Bartlette formed a co-partnership. This came to an end with Mr. Ainsworth's removal to Albany.

In 1901, Mr. Bartlette, then District Attorney, made Oswego his residence. The only office held by Mr. Bartlette was the office just named. This first came by appointment from Governor Morton,, receiving his commission Christmas, 1895. The following year he received the Republican nomination and was elected by a majority of 4,985 and re-elected by a like complimentary majority in 1899. He was not a candidate for the office subsequently.

Mr. Bartlette's seven years administration of the office of District Attorney in the point of fairness, faithfulness and marked ability was a matter of observation and concession on every hand. Without wishing to prejudice the case of any other possible candidate for the office to which Mr. Bartlette aspires, it must be said that Mr. Bartlette meets fully the requirements for the place in that he is of unblemished repute, the strictest integrity, exceptional scholarship and, albeit, an all round thorough-going lawyer, one equally strong before a jury or the highest courts of the State and, as a flawless, lucid, cogent brief maker, among the best. In few words, all the reasons exist why Mr. Bartlette should be an acceptable candidate to the Bar and people of the District. In maturity of judgment, much varied experience and success in his profession and in years he is at the ideal stage for a position on a Bench.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

The name of John Wanamaker is indicative of big things, big ideas, big enterprises. At the very beginning of his business career he showed the big qualities of mind and heart which have made his business what it is today.

The first day's receipts of the little store which he opened in Philadelphia fifty years ago were $25.67. He "kept the 67 cents for making change next day" and immediately spent the $25 for newspaper advertising.

That investment took courage, a bigger amount of courage than the expenditure of ten thousand times the amount would cost him now. It meant, too, a big confidence in his goods and a big knowledge of human nature.

This year Mr. Wanamaker completes a full half century of business life, and his associates have celebrated the occasion by publishing a volume called The Golden Book of the John Wanamaker Stores.

FORCED TO LEAVE HOME

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Salamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It's surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup—all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

"WILL NEVER VOTE FOR MR. SHEEHAN"

Senator Roosevelt, Leader of Insurgents, Gives Out Statement

Albany, March 16.—"The position of the insurgents on the fiftieth ballot is precisely what it was on the first ballot. We stand ready to take part in fifty more ballots without any change in our attitude toward Mr. Sheehan. We stand ready at any time to confer with reference to a satisfactory compromise candidate, but we will never vote for Mr. Sheehan. (Signed.)

MAYORS' ANNUAL CONFERENCE

My dear Sir: The Mayors' Advisory Committee which has in charge the planning of the Second Annual Conference of Mayors and other officials of second and third class cities of New York State, which will be held in Poughkeepsie on May 25 and 26, is now actively engaged in compiling the programme.

The result of the last conference held in Schenectady, was most gratifying. It was so markedly beneficia to all who attended that its continuance is deemed advisable by practically every official in the State.

The object of the Mayors' Conference is to meet annually, to discuss the latest phases of improvements in municipal government and recommendations; with the idea that the mayors who attend the conference may receive suggestions which will be of benefit to them in the future. Work and the seeking of information predominate, the entertainment part o the programme being strictly a secondary consideration.

At the Poughkepsie Conference it has been definitely decided to limit the discussions to the following general topics: "The Essential Framework of Municipal Government," for which speakers will be invited who have had experience with the usual plan of municipal government, viz: The plan of separating the legislative and executive functions, centralizing the former in the Mayors and vesting the latter in a Board of Alderman or Common Council, or both; also speakers who have had experience under more recent form of municipal administration, known as Government by Commission, which vests both executive and legislative functions in a small paid commission.

The second subject will be: "Taxation and Assessment."

The third: "Administration of the Public Works Department in reference to the Various Methods of Cleaning and care of Streets."

Fourth "Uniform Municipal Accounting."

It is planned again this year to invite speakers of national reputation to discuss these subjects and to have all city officials participate actively by giving their own views on the topics and also by asking any question they may desire.

DIX WILL SPEAK AT MAYOR'S CONFERENCE

Governor Accepts Invitation to Discuss "Attitude of State Toward the Municipality" at Poughkeepsie Conference.

Poughkeepsie, March 21.—The Mayors' Advisory Committee announced today that Governor John A. Dix has accepted an invitation to attend the second annual Conference of Mayors and other officials of New York State cities and will discuss the subject "The Attitude of the State Toward the Municipality." He will also be the guest of the Conference. The Committee also announced that it has been decided definitely to hold the Conference on May 25 and 26.

Among those to whom invitations have been sent to address the Conference are President William H. Taft, Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Mr. E. A. Fisher, City Engineer of Rochester, A. Prescott Folwell, Editor of the Municipal Journal and Engineer, and William H. Edwards, Street Commissioner, New York City.

The Committee expects to announce the preliminary program in a few days. Information received from practically every second and third class city in New York State indicates that there will be an unusually large attendance at the Pough keepsie Conference.

ANNUAL MEETING CEMETERY ASSOCIATION

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the Mount Adnah Cemetery Association will be held on Monday, April 3, 1911, at 4 o'clock, p. m., at the City Hall in Fulton, N. Y., and that at said meeting trustees for three years will be elected or appointed in the place of Willis S. Nelson, Horatio A. Allen and Jesse A. Morrill, whose terms of office will expire on that day, and such other business will be transacted as may properly come before the meeting.

Dated, Fulton, N. Y., March 15, 191

OSWEGO COUNTY HELPED

Impoverish Own County to Build up West

Richard W. Sears, of the firm of Sears, Roebuck & Co., sold his half interest in the business for $25,000,000, and will retire to a farm which he owns at Gray's Lake, Ill. Several years ago, Mr. Sears was a telegraph operator at Redwood Falls, Minn., at a salary of $50 a month, and there conceived the idea of a mail order business, which has permitted him to retire from active business at the age of 45 years with a princely fortune.—Exchange.

CURING BAD HABITS.

Try a Little Self Hypnotism on Your Pet Weaknesses.

In a large eastern city is a professional hypnotist who has a wide reputation for curing the habit of intemperance. His method is dirt simple.

"There is no real hypnotism about it—unless it is a matter of self hypnotism," this professor once said. "I simply observe the mind process of the man that drinks and advise him how to reverse it. The subconscious soliloquy in the mind of the man that drinks runs something like this: 'When did I have my last ball? Whew! Long as that! I don't see how I stood it so long. Wouldn't have thought it possible.' And so on the victim repeats to himself on the principle that he needs this periodical stimulant just as it is necessary to heap coal on to fire to keep it from burning out. In a word, that man self hypnotizes himself into the belief that he needs a drink.

"My advice to cure this craving is not to fight the appetite, but to fight down the cause that leads to the appetite. Let a man repeat to himself over and over again: 'I really don't need this drink. If I take it, it's simply a matter of pouring so much down my throat superfluously, for I could get along without.' Before long he will be surprised how instead of hypnotizing himself into drink he will [illegible] out of it."

Simple, isn't it? But if this self hypnotism or whatever you choose to call it is a cure for intemperance why is it not equally a recipe for curing other bad habits?—Chicago Tribune.

KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

This Parisian Beggar Realized the Value of New Shoes.

Begging has long been a great art in Europe. By using subtle touches of misery and calculated effects of disease and dismemberment the beggar became a master of pathetic appeal. A delightful story of Dupre, the sculptor, is quoted by Hamilton W. Mabie in the Outlook.

Looking out of his window in a hotel one bleak wintry morning in the good old times, Dupre saw an old beggar sitting barefooted on the stone steps below. His heart was moved with compassion, and he began to search for a pair of shoes. He found two pairs, one of them new.

"Do not give the new pair away; you will need them yourself," urged his prudent wife.

"No," said the sculptor. "I shall find the old pair more comfortable. Moreover, if I am to give anything away I am going to give the best I have."

So he hurried downstairs and put the new shoes in the hands of the barefooted old man. The next morning the beggar sat on the steps as usual, and, as usual, his feet were bare. Dupre hurried down to him. "Where are the shoes I gave you? You are not wearing them," he said.

"No," replied the old man, "I could not wear them, excellency. If I did nobody would give me anything. I have pawned them."

They Both Knew.

The fool said one day in the king's presence, "I am the king!" And the king laughed, for he knew that his fool was wrong.

A week later the king was angry because of an error he had committed and exclaimed, "I am a fool!" And the fool laughed, for he knew that his king was right.

The Only Time.

Every age has its problem, by solving which humanity is helped forward.—Heinrich Heine.

Mrs. Harry P. deForest of New York city has been spending a few days in Fulton.

Joe Sancata, an Americanized Italian, suffered a fractured arm while engaged at his duties in the Volney paper mill on Saturday morning.

Mrs. R. E. Parks was tendered a surprise visit by fifteen of her friends at her home in Utica street on Saturday, the event being in celebration of her natal anniversary. Cards and supper were enjoyed.

Friday night a benefit card party was given by the St. Vincent de Paul society of the Catholic church for the benefit of the poor. Twenty-one tables were arranged for cards, Mrs. John Foltan and Mr. P. H. Ward taking the king prizes. Mrs. William Church secured the consolation prize.

The Boy Scouts of the First M. E. church are finding a ready demand for tickets for their Grand Entertainment by the original "Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock," and his son Friday evening, April 7. Major Rober Henry Hendershot was eleven years of age at the time he went to the front with the 9th Michigan Infantry October 25, 1861, the youngest enlisted soldier in '61. The Major and his son furnish a unique, inspiring and refined musical entertainment, instrumental and vocal, interspersed with rich, clean and enjoyable humor.

Dr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Lake and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hunter gave a dinner party to about forty friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter in Highland street on Friday evening. The invitations were issued in scroll form of green paper and were very unique. The guests responded in like vein and at the conclusion of the dinner the acceptances were read aloud to the merriment of the company. The house was decorated in the color appropriate to the day and throughout the five course dinner the color scheme of green was carried out. Each guest wore green in more or less abundance in their attire. Shamrock place-cards bearing good old Irish names were the means by which the guests found their seats at the table. At the conclusion of the delectable repast hte Hon. N. N. Stranahan gave an impromptu talk up on Ireland, its folklore and its history with which he was made very familiar during an extended sojourn upon the "emerald isle" last Summer. Mrs. E. J. Penfield also acceptably rendered several Irish ballads. The dinner was the social event of the Lenten season.

FOR DISEASES OF THE SKIN

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barber's itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the aching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

Miss Delia Blodgett returned on Sunday from a visit with friends in Seneca Falls, Rochester and Syracuse.

Attorney John Stephens of New York city was called to Fulton last week by the death of his uncle, the late M. F. Stephens.

Mr. J. B. Birdsall's many friends were pleased to see him about the street again last week after a severe illness of several weeks duration.

Mr. C. C. Wilcox last week was awarded a verdict of $2,000 for the loss of an eye which he sustained while in the employ of the Mutual Milk & Cream company, by the hoisting apparatus used in packing ice in the company's ice house breaking and striking him in the eye totally destroying the sight.

The original "harp that once through Tara's hall" formed the very appropriate and attractive St. Patrick's day decoration in the J. C. O'Brien store window on March 17. It was the only up-to-date decoration in the business section and attracted a great deal of admiring attention in its surroundings of green ribbons and shamrock.

Mrs. T. C. Giroux was greatly surprised by a visit from a number of her friends on Friday afternoon who were mindful of the fact that it was her birthday. Cards were enjoyed during the afternoon and at six o'clock the guests served the supper with which they were possessed when they reached the home of their hostess.

Concluding the Young People's Series of special at the First M. E. church, as the closing sermon on Popular Amusements Rev. C. L. Peck will speak next Sunday evening on "The Dance—What's the Harm?" A brief congregational song service will precede, and Foster Simpson will render a clarionet solo.

Adjutant Clinick from Binghamton will conduct the Saturday and Sunday services at Salvation Army Hall the coming week-end, March 25 and 26. The Adjutant was stationed in Fulton some years ago as Captain and will be glad to see his old friends and converts again. Adjutant has been especially successful as an evangelist.

The prize speaking contest of the local High school will be held in the First Methodist church on May 19. The Senior play will take place in the Foster Theatre on June 9, and the Commencement exercises will be held in the First Methodist church on June 21. The Rev. George W. Wellburn, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon.

Mrs. Dudley Wilcox gave a delightful St. Patrick's day party on Friday at her home in Oneida street. The invitations issued a week previous to the entertainment each contained a suitable Irish verse, and the house decorations were in accordance with the traditions of the day. Hearts were played and the prizes were won by Mrs. N. L. Whitaker, a book, and Miss Myrtis Gilbert, a flag. A dinner of several courses was served at 6 o'clock, the table being very attractive in its decorations of shamrock place-cards and tiny green boxes filled with bonbons. The event was most enjoyable throughout.

CORONA TAKES HONORS

Vice President Fairbanks Says That Corona's Lemon Display is the Finest Thing of the Kind He Ever Saw.

Corona is the largest shipping point in the United States for lemons is one important fact, but when you couple with it the fact that the very best lemons grown come from Corona then you have two important facts which are very hard for the average person to comprehend. You need only to attend the great National Orange Show now being held in San Bernardino to have this fact convincingly impressed upon you. Scores of Corona people have attended the great show this week notwithstanding the very inclement weather, and each returns to Corona filled with enthusiasm of the very favorable impression the Corona display is making upon all visitors. Among the prize winners was best 25 boxes of lemons — sweepstakes, loving cup, goes to the Corona Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. W. J. Pennow, president of the Corona Chamber of Commerce, who had charge of the Corona Exhibi at the National Orange show last week was a former well known resident of Fulton.

DEATHS

William D. Allen, ex-Mayor of Oswego, died at his home in Oswego on Friday after a months illness. A widow, one daughter and one son survive. The deceased was one of the best known and most popular business men in Oswego and his death brought regret to many.

Beatrice M., the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Fry, died on Monday morning at the family home on the Plank Road, from pneumonia. The funeral services will be held on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock from the home, the Rev. Charles Olmstead officiating. Burial will be made in Bundyville.

After a months illness with blood poisoning caused by an injury to his thumb, Charles W. Morrison, aged 30, died at his home in Worth street on Sunday. The remains were shipped to Hadley, Pa., by Undertaker Brown, and the funeral services will be held this Wednesday. The immediate survivors are the widow and one young son, William.

Mrs. Althea Ingamells, aged 86, died at her home in Fay street on Tuesday morning. The deceased is survived by four sons, John, Benjamin, Charles and Samuel of this city and one daughter, Althea Wilcox, of Granby. The funeral will be held at 2:30 Thursday from the late home, the Rev. Charles Olmstead officiating and burial will be made in Mt. Adnah. The deceased was born in England, moved from there to Liverpool, near Syracuse, and later to Fulton, where she resided for 40 years.

Josie, aged 54, wife of Mr. Charles Morrell, died on Sunday at the home in Buffalo street after a long illness. The funeral services were held on Tuesday morning, the Rev. C. L. Peck officiating, and burial was made in Oswego Town. The immdiate survivors are the husband, one son, Glen, of Detroit, and the mother, Mrs. Harriet Bell. The service was largely attended by relatives and friends, who had become very attached to the departed. The floral pieces were of exceptional beauty, particularly the one given by the local Union of Carpenters and Joiners of which the husband is a member. This was a creation of green dotted with beautiful white calla lillies. The effect was demonstrative of the life led by the deceased, which was of purity.

Another land mark has been removed from Fulton and a familiar figure is missing, having reached the great beyond. Melvin F. Stephens, aged 85, and for 55-years a practicing attorney in this city, died at his home in Rochester street on Friday morning after a gradual breaking down incident to his age. For three months he had been confined to his bed with a trained nurse in attendance. The deceased was born in Montrose, Pa., October 12, 1826. In 1837 he removed with his parents to Volney where for several years his father conducted a loom mill near Battle Island. The deceased received his early education in the local public schools and Falley Seminary, teaching for several terms. In 1850 he graduated from Ballston Spa Law school and upon being admitted to practice his profession in New York State courts, he located in Fulton where he practiced continuously until ill health prevented work. From the time the Stephens opera house was built until a year ago he occupied offices in the block. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Troop B., 12th New York Cavalry, and he served faithfully until July, 1865, when he was mustered out honorably at the expiration of service. He participated in many of the important engagements of the civil war. He was admitted to practice in the United States Supreme court in 1875, and in the same year he was clerk to the New York State Legislative Committee on Internal Affairs. He served as police justice of Oswego Falls and was also the Democratic nominee for City Judge during the first city election. In July, 1878, the deceased was united in marriage with Mrs. Electa D. Peer, who survives him. The funeral services were held from the late home on Monday afternoon, Rev. S. T. Betts of Syracuse officiating, and the members of Fulton Bar attending the services in a body to do honor to the oldest lawyer in Oswego county. Burial was made in Mt. Adnah. An especially sad feature of the funeral was the fact that the widow had been suddenly stricken with illness and the only brother, Mr. John J. Stephens of Washington, D. C., was just convalescing from a severe illness and unable to attend the funeral services.

Attorney Stephens was a staunch and uncompromising Democrat. He was possessed of a world of information and a quiet humor which made him a very delightful companion in his earlier days, and he was loyal in his friendships. Naturally of a retiring nature he found his best happiness in his books and his friends. He will be greatly missed by many friends in this section to whom he had been known from childhood up. Among the out-of-town relatives who attended the last sad rites were: Hon. Charles Orville Newton, Homer, N. Y.; Mrs. John J. Stephens, Washington, D. C.; Dr. and Mrs. Henry P. deForest, New York city; John B. Stephens, Esq., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Gertrude Stephens Breed, Syracuse, N. Y.; Clinton Schollard, Clinton, N. Y.; Mrs. Frank David, Phoenix, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quonce, Lockport, N. Y.

The voice of the Departed

I shine in the light of God;
His likeness stamps my brow;
Through the valley of death my feet have trod
And I reign in glory now.

No breaking heart is here,
No keen and thrilling pain,
No wasted cheek where the frequent tear
Hath rolled and left its stain.

I have reached the joys of heaven;
I am one of the sainted band.
To my head a crown of gold is given,
And a harp is in my hand.

I have learned the song they sing
Whom Jesus hath set free
And the glorious walls of heaven still ring
With my new-born melody.

No sin, no grief, no pain
Safe in my happy home,
My fears all fled, my doubts all slain,
My hour of triumph's come.

Oh, friends of mortal years,
The trusted and the true,
Ye are waiting yet in the valley of tears,
But I wait to welcome you.

Do I forget? Oh no;
For memory's golden chain
Shall bind my heart to hearts below,
Till they meet to touch again.

Each link is strong and bright,
And love's electric flame
Flows freely down, like a river of light,
To the world from whence it came.

Do you mourn when another star,
Shines out in the glittering sky
Do you weep when the raging voice of war
And the storm of conflict die?

Then why do your tears run down,
Why your hearts so sorely riven,
For another gem in a Saviour's crown
And another soul in heaven?

(The above poem was written many years ago by Mrs. A. F. Stephens and read at her funeral. It is now republished at the request of a number of friends.)

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The Bar of the City of Fulton are saddened by the announcement of the death of Melvin F. Stephens, Esq. which occurred at his home on the 17th inst.

The deceased had lived a long, useful life in this community, having attained the ripe age of 84 years. He was easily the senior of all attorneys in this locality, having practiced his profession here for upwards of 58 years.

Mr. Stephens possessed a fine legal mind and his judgment of law was respected by his colleagues. He was called to various positions of public trust and served his country as a soldier in the War of the Rebellion. We remember him as a man of generous impulses and gentle manner.

In common with other citizens, we mourn his loss and shall attend his funeral in a body. We respectfully tender our sympathy to his wife and friends.

ECCENTRIC BUT CHARITABLE

St. Louis, March 16.—The death yesterday of Charles A. Breed, aged fifty-seven years, a bachelor, who formerly resided in Fulton, N. Y., where his brother, O. C. Breed, is a civil engineer, reveals a remarkable story of love for the poor.

Breed was one of the highest class chefs in the United States. He amassed a small fortune in cooking at a fancy salary for big eastern hotels, but he grew tired of cooking for the rich and decided to cook for the poor. He got ten times more pleasure, he often said, from watching the poor eat than he did for the money he would get for cooking for the rich.

When he came to St. Louis over a year ago, Breed had an income from money he had saved. His landlady, Mrs. A. M. Taylor, No. 2749 Camble street, who found him dead at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning when she went to take him his coffee, says the income amounted to about $60 a month and was largely, if not entirely from property at Fulton owned by him. It was more than enough for all Breed wanted for himself.

He worked steadily here for the whole year, but he never drew a cent of pay. He would not cook for any one who could afford to pay him. A week before Thanksgiving, Breed asked to be allowed to do the cooking for a while at the home for working women in Morgan street, near Twenty-second street. He showed the matron his references. She smiled and said:

"If you were such an expert chef as these references indicate, why would you wane to cook here? This is a poor institution and we pay a very small wage."

"I never accept pay for my work," said Breed "If you could pay me I would not cook for you. I will only stay until after Thanksgiving. I have a great many persons to cook for."

He was accepted and the boarders at the Working Women's Home had the best Thanksgiving dinner that some of them had ever eaten. They were sorry to lose their cook a few days later, but nothing could induce him to stay.

One of Breed's greatest delights was to find a family in want of food. He would not only do the cooking, but would purchase the food as well. Then he liked to sit with the children and eat with them.

"Often," Mrs. Taylor said, "he would stay at some unfortunate family's house for days at a time. He would buy their food and live with them. When he returned here to his own room he would never say where he had been, but I learned from other sources."

Breed's body was removed to the morgue and the police sent a telegram to his brother, O. C. Breed, and another to Dr. I. C. Curtis, of Fulton, to whom the dead chef is said to have given a power of attorney.

The body was taken to Phoenix from where the funeral was held, and burial was made in the family lot

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

ITALIAN SHOOTING AFFRAY

Sunday evening the police were notified that there was a row accompanied by shooting going on in the Frecopia boarding house in West Third street. Chief Ross and two patrolmen hastened to the scene of the disturbance but when they arrived everything was as serene as a May morning and there was no evidence of anything disquieting to be found. The police were not to be so easily fooled however, and upon investigation Chief Ross found blood upon the hands and face of one Francisco. A nose bleed was said to be the cause for the blood. The bloody Italian and another were bundled into the patrol wagon and brought to the police head quarters where in the course of investigation it was found that Francisco had been shot, the bullet entering just above his hip and burying in the flesh. Dr. Schlappi ordered the man removed to the Lee Memorial hospital where he will recover unless some complication should arise.

In the mean while over two hours had elapsed and the assailant claimed to be one Frank Viscome, brother-in-law of Frecopia, had made good his escape and although diligent seach has been made for him he has thus far eluded arrest. The Italians had succeeded in assisting him to escape.

Chief Ross urges that police headquarters be notified whenever a sale of firearms is made in Fulton and thus perhaps, it might be possible to prevent some of the shooting [illegible] The Times would [illegible] department go in [illegible] round-up of foreigners and suspicious characters about the city every once in a while and upon search being made by the patrolmen for concealed weapons, hand the full extent of the law to those who are found breaking the law in that respect.

WISNER & COMPANY ARRESTED

Stockbrokers Alleged to Have Sold Worthless Securities—Made a Mint of Money From Unsuspecting People—Fulton Gave Up Over $70,000 to Them.

Fultonians and many others from this section will be interested in a dispatch from New York city made public on Tuesday which was as follows:

In a raid on the stock brokerage offices in Fifth avenue occupied by Wisner & Company and the Standard Securities Company, postoffice inspectors charge that irregularities amounting to more than $2,000,000 have been brought to light. Transactions in excess of $10,000,000 throughout the country are credited to the two concerns in the last few years.

Archie and Emmett S. Wisner, the owners of both concerns, and Grover S. Trumbill, chief clerk, were arrested. A United States commissioner held Archie Wisner in $7,000 bail for the Grand Jury. Emmett S. Wisner in $5,000 and Trumbill in $1,500. They were committed to the Tombs.

The charge is using the mails to defraud by selling worthless stocks. The postoffice inspectors said the arrests were the most important since the famous raid on Burr Bros. last November.

The specific charge is that the Wisners through mail correspondence, represented to stock purchasers that the California Diamond Oil Company was at work when as a matter of fact the company was dormant and had lost the title in 1908 to the property it was claimed to be operating.

The principal stocks dealt in by Wisner & Co., according to the postal inspectors, were those of the Thirty-three Consolidated Oil Company, Mutual Oil Company, Home Stake Gold Mining Company, Little Badger Mining Company, Sycamore Oil Company, Valencia Copper Mining Company, Black Oak Gold Mining Company, Eureka Oil and Gas Company, Mount Jefferson Mines Consolidated, Murchi Gold Mines Consolidated, Empire Gold Mines Limited, California and New York Oil Company, Consolidated California Monarch Oil Company, United Tonopah and Goldfield Mines, Manhattan-Nevada Gold Mine Company, Philippines Plantation Company, California Diamond Oil Company, Murchi Extension Gold Mining Company and the Amalgamated Mining and Oil Company.

Of the last corporation, Wisner & Company are alleged to have disposed of stock to the amount of $5,000,000.

HOBART VANBUREN SHOOTS HIS AUNT

Shocking Exhibition of Depravity on Part of Descendent From Historical Family—Attempts Murder for $2 Rather Than Work—Miserable Man in Jail in Oswego—Victim Comfortable at Hospital.

The community was shocked on Thursday afternoon late by the announcement that Hobart Van Buren, aged 32 years, an idle fellow about town, had shot and perhaps fatally wounded his aunt, Mrs. Harriet E. Ward, aged 60-years, because she had refused his demand for $2. The shooting occured after a hard tussle in the ladies home on the north river road, and she was left to die in her yard in the cold while the miscreant made his escape, throwing away his firearm as he ran. A few hours later he was arrested by Chief Ross in a saloon and is now in jail awaiting the action of the Grand Jury.

Mrs. Ward who has lived alone since the death of her husband, had been visiting Mrs. George Walker for a day or two and on Thursday afternoon upon returning to her home was saw Hobart Van Buren, her nephew, standing on her porch. What transpired can best be told by giving the injured woman's ante-mortem statement as secured by Coroner H. P. Marsh and Dr. Schlappi, who called to care for the in-uries:

"When I got home from Mrs. George Walker's at 3:30 this afternoon, I found Hobart Van Buren waiting for me on the porch of my house.

"He said to me: 'Haven't you been home since last night?'

"'How did you know I had been away?' I said.

"He answered: 'By the paper on the door,' referring to a Syracuse paper. He followed me in the house after I had unlocked the door.

"He said: 'Will you let me have $2?' I said: 'I haven't got it. Hattie I've got bills to pay and haven't got the money.'

"He replied: 'We're going to settle this right away. I came down to settle this now.' I told him to see a lawyer.

"He said: 'Why don't you have the will probated?' I told him that the only heirs were his father and myself, and that he could not have any of the property until his father was through with it.

"I put my hat on to go to a neighbor's to get the money, but he said I shouldn't leave the house, and pushed me up in the corner of the room.

"I tussled with him until I got away from him so I got out of the door on the porch. He then took a revolver out of his pocket. I struggled to get it and knocked it out of his hand and it fell on the porch floor. In the struggle we both got knocked off the porch.

"I fell and he, having picked up the revolver, pointed it at me and I caught hold of it with my left hand. He fired and the bullet went through my first finger and into the palm of my hand, burning the second and middle finger with the discharge. He fired the revolver very close to my face; right against it. He tried to fire again and it would not go off.

"I recognize the young man whom Chief Ross brought into the operating room since I came in the hospital as Hobart Van Buren, my nephew, and he is the man who shot me.

"I am not sure how many times he fired at me. It may have been only once. After I was shot I shouted and my neighbor, Mrs. Freeman, heard me and came out. Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Parker both saw Hobart Van Buren as he was leaving my place as he went toward the heelpath of the canal.

"Mrs. Freeman helped me to go into the house."

As soon as the police department was notified of the shooting, Chief Ross and two patrolmen hastened to the scene to find that the man had escaped. He was tracked through the snow quite a distance and it is now alleged that he made straight for Dr. E. J. Cusack's office. Not finding him in he went to a nearby saloon and was there when apprehended by Chief Ross. Van Buren stoutly protested his innocence all the time. A search of the fellow did not locate the revolver used in the attack but a few days later it was found by John Marsh, young son of Coroner H. P. Marsh, who, in playing around the First Methodist church, found the weapon, and carried it to his father. Dr. Marsh at once turned it over to Chief Ross.

An X-ray examination of Mrs. Ward's head reveals the fact that the bullets now imbedded in the woman's head is identical with the bullets remaining in the revolver.

The will which Van Buren referred to in his attack on his aunt was one made by his grandfather, leaving all property to Mrs. Ward and Van Buren's father. He was desirous of securing money with which to live in idleness and viciousness and had in all probability annoyed these relatives before. Mrs. Ward and the parents are highly respected residents and deep sympathy is felt for them in their trouble.

TO CURTAIL SUNDAY WORK

Postmaster General Hitchcock Desires Postal Employes to Have Day of Rest—Local Post Office Patrons Are to be Consulted by Postmaster Hughes.

Postmaster Hughes has this week received a communication from the Postal department at Washington, signifying the desire of the department to curtail as much as possible, without interfering with the efficiency of the service, the Sunday labor at post offices. Postmaster General Hitchcock suggested that the local Postmaster secure an expression of opinion from the business men and standing post office patrons here as to their desire in the matter.

Sunday work in postoffices throughout the country is to be discontinued, as far as consistent with the expeditious transmission of the mail. Important postoffices will not be entirely closed on Sundays. Mails will be received and dispatched as heretofore, and arrangements will be made for a limited delivery through the general delivery windows, and the distribution of mail to boxes will be continued. Special delivery letters will be delivered and patrons of any office will have the privilege of having their mail delivered on Sundays by depositing the required fee for special delivery service.

Postmaster General Hitchcock issued instructions designed to carry these ideas into effect and to give employes of the postal service one day's rest in seven.

Sunday work in postoffices, so far as the clerks are concerned, has been reduced to the minimum, and Mr. Hitchcock believes in paying them by time allowance on week-days for their work on Sundays. In order to give the letter carriers similar time for rest the present system of delivering mail through the letter carriers' windows, which requires the attendance of about half the carriers for three or four hours on Sundays, will be discontinued.

RED MEN PLAN FAR

Arrangements are being perfected for the Fair to be held by the Red Men in their lodge rooms during the week of April 22:

There will be a grocery store booth, original in every respect, and various others, including umbrella, gold fish, candy and picture booths. The programme for fraternal nights is arranged as follows:

Monday — Modern Woodmen and American Mechanics' night.

Tuesday—Elks' night.

Wednesday—Knights of Columbus, C. M. B. A., C. R. & B. A. and L. C. B. A. night.

Thursday—Labor unions, G. A. R. Ladies of the G. A. R. and W. R. C.

Saturday—Odd Fellows, Rebeccas, Masons and Order of Easter Star.

STATE CAPITOL IS IN FLAMES!

$25,000,000 STRUCTURE MAY BE TOTALLY DESTROYED---SENATE CHAMBER APPEARS DOOMED---ENTIRE WEST SECTION BURNING.

STATE LIBRARY IS DESTROYED; LOSS REACHES INTO THE MILLIONS

ALBANY, March 29.—The New York State Capitol, erected at a cost of $25,000,000, caught fire shortly before 3 o'clock this morning and is threatened with destruction.

The fire originated in the west end of the great structure on the third floor and the whole side of the building is wrapped in flames with which the firemen seem powerless to cope.

The State Library has been destroyed and the grand western stairway, which alone cost $1,000,000, has been badly damaged.

The fire is believed to have been caused by defective wiring in the rear library of the Assembly in the northwest corner of the building. One of the orderlies says a defect was discovered yesterday which was reported.

The flames, fed by inflammable records and documents of priceless value, spread rapidly, and the library was a seething furnace when the firemen arrived. The fire quickly destroyed all bills, document and papers, some of them dating as far back as 1776. These are irreplacable. The library also contained all the works, documents of the codes and the Judiciary Committee of the present session.

At six o'clock flames were shooting 50 feet above the roof in the southwest corner of the building and the roof over the State library had fallen in. The fire at that hour was still beyond the control of the firement, despite herculean work.

Samuel Abbott, night watchman in the section of the building which was destroyed, is missing, and it is feared he has perished in the flames.

At seven o'clock the flames were under better control. The loss so far was estimated at $15,000,000.

CELEBRATED SIXTY-FOURTH ANNIVERSARY

Friday at their home in this city, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Wallace, aged respectively 85 and 80 years, celebrated the 64th anniversary of their marriage by entertaining a family party at dinner, death not having invaded their family circle in all the stretch of years they have trod life's pathway together. The aged couple keep house alone and enjoy each passing day, being in full possession of all their faculties.

In speaking of the sons, grandchildren and great grandchildren, Mr. Wallace said, "Glenn, son of Willard Wallace of Palermo, is a student in Cornell university, and Erwin, Ethel and Belle, son and daughters of Witt P. Wallace of Oswego, are teachers in the St. Louis, Sidney and Wolcott High schools, respectively, and will be unable to be present, but the sons of the aged couple, Willard Wallace of Palermo, Dr. Winfield Wallace of Phoenix, Witt P. Wallace of Oswego and Grant Wallace of Fulton will be present with their wives. While Dr. George Wallace of Mingtto, son of Willard Wallace, with his wife and two daughters, Ella and Helen; Mrs. Fred Bradford of East Palermo, daughter of Dr. Winfield Wallace of Phoenix, with her husband; Elwin Wallace, Claude Wallace, Tracy Wallace, Edward Wallace, Jesse Wallace and Leah Wallace, sons and daughter of Grant Wallace of Fulton, with the wives of Elwin and Claude and the sons of the same Roy and Carl, were present."

THE WEEK

Although reports from the leading trades and different sections vary considerably, and statistical comparisons do not show uniform gains, yet conditions on the whole continue to indicate a moderate advance. It is noticeable that retail trade is generally more satisfactory and many of the important centers make quite optimistic statements concerning the outlook. The remarkable change in the foreign commerce situation by which in eight months a balance of trade has been created in the United States of $418,000,000 as compared with $188,000,000 a year ago; the enormous totals of American credits obtained in Europe by reason of this large balance and the heavy sales abroad of our securities; the substantial reduction in the cost of living by reason of the decline in price of articles of necessity—these are important gains which must sooner or later work for business improvement, especially supplemented by ample crops. Crop conditions are certainly better than they were a year ago, in spite of dry weather in the Northwest. Building operations in most cities outside of New York are larger. There has been some lessening in the demand for pig iron, but with increased activity in structural materials the recent improvement in iron and steel fairly holds its own. There is no special change in cotton and woolen goods or in footwear. Railroad earnings in the first two weeks of March declined 2.0 per cent. Bank clearings show decreases of 13.5 in New York and of 2.3 per cent outside, as compared with 1910, and gains of 4.3 and 14.1 per cent., respectively, as compared with 1909. Prospects for the new United States Government bond issues are reported to be excellent, with large oversubscriptions probable, which would serve to improve the tone of the investment market. Foreign commerce at New York during the latest week amounted to $35,462,463, against $37,967,967 in 1910 and $31,612,305 in 1909. But there was a gain of over $4,000,000 in exports as compared with 1910 and 1909, while imports declined over $6,000,000 from 1910 and over $900,000 as compared with 1909, so that the gratifying change in the foreign trade situation is maintained.

Activity in structural lines has become more pronounced with the opening of spring and conditions in iron and steel are still promising, although there is some abatement in the demand for pig iron. This, however, is offset by an increase in the output of foundry and steel making grades, while reports from leading centers indicate that stocks have been considerably reduced during the current month. Moreover, the leading producer is steadily expanding its active fur nace capacity, having blown in three additional stacks, and is now operating at a 72 per cent. rate. Construction work is being pushed with considerable vigor, especially in the East, and there is also a good volume of orders for material at the West, although individual contracts are for a smaller tonnage. The activity in the wire trade continues unchecked, the mills having run [illegible] ity for some time [illegible] manufacturers are expecting [illegible] season of heavy consumption.

Sharp revisions in the prices of certain lines of domestic cotton goods led to some hesitation in purchases, but general reductions did not follow, the changes being confined to standard lines. Renewed export trade with China was reported and there was a further revision downward of prices on gray cloths. In dress goods and men's wear values are favorable to the purchaser and a fair volume of business is coming forward. Silk manufacturers are growing more cautious because of the narrow margin of profit. Conservatism prevails in jobbing and retail circles and curtailment of operations is noted in many textile producing centers where cotton cost is a factor of importance.

The footwear market shows no material change. It is now between seasons, and while new business is not as good as recently the general market has shown improvement during the past few weeks and it is expected that the summer and fall trade will prove much more satisfactory than the winter and spring period now closed. The demand continues largely for specialties with staple lines in less active request. The hide markets are generally inactive, but moderate supplies of most varieties keep prices fairly well maintained although there is an easier feeling in packer hides than formerly, and country hide are about 1-4c. off from recent top quotations. No quotable declines have as yet occurred as transactions are on a very small scale and total sales for a week have amounted to less than 10,000 hides at all of the western packing points. Trade in leather continues quiet and most tanners report business to be dull. Sales of sole leather are restricted on account of the fact that buyers are mostly stocked up with supplies contracted for in January and also owing to the question of discounts, while upper leather is still materially affected by the demand for velvet and cloth uppers in women's and misses' footwear. Harness is selling better than shoe leathers.

Fewer complaints than usual are heard regarding new crop prospects, although wheat prices have derived some support from continued dry weather in the Northwest and some adverse reports from Kansas. It is to be expected that unfavorable developments will occur from time to time, yet it is certain that existing conditions are more promising than a year ago. The statistical situation still makes a very bearish exhibit, but western receipts continue to fall behind last year's arrivals of 2,482,407 bushels this week comparing with 3,473,973 in 1910. Domestic export trade is larger, however, shipments of 1,56,9344 bushels, flour included, exceeding the 748,565 sent abroad a yea ago. Corn moved irregularly, although the tendency was mainly dow ward on profit-taking and liberal receipts. Arrivals of 3,939,795 bushels at primary points were larger than the 3,025,434 reported last year, and Atlantic coast exports were 1,017,697 bushels against 1,133,407 in 1910. Trading in cotton continues on a restricted scale and fluctuations are generally insignificant. The final ginning statement of the Census Bureau confirmed expectations of a commercial crop of 12,000,000 bales or over, the official figures showing 11,941,563 bales ginned up to March including linters. — Dun's Review, Saturday, March 25, 1911.

INCOMPETENCY IN ALBANY AFFAIRS

Democrats Have Bungled the Senatorship Situation.

DIX HAS MADE A BAD BLUNDER

Governor Either Should Have Stayed Out or Else Taken Charge—His Halfway Measures Showed He Was Afraid of Murphy — Everybody Is Grabbing—Attacks on the Election Laws by the Insurgents—Republican Achievements.

Albany, N. Y., March 29.—Old time Democratic leaders who have visited the state capitol during the last ten weeks comment bitterly upon the incompetency displayed by the men in charge of the present Democratic administration. One old timer in conversation with your correspondent remarked, with bitterness displayed in every word:

"Whatever faults may have been attributed to David B. Hill, Roswell P. Flower, Edward Murphy, Jr., or Richard Croker, no one could accuse any one of them of cowardice or incompetency. Politicians they may have been, politicians of an intensely practical school at that, but they had brains and courage. For blundering political imbecility and cowardly incompetency commend me to the present Democratic administration. Why, a puling infant could teach these fellows lessons in practical politics. Look at the way the senatorship caucus was bungled. Do you suppose Hill ever would have called a caucus unless he knew in advance that all his followers would be there and participate? All that Murphy, McCooey, McCabe and Fitzpatrick, the new state bosses of our party, seemed to figure out was that they were sure of the support of sixty out of the 117 Democratic senators and assemblymen, never stopping to think that 101 votes were needed to elect a senator. Probably they thought up state men never would think of bolting a caucus and would take orders blindly, just as they do on the east side in New York. The result showed that Murphy, McCooey and Fitzpatrick blundered there, as Sheehan was not elected when the joint ballot was taken.

There Were Other Blunders.

"That was blunder No. 1. Governor Dix blundered when he took part in the senatorial muddle. Either he should have been a Governor Wilson and bossed the job from the start or he should have kept his word and refused to interfere at all. Again, Dix either should have kept Murphy at arm's length from the start or he should have acknowledged his leadership openly. He did neither, but tried to fog the public, which knows full well that he is afraid of Murphy, while he also dislikes to offend Thomas M. Osborne or Charles E. Treman. You can't back and fill these days and get away with it.

"Then look at the near statesmanship displayed by the legislative leaders. It is to laugh. After making all due allowance for newness and inexperience the fact remains that if they are ever to rise to the level of legislative statesmanship they have had plenty of time already to display aptitude. Instead they flounder around like a lot of chickens with their heads off.

"What's the use in talking? The Democracy, as Ben Tillman says, always knows how to do the wrong thing at the right time, and I guess it always will do just that. We are sure to lose the assembly next fall and the senate and the governor and state at large in 1912."

"Grab, Grab, Is the Slogan."

"Grab, grab, and then some!" is the motto of Murphy and the Tammany managers of the Democratic state administration. Court of claims, state highway commission, competitive civil service class and a score of other grabs have been commented upon already. The latest of the list comes from the attorney general's office. At present the law permits the attorney general to appoint a first and second deputy attorney general and also fixes their salaries. The law also permits him to appoint such other deputies as he sees fit, these to be paid a fixed sum from the state treasury.

In both senate and assembly bills have been introduced which give the Democratic attorney general, Thomas Carmody, who presided at the Carnegie hall Democratic state convention, where Tom Grady did "the dirtiest day's work of my life," power to appoint all the deputies he sees fit and fix their compensation. He is also permitted to employ such special counsel as he chooses and to fix their compensation, which is to be taken out of the fees collected. It would appear that no itemized account of the compensation actually paid these special counsel need be made public.

If this new law goes on the statute books the attorney general may swell his list of deputies to as large a number as he pleases and pay them whatever he pleases. This would make him a powerful personage and also enable him to distribute a fine lot of patronage to Tammany's young lawyers, "who need the money."

One of Governor Dix's strong promises in his first message was that the attorney general was to act as legal adviser to all state departments and that by so doing he would save the state a large sum of money. What has been the actual practice? The governor has retained his own legal adviser, although the attorney general is of his own political party, and this adviser has a staff of assistants. Besides, Professor Charles A. Collin has been employed at a compensation unknown. Collin is a high priced corporation attorney, however, and his bills never are small.

All this in the name of "economy and retrenchment."

Breaking Down Election Laws.

Even the election law is not to be secure from Tammany onslaught, even if it be the best election law in the United States and now followed as a model by many other states in the Union.

John Godfrey Saxe is a new Democratic senator from New York city. He was elected on a Tammany ticket, but received the indorsement of some independent organizations. To pay his debt to the latter he is voting against Sheehan, but on all other matters Saxe is hand and glove with Murphy and Tammany. Mr. Murphy does not like strict election laws; they make it more difficult for Tammany to count manufactures. So Senator Saxe takes charge of a bill to make possible delivery of purchased votes by the wholesale. At present the election law prescribes that the voter must mark his ballot on election day in shape of a cross formed by two straight lines. The Saxe bill strikes out "straight," thus permitting the voter to make his cross, if he so desires, in the form of his monogram or in any other form agreed upon by the purchaser of votes. At least such is the interpretation put upon the Saxe bill by A. S. Rard, one of the leading lawyers in New York and a member of the legislative committee of the Citizens' Union.

However, it is said that the Tammany organization considers the Saxe bill necessary to make easier the corralling and delivery of the floating and purchasable vote.

Smashing the Game Laws.

Among other achievements to the credit of the Republican party is a splendid code of laws designed to protect the fish and game of the state. This was not put on the statute books until after a hard fight, and every year a desperate effort is made by the poachers and pot hunters to emasculate these laws, even if in so doing the fish and game of New York state were to become extinct.

Following out a promise made in the campaign last fall, the Tammany bosses last week tried their level best to pass a bill legalizing spring duck shooting on Long Island. This is the breeding season, when the birds flock to Long Island shores by the thousands and can be slaughtered with impunity.

Even the Democratic floor leaders made personal appeals for votes, but Republican Leader Merritt and the solid Republican minority lined up against the measure and put up such a stiff battle that it was defeated by a vote of 66 to 73. The effort may be renewed, but the vigilance and persistent efforts of Mr. Merritt and his colleagues served to halt the grab temporarily at least.

What the Editors Say.

Think of it! The governor of the greatest state in the Union and the mayor of the greatest city of the Union pleading with the boss of Tammany Hall to release the New York legislature from bondage and permit it to exercise the power vested in it by the constitution of the United States!—New York World.

Mr. Croker has been very well taken care of by the Democratic party, and it ill becomes him to advise a surrender on the part of Tammany's leader to a horde of political pirates whose sole and only object is the advancement of their own interests at the expense of the regular Democratic organization.—Troy Observer.

If Murphy owns the legislature, will he let Dix borrow it to pass a few bills?—Brooklyn Times.

C. F. Murphy takes himself too seriously as if he were Tammany. On a pinch Tammany has been made what John Morrissey said it was in his time, "Only a man and a building." The man, John Kelly, in Morrissey's time was disregarded, and the building has been since seriously injured by fire. A free democracy which throttled Tweed, which overthrew Kelly, which admonished Croker, which defeated Mr. Hearst, neither worships nor fears C. F. Murphy. It neither worships nor fears the caucus. It will either enable Governor Dix to lead it out of the present Tammany quagmire or it will permit the people at the next election to make a change which has more than once been made with salutary results.—Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.).

The Democrats at Albany got together enough to obtain a new "capitol barber." If Sheehan fails there will be one "sacred embodiment" anyhow. —New York Tribune.

It is costing the taxpayers considerable money for the privilege of having Tammany rule the roost at Albany, and at that nothing is being accomplished. Not only has the Democratic party failed to elect a United States senator; it has made that failure an excuse for failing to take up needed legislation.—Johnstown Republican

One prophet has predicted the end of the world in 1912 and another the millennium for 1911.—Poughkeepsie Star.

These prophets should get together. They are almost as far apart as the Democratic legislators in Albany.—Newburg News.

THE VOICE OF THE PRESS

Gee,
Look at Me!
If I ain't free,
I'm mighty close to Liberty!
And, say,
There's no other way
For the Press to be.
See?
I am the Voice of the People!
A nation's fame
Or a nation's shame
It is my duty to proclaim.
If fame, to let the glory
Be known that all may know
And by it be encouraged
To loftier heights to grow.
If shame, to let its sinning
Be known that all may know
And make a common effort
Against a common foe.
That's Me,
See?
That's the Press.
No more, no less!
A menace to the evil,
A bugle-call to right,
A helping hand for weakness,
A fist for vicious might.
By cripes,
Me for the Stars and Stripes!
Me for the public welfare!
Me for the great and small!
But neither big nor little,
Except for the good of all!
I'm a straight proposition,
And if I were not,
The Power of the Press
Would be handed the swat,
Sure!

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that Science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. WILL DESTROY BATTLE ISLAND

Barge Canal Work Will Eliminate Historic Land Mark 70-ton Steam Shovel—Work Commenced on Monday.

The American Pipe and Construction Company commenced the work of changing old familiar spots Monday when a seventy-ton Bucyrus steam shovel was put to work at Battle Island on the first real day's work to be done on barge canal Contract No. 37. The canal, according to the plans, will cut off a goodly portion of the island and the rest of the historic plot will be leveled to make way for the march of commerce.

Within a month another shovel will be shipped to the island and by Fall it will entirely be wiped out of existence, and the greater portion of it will be dumped into Lake Ontario after the canal is opened, so that the spoil scows may make their way to the lake. Until the canal is opened for navigation the excavated material will be spoiled on the East bank of the river on lands appropriated by the State, which lands are above the high water level of the new canal. The dredge will also be put to work the middle of next month and the excavation of the canal from Fulton to Minetto will be on in earnest. The American Pipe and Construction Company on Monday took possession of one of the houses recently vacated at Minetto and appropriated by the State, which will be used as an office and as the center of operations on the contract. Another office will be maintained in this city and still another at the high dam when the work will commence.

Leveler Frank H. Flint will for a time have charge of the operations on the Minetto dam, although it will be late Summer before any work of amount will be done there, and the same will hold true with the High dam, as the contractors are anxious to have most of the excavation done before turning their attention to the concrete work on the dams.

LAND COSTS MUCH MONEY

Salmon River Falls Development Means much to Oswego County—Electric Power to be Generated for all Purposes.

An option filed in the County Clerk's Office last week shows that if the Salmon river power project goes through, Charles A. Lux, the Syracuse promoter will pay B. C. Horton, of the Horton Lumber Company, $67,000 for property located at the Salmon river falls, in the town of Orwell. This option was originally given in 1906 and has been renewed from time to time. The present renewal extends to January 1, 1912. Before that time it is expected that the scheme will have developed.

Options for other properties needed for the project in Orwell, Altmar and other towns in the Eastern end of the county have been filed from time to time in the last three months and show that Mr. Lux and his associates have agreed to pay over $100 000 for these parcels, indicating that the land alone necessary for developing the scheme will cost in the neighborhood of $200,000. Expert engineers have gone over and prepared plans for the project and while it is not known what the entire cost of harnessing the stream will cost, it is said that it will run from $600,000 to $700,000.

COUNTY BUYS AUTOMOBILE

County Superintendent of Highways E. A. Howard will travel over Oswego County roads in an auto hereafter. The Special Committee from the Board of Supervisors has purchased a $1,400 Reo for him from H. R. Franklin of Pulaski. This will save much time for Mr. Howard, and incidentally the county and greatly facilitate his work.

MAYOR CONNERS AWARDED CONTRACT

Oswego County to Have Over Twenty Miles of New State Road This Year—Will Cost $203,611.99.

Albany, March 23.—The State Highway Commission on Wednesday opened bids on the several Oswego County roads proposed to be improved during the coming season and announced the awards. There were from four to fourteen bids on each contract and the total amount runs to $203,611.99. Mayor Joseph H. Conners of Fulton was among the successful contractors. The awards made with the amounts and length of road follows:

Road No. 772, Fulton-Hannibal, Part 1, 3.67 miles, Joseph H. Connors, Fulton, $43,990. Awarded on residuum.

Road No. 823, Fulton-Oswego road, 3.33 miles. Monroe Roads' Company, Pittsford, N. Y., $34,212. Mr. Connors was also a bidder on this contract, his bid amounting to $34,700. Awarded on residuum.

Road No. 826, Pulaski-Orwell road, 5.93 miles. Folk & Menzies, Buffalo, $56,999.99. There were fourteen bids submitted on this contract and the award was made on residuum.

Road No. 5082, Mexico-Union Square, 2.92 miles. Charles O. McComb, Syracuse, $27,990. Award on residuum.

Road No. 5083, Union Square-Pulaski, Part 1, 2.61 miles. Charles O. McComb, Syracuse, $30,420. There were nine bidders on this contract and it was awarded on residuum.

If the work contracted for by the State Highway Department is all done this year Oswego county will have twenty miles more of improved roads built this year. This with the large amount of work to be done on the county roads by County Superintendent Howard means that there will be unusual activity in road improvements the coming summer.

FAREWELL FOR MISS STRANAHAN

Miss Louise Stranahan was honor guest at a six o'clock dinner given on Saturday at the home of Miss Barbara Gilbert, No. 414 Academy street, by Miss Gilbert and Miss Emma Crockett. Ten young ladies were invited to bid Miss Stranahan farewell before she leaves for England to make her future home.

The round table in the dining room had been beautifully decorated with spring flowers, yellow and green predominating in the color scheme, and the place cards were most appropriately hand painted ships under full sail. The five course dinner was very delectable and served in a most dainty manner.

When the viands had been thoroughly discussed, Miss Zuima Allen as toastmistress called upon the guests to respond to the following very interesting subjects:

Our High school, Miss Gertrude Lake; The O. O. H. club, Miss Emma Crockett; The future of the girls, Miss Marjorie Fairgrieve; Our gentlemen friends, Miss Barbara Gilbert. Our guest of honor, Miss Zuima Allen

The responses were filled with sparkle and wit, each telling point being received with liberal applause and merriment by the listeners. The toasts were drunk in grape juice and each was enthusiastically received. The fun and fact embodied in the responses were largely a reminiscence of school life which undoubtedly will be often recalled by Miss Stranahan.

The response of the toastmistress was most apt. It was written in Hiawatha meter and was replete with originality. During its recital Miss Allen presented Miss Stranahan with two pieces of table silver as a token of the love and esteem in which she was held by her schoolmates. The recipient was so surprised that she with difficulty voiced her appreciation and gratitude and tears came freely to the eyes of the assemblage.

Later in the evening "our gentlemen friends" gathered at Miss Gilbert's home, when music and conversation were enjoyed until a late hour. The dinner was the most delightful event yet given by the younger society set.

Lakes of Blood.

The name Lake of Blood or its equivalent has been given to places as far apart as England and South America. "Sanguelne"—i. e., the Lake of Blood—was the name given by the victorious Normans to the battlefield at Hastings, where the Saxons were overthrown and slain with terrible carnage.

For a similar reason Lake Trasimene has borne the name "Sanginerto" because its waters were reddened during the second Punic war by the blood of some 15,000 Romans who fell before the troops of Hannibal.

Yet another Lake of Blood, called also "Yaguar Cocha," is situated in the state of Ecuador. It is one of a series of lakes formed by the extinct craters of volcanoes on the towering heights of the Andes range of mountains.

Caller—There's one question I should like to have answered. When a thought flashes across the intellect does it effect any molecular changes in the cellular or muscular tissues composing the material substance of the cerebral mass, or does it operate merely in the realm of the spiritual ego, thereby leaving no trace subject to detection or classification in the domain of substantiality? EMPIRE THEATRE, SYRACUSE

"Three Twins"—This Smartest of Musical Comedies Has an Interesting History.

"Three Twins," Jos. M. Gaites' enormously successful musical comedy that will be the attraction at the Empire Theatre, Syracuse, beginning Monday, March 27, is full of interesting dramatic history. Mrs. R. Pacheo's famous farce comedy, "Incog," of which the musical play is an adaptation, was originally produced at the Bijou Theatre, New York City, February 22d, 1892, with Mr. Charles Dickson, the adaptor, in the star role.

Mr. Dickson was supported by a cast composed of the following actors now prominent in the theatrical world: Harry Davenport, Earl Brown, Louis Mann, Max Freeman, Robert Edeson, Louis Mason, Ellen Berg, Lillian Burkhardt, Nellie Buckley, Clara Lipman and Alice Shepard.

There are several bits of real life romance connected with "Incog," among them being the origin of the famous old saying, "It is to laugh!" On the opening performances, Louis Mann's dear little mother sat in the front row and when after the final curtain, Charles Dickson asked her opinion of the play; she replied in her quaint German way "Ach! it is to laugh!" and since then every German comedian on the stage at one time or another used this sentence in his work.

Three marriages resulted from associations formed through this play. It was in "Incog" that Louis Mann met and married Clara Lipman, Robert Edeson wooed and won Ellen Berg and Charles Dickson, Lillian Burkhardt.

"Incog" is about the only successful straight farce that has adapted itself to music without the story of the plot suffering, its excellent situations and natural development have all been retained in their original perfect state in the present production of "Three Twins."

When Charles Dickson conceived the idea of making a musical comedy version of "Incog," which he put into immediate execution with the result that "Three Twins" was produced on March 7th, at the Whitney Opera House, Chicago, Ill., and ran until June 13th, when it was only taken off to allow a New York production at the Herald Square Theatre which ran for fourteen months.

It was an instantaneous success and especially was this true of the catchy lyrics of Otto Hauerbach and the beautiful music of Karl Hoschma. Every one of the number scored an individual hit and the Chicago Press and public were unanimous in their praise of the striking melodies, including "Boo Hoo, Tee Hee," "Little Miss Up-to-Date," "The Girl Up There," "Good Night, Sweetheart, Good Night," "Hypnotic Waltz," "Cuddle Up a Little Closer," "Lovey Mine," and the "Yama Yama Man," the last two numbers achieving a success that was positively phenomenal.

"Three Twins" is a clean, wholesome entertainment abounding in humor with two hearty laughs every minute, or three hundred during the one hundred and fifty minutes of each performance It is filled with many striking novelties, prominent among them being, "The Merry Go Round," "The Seven Ages of Cuddling," "The Crying Grass Widow," "The Hypnotic Kiss," the awe-inspiring "Yama Yama Man, and "The Mysterious Face," the latter a genuine sensation.

Mr. Gaites is sending the original New York Company of eighty including Clifton Crawford, Mayme Gehrue, Daisy Leon, Della Niven, Elsie Mynn, Jos. Allen, Hugh Fay, Russell Lennon, Geo. Herbert and Ralph Locke, and a big chorus of American beauties.

Mail orders will receive prompt attention. If they contain certified check, postal or express orders, payable to Theatre. If parties desire tickets mailed, self addressed envelope must accompany order, thus avoiding possibility of error. Special attention will at all times be given to out of town orders.

COMPANY BUYS PROPERTY

A transfer of the land contracts made recently byF erdinand Schaefer of Rochester to the Salmon River Land company was filed in the County Clerk's office Friday. A number of parcels of land in Richland and Altmar contracted for by Mr. Schaefer are transferred to the Land company. Options on this land were obtained during the past winter and these have been taken up from time to time. No consideration is mentioned in the transfer but it is expected that the Salmon River company will pay hundreds of thousands of dollars for the land wanted.

Matters Political

The most astounding announcement in political circles so far this week is that Undertaker E. P. Cole decided to withdraw from the contest for Assemblyman and to leave the field clear for Mr. Sweet. Mr. Cole feels that he has found the "glad hand" extended to him whenever men were seeking office and desired work done for them, and he has found how difficult it is to interest these same recipients of favors in his own candidacy.

There seems a lack of available mayorality timber on the Republican side this Fall, none seemingly being willing to accept the responsibility of office. On the Democratic side two candidates are spoken of frequently, Messrs. Edward Baker and James Brooks.

City Attorney G. M. Fanning is making a strenuous canvass for the Republican nomination for district attorney and he is very confident of success. He believes that when the delegates make known their preference in county convention this coming Summer, that Fulton will stand as a unit for his nomination. As Shoe Dealer M. A. Stranahan is also a candidate for county office, that of sheriff, on the same ticket it would seem that complications are bound to arise unless the delegates be conceded to both contestants and it be left with the convention to decide. In that case it would appear that Fulton would not have even a look-in for county office.

If Alderman F. E. Wolcott of the Fifth ward will stand for renomination it is not believed that any other man in the ward could be persuaded to go into a contest against him. He has made an exceptionally good record on the board and his vote has been registered in the taxpayers' interests always. No word other than commendatory has been heard regarding him and he should be and undoubtedly will become the party's choice to succeed himself in the city board.

Attorney Udelle Bartlette, candidate for the supreme court justiceship, is spending some time in Fulton these days pushing his candidacy for the Republican nomination. Attorney E. B. Powell another candidate for the office, is also making an earnest canvas for the delegates.

District Attorney Freelon J. Davis is an avowed candidate to succeed himself and Attorney F. D. Culkin of Oswego stands ready to try conclusions in Oswego with any or all of the other candidates for the office. For sheriff there are at least four contestants already announced — Messrs. Stranahan, Frank White, Carl Chiler, Undersheriff Dennis. This week it was rumored that Mr. P. G. Hydorn of Sandy Creek would probably announce his candidacy before the week ended and that he had received pledges of support from unexpected sources. However this rumor is unconfirmed.

Be it as it will, the fight is on and it will be a fast and furious one from now until the finish. One thing Fulton must bear in mind—to secure for herself one of the important county offices and the time was never more propitious than now. No jugging will be tolerated. Fair play as between contestants and a strong pull for Fulton.

The Jockey Club of New York and the sporting gentry [illegible] country are [illegible] the "hypocrites" who have been so successfully agitating against horse racing. The breeding of race horses in America has been doubtless given a staggering blow—but what of it? The race horse is the least useful of the equine race. He is small, a light weight carrier, "all hot sand and ginger," unfit for the saddle, unless it is the saddle of a light weight jockey, and is fit for nothing but gambling. If crossed with a cold blooded horse of good bone and size, a good saddle or carriage horse may be obtained, but there is no longer any demand for the thoroughbred race horse in peace or in war. The telephone or wireless telegraph the motor cycle or the automobile will call and bring the doctor much quicker than the swiftest race horse, while for courier purposes in time of war or in stress of battle, the telephone and wireless telegraph, to say nothing of flying machines, have put the equine racer hors de combat. Mr. Belmont complains that the "hypocrites" have refused to recognize the great good racing was accomplishing for the improvement of the breed of horses. It is only sporting men of the Belmont character that claim that racing does any good for the improvement of the breed. It doubtless improves a breed—but what kind of a breed? Horses doubtless will long be used for the saddle, for draft on the roads and on farms, or for pleasure, but it is astonishing to see the extent to which motor vehicles have in a very short time taken the place of horses. Mr. Belmont has announced that he will ship to Great Britain four of his best two-year-old colts. Well, let them go with their jockeys and their black-leg entourage. Farmers and breeders are importing Clydesdale, Norman and Percheron horses, which are far better.

It appears that the distinguished military experts of France and Germany are strenuously at work to show that the United States and Japan must fight. The argument of the German expert is that the control of the Pacific is essential to the commercial existence of Japan, and that in order to maintain this supremacy Japan must have the control of Guam and Hawaii as coaling stations and bases of supply. But can Japan control the Pacific? Will not England, Germany, France, Russia and other European powers have something to say with reference to the control of the Pacific? Great Britain is easily five times as powerful on the sea as Japan, and yet she does not pretend to control the Atlantic or even the Mediterranean, of which she holds both the gates Suez and Gibraltar. The Mediterranean is an open sea. Japan cannot control the Pacific. It is doubtful if she could control the inland sea of Japan, to say nothing of the Yellow Sea, the sea of China and other contiguous waters. The Pacific is by odds the biggest of oceans, and no nation or nations can control it. The same writer argues that the United States has only twenty-three warships in the Pacific, while Japan has 125. He is mistaken. Japan has 125 thousand, but they are mostly sampand, a kind of fishing boat carrying two or three persons with a tall oar. The Japanese will have and ought to have much to do with the navigation of the Pacific, for they are unexcelled as sailors and can conduct a carry trade at less than half the cost of any American or European country; but the talk of any one nation controlling the Pacific is as extravagant as it would be to talk of controlling the ether.

It is said that the United States imported more than forty millions of dollars worth of diamonds last year. This country, as might be expected, is the greatest diamond market in the world. It also furnishes the greatest harvest in the world for diamond thieves. It is said that most ladies of the "four hundred" wear paste diamonds in order to avoid the exposure of their real gems to the cupidity of the light-fingered exports. Good scheme, but why pay for the real if the spurious will do as well?

The first step of the extra session of Congress will be to pass the Canada reciprocity bill and the second step will be, it is said, to materially reduce the tariff on wool and woolen goods. If this can be accomplished, the western Senator who has been called the "greatest shepherd since Abraham, will lose a million or two dollars, but ninety millions of Americans will wear more elegant and more comfortable attire.

A Useful Remedy.

Little four-year-old Billy was visiting his neighbor, Jerry. Billy showed every evidence of a bad cold. Jerry's mother asked with grave solicitude, "Doesn't your mother give you anything for your cold, Billy?" whereupon Billy answered, feeling in all his pockets at once, "Yes, ma'am; she gives me a clean handkerchief."—Lippincott's.

CORRESPONENCE

Editor Times: Allow me to express a word in commendation of the popular entertainment course given under the auspices of the Baraca class of the First Baptist church, on the closing number which occurred on Wednesday evening, March 15. At the close of similar entertainments given one year ago there was printed in the Times columns a brief report and the hope was expressed that a similar course of entertainments might be inaugurated for the coming year. This request has been realized and, if one individual opinion may be expressed, would say this course has been popular and greatly enjoyed by large numbers of Fulton's best citizens. The course opened with a vocal concert by the Welsh Prize Singers of Syracuse, whose reputation alone would fill any ordinary church or hall. They were greeted with a large and enthusiastic audience, repeating nearly every number from generous encores. The volume of voice exhibited by each member and by the combined groups was something remarkable and showed thorough training.

The following numbers occuring in the months of December, January and February were filled with superior entertainment and attended by large audiences on each occasion, giving entire and complete satisfaction. But what must be conceded to be the most popular and most highly enjoyed entertainment was reserved for the closing number and given by local talent. To the large number of church people in our city and the many who patronize the better class of entertainments in adjacent cities, who were present it is needless to speak in commendation of this closing musical feast. To your readers generally would say that home talent was never better brought into use nor could be made to suffer by comparison with paid artists upon the stage or platform. The audience was delighted with each and every number and asked for the re-appearance of the performers. The program was varied, consisting of double-mixed quartette, ladies quartette, vocal solo's, Baraca quartette, together with violin solo's of surpassing beauty, declamations of a pleasing nature and interspersed with selections by Webb's full orchestra.

It is hoped that sufficient funds have been realized from this course of lectures to warrant a continuance during the coming winter, but with an increased price per ticket.

A Pleased Patron.

MR. STRANAHAN'S CANDIDACY

Mr. M. A. Stranahan, a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff, has decided not to withdraw from the race, as has been reported during this week. He has talked with leaders in several of the towns of the county and they are urging him to stay in the race and assuring him of support and co-operation. Mr. Stranahan expects to the immediate future to make a whirlwind canvass of the entire county and get in touch with men and conditions. He is very much encouraged at the outlook and expects to have his home city solidly at his back when he goes before the convention next summer.

BOY SCOUT ENTERTAINMENT

Under the auspices of the Boy Scouts of the First Methodist church a unique and popular entertainment will be given by the original "Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock," Major R. H. Hendershot, and his son, Friday evening of next week, April 7, in the church. The Youngsville, Pa., Enterprise says: "The star entertainment of the season was given Monday night under the auspices of the High school, by Major R. H. Hendershot and his son, which drew the largest audience that has ever been in the Opera House. The Major and his son's fife and drum music, their recitations and songs showed that they are entitled to all the honors and high compliments that are bestowed on them through the country. An audience cannot tire of their work. A feature was the Major's songs and humor scattered through the program." The Corinthian, Corinth, N. Y., says: "His imitation with his drumsticks of the starting, long run and ending of the railroad train was truly remarkable, and his imitation of a battle many thought was even more wonderful. As a soloist and reciter the Major is fine. The drums presented him by Horace Greely and the W. R. C. and G. A. R. of the United States were unique curiosities." These men have played in the finest churches in America and abroad, having taken part in over two hundred entertainments during the past year.

J., where they will be joined by the Messrs. Bristol, Mrs. Merriam and Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Palmer of Auburn. The many friends of the groom in this city extend hearty congratulations.

COURT-MARTIAL TRIAL

Th Baraca Regiment of the Baptist church will hold a Court Martial trial at their rooms, Friday evening, March 31, at 8 o'clock.

Charley Richards, an English spy (now teller at the Citizens Bank), will be caught trying to blow up the fort, it is whispered how ever that his advocates will try and prove that he has brain storm at times and thus save him from court martial.

The program follows:

March of the soldiers in fulle uiform
Song by the Regiment Chorus
Tenting on the old camp ground
Officers of day placing the guard
Trial of deserters
. . . Gardner, Streeter and Coles
Attempt to blow up the fort
Shooting the spy
One of the deserters saved by the Stars and Stripes

Those taking part are as follows:

Mr. Sturdevant, Colonel; Mr. Merrill, Advocate General; Messrs. Trask and Lewis, Advocates; Mr. Richards, English spy; Mr. Reed, guard; Messrs Barnes, Cox, Schafer, Balch, Merriam, Kempston and Davis, Guards; Mr. Castor, Officer of day; Mr. Gardner, Deserter; Mr. Coles, Deserter; Mr. Streeter, Deserter.

The entertainment will be followed by a feast and every Baraca and friend are cordially invited.

IRA

Special to the Lot Holders of South Hannibal and Ira Union Cemetery

We find in looking over the list that there are quite a large number who have not sent in their assessment of one dollar as yet for the repairs. We cannot accomplish anything without money. Our cemetery showed the best care last year it ever has because there was such a general response to the assessment call; we feel sure that those that could not do as much as to give one dollar for having their lot cared for need our sympathy.

Those that have taken stock in the fund for perpetual care, and paid their obligation, had the privilege of seeing how faithful their lots were cared for.

The annual meeting occurs the 20th of May.

Please send in your assessment so that every thing may be in good order when that occurs.

HANNIBAL

A real estate deal involving much property was pulled off Saturday between Milton S. Terpening of South Hannibal and Arthur Hall of Hannibal and brother, Henry of Gouverneur, when Mr. Terpening sold his farm of 137 acres together with all stock and farming implements on the place. The consideration was $12,000.00. Mr. Terpening taking as part payment Mr. Hall's residence in this village. The farm is one of the best in this section and is stocked with the best of everything. Mr. Terpening has engaged his services for the season to Highway Commissioner Rogers. This farm was the Gardner homestead, formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Gardner of Fulton.

Mr. McCully is connected with the Eastern Sales Agency for the Paterson Automobiles and Columbia Carrigaes with headquarters at 1706 Broadway, New York. Mr. McCully stated that he had made arrangements with Garrett Brothers, he popular Cayuga street carriage dealers and liverymen, to handle the celebrated Columbia buggies again this year, and that a large car load was on its way from the factory for the third annual opening which will be held in the near future, and due notice of which will appear in this paper. Mr. McCully says that from the number of sales Garrett Brothers have made on these Columbia buggies that they must be becoming very popular in Fulton and vicinity.

Why Spiders Fight.

When two spiders fight there is generally a good reason for the attack and the vigorous defense that follows. It is not generally known that after a certain time spiders become incapable of spinning a web from lack of material. The glutinous excretion from which the slender threads are spun is limited; therefore spiders cannot keep on constructing new snares when the old ones are destroyed. But they can avail themselves of the web producing powers of their younger neighbors, and this they do without scruple. As soon as a spider's web constructing material has become exhausted and its last web destroyed it sets out in search of another home, and unless it should chance to find one that is tenantless a battle usually ensues, which ends only with the retreat or death of the invader or defender.

YOU! "Mister" Business Man

Are you playing safe in the matter of insurance? Could you pay, dollar for dollar, all you owe in case of the destruction of your property by fire?

In the event of a conflagration sweeping your business out of existence, and with it perhaps the savings of a lifetime, are you protected by enough good, sound insurance to put you "on your feet again?"

These are serious questions and the issue is one you cannot avoid. You cannot afford to take chances. Property losses in this country are mounting steadily upward.

Keep fully insured and charge the item into the selling price of your goods, the same as rent, interest or taxes.

We solicit your insurance business.

The Business of Life.

Life is a business we are all apt to mismanage, either living recklessly from day to day or suffering ourselves to be gulled out of our moments by the humbugs of custom. We should despise a man who gave as little activity and forethought to the conduct of any other business. But in this, which is the one thing of all others, since it contains them all, we cannot see the forest for the trees. One brief impression obliterates another. There is something stupefying in the recurrence of unimportant things, and it is only on rare provocations that we can rise to take an outlook beyond daily concerns and comprehend the narrow limits and great possibilities of our existence.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

A SOLDIER OF THE REVOLUTION

The following is a statement of the service of Thomas Marvin, great grandfather to Thomas H. Marvin of Broadway. S. D. Gardner.

Declaration in Order to Obtain the Benefit of the Act of Congress Passed June 7, 1832

State of New York,
County of Onondaga:

On this seventh day of September, 1832, personally appeared in open court before Daniel Moseley, Esquire, Vice-Chancellor of the seventh circuit of the State of New York at a Court of Chancellor now sitting at Onondaga in said County, Thomas Marble, a resident of the town of Van Buren in said County, and being first duly sworn according to law, doth on his oath make the following declaration, in order to obtain the benefit of the Act of Congress passed June 7, 1832, that he entered the service of the United States under the following named officers and served as herein stated, that he resided in C—— till about the year 1795, then removed to Cazenovia in New York state, that, in the year 1812 he removed to Camillus, now Van Buren, where he now resides, that he has no documentary evidence, having lost his two discharges, what he had, or left them when he removed into the State of New York, that Andrew Weaver, and Seth Warner are persons to whom I am known where I now reside, who can certify to my character for veracity and to their belief of my services as a soldier in the Revolution.

I, Thomas Marvin, of the Town of Van Buren, and the County of Onondaga, State of New York, do testify and declare that I was born in the town of Lebanon, in the County of Windham and the State of Connecticut, on the 15th day of January in the year one thousand Seven Hundred and sixty-three, and I further declare that in the year one thousand seven hundred and seventy-nine, about the first of July, I enlisted in the town of Coventry, County of Tolland, (then County of Hartford) and State of Connecticut as a soldier in a regiment of Connecticut State troops for eight months in Capt. Daniel Tilden's Company. Alexander Mack was our lieutenant, the Ensign I do not recollect. In Col. Wells regiment Mr. Root of Coventry was an adjutant. The Lieut. and Majors names I cannot recollect. After the regiment was formed we entered into quarters at New London and remained stationed there until December. We then started on a march for Staten Island, as we were informed by some of the non-commissioned officers. We reached New Haven the last of December and on account of the severity of the weather we were obliged to make a halt for ten or twelve days as nigh as I can recollect. We then marched to Fairfield, Conn. The weather still continuing so severe and the snow had become so deep that we could not march any farther. We then remained stationed there until the last of February, one thousand seven hundred and eighty. We were then discharged by our Colonel. I then went to Hebron, Conn., and resided there until about the first of July, one thousand seven hundred and eighty.

I then enlisted in Hebron, Conn., as a soldier in the United States army for six months. I was then with about twenty other soldiers put under the command of a subaltern officer whose name I cannot recollect, and started on a march for New Jersey where the main army was then stationed. We arrived at headquarters about the middle of July, as nigh as I can recollect. I then joined Capt. Hart's company in Col. Samuel D. Webb's regiment. Ebenezer Huntington was Lieutenant and Compentent of the regiment. (Col. Webb being then a prisoner). Our Adjutant's name I think was Loomis, but I am not positive. The Major's name I cannot recollect. We then remained in New Jersey occasionally marching from one place to another until the time General Arnold attempted to give up West Point to the British. The brigade then marched to West Point, where we remained stationed until the first of January, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one. My time of enlistment being then expired, I was discharged by Lieut. Col. Huntington. I then returned to Hebron, Conn., where I resided until the first of July, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one. I then went to Lebanon, in Connecticut and enlisted as a soldier in the United States Army for six months (under Ensign Beeman, he then officiating as a recruiting officer). I then went to Peekskill, N. Y., where the main army was then stationed. I then joined Capt. John H Cull's company in the regiment of Leather Caps formerly commanded by Col. Meigs but I think it was then commanded by Col. Durfey, but I am not positive, in General Parson's brigade. We then remained stationed there and near there until some time in September. When we were there stationed General La Fayette with his army of French marched up on the opposite side of the river at Rings Ferry and I and about sixty or eighty other soldiers assisted in ferrying the army across the river. Gen. Washington then selected about half of the army (as nigh as I can remember) and started on a march together with Gen. LaFayette and his army for the southward. I was left with the remaining part of the army at or near Peekskill. Soon after this I and twenty-nine other privates were detached from the main army and placed under the command of Lieut. De Ferris and marched from there to Stanford in Connecticut. On our arrival at Stanford we then found Gen. Parsons and his aidecamp, Oliver Lawrence. We remained stationed there as near as I can recollect about six weeks. During that time we were frequently called out to go to Hornneck to protect the inhabitants from being plundered by the British Light Horse and refugees who were frequently scouting about to that purpose. Likewise we joined Capt. Lockwood, who had the command of six whale boats and one gun boat. We manned the boats about 8 o'clock in the evening and directed our course to East Chester. Thither we arrived a little before day the next morning. We then being within British lines, we immediately repaired to a house cellar where we lay concealed during the day and while we were there concealed the British Light Horse passed the house. About eleven o'clock the following night we returned to our boats, took one of our whale boats out of the cove where we landed the night before and carried it on poles across a neck of land about a half a mile and put it into the river about a half a mile above the mouth of East Chester, Chester Creek. We then espied a small sloop lying at anchor, about twelve, opposite our boat. We then manned our boat, made up to her and there being but one man aboard of her we took her without opposition. We then lashed our boat to the sloop, weighed anchor and hoisted the foresail and with a fair breeze moved down to the mouth of the Creek where we found a ten-gun sloop belonging to the British. When we came in about ten rods of the sloop the British, supposing us to be their own men, hailed us to know whether we were coming along side of them. We made them no reply but kept on our course until we run afoul of her. Our men then lying flat on deck we all rose up and fired. A short engagement ensued in which several were wounded on both sides and among the wounded among the British was the captain of sloop, who died the next day about four o'clock in the afternoon. We took the sloop and made twenty-six prisoners. The sloop being a good deal out of repair, we set about repairing her which employed all hands about two hours. We then weighed anchor and steered our course for Stanford. About sunrise we discovered a sloop and a schooner loaded with wood steering their course for New York. We immediately manned our shale boat and our gun boat (we got on our return) and gave chase. On coming up with them we found only two men aboard of each of them. We took them, sloop and schooner, and made them prisoners without much opposition. We then continued our course to Stanford whither we arrived about sunset. We then remained at Stanford until we received news that Lord Cornwallis and his army had surrendered. General Parsons then ordered Lieut. De Ferris to march us on to a rise of ground which was about a half a mile from Stamford town, whence we had a day of rejoicing by firing, etc. At the close of the day we returned to Stanford Town. Soon after this under the command of Lieut. De Ferris we marched and joined the main army which was stationed near Peekskill, the exact place I cannot recollect. I then remained with the main army until my time of service expired and I was discharged by the Colonel.

I further declare that I have served as a faithful soldier in the United States and state service during these hard campaigns. The time of service in the whole being one year and eight months. The above is exclusive of two months, which I was out as an enlisted soldier at two different times being a month's service at each time. At the expiration of each month our regiment was paraded and received the thanks of the commander and we were verbally discharged.

I further declare that the faces of many officers, which I have not named are familiar to me but their names I cannot recollect. I further declare that I have made use of all the means in my power to find some one that was knowing to my being in the army but I cannot find any one living. I may have erred in some things of small importance as to dates etc. But I do most solemnly declare that the above declaration is just and true. Thomas Marvin.

Van Buren, Sept. 11, 1832.

A Handsome Woman

Every woman may not be handsome, but every woman should keep with care the good points nature has given her. No woman need have sallow skin, dull eye, blotchy complexion, who pays proper attention to her health. Where constipation, liver derangements, blood impurities and other irregularities exist, good complexion, bright eyes and sprightly movements cannot exist. Internal derangements reveal themselves sooner or later on the surface. Headache, dark rings around the eyes, sallow skin, a constant tired feeling—mean that the liver and digestive organs are needing help and correction. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets give this necessary help. They work in nature's own way. They do not merely flush the bowels but tone up the liver and stomach to fulfill their proper functions. So mild and gentle do they act that one hardly realizes that they have taken medicine. Chamberlain's Tablets can be relied upon to relieve biliousness, indigestion, constipation and dizziness. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents.

STATE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

State of New York Examination for Farm Manager, State Institutions

An open competitive examination for Farm Manager, State Institutions will be held as stated below:

Intending competitors must execute application blanks and file them in the office of the Commission on or before April 4th 1911. If an application should be rejected due notice will be sent.

Competitors must be at least twenty-one years of age, citizens of the United States and for at least three months residents of the State of New York. The duties of the position are to have charge of and perform more or less work on State institution farms and to conduct such farms upon a highly productive basis. One or all of the following qualifications are desirable: successful experience in practical agriculture; technical training in general agriculture; ability in handling men. The appointee should not be beyond middle life; must be of good character and have good health. Educated farmers preferably graduates of agricultural schools or colleges are desired.

Candidates will not be required to appear at any place for examination. They will fill out an application to show that they are legally eligible to enter the competition and in addition will submit a complete statement of education experience and personal qualifications with any letters or testimonials which they may desire to submit. The Commission may make such further inquiry of and concerning candidates as it deem expedient and may request candidates to appear at some convenient point for oral examination.

The salary of the position is $900 to $1800, with or without maintenance, depending upon the size of the farm. It is expected that some appointments will be made from the eligible list early in the month of April, 1911, and other appointments may be made later.

For application blank, address the State Civil Service Commission, Albany, N. Y.

Issued March 21, 1911.

Joel N. VanPatten of Oneida Gets a Fortune from Brothers

Joel N. Van Patten, popularly known as "Farmer John," who resides at 14 Sherman street, Oneida, and for several years has followed the business of a truckman, was surprised last Saturday to lear that he had fallen heir to a fortune of $100,000 through the death of two brothers Marshall Van Patten of Leadville, Col., and Duane Van Patten of Corning, N. Y. Marshall Van Patten left $90,000 and Duane left $10,000, half of $20,000 life insurance, to their Oneida relative. The former had not been heard of in 30 years, and it was only after a long search on the part of the executors that Joel N. Van Patten was located in the city of Oneida.

Van Patten is 53 years of age and lives in a small home on Sherman street. He has been active in Salvation Army work in Oneida and Syracuse, where he resided before coming to Oneida.

FOR DISEASES OF THE SKIN

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barber's itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the aching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

THE FRESH-AIR BRIGADE

Sing a song of Sleeping-Porch, a family of Fresh Air,
Beds are vacant in the house, people everywhere,
On the roof, and on the porch, on veranda, too,
Blankets covered thick with snow noses pinched and blue.
Father's bed is on the roof; of the kitchen ell;
Mother's underneath a drift, where the snow-flakes fell;
Brother takes his Sleeping-Bag down among the trees;
Sister has a Window-Tent to concentrate the breeze.
Though they scorn me and deride, I shall not begin—
Someone's got to watch the house, so I'm sleeping in.
—Robert Seaveer in Woman's Home Companion for April.

A DREADFUL SIGHT

to H. J. Barnum, of Freeville, N. Y., was the fever-sore that had plagued his life for years in spite of many remedies he tried. At last he used Bucklen's Arnica Salve and wrote: "it has entirely healed with scarcely a scar left." Heals burns, boils, eczema, cuts, bruises, swellings, corns and piles like magic. Only 25c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

Epilepsy, Fits

"My son was cured of a very bad case of epilepsy with Dr. Miles' Nervine."
MRS. D. BAKER, Cleveland, O.

"My little daughter who was afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance is now entirely well after taking Dr. Miles' Nervine only four months."
MRS. C. G. BENNETT, Alma, Mich.

Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance and Spasms, are all nervous diseases. They have been cured in so many instances with Dr. Miles' Nervine that it is reasonable to suppose that it is almost a sure cure for them. With nervous diseases of a severe type, persistent use has almost invariably resulted in a complete cure or lasting benefits, worth many times the cost of the remedy. The best evidence you can get of its merits is to write to those who have used it. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

CLAYTON I. MILLER,

Diamonds Diamonds

This is the season of the year when ones thoughts instinctively turn to thoughts of Diamonds. We have prepared for the season when "the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love", with such an array of diamonds, mounted and unmounted, that every taste, every pocket-book, can be satisfied. Our reputation for expert understanding of diamonds is back of every stone sold and we are ready to take it back at any time, less a certain per cent of the purchase price, that you become dissatisfied with the bargain.

LET US SHOW YOU DIAMONDS.

OSWEGO ENTITLED TO MORE SUPERVISORS

Move May Be Made to Change Districts

It was rumored that within a very short time a movement would be started to change the districts from which supervisors are elected in the cities of Oswego and Fulton. The plan which is now under consideration in both Oswego and Fulton is to have one supervisor from each of the election districts of Fulton and Oswego instead of the present ward system of distribution. This would give the city of Oswego twelve supervisors instead of the present eight.

Those who are talking this plan claim that such a system would give the city more equitable representation on the board in connection with the population and the assessed valuation of the city as compared with the towns of the county.

So far as can be learned nothing definite in the line of legislation to this effect has been prepared from Oswego but there is some talk of action in the immediate future—Oswego Times.

NO NEED TO STOP WORK

When your doctor orders you to stop work, it staggers you. "I can't" you say. You know you are weak, run-down and failing in health, day by day, but you must work as long as you can stand. What you need is Electric Bitters to give tone, strength, and vigor to your system, to prevent breakdown and build you up. Don't be weak, sickly or ailing when Electric Bitters will benefit you from the first dose. Thousands bless them for their glorious health and strength. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

OBJECT TO DUES

It was reported that Camp Anderson, United States War Veterans, Oswego, would probably be disbanded in the near future and the members affiliate with other organizations. The trouble, it is stated, arises over the action of the State body in mandatorially fixing the dues of each member at $3 a year. Heretofore the Camps have been allowed to fix their own dues. The Camp Anderson fee was $1 a year.

POSTAL BANKS BIG SUCCESS

Nearly 4,000 Accounts Averaging $21.50, Already Opened

Washington, D. C.—The success of the postal savings bank system, after a trial of two months, is indicated in the report of the Postmaster General, made public last week, announcing the number of depositors and the net amount of money on deposit at the forty-eight banks on February 28. Since these depositories began operation, on January 3 3,923 accounts have been opened and 6,861 separate deposits made for an average amount of $21.50. During this period only 259 accounts have been drawn out or closed, making the total number of open accounts on February 28 3,664. The net amount on deposit at these offices after two months' operation is $133,869. At this ratio the deposits at the forty-eight offices after one year's operation will amount to $803,214. The total population of the forty-eight towns in which depository offices have been established is only about 37,000,000. If the postal savings system should be patronized in the same proportion when it is established at all money order postoffices the total amount on deposit after one year's operation will be about $200,000,000.

RECEIVER TO SELL PROPERTY

Judge Ray of the United States Circuit Court has received an application from the receiver of the McDermott Contracting Company working on Barge Canal Contract No. 10, in this city, for permission to sell the property of the firm at Norfolk, Va.

There are many unpaid labor claims in Fulton against the company for work on the work here, and application will also be made to discontinue work on contract No. 10 and to sell the machinery now at this place.

The company before becoming financially involved did much of the canal work here, and there are still 125,000 yards of excavating to be done on the contract, together with 30,000 yards of concrete work. The liabilities of the company are estimated at $207,177.11, with assets of $174,775.14. Contractor Mc Dermott' many friends in this city regret that his company has fallen down on the local work. The local contract is one of the most difficult on the barge canal work.

Nearly all of the claims for labor are in the hands of Attorney Claude E. Guile of this city.

FORCED TO LEAVE HOME

Every year a large number of poor sufferers, whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs, are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Salamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It's surely the king of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup—all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at the Red Cross Pharmacy.

THE RIGHT WAY

My uncle Tom says catching birds is easy when you know
The proper way to do it; an' I guess perhaps it's so;
He knows a splendid way, he says,
'at hardly ever fails,
Des creep up close an' drop a bit of salt upon their tails.

I tried it all the afternoon; I know des how to do.
You see a bird down on the ground
—but don't let it see you—
Nen creep up near it wiv the salt, an' be des awful still—
I didn't catch a bird to-day, but tomorrow p'r'aps I will.

DEXTERVILLE

On Wednesday evening last a donation party was held in the little church on the hill, to raise money to help pay the Rev. Mr. Scriver, who preaches here each Sunday afternoon, speaking at two other places during the day and evening. It rained the entire day and the weather was cold and forbidding. Notwithstanding, a goodly number of the church and society people gathered and listened to a prayer and brief speech from the minister. A number of selections were given by members of the Sabbath school and attendants of the church. Many pieces of music were sung by a quartett composed of two sons and two daughters of Rev. Scriver, who came with him from Pulaski to assist in the exercises; landing in Fulton at seven p. m. and coming by carriage to this place. These singers were warmly welcomed, though arriving late, owing to the bad state of the roads and darkness of the night. The entertainment was in charge of the "Willing Workers" with Mrs. Rawson as president, assisted by ex-president, Mrs. W. C. Funck, who has served many years as organizer and president of the club. During the evening a sumptuous repast was served, which was greatly enjoyed by all present. With more music before closing, it was near midnight before all had departed and the visiting friends with the church pastor returned to Fulton to take the early N. Y.-O. & W. train for Oswego to catch the first train to Pulaski. The ewwort of the pastor to reach this distant country parish accompanied by a portion of his family to add interest to the occasion was greatly appreciated by those present.

First Week of the New Millinery Display

On no previous opening-day have we ever received so many compliments on the beauty of our display.

As to the Hats themselves much might be written. Coral is the great favorite, black-and-white, cerise, Empire green and high colors are also much in demand. Satteenberg brims and crowns are also good.

The unusual variety of hats already on view, with more being added each day, and the very modest prices at which they're marked make this initial display of 1911 well worth seeing.

When you see the beauty and exclusiveness of you will readily understand why the best dressed women in Syracuse and vicinity buy here.

Our New Spring Suits

Although we sell many handsome Suits at $60, $75 and $85, we pay particular attention to Suits at $15.00, $18.50, $25 and $35

Every year we try to give you better styles, better materials and better workmanship than we gave you the year before for the same money. Some of the largest and best suit manufacturers co-operate with us in this, as we have shown them it is as much to their advantage as ours that they make us concessions on these lines.

IN THE NEW SPRING SHOWING THERE ARE ABOUT 500 HANDSOME SUITS, SCARCELY TWO ALIKE, AT $15, $18.50, $25.00 AND $35.00.

They are in a big variety of colors, including light grays, gray metal shade, tans, navy, and black, of course. Made of fine serges, Scotch tweeds, hard-finished worsteds and mannish mixtures.

It is hardly necessary for us to tell you that you will find every desirable style that is favored for spring wear. The size range is complete, and there is also a full line of large and extra large sizes.

Every suit in the collection is a splendid value at the price.

A millionaire lay dying. He summoned his lawyer.

"Mr. Tape," said he feebly, draw my will and make it brief. I want my money so left that not one penny of it shall ever leave this country. How shall I manage that?"

"Easily enough," answered the lawyer. "Leave it all to foreign Missions!"—Hope.

Large sums of money should not be carried in the pockets. It makes them bulge unbecomingly and is annoying to one's friends.
